The coming year's budget calls for an income of $2,250,000, or less than $6.00 per man of Canada's army. The increase over last year's budget is accounted for by the enormous growth in the number of calls upon the Association. Not only are new channels of activity constantly presenting themselves, but the old channels grow wider and longer the more the war is protracted. The end is not yet, and even if it were, the activities of the Y.M.C.A. could not cease. If peace were declared to-morrow, the Red Triangle would accompany the last man home, and demobilization cannot be accomplished in a day.

For the solving of the problems that will follow in the wake of the war the Association is laying widespread plans, all affecting the welfare of the men whose courage and sacrifices have not merely placed Canada "on the map," but have preserved her place amongst the civilized nations.

The Red Triangle Fund Campaign on May 7, 8 and 9 for $2,250,000 will not be the last appeal the Y. M. C. A. will make, but every cent contributed will hasten the day when the peace bells shall ring and the boys come marching home.

ANSWERING THE CALL OF THRIFT WITH A SERIES OF REMARKABLE VALUES ON NEW SPRING MERCHANDISE

Taffeta Skirt at $10.00

These are the striking skirts you are hearing so much about for Spring; and unquestionably they are VERY, VERY effective. The grounds are blue, and striped with gay colors. It is gathered all around so as to follow the flare idea; also has two pretty pockets.

Will Women Stop Knitting

Yes, when the war is over and our boys are back celebrating. In the meantime, all patriotic Canadian women will keep on knitting and sewing for the soldiers. Others will perhaps make a sweater for themselves for a respite; then begin anew.

Another Shipment Brings More New Ideas in Neckwear

There are not a thousand different styles here—not nearly. But you can select half a dozen or even a dozen and have them different from each other and you'll not find them being worn by most every other woman on the streets either, for styles are rarely — very rarely — duplicated here.

Price, sets ..... 93c TO $2.00

The Right Kind of Hosiery

Considerable emphasis is laid on the question of prices by some stores when hosiery is concerned; yet they seem to forget that no matter how low a price, if stockings are not thoroughly dependable, a saving of a penny or two proves in the end a loss. Every saving we CAN effect on hosiery or any other item in the store is a real, worth-while saving, and not deducted from the quality.

Hosiery of every kind from ..... 25c TO $3.00

Very, Very, Special!

15 inch Linen-and-Cotton Union Toweling at 15c

We reserve the right to limit the quantity to each purchaser to 10 yards. Has red border; very firmly woven linen and cotton mixture. An extraordinary value that comes every once in a while.

Distinctive Hats for Dress Occasions

It is one thing to provide hats for street wear. It is quite another problem to suit tastes that demand the very finest for unusual occasions. It is the way in which a trimming is placed—probably the angle or tilt of the crown, or the arrangement of flowers that differentiates the ordinary from the unusual.

Whether your tastes incline to the large or small shapes is immaterial, just so long as you want a stunning DRESS hat.

Starting with our collection at $4.00,

Another Group of Coats of $18.00

The woman who has set aside from $—— to $——, and would never have thought of securing the kind of coat she wanted for as low as $18.00, will be immediately interested. Of such favorite materials as silver tone, poiret twill, French serge and others. Half a dozen styles; various shades. Showing finest workmanship throughout.

KEENE ITEMS OF INTEREST

KEENE, April 24.—The entertainment given under the auspices of the Young Men's Bible Class of the Methodist Sunday School last Wednesday night was not as much of a success, financially, as was hoped for, owing to the stormy weather. Those who were unable to attend missed a good evening's entertainment. Mr. Dyer, of Toronto, entertainer, cannot be spoken of too highly, and was much appreciated by the audience. The numbers filled in during the evening by local talent were well rendered and very pleasing.

Mr. Harold Roche spent the week-end with Peterborough friends.

Mrs. James Ashburn is visiting friends at Hastings.

Mrs. Stuart, who was a guest during the past week at the home of Mr. David Edwards, has returned home.

Miss Katie Skinner is visiting friends at Kingston this week.

Master Alex. Wedlock, who has been visiting friends at Peterborough the past three weeks, returned home on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Howson, of Peterborough, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Howson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Howson.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Montgomery, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Ashburn, have returned to their home at Hastings.

The steamer "Rainbow" made her first trip of the season to Peterborough on Saturday last.

Miss Kate Gourlie has returned home from Peterborough, where she spent the past two weeks.

Mr. J. S. Clarke was in Cobourg over the week-end.

Mr. John Wight, of Trenton, and son, were guests this week at the home of Rev. and Mrs. L. S. Wight.

Miss Marion Macfarlane and Miss Oliver, of Peterborough, spent the week-end with Keene friends.

Mrs. Marshall Weir and mother, Mrs. Macfarlane, are spending the week with friends at Peterborough.

Born, on Monday, April 22nd, to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Esson, twins, a son and daughter.

Mr. H. Langwell, who has been spending the winter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Dickson, returned on Wednesday at Toronto.

Mr. James Dickson, Jr., is in Toronto this week on business.

Mrs. Lloyd, of Peterborough, spent a few days last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fletcher.

The annual election of Sunday School officers was held in the parlours of the Methodist Church on Tuesday evening of this week. After the reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were given, the following officers were elected:

Superintendent—Mrs. Harrison.
Assistant Superintendent — David Edwards.
Secretary—Stanley Braden.
Treasurer—Andrew Rennie.
Organist—Edna Taylor.
Assistant Organist—Maggie Keitle.
Supt. Home Department — Mr. David Edwards.
Supt. Cradle Roll—Mrs. B. Kindred.
Librarian—William Stewart.
Assistant Librarian—S. Braden.
Teachers: Primary—Mrs. McLachlan. Class No. 2—A. Rennie. Class No. 3—Mrs. B. Wilson. Class No. 4—Mrs. L. S. Wight. Class No 5—G. T. Gall.

23,500 DISCHARGED SINCE WAR STARTED.

OTTAWA, April 24—A supplementary statement setting forth the work of the Department of Militia and Defence since the beginning of the war was presented to Parliament. It shows that in the calender year 1917 the number of recruits secured for active service in Canada was 64,139 of whom 24,813 were for infantry units. Ten thousand recruits were raised by the British - Canadian recruiting mission in the United States, where it is reported there are 200,000 British and Canadian subjects liable to be drafted for service under the convention prepared by representatives of the two countries and now awaiting ratification. Since the outbreak of war 1,500 officers and 22,000 men of other ranks have been brought back to Canada and discharged from the Canadian expeditionary force.

Sub-Branch Of The G.W.V.A. In Lakefield

Deputation Waited Upon Executive of Peterborough Branch Last Night

The returned soldiers of Lakefield and vicinity will form a sub-branch of the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association. This was decided last night when a Lakefield deputation comprising Comrades Dr. Finnemore, A. G. Fawcett, W. Hampton, J. McFadden and J. Lemay, waited upon the executive of the Peterborough branch in connection with the matter.

The Lakefield sub-branch will open club rooms, elect its own officers and carry on relief work in its neighbourhood. It is proposed to hold an organization meeting in the near future at which Provincial Secretary W. E. Turley and a deputation from the Peterborough branch will be present. The Lakefield veterans are very enthusiastic about the prospects ahead of their organization.

MANY SIGN PLEDGE TO USE NO WHEAT.

New York(April 25.—An appeal to 100,000 mothers in New York State, asking them to pledge themselves and members of their households to abstain entirely from the use of wheat and wheat products until the next harvest was issued to-day by John Mitchell, the president of the New York Food Commission, and state chairman of the Federal Food Board.

"Wheat must be saved," says the appeal; "It is needed abroad for American, English, Irish, Scotch, Canadian, Australian, French and Italian youths fighting for you, and civilization. It is a big part of their daily sustenance.

"In all sections of the country there is a general movement for total abstinence from wheat and wheat products until the next harvest. In New York city 75,000 clubmen have voluntarily surrendered to a wheatless programme."

Total abstention is not expected, however, in families whose members engage in manual labour, if it means more than it is "humanly possible to perform."

SPECIAL SERVICE WILL BE CONDUCTED TO-NIGHT BY BRIGADIER MOREHEN

To-night a special service will be held in the Salvation Army Temple with Brigadier Morehen of Montreal in charge. The service will be in the interests of enrollment for recruits. It will be preceded by an open-air service at seven-thirty o'clock at the corner of George and Simcoe streets.

Geraniums and red satin form a stunning hat.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

A Weather Controller.

(Brantford Expositor.)

In the long list of controllerships we have in Canada to-day, a weather controller has been overlooked. A man who could be really effective on this job would make the work of the other controllers very light.

No Cause For Anger.

(London Advertiser.)

Sir Donald Mann is mad because Sir Adam Beck said he owned a few millions worth of power plants and other things. That's our idea on nothing to get wrathy over.

A Crown of Infamy.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Some Germans are urging K. Wm. to accept the crowns of Esthonia and Livonia. These are quite distinct from the crown of infamy with which the rest of the world wishes to decorate him.

Dense.

(Raleigh News and Observer.)

The fact that the war has been going on for nearly four years and the German people have not found the Kaiser out shows just how dense the Teuton is.

A Steadying Thought.

(New York World.)

Napoleon Bonaparte once said that the British seldom won a battle except the last one, and that is a thought which should steady some despondent minds to-day.

No Sense of Humour.

(Montreal Herald-Telegraph).

No sense of humour! Why last night one honourable member declared that there were social, moral, psychological and even anatomical reasons to support the view that women should not be allowed to vote.

No Cause For Pessimism.

(Toronto Telegram.)

Canadians can find much to justify pessimism in contemplating the work of Canada's civilians and Canada's politicians in this war. Canadians can find nothing to justify pessimism in contemplating the work of the British navy, of the British army, and especially the glories of the undaunted armies that refused to be inundated by the deluge of man power and gun power loosed in the great German offensive of 1918.

Building Warships Here.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

We may move slowly in Canada, but, under the pressure of war conditions, we do more. It was announced at Ottawa the other day that Canada has already commenced the building of steel merchant ships, and that an extensive programme of shipbuilding is to be carried out. More remarkable still, it was announced that Canada has been turning out war vessels of a quality equal to anything of the kind produced in Great Britain or elsewhere.

So we have come at last to a realization of the Laurier Government's programme of years ago, a programme, by the way, which was scoffed at and denounced by some of the very people who are now expressing gratification with the announcement made the other day.

The Silver Lining.

(London Advertiser.)

Another attempt to break through the Allied lines is predicted, and probably will come without undue delay. Two have failed and these failures have their effect on both sides; they inspire the Allies with confidence and dishearten the enemy. The latest effort begins under less favourable conditions than either of the others and is pre-doomed to fail. The war is not yet won and much remains to be done by those overseas and those at home, whether home be Britain, France or the American continent, but the silver lining of the clouds is showing. The back of the storm has been broken.

WILL YOU ASSIST US?

The Canadian Food Board has demanded that all merchants devise some means whereby they release men for production. Will you assist us?

FIRST—By not demanding deliveries of anything under a dollar, unless it is a bulky package, because a man can carry 50 or 100 pounds as easily as ½ pound.

SECOND—By giving us ample time to put up your orders for the morning delivery at 10 o'clock and afternoon delivery at 4 o'clock. Saturday evening delivery at 8 o'clock.

City Preparing For The Visit Of Governor-General On May 6th

Preparations for the reception of the Governor-General in his visit to Peterborough on Monday, May 6th were begun by the Property committee of the Council last night. Ald. Worth presided, and with the aldermen were present Warden W. A. Anderson, Reeve Nicholls of Smith, Mr. A. Mow. at, Inspector of Public schools, Mr. J. J. Hartley and Mr. E. M. Elliott.

The address to His Excellency will be signed by Mayor Duncan and Warden Anderson, and will be an expression of the whole county's welcome and homage. The committee appointed to prepare the address is Mayor Duncan, Aldermen Worth and Dobbin, Warden Anderson and County Clerk Elliott.

Other committees were as follows:
Luncheon — Mayor Duncan, Ald. Worth, Warden Anderson and Reeve Nicholls.
Platform at Central Park—Aldermen Weir, Langford and M. McIntyre and Mr. J. J. Hartley.
Decorations and Band —Mr. R. H. Turner, Aldermen Taylor and Jones.
Automobiles and Drive — Mayor Duncan, Ald. Worth, Mr. A. L. Killaly, G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P. and ex-Mayor Duffus.
Reception and Veterans—Ald. Taylor, Ald. Dobbin, Col. Mills and Mr. Hartley.

The Governor-General is expected to arrive in Peterborough shortly after 9 a.m. and will depart at 3 p.m. The committee is arranging an interesting programme. The route for a morning and afternoon drive has been outlined, and between these features will be public reception at Central Park and luncheon at the Empress. It is expected that the vice-regal party will also visit several of the schools. The details of the arrangements have not yet been completed, but it is the intention of the city and county to make the Governor-General's stay in Peterborough as interesting as possible.

PATRIOTIC TEA

The greatest success attended the patriotic tea given yesterday at the home of Mrs. David Herbison, 471 Stewart street for the Kitchener League.

During the afternoon and evening the entertainment lasting from 4 until 10 a'clock at night, splendid musical selections added greatly to the social success, these numbers being solos by Mrs. Perrin, accompanied by Mrs. Greenslade, Mrs. P. A. Ferguson, accompanied by Miss L. Scott, Miss Lynn, accompanied by Miss Jean Herbison, Corporal Lightheart accompanied by Mr. Schneider, Miss Succee, accompanied by Miss McIntosh, and lastly the item which was so greatly appreciated, solos, "Tipperary" and "Keep the Home Fires Burning," by little six-year-old Doris Wilson.

THE RECEPTION.

The drawing room in which Mrs. Herbison, assisted by Mrs. Knox received, was charming with its gay decorations of allied flags, geraniums, primroses and ferns, while the dining room, also decorated in flags, was pretty with its table decorations of smilax. Here Mrs. McCartney, Mrs. Clemence, Mrs. Neal, Mrs. Stocker, Mrs. McKinley and several other members of the Kitchener League, assisted in passing around the dainty war-time refreshments which consisted of war cookies, brown bread, sandwiches and coffee with strictly one lump of sugar.

DANCE IN EVENING.

In the evening about twenty of the young people enjoyed a delightful little dance until the small hours of the morning.

Over The Top

If a wounded Canadian soldier were to knock at your door and ask for rest and refreshment, there is nothing you would not do for him. As he is "somewhere in France" he cannot visit you, but the Y.M.C.A. is knocking at your door for him to-day. Through that tried and tested agency you can minister, not to one, but to all of our soldier boys at home and overseas. Your money will lessen some poor lad's loneliness, ease another's pain, preserve reason, provide recreation, and camouflage much of the ghastliness of France and Flanders for your fathers and brothers.

In its Red Triangle Fund Campaign on May 7, 8 and 9, the Canadian Y.M.C.A. is going "over the top." Never before has so much money been asked from a generous public by this institution. Two and a quarter million dollars is a large sum of money, even in these days of swollen war-budgets, but the need is there and we do not doubt that the sum asked for will be forthcoming. Not once have the purse-strings of Canadians been drawn tight in the face of an urgent appeal for funds, whether for philanthropic or patriotic needs.

The work of the Y. M. C. A. is at once genuinely philanthropic and unquestionably patriotic. To contribute to its needs is philanthropy without any suggestion of "charity," and it is patriotism without taint.

KARL MUCK STAYS INTERNED.

Swiss Government Won't Interfere — He Claimed German Citizenship.

WASHINGTON, April 25. — The Swiss Government has decided not to press its claim of Swiss citizenship for Dr. Karl Muck, formerly leader of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, now interned at Port Oglethorpe, Ga., as a dangerous German. The Swiss Minister, Hans Sulzer feels satisfied, it was said, that Muck had repeatedly claimed German citizenship.

DON'T BE DYSPEPTIC.

The dyspeptic has thought only of the stomach when the real source of trouble is the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cleanse and purify the digestive and excretory system and in this way put the organs of digestion into splendid working condition. A little patient urging on of the organs when sluggish will restore the habit of healthful digestion.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—As I am one among the many that have suffered from the scarcity of teachers in the rural schools I should like to know what is the matter that the teachers are so scarce. Is it the high cost of living or are the examinations too difficult.

At present there are only two hundred or a little better attending Normal School—not nearly enough to supply the demand. I wish something could be done to better the situation, as I have three little boys attending school and it has been closed for two months in winter, owing to the scarcity of teachers. It is a serious matter to me as well as others.

PETERBOROUGH SOLDIER RECEIVES PARCEL

Bramshott, March 15, 1918.

To the Asphodel Patriotic Society:

Dear Friends,— To-day I was surprised and delighted with a parcel from your society, containing the gifts most dear to Canadians in England and France. This parcel was in perfect order, and contents will be very much enjoyed. I wish to thank you very much, as this is not the first parcel I have received from you. I went to France with the 46th Batt., and was wounded on Vimy Ridge. My home is near Westwood. I expect to go to France in a few days again and will do my best for Canada.

Sincerely,

Victor Supremacy is World-wide

When speaking of Victrolas we use the word "greatest" and that is no empty boast, nor is it merely selling talk. Victor supremacy is universally recognized and vouched for by all the leading musical artists: Caruso, Melba, Butt, Homer, McCormack, Galli Curci, Gluck, Heitetz, Elman, Paderewski, Williams, Sousa, Lauder, Conway, Pryor and scores of other celebrated musicians prefer the Victor "Reproduction" and "Tone Quality."

We have the largest and most complete stock of Victrolas and Records in the city, and we are prepared to give you service—the very best service.

STEAMSHIP ST. PAUL OVERTURNED AT PIER

Vessel Overturned While Being Worked Around to Her Pier --Military Authorities Unwilling to Announce That No One Perished---A Later Report Says at Least Six Men Perished.

600 MEN ON BOARD

A three o'clock despatch says: At least six men were drowned, and a number of others are missing, according to some of the workmen who were allowed to leave the pier. Five of the known dead are laborers, and one was a member of the ship's crew.

The vessel overturned while being warped around to her pier here. It is believed that all persons on board escaped but as the vessel lies two-thirds submerged, with her bow on the bottom and her stern high in the air, the military authorities were unwilling to announce that no one perished. It was considered possible that some of the men might have been caught in the interior of the ship and been drowned. Whether the St. Paul's seacocks were left open or not, or whether the ballast shifted remains to be seen.

Later.—Many workmen appear to have been imprisoned in the hold of the St. Paul. Observers from the tops of buildings overlooking the pier saw rescurers cutting holes in the part of the hull above water, letting down ladders and bringing up men.

A LATER DESPATCH.

The St. Paul did not sink. She lies overturned with her decks partly awash but with her masts lying across the roof of the pier shed. Ropes are aiding in keeping her afloat, placed there by the workmen, some of whom jumped into the water in escaping. There were between 500 and 600 laborers on board at the time she overturned.

STRANGE ACCIDENT AT AN ATLANTIC PORT—MILITARY IN CHARGE.

(Special to The Examiner.)

An Atlantic Port, April 25.—Shortly after arriving here from a near by basin, the American line Steamship St. Paul, now in the Government service, overturned at her pier here today. She was eleven thousand tons, and had rendered great service during the war. The vessel is now lying on her port side. It is supposed her sea cocks were left open. So far as known no one was injured.

The military authorities have taken charge of the situation.

New hats are covered with Georgette crepe.

Chiffon and lace are much used for evening.

Filet lace is actually made of pure wool mohair.

Ailgrettes ornament many of the new hats.

GERMAN LOSSES WERE ONLY NORMAL

London, April 25.—German losses in killed and wounded in the great offensive amounted to no less than 600,000 men, according to reliable information received from Scandinavian sources. These figures, which are of course, unofficial, come from trustworthy sources. There has been much discussion as to the motive behind the disclosure of Karl Bleibtreu, in Neve Europa, that the German losses up to the end of January this year, amounted to 4,456,000 men, killed, wounded and prisoners, excluding the navy and colonial troops, auxiliary forces, and deaths due to sickness. Combined with the figures of the recent battles Germany's total losses now exceed 5,000,000. The total given by Bleibtreu far exceeded anything Germany had previously admitted.

There is a suggestion that Bleibtreu's article was intended to minimize proportionately the recent losses on the western front, which are causing serious disturbances in Germany. When the enormous casualties of the battlefield are added are increased rate of mortality of the civilian population it is clear Germany's losses cannot be recovered in a generation.

TRUE PATRIOTS ARE AVOIDING SAUERKRAUT

(Special to The Examiner.)

New York, April 25.—All things German shall become unpopular, even sauerkraut. The pickle dealers report that true patriots are now avoiding sauerkraut, because of its German associations.

CONFERENCE WILL OPEN IN ST. PAUL'S ON SUNDAY NEXT

Light on Future Events — What the Scriptures Indicate

One of the most interesting features connected with the return of the Jews to Palestine, which has already commenced, inasmuch as a commission has been despatched to Palestine to prepare the way for the many Jews whom it is expected will return there after the war, is the fact that what has taken place is exactly in accordance with Scripture prophesy. Not a detail of the prophetic forecast is wanting. Sometimes people scoff at the suggestion that the Jews are likely to return to Palestine, and claim that they are too well content with their present condition to leave their homes in various countries to go back to Jerusalem, but all this has been indicated by prophesy.

According to the light that the Scriptures give on this great event, a considerable number of Jews from many countries will go back to Jerusalem in a condition of unbelief. For a while, they will be very prosperous. A great leader will arise among them, after which they will be persecuted by other nations, and the greatest period of trouble in their history will commence, to be followed by their final complete restoration of the land, and their restoration to Divine favour.

Great Events.

Many of these great events will be described in the series of addresses that are to be given at the Bible and Prophetic Conference, which opens in St Paul's Church next Sunday. The speaker,, Rev. Lewis Sperry Chafer, one of the most noted Bible teachers on the Continent, will give a series of evening addresses, lasting from Sunday night until the following Friday night, on prophesy as it relates to the Jews and also to Christians. The great Bible promises to the Jews will be described. It will be shown that they were offered the kingdom by Christ when He offered Himself to them as their King, but was rejected by them. What God is now planning to accomplish during the age in which we live, and the relationship to His purpose of the world events that are now taking place will be dealt with.

Morning Service.

At the morning service on Sunday, Rev. Mr. Chafer will commence the first of a series of addresses on spiritual subjects, dealing with the victorious Christian life. These will be continued every afternoon at 3 o'clock during the week, until Friday. The purpose of these addresses will be to show that the sins which handicap and retard the life of most Christians, should not have dominion over them, but, instead, they should be victorious over these characteristics. Inasmuch as God has offered not only pardon from the penalty of sin, but power to overcome sin in this life.

The Conference is free and open to the public, and a very large attendance is hoped for.

JUDGE HUYCKE HEARD SEVERAL EXEMPTION CLAIMS

Havelock Sent in a Number of Claimants For Exemption

LIST OF CASES

Havelock sent in a strong representation of exemptionists this morning, three of whom, being of the age when exemptions are forfeited, were allowed to go without a hearing, and congratulated by His Honour on the resigned and cheerful spirit with which they accepted the inevitable.

Works Large Farm.

Willis Newton, age 28, exempted in Havelock until he ceased to be a farmer, caused a little variation to the proceeding by his admission that although he has no housekeeper at present on the farm, he hopes to soon. His evidence showed he works a farm of 240 acres, of which 75 are broken, which he works with a brother, and, according to himself, unable to do heavy work, nevertheless able to harvest in the North-West. One brother is called up. The case will be considered.

Clifford Adley, Havelock, aged 21, cheerfully accepted the inevitable, and said if he had to go he was willing to go, and was commended for his spirit.

John Scea and Edward Clarke, Havelock, were under obligation to go under the 21year-old class.

John Sheehan's exemption being cancelled under the new call, was not considered. Richard Condon, Douro, his employer, appeared for him.

Allowed Until June.

Elmo Kidd, Lakefield, a member of a family of eight brothers, of whom none are war, sought exemption. Under the Lakefield tribunal, one of the two brothers, Elmo and Maxwell, have to go. Maxwell, who was chosen to represent the family overseas had worked out of going, and the duty fell upon Elmo, who is called upon to go on June 1st.

Kidd was allowed until June 15th if in the meantime Maxwell is taken he will be allowed too. If Maxwell stays Elmo must go.

Temporary Exemption.

Harvey Williamson, Norwood, aged 23, was next called. The Government had appealed against the exemption. His father appeared, and, unhappily for Williamson's case, let the Judge know, besides working the farm, the boy drove a milk route, while he himself sold cheese for two factories, showing he was working outside the farm proper. Williamson, next called, said he has 80 acres under crop, and that his father is off the farm most of the year. The evidence showed he produced very little for war purposes on the farm.

Allowed until June 15 to show, to the satisfaction of the Government, what he had done towards turning his land into growing war material.

One Will Have to Go.

Frank and John Brick, aged 29 and 28 respectively, belonging to an Ennismore family of five boys, of whom none are at the war, sought exemption on account of the need of their service on two farms which they have rented, since the beginning of the war, from their father. William, a third member, sent in his written appeal.

The Government sent word one boy must go at once. John, a husky looking man, pleaded delicate eyesight and other illnesses.

They will hear later who will go.

William Hope.

William Hope, Indian River, age 23, looking as hopeful as his name, sought exemption on the grounds of greater production. The evidence showed his father has lost a leg, and Hope's time is well spent on two farms, which are worked to the limit by himself and his brother.

The Judge will call the attention of the authorities to the case.

The List.

The list called for to-day were:
Gilbert Douglas, Lakefield—farmer.
Francis Brick, Ennismore—farmer.
John Scea, Havelock—farmer.
Elmo Kidd, Lakefield—farmer.
Melville Defoe, Havelock—farmer.
Harry Williamson, Norwood—farmer.
Allan Hogg, Norwood—farmer.
Peter McNaughton, Norwood—farmer.
William Newton, Havelock—farmer.
James Hope, Kirkfield—farmer.
John Sheehan, Douro—farmer.
John Hope, Indian River—farmer.
Wm. Brick, Ennismore—farmer.
John Brick, Ennismore—farmer.
Clifford Adley, Havelock—farmer.
Edw. Clarke, Havelock—farmer.
William Spratt, Lasswade—farmer.
Frank Booth, Mount Julian—farmer
Joseph Meagher, 92 Aylmer Street—yard foreman.

WILL NOT INTRODUCE COMPULSORY RATIONING IN THE HOMES

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., April 25.—Compulsory food rations or regulation in homes is not immediately in contemplation. It is the desire of the Food Board that the regulations laid down for restaurants and public eating places shall be adopted in the homes, but at present the amount of saving which would be effected would not, it is considered, justify the expensive machinery of compulsory rationing.

WILLING TO WITHDRAW OFFER.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The United States is prepared to withdraw its offer of three ships to expedite grain to Holland, if the comment of Dutch newspapers, accusing the United States of duplicity, is indicative of the feeling of the Netherlands Government and people.

World's Best Beggar.

The London Hospital has a real begging campaign not oftener than every five years. This year is one such quinquennial, and the chairman, Lord Knutsford, the world's record beggar, is in search of a million half-crowns.

"Since the last quinquennial," he writes to the Daily Express, "I have written literally thousands of letters. I have alienated many friends whose friendship towards me was not cheque-deep, and I have been run over by a motor-lorry which brought in £20,000, but is the sort of thing that cannot be done too often.

"Shortly put, we have to raise £150,000 a year, with an endowment of only £30,000 a year to depend on.

"Take but one case—the case of nurses. They are underpaid, and too often not too well fed and badly accommodated. We have recently made a further move towards betterment, but this alone has added £4,000 a year to expenditure.

"I am not wishing to cry 'Wolf.' We mean to keep open doors at the London' as long as possible, but if we do not get enough money now to carry on during the next five years, some part of the work must go under.

"If I can collect a million half-crowns by December 1, the birthday of our president, Queen Alexandra, the position will be saved."

Lord Knutsford asks that cheques may be sent to him at the London Hospital, E.1.

The Ration.

"I have just come back from forty-eight hours' duty in Paris," writes an officer in a Highland regiment. "My servant and I, both in the kilt, were buying some stuff outside a shop, as one does in Paris, when a crowd of about twenty people gathered round and simply stared — some amused, open-mouthed, and some doubtless in admiration. I was amused at first, but it got a bit too much of a good thing, and my servant, who is a wag, said, 'Shall I hand round the hat, sir?' So, not thinking he would, I said, 'Yes, do,' and — if he didn't whip off his Balmoral and take 'round perfectly seriously with a childlike expression on his face. They cleared off all right, some grinning and others looking very fed-up. But we got nothing!"

Legless Mountain Climber.

Snow-capped Mt. Hood, a difficult, exhausting climb for the seasoned sportsman, has been scaled by a legless newsboy. A few weeks ago, accompanied by two guides, a forest ranger, and his wife, the newsy's determination won out, according to Popular Mechanics' Magazine. Part of the trip was made on horseback, but when the steep grades were encountered it was every man for himself. The newsboy was equipped with an improvised sled and blocks studded with heavy spikes. These implements, however, proved more of a hindrance than help and were discarded. Raising himself on his abnormally strong arms he flung his body up the incline several feet at a time and often made better progress than others of the party.

Hastings News

HASTINGS, April 24.—Another aged resident of Hastings has passed away in the person of Mr. John Johnson, who has been ailing for some years, and finally succumbed on Thursday last at an advanced age. The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon, place of interment being Roseneath cemetery. A widow and two daughters, Mrs. S. Fisher and Miss Jennie, both of Campbellford, are left to mourn his loss.

The play, "What happened to Jones," which was given in the Town Hall on Friday evening under the auspices of the I.O.D.E. proved to be a grand success, financially and otherwise. The hall was filled to its capacity, a number from the surrounding towns being present. The programme opened with an instrumental by Miss G. Stevenson and Mrs. W. Knight.

Mr. Stan Weir also contributed a vocal solo and was obliged to respond to an encore.

During the evening an autograph quilt was drawn for and the receiver, Mr. Squire, of Norwood, handed it back to the I.O.D.E., who put it up at auction and sold for $10.

The purchaser was Mr. Walter Fowlds.

BUSINESS MEN'S FIVE PIN LEAGUE

Ypres Team Won Two Out of Three Games

Last night the Ypres team won two of the three games from the Sommes, in the Y.M.C.A. Business Men's five-pin league. Glover was high man for the winners with a high single of 210 and high three of 526, being the league record. Dobbin was high for the Sommes with high single of 186 and high three of 468.

GOOD SCORES AT WATER STREET ALLEYS

Last night at the Water street alleys, Mr. A. Fielder, of the C.G.E. 10-pin team, rolled up the neat total of 693 for three straight games, being only 18 pins short of D. Thompson's record of 711 for 3 games. The scores rolled by Mr. Fielder were 211, 239, 243—693.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

The Can. Gen. Elec. meet the High Rollers, and a good match is anticipated.

JUNIOR HOCKEY PLAYERS AFFECTED

There will be some tall scurrying around next fall for amateur hockey players, if the war is still in progress and all the young men eligible under the new conscription regulations are called into force. The new regulations knock nearly all the top-notch junior teams into a cocked hat by taking away their 19 and 20-year-old players. The removal of these youngsters just graduating from junior ranks puts a crimp in the intermediate and senior ranks too, for the higher classification have mighty little new material from which to fill up holes left by retirement or enlistments. Of the 600 and odd youngsters who were registered with the junior O.H.A. last winter, the call for boys who have attained the age of 20 years an since the first draft under the Military Service Act, takes 110. The 19-year-old clause in the new Act just passed by the Dominion House, nets 130 more. With a total of 240 lads, most of whom were active players, gone from the roster, the sledding is going to be mighty tough in hockey circles next season.

20 YEAR OLDS.

The 20 year old clause will affect approximately the following number in each club of this district:

Juniors — Belleville 1, Cobourg 4, Kingston 8, Lindsay 2, Oshawa 2, Port Hope 1, Peterborough 2, De La Salle 3.

19 YEAR OLDS.

The 19 year old clause will effect the following number in each club:

Belleville 3 Cobourg 4, Kingston 1, Lindsay 1, Oshawa 3, Port Hope 3, Peterborough 5, De La Salle 5.

Difficulties of Correspondents.

F. Ashmead-Bartlett, the British writer, declares that in 1914, at the commencement of hostilities, though the military authorities would not allow any correspondents with the armies, neither the military authorities nor the Foreign Office, at this the most critical period in our history, put any obstacles in the way of anyone who possessed a passport and who wished to cross the Channel. The channel ports like Boulogne, Calais and Dunkirk, were full of pressmen who had been sent over to collect any scraps of news or rumors that might drift back from the firing-line from wounded or deserters, or from those engaged on the lines of communication. I should say that at this time the precautions were so lax that all three of these towns were hotbeds of spies, who had little difficulty in passing through the Belgian army back into the German lines. The anomalies of such a situation are obvious. Here was the press fully prepared to send its best representatives to the front as properly accredited, and yet were refused permission, while dozens of unauthorized pressmen were allowed to hang about the communications, with the bolder occasionally attempting and sometimes succeeding in penetrating the charmed circle and reaching the fighting-line.

THE OLD FOLK.

The Part That They Take In the Great War.

The part of age in the great war is not a very showy one; and in the nature of things it is bound to be more or less behind the lines. Sometimes, indeed, it is entirely a passive part, but it is none the less a very real one.

First of all, of course, come the old men and women who are shouldering manfully the burdens which, in the ordinary run of events, would be at any rate shared by young folk. It must be hard work for some of our gallant old "dugouts" to buckle on the harness of industry once again. We are sometimes inclined to be impatient with the hoary grocer's assistant or the bewhiskered railway porter for their leisurely movements, forgetting that they have most likely left comfortable chimney corners and a well-earned evening of repose after a hard day's work. And though in some cases the leisure of retirement has been dull and irksome, in most the renewed harness must sadly gall the old shoulders which had once already shaken it off with a heartfelt sigh of relief.

But the sacrifice of age is paid in other and sometimes more indirect ways. Sometimes, too, in what may seem small ways in a day of great things; but to many old people—indeed to many people who are not old at all—life is made up of little things, and a small deprivation is sometimes as much felt as a greater one.

With the greatest of passive sacrifices we are not concerned now. That in these days is common to us all old and young; but age, at any rate, has its full share of it. And if it be true, as some hold it to be, that age dulls the capacity for grief as for other things, let us be thankful for it, since the burden of bereavement has fallen so heavily upon the aged.

But what of all the lesser ways in which age has specially suffered by the war? First, there is the loss of companionship. In times like ours few people have spare hours to devote to cheering an old person's solitude.

Those who formerly used to live quiet lives with elderly relatives have nowadays in many—probably in most—cases found the call of national urgency too strong. The people—those useful, pleasant people!—who used always to have a few hours at their disposal in which to drop in on an old, sick or lonely person, are one and all so full of war activities that they can no longer keep up their old small kindnesses. And how much those kindnesses mean to the aged! How much longer and duller a long dull day seems when there is no probability of a break in it—someone coming in to read snippets from the paper or tell the latest bit of local gossip.

Yes, amidst so many urgent demands on charity and kindness, and above all on personal service, age has had to make many a sacrifice; whether it be the comfortably-off old lady whose favorite niece has gone on "war work," or poor old Polly, the superannuated charwoman, whose hands have grown too rheumaticky for washing and whose usual benefactors have either forgotten or had to forego their customary gifts of clothing or little luxuries. They fare badly in these days in more ways than one. Seventy-five cannot stand in a queue, even if the old-age pension would make it worth while to do so. Tea, butter and coal, three things which mean much to old folks, are scarce and dear, and more often than not they simply do without them.

And in their cases the virtue of patriotism must be its own reward. People who still have the best part of their career to run can say in the hardest times: "Never mind, the good times coming will be worth it all." Age cannot say that. The years that the locust hath eaten can never be restored to them on earth. Think of it, youth and strength, and honor, as it deserves, the selfless sacrifice of age!

A Memorial Highway.

The present western battle front, running from the North Sea coast of Belgium to the Swiss border, is to be made into a great international memorial highway, 400 miles in length, if plans which are said to have the endorsement of the Governments involved, are carried out after the war. Here, about the countless graves of the men who have fallen in battle, forests will be planted, and the appalling desolation of No Man's Land will be transformed into carefully kept public ground bordering the highway on either side. It is proposed, also, to allow many of the ruined villages to stand for a time just as they are—grim reminders to coming generations of the horrors and heroism of this war.—Popular Mechanics.

A Japanese begins to read a book at what we would consider the last page.

DOG'S BOARDING SCHOOL.

Primary and Advanced Education of Canines.

The education and care of dogs has been reduced to a science in a western institution, where animals from various households are given courses of instruction which range from the common amenities expected of a well-behaved canine, to taking part in an advertising campaign. Among the simple things which the "pupils" learn are to refrain from jumping up on visitors, to bark only in case of danger, and to sit in a corner until called. A cook is employed to prepare the food, which consists principally of corn bread for breakfast and vegetable soup at night, each dog eating and drinking from his own dish. No meat is provided. Individual, electrically lighted pens are used, in each of which is a carpet bed that is disinfected each morning. A daily examination by a veterinarian reveals any cases of illness and these are quarantined or sent to a hospital connected with the institution.

The school specializes in teaching dogs tricks, such as counting by barking, and picking out any color designated by a word of command. One of the best known of the "graduates" has been trained to carry advertisements through the streets of the city, to assume clever poses for photographs, and to exhibit himself in store windows. — Popular Mechanics.

Preparing Ship Plates.

Punching more than four thousand holes in heavy plates during a nine-hour working day is a modern accomplishment. It could not have been done so recently as a year or two ago. Plates for building ships must have many holes so that they can be riveted together into a finished vessel. The great expansion in steel shipbuilding industries has made the rapid handling of plates at punching machines a real necessity. The plate punch roller has made this rapid handling possible, and it is in use in many of the new plate shops.

The plate is laid on the table and the operator, from his seat, moves the table backward and forward with the aid of an operating lever at his right hand. At his left hand is another lever, which can be operated to move the plate sideways, thereby placing it in the desired position for punching. The punch is controlled by a foot lever.

Plates from one-quarter to one-eighth of an inch thick, and up to 30 by 8 feet in size are handled. The tables are built with roller bearings. —Popular Science Monthly.

Qualified Explanation.

The teacher had asked the children to tell her something about giants, when one little boy blurted out: "A giant is an awfully—great—oh, big, big man—" and then a pause and, fearing some one would think he believed in them, quickly added: "But most everybody knows there isn't any!"

HOW GENERAL FOCH WAS APPOINTED

Result of a Conference Between Lord Milner and Premier Clemenceau.

LONDON, April 24.—That the masterly retreat of the Fifth Army in the face of great odds would live in history, Clemenceau has assured Lord Milner. There is no division of opinion on this subject among the British and French peoples. Apropos of the meeting of these statesmen a remarkable story is told of how at the time of the greatest crisis Clemenceau sat in his library writing a telegram to Lloyd George, asking him to send Milner, believing that between them they could formulate a plan to stem the flood of the German advance. Just as he finished writing the door opened and Milner entered. Together they conferred with Foch and Petain. The outcome of the conference was the appointment of a Generalissimo.

NEW HOTEL AT BURLEIGH.

Opened by Mr. John Jacobs On Lovesick Lake.

Standard licenses are being distributed by License Inspector Stewart to the hotels throughout the county. The only new house is that opened at Burleigh Falls by Mr. John Jacobs. It is situated on Lovesick Lake, a short distance above the lock.

Mr. Jacobs has been a guide in the Burleigh district for many years, and in opening his large house to tourists, promises to keep open house the whole year round and to specialize in good meals.

GRAIN WAS BLESSED.

Feast of St. Mark Was Celebrated TO-DAY.

The blessing of the grain to be planted this year is the feature of the Feast of St. Mark, which was celebrated in the Catholic churches to-day. Following an old custom, the farmers brought samples of their grains to the churches for the blessing. There were quite a number of country people present at the morning masses in the local churches, and St. Martin's church, Ennismore, had a large congregation.

CADET KILLED THIS MORNING

Canadian Press:

CAMP MOHAWK, Deseronto April 25.—Cadet V. R. Evans, of Bayfield, Ont., was instantly killed here this morning when he stepped into the propeller of his aeroplane on leaving the machine. The next of kin was Mrs. W. Evans.

Rumour Of Munitions Company Returning Apparently Groundless

A persistent rumour that the factory vacated by the Metal Products Company would soon be operating again may be true, but every effort to confirm it failed to uncover the slightest confirmation. Unfounded rumours usually reveal themselves by their manifest lack of substance, and this bore all the familiar signs. Mr. G. N. Gordon stated that his efforts in behalf of investors had failed, and other sources of information were equally bare of news. The lease of the buildings held by the Metal Products Company does not expire until October, and the rumour insists that the company or some company is coming to Peterborough.

Gilbert Douglas Shot In The Hand

Young's Point Youth Was Unable to Appear Before the Tribunal This Morning.

LAKEFIELD, April 25. — Gilbert Douglas, son of Mr. William Douglas of Young's Point, was the victim of a shooting accident while out gunning for woodchucks. Douglas was shot in the hand and as a result will lose one of his fingers. Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield was called. Douglas was to have appeared before the tribunal this morning, but Judge Huycke was advised that Douglas was in no condition to appear.

DOG COST HIM $4.60

It Chased a Boy On Bicycle and Police Heard of It.

Mr. H. Smith, Elm street, paid $4.60 for permitting his dog to run at large. It chased a youngster, named Tony Minnecola, who was passing on a bicycle, according to the police report, and when Tony jumped off and pelted the dog with stones, Mr. Smith grabbed him and shook him. All of which brought to the attention of the police the dog's freedom of the street, and eventually cost its owner the afore-mentioned $4.60.

$100,000 FOR HELMET

New York, April 24.—The German spiked helmet, trophy of the second battle of Ypres, which J. P. Morgan obtained from Lieut. Sheriss, of the Canadian forces, last week by purchasing 50,000 worth of Liberty bonds at a loan rally here was auctioned again to-day, Mr. Morgan having returned it for this purpose. This time it sold for 100,000 dollars. Peter Doelger, a brewer, buying that amount of bonds. Mr. Doelger immediately restored the helmet to the Loan Committee and it will again be resold.

Art and Science.

In a recent number of the Bookman William Lyon Phelps thus sets forth the advantage a work of art possesses over a scientific book: "A great work of art is never old-fashioned; because it expresses in final form some truth about human nature, and human nature never changes—in comparison with its primal elements, the mountains are ephemeral. A drama dealing with the impalpable human soul is more likely to stay true than a treatise on geology. This is the notable advantage works of art have over works of science, the advantage of being and remaining true. No matter how important the contribution of scientific books, they are alloyed with inevitable error, and after the death of their authors must be constantly revised by lesser men, improved by smaller minds, whereas the masterpieces of poetry, drama and fiction can not be revised because they are always true. The latest edition of a work of science is the most valuable; and in literature, the earliest."

Praying Soldier Rewarded.

Saying one's prayers at night hurts no one, but it makes a person of strong character to perform that act of piety on some occasions, relates a writer in the Pathfinder. Of such stuff is one of the young soldiers at Camp Meade, Maryland. Every night he knelt and prayed and every night did other soldiers in nearby cots openly ridicule and jeer him. The captain of the company overheard the scoffers one night and administered to them a lecture that they aren't likely to forget. A few days later the young man who was not afraid to stand up for his convictions was made sergeant of the company.

Air Raid Warnings.

In the French cities warning of German air raiders is given by sirens of different construction, some electric, others worked by compressed air or steam. The sound of these sirens is so powerful and penetrating that it can be heard for miles even under unfavorable conditions. Lookouts are maintained at elevated points and day and night close watch is kept upon the horizon line in the direction toward the enemy.

Paris itself, however, has been almost immune from aerial attack. To cross the anti-aircraft guns and to elude the patrolling airplanes is practically an impossibility since the retirement of the enemy.

Portuguese Burial Customs.

Instead of headstones and monuments, the cemetery of Lisbon shows rows and rows of tiny chapels, ranged in long avenues bordered by cypress trees. The Portuguese are reluctant to bury their dead out of sight, and these chapels serve as mortuaries for the coffins, which are placed on the shelves within. Through the iron grills the eye discerns small altars and flowers gleaming through the subdued light of the interiors.—Family Herald.

Unless You Can Play all These Records You Have Not a Complete Phonograph

The BRUNSWICK is a complete Phonograph

No makeshift "attachments" on the ALL-record Brunswick—it was DESIGNED, not adapted, to play any record. And it was designed to play them all BETTER. No needle noise, no scratching, no metallic or nasal tones. This is due to the all-wood white holly tone chamber,—built like a violin.

The Brunswick is "All Phonographs in One"—an unusual phonograph that has frankly adopted the best features of all and with some added refinements of beauty and finish. And the price of this COMPLETE phonograph is in keeping with the economy of the times.

The Brunswick brings ALL singers, ALL bands, ALL orchestras, ALL music to your home. Your choice is not restricted, because it plays ALL records.

And in the Brunswick record you have a remarkable reproduction of the true voice without scratch or nasal tones.

Find this out for yourself. Don't take anybody's word for it. You buy but ONE phonograph—be sure you get the best.

We invite you to hear it in Peterboro. All models in Stock

MUNITIONS FOR '18 CAN'T IMPAIR '19.

London, April 26. — Speaking in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, Winston Churchill said:

"Given loyal support by the workers, we can go through the 1918 fight on the present scale without breaking into the 1919 requirements," the minister said.

"At the end of last week all the British munition losses of the present battle had been made good."

Mr. Churchill said that airplanes were being produced more rapidly than trained pilots were, and that every tank lost was replaced by a new and a better one.

"We are now making more airplanes in a week than during the whole of 1914, more in a quarter than during the whole of 1916, and our output in 1918 will be many times that of 1916.

"Women are making nine-tenths of our output of shells."

Enlistments In Canada Total 439,806 Up To The Thirty-first Of October

Figures Tabled in House Show Ontario Has Easy Lead With 191,632—Majority Were British-Born

ARRESTS UNDER M. S. A.

OTTAWA, April 26.—In the House yesterday afternoon, Mr. Burnham asked: "Was Mr. O'Connor, late Cost of Living Commissioner, at the time of his appointment, required to report to superior authority in case of trouble with or change in his staff?"

Hon. Mr. Crothers: "Mr. O'Connor was and is a secretary in the Department of Justice, and, as to part of his time, was loaned to the Department of Labour without any reference to 'superoir authority'."

Mr. Burnham: "Was Mr. O'Connor free to make and make public, and as a matter of fact, did he make and make public, such reports as he deemed it necessary to make as Commissioner?"

Hon. Mr. Crothers: "Yes."

ONTARIO LEADS ENLISTMENTS.

Mr. Vien was given the following figures of voluntary enlistments up to 31st October, 1917:

Ontario, 191,632.
Quebec, 48,934.
Nova Scotia and P.E.I. 23,436.
New Brunswick, 18,022.
Manitoba, 52,784.
Saskatchewan, 26,111.
Alberta, 36,279.
B. Columbia and Yukon, 42,609.
Total—439,806.

The nationalities were given as Canadian born, 197,473; British born 215,769; other nationalities, 25,564; total, 439,806.

Frank Glass, Middlesex East, drew the attention of the Government to an item appearing in a morning paper which stated that the price of cheese had been fixed for the present year at 23 cents per pound for first grade, 22 1-2 cents for second grade, and 22 cents for third grade. These prices were for cheese set down on the wharf in Montreal. He wished to know whether this item was correct and also whether the Government proposed fixing the price of such articles as condensed milk, and other milk products in accordance with the cheese prices.

Sir George Foster, in the absence of the Minister of Agriculture, said that he thought the information about cheese pirces was correct. He was unable, however, to make any statement about the prices of other milk products ,but promised to draw the matter to the attention of the Minister.

ARRESTS UNDER M.S.A.

J. E. Prevost, Terrebone, told the House that in his constituency there was a large number of Federal Police going around arresting young men, who they thought were liable to service under the M. S. A. These policemen had arrested some young boys after the Registrar had given instructions for their exemption. Mr. Prevost wanted to now whether the Government had any information about the matter. He cited cases in point to illustrate the condition to which he referred.

Speaker Rhodes ruled that the question was not in order, and should be brought up at another time.

Hon. W. S. Fielding referred to statements which had appeared in the public press about an outbreak of smallpox in the district of Cape Island, Shelbourne County, N.S. He said the papers stated that the disease had been taken into this district by returned soldiers, and asked the Minister of Militia if he would have his medical officers look into the matter. There were quite a number of cases.

General Mewburn promised to give the matter his immediate attention.

PRIVATE DINNER PARTIES ARRANGED FOR

NOTICE—All persons, in ordering their food, ought to consider the need of Great Britain and her Allies, and their armies, for wheat, beef, bacon and fats, and that the Canada Food Board desires the public to do everything in their power to make these commodities available for export by eating as little as possible of them and by making use of substitutes and avoiding waste.

Grandpa's Movement.

The small grandson was sent to the garden to call his grandfather to dinner, but, intent upon his work, the man paid little attention to the child, who returned to the house and when asked by his grandmother, "What did grandpa say?" replied: "He didn't say anything. He just went around in a think."

Properly Sized Up.

"Yes," remarked a conceited young bachelor, "I have the greatest admiration for the fair sex, but I never expect to marry—oh, dear, no!" "Indeed," a lady remarked. "Then I am to understand that you not only admire women, but you have a sincere regard for them as well."

You Can't Brush Or Wash Out Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completey dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky, and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

RED LIGHTS PLACED OVER THE FIRE ALARM BOXES IN THE CITY

Fire Chief Grange has inaugurated his policy of placing a red light over each of the fire alarm boxes throughout the city. Box 23, at the corner of Hunter and George streets, has been equipped in this manner, and the result at night appears to be very practical. The red light can be discerned at a long distance, and when the citizens familiarize themselves with the change they will have less difficulty in finding the fire alarm boxes at night.

GRAIN MARKET

Oats weakened slightly again yesterday in a quiet market with export buying not much in evidence, though a report went out from the bulls of a "rumor" that several large houses were in the market again, and were said to have bought heavily on export on account. In any case both Winnipeg and Chicago closed 3-8c to 1-2 lower. Evidetly choosing to ignore all bull rumors for the present. Cash quotations are 1-2 lower, Fort William basis. Corn markets were stronger, cool weather and the lack of the needed warm rains being the full factors. Barley is again quoted lower. In reference to the present weakness in the barley market, there is said to be a purpose in bringing that market down from its recent high record levels and that purpose is to discourage the sowing of too much barley this season and to encourage the farmers to sow wheat instead. The way to do that, it is argued, is to bring down price of barley.

Union Stock Yards. — Receipts, 43 cars, with 311 cattle, 235 calves, 1663 hogs, and 6 sheep and lambs.

A short active market was sufficient yesterday to clean up the light run of fresh cattle and anything left over from the earlier markets. Prices held strong and firm at the big advances recorded during the week, anything choice in the way of handy weight butcher or in the heavy steers class, selling good and steady from $12 to $13.50 and fair to good medium butcher at $11 to $11.50. Fat cows and bulls steady.

Calves steady for choice quality, but weak on the common stuff.

Sheep and lambs in good demand, but very few offering.

Hogs were again a light run, the market settling at 25c up from yesterday at $20.25 fed and watered.

To Prevent Blackleg Vaccinate Cattle
AND DO IT NOW!

Last fall a great many farmers of this county lost valuable cattle from Blackleg, a disease very prevalent also at this season of the year. Every farmer should safeguard his cattle against an outbreak of this dread malady by vaccinating them—AND DO IT NOW!

There is only one sure way to prevent this disease and that is to vaccinate the cattle ,and this dreaded disease can be prevented in animals just as sure as you can prevent small pox in people. Under no circumstances should farmers neglect their cattle.

If you wish to prevent Blackleg either write or go to Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter Street, Peterboro, and you will be furnished with literature and full particulars how to prevent this dreaded disease.

What the Orient Wants.

The Orient now wants, more than anything else in the world, better educational facilities. Ask a citizen of any Oriental country what three things he most desires for his people. Two of the answers may vary according to the local conditions, but one is uniformly the same from Sapporo to Hyderabad; better schools. Not all schools are so favorably situated as St. John's in Shanghai. There are hundreds of millions of people in Asia whose entire family income is not equal to the $220 Mexican (approximately $150 American currency) which St. John's is able to charge for annual tuition. It is not the aim of every school to become self-supporting. The glory of the Christian ideal has always been that its primary care is for the poor and unfortunate. But every year the mission schools are able to shift their work more from the purely charity basis toward one of self-respecting independence. Western education is now so highly prized that pupils and parents alike are willing to make superlative sacrifices to acquire it.—Tyler Dennett in Asia.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

A DANGEROUS COMPLIMENT

CHAPTER LI.

"Oh I am so glad! Now you can help us," I exclaimed, without preamble. I was perfectly honest in my speech. I had no thought, just then, of anything save the assistance Merton would be helping us decide the sort of frame suitable for our place cards, which, while larger than the usual cards used for the purpose, were small enough to require a very dainty frame.

"You are very complimentary," he returned, flushing with pleasure.

"Yes, and it would be dangerous for Helen to say such things to most men," Evelyn broke in, "but you seem to understand even if you are older, that we are young, that we act young and talk young, too; and that we mean nothing wrong, although we may sound silly at times."

"Pardon me Mrs. Reeves, but I never have thought either you or Mrs. Howard at all 'silly,' as you express it. Your naivette is absolutely refreshing. The usual stilted phrases and doings of society people pall tremendously, after a time, as you will find out."

"They do, already. I won't have to wait," Evelyn replied, laughing. "Honestly, Mr. Gray, society bores me almost to death, 'although I say it as shouldn't,' considering my husband's family." And the mone she made was so mirth-provoking that I laughed aloud.

The Frames Are Chosen.

It didn't take us long, with Merton to help us, to decide upon some dainty, filigreed, dull silver frames for our place cards. They were really delightful little souvenirs.

"I shall tell June and Jennie to come and have theirs framed, too," Evelyn said. The salesman smiled and remarked:

"I have framed some very like these for Mr. and Mrs. Rivers. Here they are." And he showed us their cards framed in a much more elaborate frame, but one not nearly as artistic as those we had chosen.

"Ours are the prettiest!" I said, turning to Merton.

"Yes, the simpler a thing like that can be framed, the better it looks. I find it a fault in people who buy more protentious paintings. They fairly obscure the picture because of the ornateness of the frame. I remember a friend of mine once told this story; he had bought a landscape which was elaborately framed. Before he had time to replace the frame with one more to his liking, he invited someone to look at the picture. They came, gazed —as he thought, at the picture, with rapture —then said: "What a beautiful frame!' From that time this man, a real art lover, never allowed a picture to be hung in his home until it was suitably framed."

"But we are not all artists," I exclaimed.

"No! but the idea is so simple anyone can grasp it. Subordinate the frame to the picture. It is the same with everything in life. The lesser is, or should be, subordinated to the greater. There. I have you both looking as solemn as owls with my lecture."

"I think we owe you a vote of thanks," Evelyn said. "I, for one, have learned something worth while, and in such a nice way."

I said nothing, but I felt that he knew that I, too, appreciated what he had said and would profit by it.

Added Thoughtfulness.

I supposed, of course, that Merton would walk along with us when we left the store. But, instead, he escorted us to the door, then bade us good afternoon. I confess I was disappointed and may have shown it, for Evelyn said:

"Don't look so disappointed, Helen. I expect he wanted to come as badly as you wanted him, b ut we might meet Mrs. Collins again. I imagine he shook her so that he might come back and help us select the frames. You see, he had to get rid of Mr. Carpenter, too. I think it was most thoughtful of him not to ask to walk with us."

I had to own that Evelyn was right when after walking a couple of blocks, we ran into Mrs. Collins and Mr. Carpenter.

"Scold me for taking your escort. I shan't feel hurt," she said gaily. We had a delicious tea at the Elite. We tried to keep Mr. Gray, but he pleaded an important engagement. I thought he had run away to go back to you two girls, but I see I was mistaken."

"You flatter us, Mrs. Collins," I replied, made bold by her ill-concealed sneer. "I can't imagine any man leaving so charming a widow as yourself for two very much married matrons like Evelyn and me."

"Bully for you, Helen! I'd never have dared to say anything like that to her. She is the cattiest old thing in Moreland. Not that she is so old, but she hates to see a man look at anyone but her own fascinating self. The pig!"

"I should think that when a woman had been married once, she would be satisfied." It seems so indecent for a woman to want to marry again. Maybe she doesn't! Perhaps she is only flirting."

"Perhaps!" Evelyn answered in an enigmatic way.

To-morrow—A Pat on the Back.

An Aged Choir.

An aged choir composed of half a dozen grandfathers and at least one great-grandfather, without any assistance, sang the whole music of the service at Witham Parish Church, Essex, England, recently. It was not a case of the "big manly voice turning again to childish treble." They sang so well that all, none more than themselves, were delighted. The great-grandfather, Mr. William Beardwell, is a great old chorister, and several of the grandfathers have been in choirs for over fifty years. They were heartily congratulated on their success in "carrying on" while "the boys" are away fighting.

Certainly Is.

"Pa, what's an income tax?"

"Anything we buy at the present price, my son."

Freckles and Blotches Are Easily Peeled Off

If you are bothered with any cutaneous blemish, it's a poor plan to use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Besides, it's much easier to remove the disfiguration with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, moth patches, liver spots, sallowness, red blotches or any surface eruption. The affected cuticle is actually absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view.

Ask the druggist for one ounce of mercolized wax and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in the morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple, harmless treatment report astonishing results.

A NEW SLAV STATE.

Another National Force Has Come Into Existence.

"The declaration of Jugoslavia heralded democracy; into the formation of that document were woven the spirit of the American Declaration of Independence and the experience of the French Republic. But Austria does not view such democracy as separate from her empire. Since the date of the declaration the royal and imperial monarchy has officially proclaimed that, although she does not oppose the idea of Jugoslavia, yet she contends that that state shall be under her protectorate or sovereignty.

"But what of allegiance to the claims of nationalism when a conflict arises between just this recent Jugoslavia and one of the very group of powers urging guarantees of democracy? Italy's position will be the most questionable in the entente reception of the Jugoslav state. However, considering Lloyd George's pledges of support for Serbia given to Premier Pashich, it can well be seen that conflicting claims of new Jugoslav and Italy could be healed. Guglielmo Ferrero points out a factor often overlooked—Slav co-operation with Italian in developing the Adriatic. Let the partition of the Adriatic now be transverse instead of longitudinal; let it be a cross-sea industry reviving days of Venice. As for the province of Istria, as well as certain cities and colonies along the Adriatic Sea that Italy lays claim to possess in the course of time par voie d'infiltration, their future ought to be decided by plebiscite. Indeed, it is possible to read into the proclamation of Jugoslavia an interpretation of the knotty points. Clause ninth says: 'The territory of the Kingdom of the Serbs, the Croats, and the Slovenes shall be understood to include all lands in which our people, under three names, live indivisibly in great aggregates. The clause probably would renounce for Jugoslav territory those places where Slavs live in slight aggregates compared with the Italians. In case of extreme ambiguity it may not be far fetched to suggest internationalization for such cities as Trieste Piume, and Zadar, in the sense in which Hamburg, Bremen, and Luebeck were in the days of the Hanseatic League.

"While the Jugoslavs want unification, they do not make any pretension on the ground of historical traditions and privileges; but they want the creation of a state on the principle of unity of territory, unity of race and language, and unity of national aggregates of population. Yet whether the greater powers, including recalcitrant Italy, will be satisfied or not with the purpose and aims of this new state, there can be no doubt that the advent of Jugoslavia has already been proclaimed in the circle of the nations."—Milivoy S. Stanoyevich in Century.

Telephone Economy

Scarcity of Material

MATERIALS of many different kinds enter into the make-up of the modern telephone plant.

¶ Iron, steel, tin, copper, nickle, aluminum, lead, platinum, brass, asbestos, mica, carbon, rubber, silk, cotton, woods of many kinds, dyestuffs, chemicals—these are but a few of the basic elements in a telephone system, gathered from nearly every country on the globe.

¶ The demands of the war have caused an acute shortage in telephone material. Not only is it abnormally expensive; some of it connot be had at any price.

¶ We ask your help in conserving the supply of telephone material. We suggest care in the handling of the instrument and apparatus on your premises, so as to avoid costly repairs.

¶ All orders for the installation of telephone equipment not absolutely necessary should be postponed until present conditions are past.

¶ In this way you will be putting into practice an effective war-time economy and helping us to meet the more urgent needs of the Conntry's business.

MOTORCYCLES IN WAR.

More Than 750,000 Machines Have Been In Use Since 1914.

From the arrival of the British Expeditionary Force in Belgium in the late summer of 1914 down to the present time, the motorcycle has steadily gained in importance in different branches of the military service. Its use has not been restricted to the allied armies. The best authorities place the number of motorcycles employed by the armies of the Central Powers at the time of the Battle of the Marne at 18,000. The British had at least 40,000 in service in the spring of 1915, while the French had about 11,000. The Italian forces, up to the present, have 10,000, according to recent estimates.

It has been figured that more than 750,000 motorcycles have been in use for military purposes by the belligerent powers since July, 1914. This does not include those at present in the United States army services, for prior to their entrance in the great war the American army did not have more than perhaps 150 machines in all.

Before the era of trench warfare on a large scale, the greater number of motorcycles in use were for despatch riding. By reason of its readiness for use at a moment's notice and its ability to thread its way among the heavy traffic behind the lines, the motorcycle superseded all other means employed for carrying despatches between headquarters, often long distances apart.

Another important use of the motorcycle in war is that of convoying supply trains from base to distributing stations along the front. The flexibility of the motorcycle makes it particularly valuable for such work. Motorcycles have also been used in considerable numbers to convey picked riflemen to points on the front where reinforcements are needed, and whole battalions are sometimes transported in this manner.—Popular Science.

Good Excuse for Bothering.

Charles lived with his aunt, who was a milliner and worked down town. She had told him not to telephone to her unless it was important. One day she was called to the phone, and little Charles said, "Auntie, don't be cross, but this is something very impossible."

Child's Food Important.

Froebel, that deep student of child culture, said that in the early years the child's food is a matter of the greatest importance, not only may the child by this means be made then indolent and inactive, sluggish or mobile, dull or bright, inert or vigorous, but, indeed, for his entire life.

HOW TO AVOID BACKACHE AND NERVOUSNESS

Told by Mrs. Lynch From Own Experience.

Providence, R. I.—"I was all run down in health, was nervous, had headaches, my back ached all the time. I was tired and had no ambition for anything. I had taken a number of medicines which did me no good. One day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for women, so I tried it. My nervousness and backache and headaches disappeared. I gained in weight and feel fine, so I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is suffering as I was."—Mrs. ADELINE B. LYNCH, 100 Plain St., Providence, R. I.

Backache and nervousness are symptoms or nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment.

Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Lynch's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

A Definition.

In her apartment on the Rue de Varenne, Edith Wharton, who is doing war work in Paris, had just taken leave of a lady. This lady's call had been brief, but she had managed to say several wounding things to another lady who was present. "And, Amy," the other lady afterwards complained, "calls me her friend! If I'm her friend, why does she talk to me like that?"

"My dear child," said Mrs. Wharton, with a smile, "don't you know that Amy is one of those women who regard friendship as a cushion wherein to stick their pins?"

NOISES IN EARS, TWITCHING NERVES

Told of the Exhausted Condition of the Nerves—Indigestion and Weak Heart Action Were Other Symptoms.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 22.—There are few people in this city who are not acquainted with the exceptional restorative power of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Reports have come from almost every street of the Limestone City telling of cures effected by this treatment, and the druggists have been surprised at the enormous demand for this great nerve restorative.

This is not to be wondered at when cure is effected in such extreme and complicated cases as the one described in this letter

Mrs. M. A. Couling, 61 Stanley street, Kingston, Ont., writes:

"For a number of years I suffered from a rundown condition of the system, due to overwork. I could not sleep and was restless and worried. I had pains through my back, buzzing in the ears and twitching of my nerves and muscles. I had indigestion and my appetite became poor. I would get drowsy after eating and frequently suffered from great weakness. My circulation was poor, my hands and feet always cold and my heart action weak. I consulted doctors, but they could do nothing for me. Whilst in this condition I decided upon a trial of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. After taking eight boxes of this medicine I am relieved of all the symptoms from which I suffered before, and in general I feel like a new woman. I used to be very constipated so I took Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in connection with the Nerve Food, and am completely cured of that trouble, too."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.70, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Coal of the Earth.

Coal, not gold, as one might imagine, is the most valuable mineral exploited in the world, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Once taken from the earth coal cannot be replaced, nor can it be used over and over again like gold and most of the other metals and minerals.

Hundreds of millions of people depend upon coal for their comfort and very life; its exhaustion in any country would all but paralyze its manufacturing industries.

Civilization and coal go hand in hand. The heaviest coal producing countries lead in civilization, in the arts and in the sciences. A large proportion of the wealth of the world can be traced directly to coal. So the query as to how much coal is left in the world becomes an interesting one—the time is not so far distant when all the known resources of the globe will be exhausted.

Well, then, how much coal is there left in the world?

The bulk of it is stored in the northern continents. North America and Eurasia have six-sevenths of it. Most of that is north of the twentieth parallel. And seventy per cent. of this is in the Western Hemisphere. Two-thirds of the world's total supply is stored between the Appalachians and the Rockies, in North America.

Every year the world uses 1,300,000,000 tons of coal. There is left now, expressed in millions of tons, the following amounts: Both Americas, 5,195,518; Asia, 1,282,074; Europe, 784,192; Oceania, 168,928; Africa, 67,889. This totals 7,398,561,000,000 tons. At the present rate of consumption this will last nearly six centuries.

IRELAND LOSES NOBLE CHAMPION

John Redmond Proved Himself a Great Leader.

HIS IDEALS WERE HIGH

If His Countrymen Had Followed His Lead They Might Have Secured Home Rule Years Ago, But the Cause Has Suffered Greatly Through Death of Champion.

IF Ireland could have followed where John Redmond led it might have had Home Rule years ago. He was a strong leader, and a wise one. He had the admirable qualities of the Irish character without its defects; it was the defects exemplified in the unreasonableness and violent agitations of the Sinn Fein party and their like that baffled his best efforts.

From the time he entered the House of Commons, thirty-seven years ago, Redmond labored with incessant zeal, wisely, temperately, with the insight and foresight of a statesman, to solve the perplexing problem of Ireland. He was a supporter of Parnell, and tried to hold the party together after Parnell's death. His Parliamentary competence and position were high; he had the respect even of Englishmen altogether opposed to Home Rule. The difficulties that confronted him were created on the one hand by the irreconcilable elements, to whom no method but violence was acceptable, and on the other hand by the Ulster opposition. He might have done for Ireland what enlightened statesmen of the type of Milukoff would have done for Russia after the revolution, but both in Ireland and in Russia there were elements that rejected all counsels of enlightened statesmanship and were not to be turned aside from the paths that lead to ruin.

In his devoted loyalty to the Government after the outbreak of the war Redmond set an example which all Ireland should have followed, since that was the one sure way to win the freedom and privileges of Home Rule. The party of unreason and of violence chose rather to enter into conspiracies with agents of Great Britain's enemies, which was the worst possible service they could have rendered to their own cause and to the cause of Ireland. Redmond's death is an irreparable loss to the Nationalist party, for it is difficult to see who can fill his place. Ireland can have Home Rule when Irishmen can agree among themselves to accept a reasonable plan. The chance that an agreement can be reached and a reasonable plan accepted has been very much diminished by the termination of his long years of labor for the good of Ireland.

A Comfortable House To Rent

Just what a number of good people are looking for at the present time. If you will judiciously invest in a home, that three or four hundred dollars, more or less that is only earning you a small rate of interest you will not have to pay rent; you do not have to vacate at the behest of a landlord or an incoming purchaser. At the present time, millions of feet of lumber, as well as other building material is being contracted for in Canada for future shipment. This means advancing values. NOW is the time to buy; no prospect of values lowering. Every prospect of an advance. I have a number of homes for sale. Here is just one sample:

SECURES CROIX DE GUERRE.

THE King of the Belgians has awarded the posthumous honours of Chevalier de l'Ordre de Leopold and the Croix de Guerre to the late Lieut. G. de Pret-Roose de Calcsberg, who, previous to the war, was employed in the European Manager's Office of the C. P. R., Charing Cross. This gallant young officer had served with the Belgian Army since the outbreak of war and took part in the battles of Oostade and Louvain. He was killed, gallantly encouraging his men in the defence of a section of the first line trenches in front of Dixmude.

HONORED BY KING.

ON the morning of March 29th, 1918, the King held an investiture at Buckingham Palace, and decorated Engineer Commander A. E. Philip, late of the C. P. R. liner, "Empress of Britain," with the Order of the British Empire. When shaking hands with Commander Philip His Majesty remarked that he was always pleased to see anyone from the C. P. R.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Just Before the Russian Revolution

By ALAN HINSDALE

Before the Russian revolution there was no more luxurious dwelling place for a sovereign than the Winter Palace at what was then called St. Petersburg. What its condition is now I don't know, for I have not seen it since it ceased to be the czar's residence.

Not long before the breaking out of the world's war, I was a tourist in the capital of Russia, and had letters to the American ambassador there and to prominent Russians. Through the embassy I received an invitation to a ball at this same Winter Palace. I will not pause to describe the scene of splendor, but will mention one woman, about twenty-five, who was not only very beautiful, but bore on her countenance the stamp of a marked spirit within. "That woman," I said to a friend, "interests me; I would like to be presented to her."

"I have her acquaintance," he said, and will introduce you with pleasure. This he did, but I did not find much comfort in the brief chat I had with her. She seemed to have matters on her mind that prevented her making herself agreeable to an untitled stranger from America.

There is a story connected with her that I will narrate. It was told me by the man who introduced me to her, Paul Kaluzsky.

Kaluzsky came from the same place as she. In their social circle was Stepan Serozha, an intimate friend of Paul, whom Paul described to me as a splendid fellow, endowed with great patriotism. There were two girls between whom he divided his attentions. One was Liza Arkadevna, a modest country girl, the other Sonia Mikhailoff, the girl I met at the Winter Palace. The latter spent much time in the capital and was occasionally seen at imperial functions.

Paul told me that Stephan favored Liza, and that Sonia was trying to win him from her. Stephan admitted that Sonia was secretly in favor of the revolutionists, and was endeavoring to enlist the talented Stephan in the cause of the people. But this was confidential; Sonia was supposed to be loyal to the government.

Beyond the fact that Sonia was Liza's rival, Liza distrusted her. She warned Stephan not only against Sonia's influence, but against giving himself up to association with one of the secret circles of revolutionists which were to be found all over Russia. Liza begged Stephan to consider the horrors of Siberia, and the danger he would run by identifying himself with any movement. "Besides," said Liza, "I am told that no one can tell whom to trust; one's most intimate friend may be his betrayer."

One day it was announced that Stephan and Liza were betrothed. Sonia was present at the betrothal ceremonies. She seemed not in the least to mind having lost Stephan to Liza and wished them both great happiness. In doing so she kissed Liza. Paul who was present told me that when this salute was given, he judged from the way Liza received it that she considered it a Judas kiss. At any rate she seemed turned to ice.

About a week after this Stephan disappeared. It was not feared by his friends that he had been made away with by the government, for he had not—so he had assured Liza—committed any disloyal act, having promised her that he would not do so. Time passed and nothing was heard of the missing man. At last it was reported by one who knew him that he had seen Stephan in shackles on his way to Siberia.

About this time Sonia was placed under arrest by the government, accused of being a member of a revolutionary circle. She had strong friends at court and it was said that they secured her release. At any rate after being held some time her friends expecting every day that she would be sent to Siberia she was let out of prison and restored to favor. It was not long after this that I saw her at the Winter Palace. Paul and I were leaving the palace when she passed out to enter her auto to be driven away to her apartments. I went to Paul's home with him and over a glass of wine and a cigar he told me the story. We little thought that we were so near its climax.

The next day, Paul called at my hotel and with a look of horror on his face, told me that when Sonia's chauffeur opened the door of her limousine he found her dead with a dagger in her heart.

I too was appalled, but not as much as Paul who had known the victim from childhood.

My first thought was that Liza was implicated in the murder. I suggested it to Paul who frowned it down at once.

I did not receive a solution of the mystery till after the deposition of the czar and the release of the Siberian prisoners. Then I heard it from Paul.

Sonia was a government spy. For revenge upon Stephan who had turned from her to Liza, she falsely denounced him as a revolutionist. Her arrest was a blind. A circle of revolutionists to which she belonged and whose secrets she was giving the government, learning of her treachery appointed one of its number to dispatch her.

Stephan being freed from Siberia rejoined his betrothed.

Whaling In Japanese Waters.

Almost every night we would be awakened by the siren whistle bringing the news of more whales. If I did not stir at once, the little amah, or maid, always devoted to my interests, would quietly slide back the paper screen to the sleeping room and say "Andrews-san, daigo Hogei go kujira wo tori mashita" (Hogei number five has caught whales). When I had rolled out of the comfortable futon, the quilts constituting a Japanese bed, and began to dress, I would hear little Shio-san pattering about in the other room, gathering my pencils, notebook, and tape measures. Looking like a beautiful night-moth in her bright-colored kimono, with the huge bow of her obi or sash, always neatly arranged, she would be there to help me into the greasy oil-skins and rubber boots, and would clump along in front to the wharf, lighting the way with a paper lantern that I might not bump my head on the eaves and rafters of the low station shed.—Roy Chapman Andrews in Asia.

Spraying Logs for Safety.

As a safety measure logs at a northwestern mill are given a vigorous spraying under several jets of water before going to the saw. The reason for this process is that bits of rock or gravel may become attached to the bark of the log while it is being transported to the mill, and if the swiftly-revolving saw strikes one of these obstructions trouble is likely to follow. The abrupt checking of a circular saw may cause it to fly in a score of pieces that are buried in every direction like shrapnel. Therefore it is a wise precaution, to remove any fragments of stone from the log, and the spray was found to be an effective method. The water is shot upon the surface with great force as the log travels through a chute, carried by steel rollers.

DOMINION TIRES

DOMINION means ALL CANADIAN MADE

Dominion Tires are as Canadian as the Boys who carried the Maple Leaf to Flanders.

The Dominion Rubber System—with its factories, warehouses and branches—is easily the largest manufacturer and distributor of CANADIAN MADE TIRES in Canada.
Every portion of the process of manufacture—from purifying the crude rubber, which now comes to us from our own rubber plantations in the East Indies, to the final inspection of the completed tire—is carried out in CANADIAN FACTORIES BY CANADIAN WORKMEN. More than this,

EVERY "DOMINION" TIRE IS MADE IN CANADA

Our leadership is due to the Tires themselves. Their quality has built up their nation-wide popularity.
And to think that only four years ago—in February, 1914—our first DOMINION Tire was made! Surely our achievement to leadership in four years is a record that any Canadian industry might well be proud of.
"DOMINION" Tires are GOOD Tires and are sold by the best Canadian dealers.

Why Cobb Is In Demand.

Irving Cobb is back in New York from his Ossining—near Sing Sing prison—farm for the winter speaking season in New York. Cobb has on an average of fifty invitations a week to be the chief speaker at dull banquets. He settles on about two.

It is said that these constant requests are what drove him to leave his Riverside Drive apartment for the country. At a luncheon recently he told of a laborer on a railroad disputing the right of way with a limited. As Cobb expressed it he was a "total loss."

A claim agent scurried to the widow and pressed five $100 bills in her hands and had her sign on the dotted lines. The next week she blossomed out in gay widow weeds and met a friend:

"Many yo shorely must be lonesome with Jim gone."

"Indeed I is."

"Gwine to get hitched again."

"I dunno. Railroad men doan' have much time for co'tin and I doan' want no other kind of a man."

TO SUFFER FROM HEADACHES
Makes Life Miserable

Headaches seems to be habitual with many people. Some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually with the dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on.

The varieties of headache most common are sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, debility or indigestion and periodical and spasmodic headache, and undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that has been on the market for over 40 years, removes the cause of the headaches, and not only does this but also restores the entire system to healthy action and buoyant vigour.

Miss Emily Smith, 204 Bellwoods Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters. For two years I was greatly troubled with violent headaches, particularly in the morning. I tried everything to cure me until a friend recommended B.B.B. I tried it, and now I am completely cured."

The Gentlemen of Old China.

Time mattered not to them. They had leisure for literature, poetry, art and philosophy. Their system of morality was based on the great principles of loyalty, filial piety, reverence, faithfulness to friends, and self control. Their system of etiquette was highly developed. Among them the art of respecting other people's feelings was a social code of which no American or European can have any conception before living among such men. Theirs was a noblesse oblige acquired by centuries of culture and refinement. They were good and faithful friends and knew how to show their friendship in many beautiful ways. They sent each other as presents, potted plants, dwarfed trees, rare porcelains, and old paintings, which often cost them serious sacrifices. They exchanged scrolls and fans upon which they wrote original poems. Among them the scholar was held in greater esteem than the merchant prince.—Luther Anderson in Asia

They call it a brief.

It's Cold.

Turn up your collar, thrust your hands to the bottom of your pockets and read about the "Cold Pole" of northern Siberia, where the natives speak patronizingly about Greenland's icy mountains and other such relatively balmy resorts. At the town of Verkoyansk, which would probably never have had any inhabitants if the late Czar's Government had not sent occasional batches of exiles thither, the temperature has been known to drop to 90 degrees below zero, which is a "record" for the whole world. While the regions about North and South Poles of the earth are cold all the time, the Siberian Cold Pole gives its inhabitants a comfortable let-up in summer, when the thermometer frequently climbs up into the eighties above zero. During the brief summer season, the life-giving rays of the sun, which remains above the horizon day and night for some time during the height of the season, exert an intensely stimulating influence upon the vegetation, and the ground is covered with flowers.—Popular Science Monthly.

HANDBOOK FOR SPIES.

Germans Give Full Instructions to Workers.

An official handbook of German espionage, one of the most remarkable documents of the war, was produced as evidence in the course of the great Bergen spy case, which has just been ended in the courts with the conviction of six of the defendants, says the Associated Press.

The handbook was found in the safe of Herr Paasche, one of the employes of the so-called German Information Agency. Its title-page bears the inscription "Duties of the Espionage Service," and it contains, in the words of the court, "the objects and methods of the German information agency in Scandinavia."

The introduction says that important information can be obtained through the neutral or enemy ships which come to Scandinavian ports, regarding such points as mine fields, mine belts, changes in lightships, etc. "By such information, it explains our U-boats can be shown not only safe routes, but also objects of attack."

The following is a summary of one chapter:

"Through shipping only can we get to know the enemy's guardships where his ships are stationed, knowledge of his cruisers and other information. The best source is a ship captain, but they are difficult to obtain. The younger mates are easier to get as their wages are not high. But if neither of these is available, the most likely person on a ship should be approached. Monthly payment of 50 to 500 kroner is available. Captains on British passenger routes are usually paid 300 kroner. Mates on neutral tramp steamers between England and France, 100 to 125 kroner.

"Much information can be gained from passengers, also," says the handbook. The importance is shown of maintaining a good connection with representatives of the neutral press.

The hiring of commercial or other persons who travel in the enemy's country is suggested. "The best persons," says the handbook, are commercial travellers who have been accustomed to travel for some time, and who carry on an actual continuous business. Just now also waiters, barbers, metal workers for shipyards and ammunition factories, and nurses are much sought after in England. Women are especially recommended as good agents for obvious reasons.

The greatest danger is said to be in the sending of information. "But this," says the writer of the handbook, "is reduced to a minimum by our chemical agents in Germany who have taken special interest in this, and have prepared means, which, owing to the inferiority of the enemy's chemical knowledge, he is unable to detect. The materials are given to agents in a form which attracts no attention."

One of these methods illustrated in the course of the trial was by means of handkerchiefs, on which the information was conveyed by means of invisible ink.

In Topsy-Turvy Japan.

Jinrikishaw men draw lots for prospective passengers rather than overwhelm him with attention.

To call a Japanese child by beckoning, the gesture should be made with the back of the hand uppermost and the fingers bent together downward, the motion being slightly downward.

Although the Japanese school children leave their wooden clogs or sandals outside the school house, no mischievous school boy ever mixes them up.

Temple bells in Japan are rung by being struck on the outside with a swinging wooden beam.

Swallows build their nests in the houses of people of the rural districts in Japan, even in the best rooms, a shelf or a tray being placed under the nest to prevent the floor from being marred.

Most Japanese are indifferent to rain. Children with small babies on their backs are often seen wet to the skin.

When one jinrikishaw overtakes and passes another, on the country road, the man always apologizes and says, "By your permission, if you please."

When boards are cut at a saw-mill in Japan, they are put together in the order they were cut so that in building the carpenter may get the same color and grain of wood.

Children buy grasshoppers, feed them on sugar and keep them as we keep canary birds. The tiny cages are tastefully made in a variety of forms—for instance in the shape of a fan, each compartment housing an insect.

Automobile Dressing Room.

A well-known motion picture actress has designed an automobile which serves her as a dressing room with almost as many conveniences as a dressing room in a theatre would provide.

SPECIFIC FOR BRONCHITIS.

The turpentine used in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is not the ordinary commercial article, which is little used because of the unpleasantness of taste, but is specially extracted from tamarac and spruce gum and so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be at the same time pleasant to use and wonderfully effective in the cure of affections of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

INCIDENT OF BATTLE WHERE CANADIANS PLAYED A PART.

A British Soldier's Vengeance for His Brother's Death — Well-Known Irish Writer Describes Very Dramatic Incident That Indicates Something of the Strange Character of War.

IT was early dawn and a thin fog hung over the battlefield. The battalion which had attacked was lying down on the wet, spongy earth, awaiting further orders. For the present moment nothing could be done, as the British barrage was "sitting down" immediately in front and its shell-splinters were hissing back over the heads of the boys in khaki.

The German airplanes, flying low and hidden in the mist, were sweeping down close to the battleground and now and again a machine gun rapped overhead and plastered the ground with bullets. Pte. Lidder, lying in a shell-hole, with the slush covering the greater part of his body, cursed heartily as a stream of bullets dabbed the ground near him and whisked the slimy sludge against his face. "Happen he knows where we are," said the man. He came from Yorkshire, and he alluded to the hidden airman overhead. The sound of the propeller cut through the mist and the machine seemed to be very close.

Lidder looked up at the cloud above him and then along towards the enemy. The shell holes near were not peopled. The German lines seemed to be alive with machine guns, the air was full of bullets. Lidder had seen his comrades fall round him and Lidder was angry. Although an old soldier, wise in the ways of war and conscious of the Hun, he had never before felt so angry with the enemy. And he had reason to, for had not his only brother, newly out from England, fallen in the charge of a few minutes before. Somewhere behind on the field the young boy lay dead; Lidder could visualize him, a limp heap khaki huddled on the ground with a bullet wound, showing red on the white, unwrinkled forehead. Lidder's brow contracted savagely as thoughts fierce and impetuous swept through his mind.

Suddenly, out in front of him, hardly 30 paces away, he saw a light glimmer for a moment and die down. Probably one of his mates was lighting his cigarette. But as far as he knew, none of his mates had gone forward. He was well ahead of the rest. The shell-holes near were not peopled with men in khaki. And certainly none of his mates was in front. Then who was responsible for the light?

The swish of the hostile propeller sounded nearer. Liddler looked up and saw the airplane sweeping over his head, clear of the clouds and a bare hundred yards above him. A fire of sparks escaped from beneath its body, like a shower of gold confetti, and this was followed by three puffs of white smoke. Lidder remembered it was unwise to look upwards at a hostile airplane and he turned his face to the ground again and stared out in front. He was just in time to see a rocket rising from the ground as if in answer to the signal of the airplane.

"That's funny," said Lidder, "mun be some of Fritz's doin's, the swine. Signallin' on us I bet."

He pulled himself out of the shell-hole and crawled towards the shell-hole in which the rocket had risen. A fierce anger held the man, an anger that threw discretion to the winds. The airplane overhead might sight him and open a machine gun on him. But he did not care. All he could see was the hole in front and a mental vision of his dead brother lying on the field behind, the white, unwrinkled forehead pierced with a bullet. All other things were out of Lidder's reckoning. Anger gave a feverish haste to his movements; he wanted to kill, kill!

The barrage was rising and the men would soon be advancing. But Lidder wanted to get his job finished before the others arrived. A man so intent on a mission could not be stayed. He dragged himself forward, clumsily pulling his rifle and bayonet with him. Now and again he could see a hat rise over the rim of the shell-hole, but no face showed.

"Good thing they're not lookin' over," Lidder muttered grimly. "If that happens 'twill all be up with me."

But that did not happen. The holders of the shell-hole — there were three of them—were aroused to the presence of Lidder when he stood over them on the lip of the hole, his face red with rage, his bayonet at the point. He lunged madly, and the first German dropped in a heap, clutching at the air with frantic fingers. Lidder gazed at the falling man, saw him reach the ground and lie quite still, a little froth showing at his lips. He put his foot on the limp mass and drew his bayonet out. Then he turned on the other two.

With a madness beyond all human courage he charged both the men. With eyes staring at nothing, his mouth open, his breath coming in hoarse gasps, one fell to the mucky bottom of the shell-hole trying to slip off the bayonet that had pierced his shoulder. The other German tried to make battle, but Lidder, losing hold of his rifle, sprang in sideways at the German and gripped him by the throat. He fell on top of him, squeezing the man's Adam's apple with fingers of steel. The throat jellied inwards, the face became purple, the breathing ceased.

Lidder sat back on the lip of the shell-hole and gazed vacantly on the results of his moment's rage. The three men lay there in front of him, one with the bayonet sticking out of his shoulder. But to Lidder all that was near him seemed distant and far away. The reaction had set in and he was feeling faint and sick.

"It mun had to be," he said, and he thought of his brother.

The barrage had now lifted and was creeping forward. Behind Lidder the men in khaki were on the move and a few were already close at hand. One man, a corporal, reached the lip of the shell-crater, and looked in.

"Someone has been busy here," he said with a laugh. "Have you done all this?" he asked, looking at Lidder.

But Lidder did not answer.

"Lookin' glum, matey," said the corporal. "What's wrong?"

"I haven't got a bayonet," said Lidder.

"But there, it's there, stickin' in that Jerry's shoulder," said the corporal.

"I can't pull it out," said Lidder. "I can't do it, not for a fortune."

"Close your eyes for a minute, then," said the corporal, and Lidder did as he was told. He opened them when the rifle-but was shoved into his hand, and he saw the German in whom the bayonet had been sticking a moment before, lying face down in the muck with no wound showing.

The men were sweeping past now and Lidder joined in the advance, ready for further work in the field.

A New Celluloid.

About a year ago a considerable amount of interest was aroused in the United States by the announcement that a professor in one of the Japanese universities had invented a successful incombustible substitute for celluloid, to be manufactured from soy bean cake. At the time it was not found practicable to secure any more definite information with regard to the project, but recently further data have been received by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. The new product has been given the trade name of "satolit," derived from the name of the inventor, Prof. S. Sato, and a company for its manufacture has been started with a capital of 2,000,000 yen ($1,000,000). Satolite is a gallalith made of the glucine of soy bean, coagulated by formaline. It is said to be produced much more cheaply than ordinary celluloid, and to have several advantages for industrial use not possessed by the latter. The factory is to be built in the Kukojima district in Tokio, and the actual production will begin this autumn.

Handy Container for Tacks.

By cutting a small, triangular opening in one corner of a tin, or cardboard, box containing tacks, screws, or nails, time is saved and annoyance obviated in shaking out the small quantity desired. The opening should be only large enough to permit the pouring out of a few of the articles at a time, so that one or more can be poured into the hand, as desired.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The Future of Palestine.

Palestine at present is not a desert but an empty and deserted land which has been deprived of its inhabitants. It is emptier than ever since the recent famines and massacres—the latter systematically conducted by the Ottoman oppressors, with the knowledge, if not under the direction, of their German overseers—have cleaned the country of several hundreds of thousands of the population. The land assigned to the Twelve Tribes could at most accommodate only a fraction of the 14,000,000 Jews who are scattered over the face of the earth. But "there is room in Palestine for at least another million Jews without displacing the present inhabitants." It is not contemplated that their increase shall be at the expense of the non-Jewish population, or that their rights and liberties shall diminish those of their neighbors. In particular, the Zionists disown any "desire for the responsibility of the guardianship of the places which they recognize as holy to Christian or Moslem, as well as Jew"—the root of the quarrel that brought about the Crimean war; and they acknowledge the right of all faiths and races to "free access to the centres of devotion which the Holy Land incloses."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Russia's Lost Opportunity.

If ever a country was given a fair chance to reshape its destinies, it was Russia. Finland to the northwest, although perpetually dissatisfied under Russian rule, did nothing more than talk of a separatist movement during the early months of the revolution. The Ukraine nationalistic movement almost died with the Czar's abdication. Russian Armenia and the Caucasian tribes had preferred the Slav yoke to Turkish atrocities, and now they looked forward to a just, peaceable, prosperous era and eventual autonomy, settled in the court of nations, not on the battlefield. Poland, that storehouse of tragic memories, was under the Prussian heel, and could only wish the revolution well.

In fact, everybody wished Russia well except the hungry men who ruled the Central Empires. Even the visionaries who have practically encompassed the ruin of the country would have sacrificed their lives and everything they had except their political theories, to make the revolution a success.

YOUR house—if it is four years old or older—is worth at least 50 per cent more today, than when it was built. Lumber and cement are so high that it would cost half-as-much-again to build this year as it did in 1914. So it is obvious that either a new house or an old one is today so valuable a property that its owner must conserve it unless he is committed to a policy of wilful waste. Keep your house—and all your buildings—protected. And let your paint-protection consist of an economical paint. Use the paint that goes farthest—lasts longest.

Ancient Watch Tower Still Stands.

Al-Mintar, or the watch tower, still exists to the east of the town of Gaza. It is where Samson is said to have carried the gates of the city. On the road from Gaza to Jaffa are those ancient olive trees, many of them more than a thousand years old, with gnarled bark and immense trunks. There is an old legend which credits Gaza with the invention of the first mechanical clocks. These were perhaps the sand clocks which are still used in some mosques.

Plants That Have Emigrated.

Neither the laburnum nor the common lilac is indigenous to this country, the former having been introduced from the Alpine region of Europe and the latter from Persia, where "lilacs" or "lilag" is the name given to its flowers. The horse chestnut was originally a native of Asia, probably of northern India, whence it was introduced into Europe in about the middle of the sixteenth century.

What Physicians Prescribe For Nerves

THE USE OF ORGANIC PHOSPHORUS.

Something over sixty years ago Pelouz, a French scientist, discovered a form of organic phosphorus which when taken into the human system, was quickly converted into nerve tissue.

To-day it is an admitted fact that in the treatment of those ailments, directly or indirectly due to depleted nervous vitality, such as neurasthenia, nervous weakness, premature old age, insomnia, lack of energy, fatigue, nervous debility, thinness, etc., it is unequalled.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere now recognize its merits by its use in ever increasing quantities, and it is therefore a matter of more than ordinary interest to all such sufferers to learn that this organic nerve building phosphorus is now obtainable from McDermid & Jury and good druggists everywhere in the form of 5-grain tablets of pure bitro-phosphate, at a cost so low as to be within the reach of everyone. There are a great variety of so-called phosphates, but the genuine standard bitro-phosphate is composed wholly of the original nerve building substance as discovered by Pelouz.

One of these tablets should be taken with each meal, and the results in many instances are little short of marvellous. Dull eyes become bright, sleep is restored to the sleepless, the nerves regain their strength, thin people put on flesh and the whole system becomes charged with that strength, vitality and energy which makes life so truly worth while.

Preferred a Democrat.

A Bartholomew county drafted man who failed to appear for examination when called, was arrested and taken before the draft board, says the Indianapolis News. He said he didn't wish to go to war and wished to be exempted. A member of the board told him he could go before a notary public and have his blank filled out.

"I don't want to go before a notary public," he replied. "I'd rather go before a Democrat."

This Tough Old World.

"Now, Willie, see the nice cake I have made for your birthday."

"Can I eat it all myself?"

"Why, of course not. You would be sick."

"That's just the way with you, mamma. Whenever you do give me any pleasure, you always tie a string to it."

Heart Beat So Fast

Could Not Sleep

HAD TO SIT UP IN BED

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it will burst. You have weak and dizzy spells, are nervous, irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk upstairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

There is no other remedy will do you so much good, restore your heart to a natural condition, build up your strength and give you back vigor and vitality as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. A. Russell, Niagara Falls, Ont., writes: "At nights I could not sleep, and had to sit up in bed, my heart would beast so fast.

"When I went to walk very far I would get all out of breath, and would have to sit down and rest before I could go any further. I was advised to get Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had used two boxes I could sleep and walk as far as I liked without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Morality of Russia

ARTHUR JUDSON BROWN, in his new book, "Russia in Transformation," speaks of the result of prohibition, which does not seem to have been entirely favorable.

We must give the Russia of the Tsar credit for the prohibition of the sale and use of liquor as a beverage, says the writer. This was done as a war measure in order to increase the efficiency of the army and the nation in the terrific struggle against Germany and Austria. The results were so notably satisfactory as to command the support of public sentiment, and hope is general that the prohibition will be permanent. The Russians were not moderate in their potations. They drank like the North American Indians and the African negroes — intemperately and of the fiery distilled vodka. Sundays and festival days were characterized by the wilest orgies in innumerable villages as well as in all the cities. The ordinarily sluggish peasant becomes a good deal of a brute when drunk, and acts of violence and bestiality were common. The drink bill of the nation was enormous, and much of the general poverty was due to the squandering of money on liquor.

Prohibition brought immediate improvement. Fights and murders diminished. Sundays and festival days became times of healthful sobriety and religious observances. More money was spent for the necessaries and conveniences of life and to the betterment of legitimate business. The families of peasant farmers ate their eggs and chickens and butter instead of selling them to buy vodka, and workmen and soldiers were far more reliable and efficient than when they went on weekly or nightly sprees. Alcohol is still manufactured in as great quantities as ever, but it is used for industrial purposes or exported to France for the manufacture of explosives. There is some illicit selling for beverage purposes, but so furtively and on such a small scale that a recent traveller, who spent four months in Russia, reports that the only drunken men he saw were in Archangel, where they had managed to get whiskey from British ships in the harbor. Broadly speaking, "Russia is without spirits, beer or wine."

One wishes that he could add that other vices were diminished in like proportion. Unfortunately, intemperance is not the only sin, and its abolition does not usher in the millennium. Mohammedan lands are temperate, but they are no models of good conduct. It is a great gain to throttle one such vice as intemperance, but the other foes of morality remain to be fought. The licentiousness of Russian society has long been notorious. Immorality is so sadly common even in the most enlightened western nations that one must be humble in criticizing another people for it. But Russia claims to be the most orthodox and thoroughly religious of all Christian countries. When therefore, we read Tolstoy's description of licentiousness in Russian society, and George Keenan's statement that there are 50,000 registered prostitutes in Petrograd, besides large numbers of clandestine ones, we cannot make the allowances which we must make for some Asiatic countries where, until recently, there was no powerful church with a knowledge of the Christian teaching regarding purity in thought and act. We cannot justly hold a church primarily responsible for the existence of every evil in society; but we are surely justified in regarding the moral conditions which prevailed in Russia as a reflection upon the character of the church which claimed such extensive powers. The Holy Orthodox Church brought severer punishment upon heretics than upon adulterers.

Two years after the prohibition of the sale and use of liquor as a beverage, Stephen Graham, whose friendship for the Russians will not be challenged, sorrowfully wrote: "The suppression of vodka is good, but it would be absurd to say that the energies unleased are entirely on the side of good. The old Adam can express itself in many ways. The wrong impulse merely prevented is not excised. It breaks out in another place. I suppose no Tsar's ukase could clean up the Nevsky Prospect or Tverskaya. The spirit of England would not tolerate a Kislovodsk; we have nothing quite so shameless during the war. The Russian boy of the town is born into a world of more temptations and risks than the English boy. A great deal of disclosed Russian genius must be poisoned between the ages of twelve and twenty by certain social conditions which no one in Russia seems capable of making an effort to clear up. The Russian town of to-day is, no doubt, none too easy for the young woman, and it seems a sort of hell for the young man, a long burning and the worm which dieth not.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Remarkable for it's Healing Qualities

An ointment of exceptional merit—it works like magic. Applied to burns, scalds, bruises, blisters, chafing, sunburn, it draws out the inflammation—soothes and heals. Used in cases of piles, abscesses, boils and other obstinate complaints—it draws out the poisonous secretions—allays the pain and heals. Successfully sold for more than 25 years. 50c at dealers, or write us.

A STRANGE STORY.

Did Ghost of Wordsworth Haunt His Home?

Writing in Harper's Magazine Mrs. Humphrey Ward tells a curiously interesting story of a visit in recent years with her daughter to the home of Wordsworth. What happened on that visit is told as given and set down at the time.

"I found myself, in September, 1911, the tenant of a renovated and rebuilt Rydal Mount, for a few autumn weeks. The house was occupied then, and is still occupied, by Wordsworth's granddaughter and her husband—Mr. and Mrs. Fisher Wordsworth. My eldest daughter was with me, and a strange thing happened to us. I arrived at the Mount before my husband and daughter. She joined me there on September 13. I remember how eagerly I showed her the many Wordsworthiana in the house, collected by the piety of its mistress—the Hayden portrait on the stairs, and the books in the small, low-ceiled room to the right of the hall which is still just as it was in Wordsworth's day; the garden, too, and the poet's walk. All my own early recollections were alive; we chattered long and late. And now let the account of what happened afterwards be given in my daughter's words as she wrote it down the following morning:

"'Rydal Mount, Sept. 14, 1911.

"'Last night, my first at Rydal Mount, I slept in the corner room, over the small sitting-room. I had drawn up the blind about half way up the window before going to bed, and had, drawn the curtain aside over the back of a wooden armchair that stood against the window. The window, a casement, was wide open. I slept soundly, but woke quite suddenly, at what hour I do not know, and found myself sitting bolt upright in bed looking toward the window. Very bright moonlight was shining into the room and I could just see the corner of Loughrigg out in the distance. My first impression was of bright moonlight, but then I became strongly conscious of the moonlight striking on something, and I saw perfectly clearly the figure of an old man sitting in the armchair by the window. I said to myself — "That's Wordsworth!" He was sitting with either hand resting on the arms of the chair, leaning back, his head rather bent and he seemed to be looking down, straight in front of him with a rapt expression. He was not looking at me, nor out of the window. The moonlight lit up the top of his head and the silvery hair and I noticed that the hair was very thin. The whole expression was of something solemn and beautiful, and I was not in the very least frightened. As I looked—I cannot say, when I looked again, for I have no recollection of ceasing to look, or looking away—the figure disappeared, and I became aware of the empty chair. I lay back again, and thought for a moment in a pleased and contented way — "That was Wordsworth." And almost immediately I must have fallen asleep again, I had not, to my knowledge, been dreaming about Wordsworth before I awoke; but I had been reading Hutton's essay on "Wordsworth's Two Styles" out of Knight's Wordsworthains, before I fell asleep.

"'I should add that I had a distinct impression of the high collar and stock, the same as in the picture on the stairs in this house.'

"Neither the seer of this striking vision — unique in her experience — nor I, to whom she told it within eight hours, make any claim for it to a supernatural origin. It seemed to us an interesting example of the influence of mind and association on the visualizing power of the brain. A member of the Psychical Society, to whom I sent the contemporary record, classified it as 'a visual hallucination,' and I don't know that there is anything more to be said about it. But the pathetic coincidence remains still to be noted—we did not know it till afterwards—that the seer of the vision was sleeping in Dorothy Wordsworth's room, where Dorothy spent so many sad years of death-in-life; and that in that very corner by the window, Wordsworth must have sat, day after day, when he came to visit what remained to him of that creature of fire and dew, that child of genius, who had been the inspiration and support of his poetic youth."

Munitions Output Larger.

"Nearly 10,000 workshops in Great Britain are now producing munitions of war," says the London Times. "Of these 5,000 are establishments controlled by the Ministry of Munitions and 150 are national factories. The output of material of all kinds is on an immense scale, but the limit has not been reached.

The erection of four new national factories, at a cost of over $10,000,000, has just been sanctioned, and extensions are being carried out in many areas. Existing workshops are being enlarged; a new factory is being built for the readaptation of old boxes and packing cases from the battlefields; aircraft and instructional factories are being established, and almost every week there are demands for other varieties of building subsidiary to the production of munitions."

Had Hidden Wealth.

For twelve years Michael Kenney, once a Brooklyn water inspector, lived in a small furnished room at 2789 Morris avenue, the Bronx. He seldom spoke to anyone, and when he was accidentally asphyxiated by gas the police had no way of ascertaining whether he had any relatives.

It was known he owned the two-family house in which he occupied a room, and he was given a decent burial.

Public Administrator Hammer went to the Morris avenue house recently and searched the room in hope of finding information which might lead to relatives. In bureau drawers he found bank books representing deposits of $20,000. Under an icebox there was $2,041 in bills, and hidden in the hair of an old settee was $150 in gold.

Building-up for the Spring Attack at the Front is a good deal like putting the body in condition for an invasion of the germs of grip, pneumonia or "Spring fever" here at home.

At this time of the year most people suffer from a condition often called Spring Fever. They feel tired, worn out, before the day is half thru. They may have frequent headaches and sometimes "pimply" or pale skin and white lips. The reason for this is that during the wintertime, shut up within doors, eating too much meat and too little green vegetables, one heaps fuel into the system which is not burned up and the clinkers remain to poison the system — a clogging up of the circulation — with inactive liver and kidneys. Time to put your house in order.

For an invigorating tonic which will clarify the blood, put new life in the body, sparkle to the eyes, and a wholesome skin, nothing does so well as a glyceric herb extract made from Golden Seal root, Blood and Stone root, Oregon grape root and Wild Cherry bark. This can be had in convenient, ready-to-use tablet form at all drug stores, fifty cents, and has been sold for the past fifty years as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By reason of the nerves feeding on the blood, when the blood is pure the nerves feel the effect, and neuralgia or other nerve pains disappear because such pain is the cry of the starved nerves for food. When suffering from backache, frequent or scanty urine, rheumatic pains here or there, or that constant tired feeling, the simple way to overcome these disorders is merely to obtain Dr. Pierce's Anuric from your druggist. In tablets, fifty cents.

Sunday School Lesson Questions

April 28, 1918.

Jesus Rebukes Selfishness. (May be used with Temperance application). Mark 9:30-50.

Golden Text: If any man would be first he shall be last of all and servant of all. Mark 9:35.

1. Verses 30-32. Why did Jesus at this time wish to hide his movements?

2. Why would you say or not, that Jesus knew from the beginning of his ministry that the Jews would reject and put him to death?

3. About what time in the ministry of Jesus did the Jews definitely decide to put him to death?

4. Verses 33-35. How had Jesus learned what the disciples had been disputing about?

5. At what stage in the development of our expressed thoughts does God become aware of them?

6. Why was it wrong for the disciples to look out for the best possible positions in Christ's coming kingdom?

7. Would you say or not and why, that it is wrong for a layman or a minister to seek the highest position in the gift of his church?

8. Verses 33-35. Which most resemble Christ and why, those who aim for the leading positions, or those who forget themselves and aim to serve their fellows to the utmost?

9. Verses 36, 37. What did it signify in this connection that Christ put a child before them?

10. See Matt. 18:4, and say what are the qualities in a little child which Jesus told his disciples to acquire?

11. Verses 36, 37. What is true humility?

12. Is it literally so or not, and why, that a good deed, or a bad deed, done to a child is the same as if done to Christ?

13. Verses 38-40. Why do certain denominations not permit any but ordained clergymen to officiate in their churches, or preach in their pulpits?

14. If we find one to-day who without any ecclesiastical authority, is preaching the gospel with power what should be our attitude toward him?

15. What different estimate does God put upon a godly minister and a godly layman who is doing ministerial work?

16. Verses 41, 42. What is the difference of the reward for a good deed done to a sinner or a similar good deed done to a Christian?

17. What would you say is the penalty for an injury done to one of the least of God's children? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

18. Verses 43-48. What would you say is the nature and the duration of future punishment?

19. When we find that any line of thinking or habits are injurious to ourselves or others, no matter what may be generally thought of their character, what should we do?

20. What is the nature and uses of salt and what analogy is there between salt and moral or spiritual qualities?

USE WHALE MEAT.

Japanese Have Long Considered It a Delicacy.

For hundreds of years whale meat has been used for food in Japan. In the earliest books of Japanese history there are accounts of the capture of whales with nets and the ceremonies and feasting which followed a successful hunt. But whale meat did not become a really important factor in Japanese daily life until about twenty years ago when modern shore whaling was introduced into the empire. The Japanese had watched closely the development in Europe of the harpoon gun and the swift little steam vessels with which whales could be taken in great numbers, and the Toyo Hogei Kabushiki Kaisha (Oriental Whaling Company, Limited) was eventually formed to carry on operations in Japan. To-day it is the largest and most progressive whaling company in the world. When once fairly launched upon the new venture the Japanese proceeded in a characteristically thorough way. They secured from Norway the finest equipment obtainable and hired the most expert whalemen to teach them the modern methods of killing and preparing whales. Moreover, their efforts did not cease there, for they not only took the best from the Norwegian methods but introduced improvements adapted to their own special needs.—Roy Chapman Andrews in "Asia."

Sixty Miles an Hour Climbing Speed.

A modern airplane weighing as much as a small touring car without any passengers can climb at the rate of 60 miles an hour. The aviator would say that his machine's rate of ascension is 1,300 feet a minute. Such an airplane would have an engine of a brake horsepower of 180. The airplane climbing at 60 miles an hour ascends a gradient of 1 in 3¼ to 1 in 4.—Popular Science Monthly.

Keep The Mouth Clean And Avoid Disease

Many Diseases Traced to Unclean Mouth or Teeth—Use Pyroll

Pyroll will kill the germs which are the cause of many ailments. The leading dentists and doctors now recognize that many serious diseases can be traced to an unclean mouth or teeth. Unless the mouth is kept clean disease germs may gain entrance, secure a foothold and multiply rapidly.

People who are suffering from rheumatism, stomach troubles and other diseases derive great benefit from washing the mouth and teeth night and morning with Pyroll. It imparts at once a pleasant feeling of cleanliness to the mouth, gums and teeth.

Insect Camouflage.

The art called camouflage is as new in its higher development that all the world is talking about it. But Brother Fox and Mr. Wolf must laugh at us faltering humans, for camouflage is an old story in the kingdom of the animals. Nature herself helps the wild creatures to disguise themselves from their enemies. The tiger's stripes make his yellow coat less perceptible in a jungle, and enables him to slip about unnoticed.

It is amongst insects, however, that camouflage is most often seen. And it is not only the processes of nature that enable many insects to conceal themselves. The humble katydid is aware that his wings look much like a leaf, and when he finds himself in a dangerous position he will extend his wings and lie still upon the ground. In descending from a tree or bush the katydid extends his wings and falls downward in a zigzag fashion, just as a leaf would fall. Many kinds of butterflies have wings resembling leaves so strongly that they are invisible when at rest upon a tree.

There is an insect in Java popularly called the "walking leaf" because of its truly surprising resemblance to a leaf. This creature's wings are veined in the same way and they go walking about the ground, looking like an animated leaf.

But of all the creatures which practice camouflage the chameleon is the most successful, for it has the power of changing its color to any background against which it may find itself. At one moment it may be red and the next green.—Tit-Bits.

Violent Artillery Fighting During the Night

THE GERMANS HAVE GAINED A FOOTING ON KEMMEL HILL

Baron Rhondda, British Food Controller, Has Resigned

GERMANS CONTINUING THE DEVELOPMENT OF PRESENT OFFENSIVE

There Are Indications of Hindenburg's Determination to Force a Supreme Decisive Contest—Reserve Forces.

UNIFIED COMMAND

(United Press.)
(By Henry Wood.)

With the French armies in the Field, April 26.—The Germans are continuing the development of their attack against Amiens with increasing violence, aiming eventually at a separation of the French and British forces.

There is an indication of Hindenburg's determination to force a supreme decisive contest which unquestionably has been induced by the fact that preceding the present attack the Germans already had engaged 130 divisions, 1,500,000 men, of which approximately only 50 rank as first or second class units, with which to force the final issue.

DRIVE INCREASING.

The German drive toward Amiens is increasing. In the meantime the allies have had time to take the greatest defensive precautions. In consequence, the victorious outcome is likely to rest with the side having the best generalship, the most munitions and the most reserves.

As the result of unifying the allied command, Foch is consistently opposing the present attack, as heretofore, with the minimum forces necessary, preferring to lose ground rather than uselessly to sacrifice his reserves.

While the two preceding German drives lasted 10 days each, with five day intervals for organizing, it is considered doubtful that the Germans with their limited number of fresh divisions left from the violence of the present attack, can exceed their precedents.

CAPTAIN MAGWOOD A ST. JAMES' CHURCH ON MONDAY NIGHT.

The "Oakville Star," of Oakville, where the Captain Rev. J. W. Magwood, lectured to a crowded house on "Our Canadian Tommies," has the following to say: "That he held the rapt attention of the large audience for an hour and a half and the people were so delighted that they were of the unanimous opinion that Captain Magwood should be invited to return in the very near future."

Captain Magwood will preach both morning and evening at the anniversary services to be held in St. James' church on Sunday week.

AIRMAN BOMBED ZEEBRUGGE DURING THE KAISER'S VISIT

Special to The Examiner:

COPENHAGEN, April 26. — A British airman bombed Zeebrugge while the Kaiser was inspecting the results of the recent naval raid there, German newspapers declared to-day. The Kaiser remained on the mole and completed his inspection.

RUSSIANS EAGER TO FIGHT IN THE RANKS OF THE ALLIES

"Russia Hates Germany As Never Before" Declares Former Vice-Minister of War Under Kerensky

CROP PROSPECTS BAD

Special to the Examiner:

NEW YORK, April 26. — Several hundred thousand Russian soldiers, officers and men, are eager to fight in the ranks of the Allies, if some way can be devised to make use of them, Major-Gen. Victor Askhontoff, formerly Vice-Minster of War under Kerensky, and at present Military Attache to Japan, declared to-day.

"Russia hates Germany as never before," General Iskhontoff declared. "There are far fewer pro-Germans in Russia to-day than there were at the beginning of the revolution. Russia lost everything and gained nothing—not even peace, at the Brest Litovsk Pour Parlers.

Country Exhausted.

"Conditions are such that a Russian front at this time is an impossibility. But Russia is not through. It is hard to say how long the Bolsheviki will remain in control. At present they have the upper hand in most places, but opposition is growing."

Although the Russians are still fighting the Germans at a few isolated points, there is little chance of an organized resistance, General Iskhontoff believes. The country is completely exhausted and unable to continue war. Germany can get very little of military value from Russia, he stated. The crop prospects for the coming season are very bad.

WESTERN MOB MAKES MAN KISS UNION JACK

DAVIDSON, Susk., April 26.—On Tuesday night a mob of sixty men went to the home of Henry Wilner, a German, and made him kiss the Union Jack and give $100 to the military Y.M.C.A.

It is said that Willner's son recently joined the army, and on returning home and telling his father he had enlisted, the father ordered him off the place. The men of the town, hearing of the affair, immediately organized and forced Willner to apologize to his son and give other proofs of his loyalty.

British Engaged With Superior Enemy Forces

Germans Gain a Footing on Kemmel Hill According to Official Statement—Heavy Fighting in Progress.

BRITISH OFFICIAL

Canadian Press:

3.30 p.m. Despatch:

LONDON, April 26.—The Germans, after repeated assaults and suffering enormouse losses, have occupied Kemmel Hill, on the Flanders front, it was stated by General Leima Radcliffe, Chief Directors of Operations, to-day.

LONDON, April 26.—(Official.)— A footing has been obtained on Kemmel Hill by the Germans in attacks on the northern battle front, the War Office announced to-day. Fighting still continuing in this region. The Allied forces were engaged all day yesterday with greatly superior enemy forces along the front from Bailleul to Hollebeke, a distance of about ten miles and finally were compelled to give ground.

German posts, which were holding out southeast of Villers-Bretonneux on the front south of the Somme, after its recapture by the British, were cleared up, the statement says:

We carried out a successful minor operation during the night west of Merville and captured fifty prisoners and three machine guns. Hostile artillery has been active along our front from the Lys river to Givenchy.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, April 26.— Heavy artillery fighting is reported by the War Office south of the Somme river to-day.

The statement follows:

South of the Somme, violent artillery fighting occurred during the course of the night. We carried out a number of raids at different points on the front especially in the region east of Lassigny, between Miette and the Aisne, near Bezonvaux, in the region of Eparges, in Lorraine and in the Vosges. We took prisoners. Everywhere else the night was calm.

AIMS AT JUNCTION POINT.

French Headquarters, April 26. — Pursuing his policy of alternating his attacks, the enemy attacked to the southward on the Somme. His artillery preparations left no doubt that his aim was the junction point between the British and the French armies north of Hangard. A subsidiary blow was directed against the French positions south of the river Luce, suggesting that the Germans were endeavoring to drive a wedge between the British and the French at Amins-Ward or to wipe out the Hangard salient where so many of their attacks have been broken. The enemy artillery atttacked on a front of sixteen miles between Rebement-Suranc and Ailly-sur-noye. Gas shells were hurled on the French lines like hail; the fire of the British and French batteries in reply, however, never ceased.

This lasted all night long and in the morning the fire was intensified to a degree not reached since the opening of the German offensive, a month ago. An enemy infantry attack was the launched on an eight mile front between Bretoneux and Sendcat Wood on the south bank of the Luce. The heaviest fighting ranged around Hangard, where our line curved in a narrow salient.

Salient Increases.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, April 26.—(By the Associated Press).—The more they advance along the road towards Amiens the more perilous becomes the salient the Germans are forcing in the Somme region, especially in view of the fact that the Allied reserves are virtually in tact and the Allied armies are now commanded by a single chief.

Danger Elements In British Battle Line

British Front Shows More Weakness on the North End of the Line Than in the Amiens Sector.

SEVERE FIGHTING

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 26. — Army men viewed the north end of the western battle line to-day as presenting more danger elements than the struggle in the Amiens sector.

Reinforcements, sufficiently strong, apparently have been thrown into the Amiens battle, but there appeared to be more weakness in the British front to the north.

Recapture of Villers-Bretonneux by the English and Australians showed that the Germans had only a slim grasp on it, but it is likely that there will be further bloody fighting there and it is possible that it will not change hands more than once again.

POLISH CITIZENS REFUSED TO ENLIST IN POLISH CORPS

Special to The Examiner:

MOSCOW, April 26.— The Germans are steadily withdrawing troops and sending them to France.

Polish citizens refused to enlist in a proposed Polish corps to fight against the Allies in Flanders.

Are Close To The Breaking Point

United States Government is Endeavouring to Clear Up Misunderstanding With Holland

SUPPLIES WANTED

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 26. — With Holland and Germany appearing close to the breaking point, this Government to-day continued efforts to clear up Dutch misunderstanding of the American position on supplies for Holland.

While the Government has been annoyed at the tone employed by some of the Dutch press, questioning American intentions, it is evident that negotiations are under way to clear away that feeling and, if possible, to increase American aid to Holland.

Holland insists that she have a written guarantee that the United States will not seize ships she sends after supplies.

While awaiting such a statement, three ships are held up in the United States, supply-laden, expecting that other ships would sail from Holland.

Business Girls Of Peterborough And Greater Production

"Stand at ease" is not included in the curriculum of the Business Girls' Club, who, this summer, in their leisure moments, will assist in greater production, and, incidentally, make money to buy wool to knit for the soldiers, on a plot loaned by Mr. Nesbit, behind the Court House. The girls have decided to spend every available moment in their venture.

TO MANAGE THE PLOT.

Two girls have been appointed superintendents of the entire garden. Four supervisors have been named, each one to take charge of a plot, and a "gang" of girls; the garden has been divided into four plots, and the other members of the Club formed into four "gangs," one "gang" for each plot.

1918 Cheese Price Fixed At 23c. Lb.

The price of the 1918 cheese has been fixed at 23 cents as compared with 21 3-4 cents paid last year. This increase will be welcomed by the farmers who have been insisting that they could not continue the industry on last summer's price basis.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie stated to-day that while he had not gone minutely into the question, it was apparent that the cost of manufacturing cheese will be about one cent a pound higher than last year.

Mr. R. A. Ward yesterday completed his first visit to all the factories in his district. Some of them are already making cheese and others are expected to begin operations next week.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

Fire in the Village—Fifty Dollars For Red Cross

LAKEFIELD, April 26.—At noon on Wednesday the village fire bell called out the citizens of Lakefield in alarm, but almost as soon as a crowd had gathered the fire was put out. The blaze was a chimney fire at Roland Johnson's store. No damage was done.

Wedding Bells.

On Wednesday, April 24, a very pretty but quiet wedding took place at 4 o'clock at the Parsonage of the Methodist Church, Lakefield, when Miss Ida Pearson, of Smith, became the bride of Mr. G. Richard Dunford, of Dummer. Rev. C. W. Barrett performed the ceremony in the presence of the bride's parents and Miss Fairbairn, of Smith. The bride was very pretty in a pale yellow crepe draped gown; with hat to match. She wore a corsage bouquet of pink roses.

At a meeting of the Soldiers' Comforts Club, held on Thursday, the sum of $50 was voted to the Canadian Red Cross.

Personals.

Messrs. Sam. and Robert Wilson, of Mount Julian, were in the village on Wednesday.

Mr. Albert Dunford was in Peterborough on Wednesday.

Mr. Howard Baptie was in Peterborough on Wednesday.

Mr. Michael Hynes, of Douro, spent Wednesday in Peterborough on business.

Mr. W. Gray is visiting in Toronto this week.

Messrs. Wm. Thompson and Harrison Bronson, of Mount Julian, were in the village on Wednesday.

Mr. David Darling spent Thursday in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Van Atter, of Saskatoon, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Morrison this week.

Mr. Wilson Blewett, of Hall's Bridge, was in the village on Thursday.

Mr. George Little, of Dummer, who has been visiting friends in Peterborough, passed through Lakefield on his way home on Thursday.

Mr. Conkergood, of Lindsay, was in Lakefield on Thursday.

QUICK, INTELLIGENT BOYS. APPLY THE BONNER-WORTH CO. e 3d-97

CLAIMS FOR EXEMPTION HEARD THIS MORNING BEFORE JUDGE HUYCKE

Several Appeals Were Dealt With —Some of the Appellants Will Go Over the Top.

LOST AN EYE

Several claims for exemption were heard this morning by His Honour Judge Huycke. The results were decidedly in favour of the army. The first applicant was Timothy Collins, who, by a series of applications, has had his leave extended until May 1, and applied for further extension on the grounds of business obligations and ill health. Collins solicitidude for a bond company to which he is under obligation was not fostered by the Judge or Mr. Hatton, who consoled Collins by telling him to leave the government to answer to the bond company.

The Judge refused further exemption and will recommend another medical examination.

Not Allowed.

Harold Gilgour, exempted until May 1 by a succession of applications, started to build a house on June 1, 1917, and asked for time to complete it. Exemption was not allowed.

Medical Examination.

James Donahue a tool and die maker, has a brother at the front, who lost a leg recently. Donahue works at the Fairbanks Morse Co., Toronto. With sickness he is embarassed by bills and considers himself physically unfit. Has a mother dependent on him. The case will be reported and a medical examination will be recommended before an appeal board.

A Philosopher.

Everett Moore, aged 20, took His Honour's verdict of no chance of exemption philosophically, and resumed his seat, audibly promising himself a "good time as long as he lasts."

Theodore Douglas, Warsaw, fared the same as Moore on account of his age. (20 years.)

Rented a Farm.

Harold C. Teal, Warsaw, aged 26, rented a farm from a widow, Mrs. Payne, after the Military Service Act came in force. The department considered Teal's work could be done by a man ineligible for service. Three brother are on active service.

Decision was deferred until June 15th to investigate conditions.

William Richard Darling, Warsaw, was represented by his father, ex-Reeve Darling. The production on the farm was shown by the evidence to be

OPEN ASH PORT BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN THE CAUSE

No Official Announcement Made Regarding Sinking of Steamer St. Paul—Three Lives Lost

TWENTY MEN INJURED

(Special to The Examiner.)

New York, April 26.—An ash port, carelessly left open, was believed today to have flooded the American liner St. Paul, sinking her at her pier. However, so far, no official announcement as to cause of the accident, which probably cost three lives, has been made. Twenty men of the 360 aboard, were injured.

Regulations For Sugar

Householders Are Limited to a Fifteen Days' Supply

(Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, April 26. — Drastic orders restricting the hoarding of sugar were issued by Canada's Food Board today, providing that any person (other than a dealer or manufacturer) having on his premises more cane sugar than is sufficient for a fifteen days supply (unless he lives more than two miles from a licensed dealer) shall be liable to a fine of from $100 to $1000, or three months imprisonment, and any excess over the prescribed amount may be seized and forfeited.

Sugar hoarding regulations are in force from this date. People living more than two miles from a licensed dealer are allowed 30 days supply, 5 miles 60 days, 10 miles and more, 120 days.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, PRIL 26, 1918.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

The spirit shown by the sixteen year old Toronto boy, who wrote to Premier Borden and begged the Prime Minister for a chance of serving at the front would, if shared generally throughout the Dominion, have made compulsory service unnecessary, and is in most striking contrast to the attitude of the 300,000 thousand young men who claimed exemption. The letter read to the House of Commons by Sir Robert, was naturally enthusiastically applauded, as were the Premier's references to two striking phrases in the boy's communication. "I am the only one left to do something for my country," the youngster wrote—a viewpoint that differed widely from the position taken by thousands of men who asked to be relieved from military duty because they were the "only ones left to do something for their families."

The letter ends with the remark:

"I was just reading the paper this morning and saw what you said, "Canadians must hold the line." They cannot do it without men. Please will you give me a position in that line? I don't call myself a man, but I might help to hold that line. So please give me a chance; the line is more valuable than my life."

To the Premier, who has received so many letters from parents who want to get their boys out of the army or to keep them from getting into the army, the tone of this unusual letter must have been refreshing.

UNNAMED HEROES.

The Empire has been stirred to the heart by the story of the splendid exploit of the British navy in attacking the enemy's submarine bases at Zeebrugge and Ostend. As the fuller details of the expedition become known the magnificent audacity and bravery of the attacking forces seizes the imagination. Every man who took part in the attack was a hero, but none, however, surpassed in self-sacrificing courage the heroic crews of the old submarines which were used to demolish the Mole at Zeebrugge. These gallant sailors knew that they were going into the jaws of death—"of course we knew it was a thousand-to-one chance against us" to quote one of them—but they volunteered unhesitatingly for the perilous mission, and the Empire will rejoice that all six of the crew of one submarine at least escaped, although three were wounded. After driving their vessel's load of explosives against the Mole, they had to take the chance of escaping in a small dinghy, fired at by machine guns and rifles. "It was tricky work," one of the volunteers remarked afterwards, "but it was a great time, and I would not have missed it."

The censorship regulations make it necessary that the gallant six shall be nameless. It is hard to see what military value there would be to the Germans in a knowledge of the identity of these half dozen heroes, but the censor is supreme, and so from the Empire which would like an opportunity of honouring them for the matchless bravery of their feat, their names must remain hidden. It is another case of the "silent navy."

SIGNIFICANT FIGURES.

The statement made by a local contemporary a few days ago, that if the rest of the Dominion, especially Quebec, had adopted the Military Service Act regulations in the spirit shown in Ontario, the whole of the 100,000 men aimed at under the Act, would have been in uniform long ago, hardly holds water, in view of the latest returns tabled in the House. The new figures show that the results of the Act's operations were even more meagre than was at first thought, for although 24,000 were ordered to report for service, and obeyed the instructions, the final medical examination found only 13,365 fit for combatant service.

Of this number, Ontario contributed 4,671, while Quebec's share was 1,491. In the light of our contemporary's statement it is obvious that to have brought the total up to the required 100,000, Quebec would have had to furnish something like 88,126 recruits, an impossible proposition, because of the total registrations in Quebec, only 35,324 were found physically fit; so that if no exemptions on any other ground had been granted it would still have been an impossibility for Quebec to provide the number named out of the first class.

As a matter of fact, the Military Service Act, although much less fruiful in Quebec than elsewhere in the Dominion, has failed to produce the expected results anywhere. Of the 373,184 appeals for exemption, 257,260 were from the other provinces, and 115,924 from Quebec.

Outside of the last named province the machinery of the Act has been operated through its various stages, and has produced only 11,874 men. The official returns show that claims for exemption have been much more favorably dealt with by the Appeal tribunals than have the military representatives' appeals.

The farmers have to spend so much time nowadays watching for the latest order-in-council, in regard to the exemption of farm help that production is liable to suffer.

A GRACEFUL TRIBUTE.

The article published below, which appeared in last evening's edition of the Review, will be read with pleasure and approval by the host of friends of the late F. R. Yokome, editor of The Examiner. The graceful tribute to the work done by Mr. Yokome will be appreciated by all who know what he accomplished in Peterborough. The suggestion that a suitable memorial should be arranged represents the views of a well known citizen, and it is fitting that it should be brought to public attention by our contemporary, for with the innate modesty that distinguished his career in Peterborough, Mr. Yokome would have preferred not to have had the suggestion emanate from the newspaper with which he had such a long and successful association. Now, however, that the matter is before the public, the Examiner can heartily endorse the proposal and express the hope that the sentiments so ably expressed may end in practical results.

The late F. R. Yokome laboured in this city in a public capacity in a position which brought him into daily personal contact with the public, for thirty-six strenuous and eventful years. In that time as a journalist he did more to shape local events than any statesman. He wielded a greater influence in molding the morals and forming the character of the people than any preacher, and exercised wider powers as an instructor than any teacher who has ever been entrusted with the care of the rising generation.

Mr. Yokome grew up with the city, helping at every stage of its growth and development, and it is only fitting that the people of Peterborough should do something to perpetuate the memory of a man who through all the years of a long and busy life never wearied in well doing according to his light, and light was given him in no unstinted measure.

Naturally of aesthetic tastes, the late Mr. Yokome devoted a good deal of attention to the beautification of the city, and his home surroundings were a standing testimony to the fact that he practised what he preached. The member of the Horticultural Society owe him a perpetual debt of gratitude. That is the organization that can be looked to now to establish a memorial to their former untiring champion. It need not be no more than a simple tribute, to be in keeping with what the late journalist would himself advise in such a case if he could be consulted. Drinking fountains have already been installed in the public parks, so that this form of testimonial is impracticable. It would be easily possible to plant in one of the parks a number of trees, such as the late Mr. Yokome prized, and to call the collection the Yokome Grove. It would be a small but no less graceful tribute to maintain a flower bed in his memory with his name traced in floral letters. At all events, the first street rechristened in the city or the first new thoroughfare opened up could be named for him.

And connected with the name of Mr. Yokome is that of the late T. A. S. Hay, who was an associate and co-labourer with him in all effort designed to improve the appearance of the city and make it a better place in which to live.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"Teacher and thresher refused exemption" reads a newspaper heading. It was necessary to read the whole article to find out whether the headlines referred to one or two persons.

With the north of Ireland organizing opposition to Home Rule and the South combining to fight conscription the title of the "cock pit of Europe" may pass from Flanders to the Emerald Isle.

That is good news that comes from Calgary to the effect that the crop conditions were never better and that the average increase in acreage seeded will be in the neighbourhood of 20 per cent.

SUPPOSE.

(Toronto Star)

Suppose upon the return of peace, the State abandons the traditional notion that grinding poverty must be the accepted lot of millions of citizens and that those who produce the wealth of the country must be satisfied with a bare subsistence — just enough to keep the human machine fit for its work. Suppose it says that every man and woman who works faithfully is a servant of the State, and is entitled not only to food, clothing, and shelter, but to culture and leisure to the fuller life to the development if every human faculty. Is not all this involved in the acceptance by the State of the responsibility for education, which is now accepted by those who would shudder at the name of revolution? And for these and other purposes it is quite possible that the excess profits tax and other war taxes may be maintained in time of peace. Such is the revolution which may be accomplished without the shedding of blood, as calmly as the winter passes into spring.

Rural Canada Is Not Taking Kindly To The New Military Service Regulations

Members of the House Are Deluged With Correspondence and Delegations

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, April 26.—Rural Canada is not taking kindly to the new Military Service Order of the government nor to the regulations supplementary thereto. It is safe to say that half of the correspondence addressed to the members on both sides of the House these days is made up of requests for an interpretation of the provisions or of protests against them. Members are bombarded with such letters, many of which indicate that the incidence of the measure will work real hardship in cases. In addition, small delegations have been visiting the Capital from time to time, and many of the members have been advised to come home during the week end to meet other delegations in their own counties.

A DELEGATION.

Yesterday the eastern townships sent a formidable delegation, headed by R. R. Ness, one of the most noted stock breeders of Canada, and containing on its personnel many prominent farmers and dairymen. These men represented that if exemptions were abolished in the case of farmers and farm labourers, production this year would be very seriously interfered with, even though only men of from 20 to 22 were taken. They urged that in the case of farmers, the exemption system be permitted to stand.

LITTLE SATISFACTION.

The delegation received little satisfaction at the hands of Ministers. General Mewburn pointed out the urgent need of men if the Teutonic tide were to be stayed. He intimated that to open the door to exemptions of any kind would be tantamount to bringing back all the clumsy machinery of the tribunal and appeal. He realized that there would be hardships in many cases, but that hardships at the present time were inevitable. From all indications the Minister of Militia is inexorable on the point.

The point which is being raised most frequently is that in connection with the only sons of widows who have not had other sons in the actual theatre of war as delimited by the order. In the regulations as they at present stand, they do not come within the compassionate clause.

The general impression appears to be that no definite rule will be laid down in connection with such special cases but that these will be dealt with individually on their merits. The intention is to call up every fit man within the ages defined, irrespective of other considerations and to push to one side everything which stands in the way of that intention. On this point the Minister of Militia is inclined to be adamant whatever the consequences or hardships.

The Edison Tone Test is a Proof not an Argument

It's positive proof of our claim that Thomas A. Edison has perfected the instrument which Re-Creates the human voice which such fidelity that one can distinguish between the singer and instrument.

Yes, it sounds incredible. But before audiences totaling more than 1,000,000 people, great artists—Metropolitan stars—have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison and defied the audience to detect any difference. With the lights lowered to hide the singer's lips, not one listener has been able to say when the artist ceased and the instrument continued alone.

Call at our store and satisfy yourself regarding

The NEW EDISON

"THE PHONOGRAPH WITH A SOUL."

WARNING: Edison Re-Creations should not be played and cannot be played properly on any other instrument. If they could be, the manufacturers who seek profit by Mr. Edison's research work would be able to make tone test comparisons, such as Edison has made with the New Edison before two million music lovers.

Rea Martin, Edna Holland and Dorothy Beldwin, in Morosco's Comedy, "The Brat," at The Grand Next Tuesday.

The local management of 'The Grand' announce a welcome return visit of the brilliantly written comedy success, "The Brat," with identically the same cast as on the previous visit this season, including that great favourite, Miss Rea Martin. Those who did not see "The Brat" on the last visit here should make a special note of this engagement because it is an attraction that has pleased the patrons of this theatre immensely. After playing out to the Pacific Coast, "The Brat" has been making a number of return engagements and Winnipeg Calgary, Toronto, Regina and Edmonton theatre-goers again crowded to see this bright little "Brat." The local management guarantee this to be exactly the same company without even a single change that played here in the early season, and it was owing to the popular requests for this repeat visit that the contracts stipulated that Miss Rea Martin and the original New York cast were to appear.

A GERMAN LONG RANGE GUN DESTROYED

(Canadian Press.)

Paris, April 26.—One of the three German long range guns which has been bombarding Paris, has been destroyed, according to Deputy Charles Lebourcq.

HUNS MAKE INVISIBLE GAS.

AMSTERDAM, April 20—Speaking before the main committee of the Reichstag Lieut.-General von Stein Prussian Minister of War and Stat said that 20,000 men wounded in battle on the western front have already returned to their regiments.

Gen. von Stein also declared that the Germans are now manufacturing an invisible gas.

LOCAL REBEKAHS CONFER DEGREES

The degree staff of Golden Lodge No. 81 of Peterborough were entertained last evening by Kawartha Rebekakh Lodge No. 75 of Lindsay, who conferred the mysteries of the Rebekah degree on five candidates, in a very creditable manner. Short speeches were enjoyed by many of the visitors and new members. Light refreshments were served and a social time spent together.

THE CAR LOADS.

Several carloads of people motored down to Lindsay, the remainder going down by train. Ald. Jones took his party of Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Merritt, Miss Batten and Mrs. Read; Mr. Watt took Mrs. Watt, Miss Meharry, Mrs. Vickers and Mrs. Londerville; Mr. Abrahamson took Mrs. Abrahamson, Mrs. Black, Mrs. Crowe and Mrs. Rooke.

INFERNAL MACHINE IN BOX.

MONTREAL, April 26.—A loud explosion followed the opening of a box delivered by a postman at the home of Mr. D. Boivan, 1017 Deserables street, yesterday morning. The explosion blew out all the windows in the house and injured four people. The injured are: Mrs. Boivin, her sixteen-year-old daughter, and her nine and seven-year-old boys. They are painfully scorched.

Examination of the parts of the box found in the house, by experts, showed that it had contained an infernal machine. A revolver was exploded when the lid was raised, a bullet from which entered a receptacle containing dynamite and detonated it.

The box was posted in Montreal, the police assume, by some enemy of the family.

CUMMINGS IS BACK ON THE JOB AGAIN

Declares Tanlac Restored Him to Health—Suffered Five Years

"I tell you what, this Tanlac has certainly built me up something wonderful, and it sure makes a fellow feel good to be able to get back to work after lying up at home so long," said Gordon Cummings, living at 291 Osler avenue, Toronto, the other day.

"My stomach had been out of order for the past five years," he continued, "and my indigestion had pulled me down till I was in a mighty bad shape. I had no appetite and the little I forced down felt like a lump of lead in the pit of my stomach. Gas formed from my undigested food and would bloat me up so that I could hardly breathe, and at time it would press on my heart and distress me night and day. Whenever I would lie down I felt just like I was going to smother and I suffered from such an awful misery in my back and side and all through my body that I could hardly stand it. My breath was offensive, my tongue badly coated. I had a mean taste in my mouth every morning, and often after drinking a glass of water I would belch up gas and bitter fluids. Although I was taking some kind of medicine all the time I kept getting worse, and finally I became so weak and run down that I just couldn't work any longer, and quit for three weeks.

"I read so much about Tanlac that I decided to get a bottle, and it did me so much good that I followed it up. I have taken but two bottles so far but those awful pains have completely disappeared, the gas does not bother me like it did, my tongue has cleared up, and that bad taste has gone. I have a splendid appetite, so that I enjoy everything that I eat, and never have any more trouble with that indigestion."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers' Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle and Son.

KINGSTON MAN WILL PERMIT PETERBORO LOTS TO BE USED

Mr. J. S. R. McCann, real estate, insurance, financial broker of Kingston, in a letter to the Examiner, states that anyone who wants to cultivate a lot in the interests of greater production, he will permit them to use one or more of his lots on Edison Avenue, between Park street and Monaghan Road. The soil is excellent for vegetable raising.

In his letter Mr. McCann says: "This plan of aiding greater production was adopted last year in Kingston with great success. The citizens generally allowed their vacant property to be used for this purpose, which resulted in a large quantity of vegetables being raised."

FIRE DESTROYS MUNITION PLANT

(Special to Examiner.)

Chesley, Ont., April 26.—Fire which started from the explosion of a pot of rosin wiped out the entire munitin plant of the Canada Be—ds Limited, at 6.30 this morning, destroying the machine shop and the power house, together with thousands of shells in various stages of manufacture.

There is a suspicion that alien enemies were responsible for the fire, and an investigation has already begun.

WILL TELL ALL HE KNOWS.

PARIS, April 26.—Former Lieut. Berton, who is serving a life sentence on Devil's Island for treason, will be heard in the proceedings against Senator Charles Humbert, fromer proprietor of Le Journal, whose case, growing out of the case against Bolo Pasha, recently executed for treason, is under investigation.

The ex-lieutenant, who was sentenced in 1908, has asked to be heard in the present proceedings, declaring that he had important revelations to make. The Department of Military Justice has given instructions to have Berton returned and has issued orders that every precautionary measure be taken for his personal safety during the voyage.

LETTER REGARDING GUNNER J. O'BRIEN.

Mrs. O'Brien, 492 Cross Street, has received the following letter in regard to her son, Gunner Jos. O'Brien:

Dear Mrs. O'Brien,—A few evenings ago, at the close of a big public meeting at Witley Camp, I had the pleasure of meeting your son, and I was delighted to see him take his stand among those who are determined to "play the game" in a brave, manly way during these days of temptation and bloodshed.

He was looking well and seemed to be in good spirits, and I thought you would like to have this little message from a stranger.

If I am ever able to help him in any way, it will be a real pleasure for me to do so.

Praying that God may graciously protect the life of your son and bring him safely back to you again.—I am, yours faithfully,

E. S. Vinning, Captain.

FIELD OFFICER FROM THE MERCER VISITED PETERBOROUGH

Miss Margaret Howe, Field Officer of the Mercer Reformatory, made her annual inspection yesterday of the women and girls discharged from the Reformatory and returned to live in the city. Miss Howe found the different ex-inmates all doing most satisfactory and was well gratified by the steps they have made since leaving. Accompanied by Mrs. McElhiney, she visited Judge Huveke, the Crown Attorney, the Magistrate and the Chief of Police.

Naval Raid Was Complete Success

CHANNELS AT ZEEBRUGGE ARE BLOCKED—GERMAN COMMANDER RELIEVED OF HIS COMMAND.

(Canadian Press.)

London, April, 26. — It is authoritatively announced to-day that complete success attended the British naval raid on Zeebrugge, and that the channels are blocked there.

A similar attempt at Ostend was frustrated by a change of the wind.

German Vice-Admiral Schrooder, the commander at Zeebrugge, has been deprived of his command by the Kaiser.

Baron Rhondda Has Resigned

BRITISH FOOD CONTROLLER RELINQUISHES OFFICE OWING TO ILL-HEALTH.

(Canadian Press.)

London, April 26. — Baron Rhondda, the Daily Mail says, it understands, has resigned the office of British food controller, which he has held for the past ten months, owing to illness. John Clines, parliamentary secretary for the Food Ministry, has been in charge temporarily.

David Alfred Thomas, First Baron Rhondda, has been known as the Welsh coal king. He was on the Lusitania when she was sunk.

CLAIMS FOR EXEMPTION

very limited, and Mr. Hatton thought that the production did not justify the exemption. Further exemption was granted the boy to allow him to prove greater results in production.

Lost An Eye.

Edward J. Marriott, aged 24, who never came up to be examined, and was exempted by the Warsaw tribunal, is considered by the government not to be working hard enough on war supplies to justify his exemption. In consideration of his misfortune in having lost an eye, Marriott was given until June 15 to give the Department time to hunt up his case, and in the meantime to show more production on the James Hawthorne farm, on which he is employed.

"A Bad Day."

Everett Pettigrew, a Harwood barber, aged 32, obtained on domestic grounds exemption until November, 1919. Asked for his reasons to retain his exemption which, under the new law is cancelled, Pettigrew had new troubles to enumerate in the way having acquired a wife on April 1, 1918. "A bad day," said His Honour." The government insists the man may go and the mother will be kept by the separation allowance.

Decision was withheld.

Gilbert Douglas, aged 21, must go, but his call will be deferred on account of an accident in which he lost a finger.

"Didnt Mind."

John Skinkle, aged 22, whose age blocks hope of exemption, took the inevitable cheerfully and said he didn't mind as long as all men of his age were taken.

Joseph Fitzgerald, aged 22, exempted by the Warsaw tribunal until he ceased to be a farmer, was unable, by his age, to get exemption.

An Appeal.

Mrs. Brick Edmonbore appealed to the Judge against taking one of her five boys making a special plea for Frank. The Judge will recommend that Frank be the last chosen.

Young's Point Items Of Interest

Young's Point, April 26. — Inspector Broderick, of Lindsay, paid a visit to the public school in the village on Monday.

Miss Lottie Kearney has returned home after spending the winter months with her sister, Mrs. George McAdams, of Montreal.

Mr. Llewellyn Douglas had the misfortune to have two fingesr shot off, white getting over a fence in a hurry. He slipped and the gun falling to the ground was accidentally discharged, the bullet passing through both fingers.

Mr. James Carroll is recovering satisfactorily from his recent accident.

Mrs. Frank Young spent a few days last week in Peterboro owing to the death of her uncle, Mr. McMahon.

Mr. F. L. Young of Peterboro was in the village during the week.

Mr. Joseph Richardson of Peterboro spent a few days last week visiting with friends in the village.

Mr. P. McAdam of Montreal spent the week end in the village visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kearney.

Mr. F. Young spent Saturday in Peterboro attending the funeral of the late Mr. McMahon.

Her many friends will be pleased to hear that Mrs. J. Johnson is recovering from her recent illness.

Miss Laura McFarlane spent Friday in Lakefield visiting her sister, Mrs. Johnston.

U. S. TO SLASH RED TAPE.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Slashing of red tape, and hasty clearance of congestion, delay and indecision in the aircraft production programme are expected to follow the appointment of John D. Ryan, big business man, as production leader.

ACTOR ENLISTS.

Ernest Glendenning Joins U. S. Marine Corps.

NEW YORK, April 26. — Ernest Glendenning, one of the most popular young actors in America, retired from the stage for the period of the war. He enlisted as a private in the United States marine corps and within a few days will don the khaki of the "soldiers of the sea," and proceed to the marine battle training camp at Quantico, Va.

Mr. Glendenning's last appearance in New York was as leading man in "The Gypsy Trail," at the Plymouth Theatre. Prior to that he was for three seasons the leading man in "Experience." He was born in England and is the son of the late John Glendenning, in his day one of the best known actors on the English-speaking stage.

Mr. Glendenning has been on the stage seven years. He was in the employ of the Standard Oil Company when in 1910, he was engaged for a minor role in "Mice and Men," in the company of which Miss Annie Russell was the star.

Y.W.C.A. Closing Exhibition Was A Great Success

The Girls Gave Ample Proof of Their Splendid Training Under the Direction of Miss C. Littlefield.

MR. D. WALKER PRESIDED

The best yet! was universally the verdict of the hundreds who attended the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium closing exhibition, held in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last night. Splendidly trained in every way by Miss Caroline Littlefield, the Physical Director, the little ones, and big ones alike, made a very pretty exhibition, which was a credit to all concerned.

OPENED BY COL. D. WALKER.

The exhibition was opened by Col. Walker, who in a few words, spoke of the great benefit the "Y" has been, and will be, in training young womanhood.

PROCESSIONAL MARCH.

The opening event, the processional march, by the massed classes, led by tiny Miss Charlotte Abbott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Abbott, was a brilliant affair. The girls dressed in their gym. clothes, each carrying two flags crossed, made an exact reproduction of a kaleidoscope ever changing as the children circled in and about the hall.

THE EXERCISES.

The Swedish exercises by the senior girls and intermediates, dumbbell exercises by the Saturday juniors, and wand exercises by the Althena and Silver Link Club, were done with a regularity surprising to the onlookers, all the girls keeping time as one.

SCHOOL DAYS.

Twenty tiny mites contributed an item delightful to behold in "School days." The little tots ranging in age from four to eight years, formed a ring, and interpreted by song and motion the familiar little nursery rhymes.

The Prowlers, by the Saturday Juniors, was a cunning little exercise, when several of the Saturday juniors dressed most originally as cats, tails and all, paraded about the gym. on all fours until the knitter (Miss Mary Denne) solemnly encircled the midnight marauders by wool and gathered the kittens into her improvised net, leading them back into safe keeping.

THE JUMPING.

The jumping was truly a splendid exhibition of the sportsmanlike spirit of the girls of the Y. Ten young ladies jumped a pole ever increasing in height until finally 4 feet was reached, Miss Pulkinghorn making this dash as well as any boy. Miss Esme Aylmer went over the top at 3 feet 11, Miss Price at 3 feet 7, and Miss Phyllis Young at 3 feet.

THE DANCES.

The Highland Fling by the special junior class, led by Piper Yeaman, was a pretty feature. The little ones, in their gaudy little costumes, making a quaint effect, dancing like little born Scots. "The Call of Spring," by the advanced class, was a graceful production, and prettily staged. The girls were appropriately dressed in green clinging costumes, with rose and flower garlands. The Tripoli trapola, by the intermediates, was a splendidly trained Spanish dance in costume. The Sailors' Hornpipe, done by the senior school girls in costume, showed splendid training and adaptability on the part of the girls.

SELECTIONS.

The chorus, "Over There," by the Wednesday Juniors in costume, was prettily carried out by the little ones, 'The Skaters," the last feature, when 12 girls in scarlet fur trimmed costumes in dance represented a skating party, was a novel addition and greatly appreciated.

ROSE RING DANCE.

By special request, Miss Esmee Almery and Edith Pryce gave the rose ring dance, delineating the poetry of motion. The two young ladies, who are both grace personified, were delightful to watch in this charming dance.

A SOLO.

Mrs Perrin sang very sweetly and was greatly appreciated. At the conclusion Miss Littlefield was presented with a huge bouquet of white roses by little Miss Roy on behalf of the classes.

VICTORIA CROSS MAY BE PRESENTED IN SOUGOGVILLE

LINDSAY, APRIL 26.—It is understood that on the occasion of the visit of the Governor-General to Lindsay on May 9th, the Victoria Cross, won by the late Pte. Brown, will be presented to his mother, Mrs. McAuliffe of Emily. An effort has been made to have the presentation take place in Toronto, but it is believed the ceremony will take place here.

"We Can Fight To-day And Win"

Every Man of Every Class Who is Medically Fit Should Be Placed in Training Camp, Says Hon. Robert Rogers

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, April 26.—"Undoubtedly every man of every class, who is medically fit, should immediately be placed in a training camp," said Hon. Robert Rogers, late Minister of Public Works, who arrived in the city from the West this morning.

Mr. Rogers is impressed with the seriousness of the hour, and says, "This is no time for talking. What we need is action, not talk. Remember, this is a solemn moment for us. No time should be lost in following old forms and precedents. This is the day to make precedents. Let us carry on with firm decision and with still more decision, followed by still more action.

Must Fight.

"If we do not fight to-day with chivalry in our hearts and pity for oppression in our minds, we will probably be compelled to fight on an early to-morrow in self-defence, at our own threshhold, with our own families awaiting the fates of the Belgians and the Foles, with the German jackboot on the neck of the Dominion.

"We can fight to-day and win, but who can promise that, if we wait to fight on that ominous to-morrow? We owe action and definite action to ourselves. We owe it to our Empire, but, above all, we owe it to the memory of those who have given their lives to see to it to-day that their supreme sacrifices on our behalf shall not have been made in vain."

RABBIT SKIN SHOES MAY TAKE PLACE OF LEATHER.

PARIS. — If the price of leather keeps climbing it is inevitable that some footwear that is a substitute for the cattle hide now used must be found.

At present in Annonay, France, an earnest effort is being made to introduce rabbit skin leather in shoe making. Annonay is in the valley of the Rhine, just south of Lyons. It was there, about seventy-five years ago, that a chemist devised a tanning process in which the hair was removed from the pelt of a rabbit without damage to the skin. Previously no one had been able to remove the hair without injuring the pelt.

FRENCH STILL FIGHTING ON MONT KEMMEL

French Made Savage Counter Attack--Germans Paid Dearly For Their Gains

A SIZZLING HELL

(United Press Service.)
(By Wm. Philip Simms).
(3 o'clock Despatch.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, April 26.— French troops are entirely surrounded on Mount Kemmel. They are still fighting.

After eight hours fighting yesterday, German storm troops finally wedged their way between the French and British flanks and crossed the Kemmel-Ypres road, where the terrific Allied fire held them up for two hours.

Then they turned southward and poured down the valley to the west on Kemmel Hill, surrounding the French, who are still fighting atop the height.

Although the Germans have reached the crest of the Hill, the remnant of the French garrison is still there. The French also hold the village. In the night fighting at Mont Des Cats (five miles west) the French raked the slopes with machine guns and held against terrible odds, preferring death to capture.

Winner in Doubt.

To-day the German lines apparently run west of Kemmel, but the ultimate winner is still a matter of doubt.

Similar fighting surged about Villers-Bretonneux the British fighting like lions, retaking the town, atop a ridge, much in the same fashion as the Germans got Kemmel—working around until it was surrounded.

At the French held out in Flanders, the Germans held out in the town east of Amiens.

In the Kemmel fighting the Anglo-French made a savage counter attack, both Allied flanks enfilading Von Eberhardt's Alpiners, turning the green flower fields of the valley into a sizzling hell. The Germans paid dearly for their gains.

Mont Kemmel is a steep hill, more than 400 feet high, lying about four miles and a half south and west of Ypres. Its comparatively flat top is oval, being nearly half a mile from south west to north east, and half that distance from south east to north west. It slopes extend outward into the foothills from a quarter to half a mile.

The little village of Kemmel lies at at the north east end of the heights. Just southeas of Mont Kemmel is the Just southeast of Mt. Kemmel is the hill is the village of Lindenhoek.

S. R. N. HODGINS WILL JOIN THE FLYING CORPS.

Mr. S. R. N. Hodgins, associate editor of Farm and Dairy, left to-day to join the flying corps in Toronto. As a token of the esteem of the staff of Farm and Dairy, a wrist watch was presented yesterday to Mr. Hodgins by Mr. Cowan, who in a few words expressed the great regret felt at Mr. Hodgins' departure and assuring him that on his return the position he has so ably filled will be still open. Mr. Hodgins has been connected with the paper for a year.

"KEEP YOUR SHOES NEAT."

Saves Leather and Improves Appearances.

War conditions have called into use for army shoes and equipment millions of pounds of leather that otherwise would be used for civilian shoes. The result of this enormous drain on the normal markets is reflected in the advanced price of shoes. With butter, eggs, meats and product of all kinds all struggling to out-climb each other and striving for the crown of high price, every method of economy should be adopted in the home.

Shoes can be preserved and their life strengthened wonderfully by proper care.

Shoe leather deteriorates from exposure to weather, and when mud and slush carpet our walks and crossings shoe leather is indeed undergoing strenuous service and deserves some care.

Every method that will prevent the devouring action of the elements on leather will naturally lengthen the lives of shoes.

"Keep Your Shoes Neat"—so read the advertisements of The F. F. Dalley Corporations, Limited, and we feel sure this patriotic appeal should be gladly adopted by the public— "A word to the wise" as it were.

We are assured "2 in 1" polishes are guaranteed not to injure the finest leather.

SUNDAY WASN'T SOLE AUTHOR OF STORIES

Admits H. C. Weir Collaborated, But Denies Breach of Agreement.

NEW YORK, April 26.—The Rev. Wm. A. Sunday, the evangelist, was sued in the Superior Court by Hugh C. Weir, of New Rochelle, to recover $10,000 for breach of contract under which Weir alleges he wrote the series of "Great Love Stories of the Bible," which appeared with Billy Sunday's name as the author. Weir also alleges that under the agreement with Sunday he was to write "Billy Sunday's own story," and other series based on the Bible.

The complainant alleges that although a contract has been made with a reputable house for the publication of the books, the evangelist has repudiated his agreement in all respects.

Mr. Sunday has served his answer in the suit, in which he admits that Weir collaborated with him in writing "Great Love Stories of the Bible," but denies that he has broken any agreement made with Weir.

FURTHER CREDIT FOR BELGIUM.

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, April 26.—A further credit of $3,250,000 was extended to Belgium to-day, bringing the total to that Government to $107,850,000, and the grand total to the Allies to $5,288,850,000, the Treasury announced.

Mount Stromboli Is In Eruption

Falling Lava Has Set Fire to the Vineyards in the Neighbourhood.

Special to the Examiner:

ROME, April 26.—Mount Stromboli is in violent eruption. Falling lava has set fire to vineyards. It is believed there are some lives lost.

Stromboli is a volcanic island—the north-easternmost of the Lipari Islands—located in the Mediterranean off the north coast of Sicily. The volcano is 3,040 feet high. The island has a population of about 2,000.

Actor's Dog On Leash But Had No Muzzle

Whether big or small, vicious or lamblike, all dogs look alike to Jimmy Gates. He is absolutely impartial as his complete report would show. Yesterday afternoon one of the men of the "Watch Your Step" Company had a pet (almost a toy) dog out on a leash, taking the air on George Street. Gates saw him coming a block away, and at that distance observed the absence of a muzzle.

"Come with me" said the official dog catcher, or words to that effect, when the stranger drew near. "You haven't a muzzle on it".

The theatrical man laughed, supposing Mr. Gates to be joking, crazy or something like that, and just as he was about to talk back, Jimmy opened his coat revealing his official nickel-plated badge, a universal symbol of authority.

At the police station the visitor stated that he was unaware of the local law, and promised to take his dog to the theatre and keep it locked up until the show reached Lindsay or some other town where dogs have the freedom of the streets that used to obtain here.

"This is the first place I have struck where I found the dog law so strict," he said.

"I guess you had better let him go" Chief Thompson advised and Gates dropped seventy-five cents right there. He and the showman departed the best of friends and went off down town to "buy the cigars".

BULGARIANS ARE NOW FIGHTING WITH GERMANS AROUND AMIENS.

PARIS, April 25.—The presence of Bulgarian troops on the Western front is now confirmed. It is not known here how large a force is there or what troops are represented, but among the officers is the son of the Bulgarian Minister in Vienna, Foscheff.

In addition to the large force of German troops now attacking the Allied line east of Amiens, concentrations are reported further north, opposite Arras, as far as Ypres.

MEN, LOOK AHEAD

We emphasize the wisdom of providing for your clothing needs in the future. Wool fabrics have doubled; good qualities in cloths are getting scarcer all the time; the condition of the market seems really serious. Suits of Scotland Woolen Mill character will most surely be hard to get at the price later on.

Queen's Birthday, which has always been a dress event, is hardly a month away. Those contemplating any new garments by that date are strongly urged to call in at Scotland Woolen Mills Store and select their patterns without delay. The values we offer new will appeal to the keenest forward looking buyer. It will pay you.

SPORTING COMMENT

Colonel Miller's statement that he is ready to dispose of his interest in the Willard-Fulton contest shows the lay of the land. Though the colonel may be new to the boxing game, he is a wise business head and can see that public sentiment is against the bout. He would do a wise thing by giving the contest the "go-by."

* * *

Eddie Fitzpatrick, the former Toronto second baseman, and recently released by the Braves, will likely play with the Bethlehem team in the Steel League this year. Eddie announced that he would quit baseball for farming but has evidently changed his mind.

* * *

The Steel League, made up of teams in Pennsylvania, is gathering in many well know players. Some of them are Steve Yerkes, "Bill" Ritter, formerly of the Leafs; "Tony" Walsh, Babbington, "Runt" Walsh, "Pie" Way Buckles, who is on the Phillies' reserve list; Eddie Plank, and Lai Tin, and Mark, two Chinese players.

* * *

Jess Willard, heavyweight champion, is skeptical regarding his proposed title bout with Fred Fulton, the Minnesota heavy weight. On his return to Chicago, Willard said: "The difficulty encountered by Colonel Miller in arranging for the bout at Minneapolis, makes it look as though I won't get a chance to fight Fulton at all."

* * *

The collapse of "Knotty" Lee's project to reorganize the Canadian League, came as no surprise. Though "Knotty" gave out glowing reports from every city he visited, those on the inside knew that things weren't brilliant. The collapse will help the amateurs. The formation of an Ontario Association to govern the amateurs will have no opposition to their plan of developing players and thus booming the game.

* * *

In spite of the doubt surrounding the holding of the Willard-Fulton bout, the former is keeping up the strenuous pace he set as soon as he began training. He knows that Fulton is in wonderful shape and for that reason he is training hard. This week he will cut out having his breakfast served in bed.

The Great Picture "Intolerance" Is Coming

At the Empire Theatre Monday and Tuesday Next—Prices Are Very Reasonable

The greatest moving picture of the age, D. W. Griffith's colossal spectacle, "Intolerance," is to appear in the Empire Theatre on Monday and Tuesday next.

"Intolerance," or Love's Struggle throughout the Ages, is the most colossal picture ever produced, 125,000 people, 7000 horses, 1500 chariots take part in this production.

The picture has never been seen at the small admission prices it will be shown at the Empire. The prices advertised on the bills are incorrect; the proper prices, which are lower, are correct in the papers. Matinees, 25c; evenings, 50c and 75c.

The present moment is less favourable to the German plans than when they started their advance on March 21st. Then the weak point existed between the French and British armies. Now there is no sensitive part of the line since unified command has given the opportunity to make the most practical use of all the Allied troops.

Counter-Attacking.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 26.—The French this morning are counter-attacking at Mount Kemmel, in an attempt to reclaim positions taken by the Germans. Yesterday's fighting was of a desperate nature, and the enemy gains were only slight.

"Hold or Die."

One French regiment to which had been entrusted the defence of the crest of Mount Kemmel, with orders to hold it to the last man, immortalized itself in yesterday's battle. Throughout the long bitter day they clung to their post and sent swirling streams of death from their machine guns down the slopes into struggling masses of German infantry who had surrounded the hill in trying to battle to the top. Some of these fearless Poilus, at latest reports, were still there, and the staccato chatter of their rapid firers sent out the message to their general that they were obeying his order to hold or die.

Motor Trucks For Hauling Milk And Cream To Factories

The Peterborough Pure Milk Products Limited expect to begin the manufacture of condensed milk in the near future, probably next week. To expedite the collection of milk, two large motor trucks will be used. They will cover the district that sent milk to the Trewern and Lakefield factories before they were destroyed. The trucks will be able to make quick hauls to Peterborough, and will be a big factor in bringing in the supplies needed for the new condensed milk industry. One of them is a Maxwell and the other a Studebaker.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie has also sold a big truck to Alex. Campbell, of Harwood, for hauling cream to the Harwood creamery.

CANNOT DO IT SAYS CANDY MEN.

Candy manufacturers so far have received no definite order in regard to cutting down the quantity of sugar in the manufacture of candy.

They express the hope that the law will not go into force. They are willing to substitute to a certain extent, but claim that to cut down 500 per cent. would practically put a number of candy manufacturers out of business, since only about one-third sugar is used now in the manufacture.

It would be impossible to find sufficient substitutes, and it would mean the elimination of a large number of varieties altogether, say some of the manufacturers.

Music & Drama

"Watch Us Step" would have been a better title for Irving Berlin's musical offering, "Watch Your Step" at the Grand last night, for the company broke into a dance on every possible occasion, and at the slightest provocation, dancing their way through three acts and six scenes, and finishing fresh and strong. Berlin's syncopated music makes the production a mile-a-minute affair, and nobody with the slightest suspicion of rheumatism could hold a position in the caste.

The company did not prove very strong in vocal ability, the chief honours in this respect being carried off by Mr. Frank Coombs, who in a a remarkable imitation of Caruso, sang the immortal "Vesti la Giubba" from "Pagliacci," in splendid voice, and who was heard later on the evening in the delightful number, "Wasn't It Yesterday?" Barbour Halliday also sang very nicely, Miss Helen Delaney scored heavily in her dance numbers. Fred Hildebrand although his work sometimes resembled himself, long drawn out and very thin, was responsible for much laughter, and Goff Phillips, in a "black-face" turn, got rid of a lot of old quips and a few new ones in a manner that caused considerable hilarity. Miss Vallie Belasco Martin proved a very delightful little Quaker girl.

There was a semblance of a plot for a few minutes after the opening chorus, but it got lost between dances and the entertainment soon evolved itself into a series of specialties. The chorus was wonderfully costumed and the scenic accessories were elaborate and striking.

For those who prefer "rags" to harmony, almanac jokes to deeper forms of wit, and brass band methods to the chamber music style, "Watch Your Step" must have been an ideal entertainment.

Says German "Ace" Was Over-Rated

FRENCH AIRMEN DO NOT BELIEVE HE ACCOUNTED FOR 80 MACHINES.

Paris, April 25.—With the death to Richthofen, French aviation experts are insisting how improbable it is that the German aviator has accounted for 80 enemy machines.

While most writers agree he was the best airman the German army had they all say his flying qualities did not equal those of Captain Georges Guynemer, the French "Ace" killed some time ago.

Richthoren seemed to have no fighting methods of his own, but relied a great deal upon the famous escadrille he commanded, the "Tangos," to find his game. It is even said that many machines shot down by other German pilots in that escadrille were recorded as having been brought down by its "Ace."

THE WANTS WILL HELP

All Grocers And Fruit Stores Under Control Of Food Board May 1st

Must Operate Under License--Business to Be Done on a Cash Basis After This Date

A largely attended meeting of the grocers and fruit dealers of the city was held last evening in the Public Library to discuss questions vital to the food situation of this country.

Because of the high prices of food and the likelihood of further advance in prices of commodities, the Canadian Food Board are recommending the elimination of everything that tends to add to the cost of living, and the credit system, being one of the unnecessary heavy expenses the retail grocers of Peterborough agreed at the meeting held last evening to meet the requests of the Canadian Food Board, to commence on May 1st, the date on which their license places them under the control of the Food Board, to commence a cash business, and further, one and all unanimously pledged themselves to not open a new account with any family or individual.

The grocers will continue to maintain a good service and will deliver all orders of one dollar or over to any part of the city.

For the present the grocer will, where necessary, carry a customer until his pay day, so that the change can be made with as little inconvenience as possible.

As Fire Fighters Police Are Through

As fire fighters the police are through. The episode of the mitts has brought home to them a fact they have always recognized—that their duty is simply to police fires, to keep the stage clear of curious citizens, while the firemen carry on. "I always maintained," said one of them, "that we had no business holding hose and getting in the thick of it; and this affair should teach us a lesson. Never again for me."

The police resent the implication that they loaded up with mitts and caps on the morning of the Neill fire. Those who were on duty pitched in as fire fighters, got their clothes wet, and instead of going home to dry, several of them requisitioned a pair of socks each and a pair of mitts, and returned to their work. But they flatly declare that they gave no orders to merchants to supply the multitude.

One of the men asserts that Mayor Duncan told him to get a pair of socks if his feet were wet but he did not say that the Mayor specified when he was to get them.

However, the incident is passed, and the council need have no fears for the future. Next time the police will be on the safe and dry sidelines.

LETTER FROM PETERBOROUGH SOLDIER IN GERMANY

Mrs. Grant, of 1033 Water street, has received a very interesting letter from her son Charles Mullen, who is a prisoner in Germany.

Dahlenburg Camp.

Dear Mother,—I was so pleased to hear of some of the old crowd. How I would like to be with them once more, but really I can't see an opening yet, but suppose it will come some time. I haven't had a letter from the Pay and Records Office concerning my rank, but suppose it will come in time. I received a parcel of fags from the Red Cross the other day. They were dated 12/12/'17, the first I have had this year, and to buy them here they are too dear, but when I don't receive English smokes I have to buy German, a touch pretty dear when money is scarce.

We are having very cold weather here just now, a little snow and the wind blowing forty to the hour. Snow is a very scarce article in this country as a rule, but war brings most anything. I feel rotten these days. I always do when it is cold and miserable.

Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain,

Your son,
CHARLIE.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of Private George Ernest Manley, who was killed in action August 15th, 1917:

Dearest brother, thou hast left us,
And thy loss we deeply feel;
But he died for his King and country,
And we hope his soul's amongst the blest.
We seem to listen for his voice,
We miss his kindly thought,
And willing help about the place,
Which he gave all unsought.
We know that he is safe from all,
Yes, safe for evermore,
Our loved one is not lost to us,
But only gone before.

Growth of Tower of London.

A royal palace, consisting of what is now known as the "white tower," appears to have been the beginning of the Tower of London. It was commenced by William's son, William Rufus, who, in 1098, surrounded it with walls and a broad ditch. Several succeeding kings made additions to it, and King Edward III erected the church. In 1628 the old white tower was rebuilt, and in the reign of Charles II a great number of additions were made to it. The new buildings in the tower were completed in 1850.

How Birds Roost.

In roosting, birds usually perch on one leg only, folding the other close to the body. The weight of the body over one foot, according to Borelli, closes the tendons of the muscles which bend the claws with the same firmness that a nail would do, driven through foot and perch. Neither rocking nor pitching by wind or storm, shaking the perch, disturbs the sleep of the bird, nor its balance or center of gravity. The great length of toes enables other birds to stand steady on one foot.

Huns Take Kemmel Hill, But Foch Has Reserves

"In Him Both Armies Have the Fullest Confidence, and, So Far, He Has Used Only a Small Proportion

WHAT BRITISH ARE DOING

General Radcliffe said he regarded the situation at Villers-Bretonneux as very satisfactory. "We got back all we lost, and hold the village; we have taken many prisoners and inflicted heavy losses," was his summary of the British achievement. "Villers-Bretonneux is a most important tactical point," he added, "as it is atop the plateau, whence one may look down the western slopes towards Amiens."

"In this long-drawn out test of endurance of the nation it is imperative to get every man possible to support the battle front, for men alone will tell in the end."

LONDON, April 27.—The taking of Kemmel Hill by the Germans was announced by General Radcliffe yesterday afternoon.

Mont Kemmel is a steep hill, more than 400 feet high, lying about four miles and a half south and west of Ypres. Its compartively flat top is oval, being nearly half a mile from northwest. Its slopes extend outthat distance from south-east to northwest. Its slopes exend outward into the foothills from a quarter to half a mile.

The little village of Kemmel lies just at the north-east edge of the heights. Just south-east of Mont Kemmel is the hamlet of Bellevue, and south of the hill is the village of Lindenhoek Reserves in Foch's Hands.

"In the end, it will be a question of who has the last reserves," said Gen. Radcliffe, chief director of military operations at the War Office, in a review of the western front situation yesterday. "These reserves on the western front are onw in the hands of Gen. Foch, in whom both armies have the fullest confidence. He so far has employed only a small proportion of his available reserves.

"The net result in the Kemmel sector so far is that the Germans have gained about two thousand yards on a front of about 1,200 yards.

"This gain is not large, but it involves very important ground, and there is no question that it is a very serious loss.

"There is nothing serious about the loss of Kemmel Hill, but it is one of the most important tactical features, as the hill is an observation point for all the ground to the north. It still remains to be seen, however, whether it will remain in the enemy's hands.

"Our line to the north is all right and it is entirely possible to hold on to the Ypres sector even if the enemy is on Kemmel. But his presence there is not convenient and we hope to get him off."

Still Keep Ypres Sector.

General Radcliffe declared it was perfectly possible for the allies to hold on to the Ypres sector even with the Germans on Kemmel hill, but that it was not convenient to have them there and it was hoped to eject them.

At Kemmel Hill front the general said the Germans gained 2,000 yards on a front of about 1,200 yards, including the important tactical feature of the hill itself, which gives important observation over all the ground to the north.

"On the Kemmel front the enemy has made considerable progress," said Gen. Radcliffe, in giving his first weekly talk on the western front situation to-day. The latest information is still incomplete, but there is no doubt that the Germans succeeded in occupying Kemmel Hill, a sector involving both French and British troops."

Germans at Old Game.

In alluding to the fighting on the western front since April 23, Gen. Radcliffe said:

"In all the fighting since this date we see the Germans at their old game of striking at the junction between the British and the French.

It is still clear that the German's intention is to wear out the British army. He has been unable to break the line or divide the British and French, and therefore he is hammering the British army wherever possible. This object has been countered by the action of the allied commander-in-chief in sending French troops to the north front making it more difficult for the Germans to continue the game of fighting the British alone.

"There is no reason to alter the view that a big offensive on a far greater scale than ever, is still to be expected between Arras and Amiens, with the object to drive in and separate the British and French.

So far the whole enemy success has been merely tactical. He has won ground and taken positions and guns, but has achieved no change in the strategical situation. He hoped to do this in a fortnight, but he has been five weeks at it without succeeding. We must expect this process to go on all summer."

Why you should look for this Trade-mark on your Shoes

A TRADE-MARK is a manufacturers' signature. If a firm makes an article they are prepared to stand behind—they stamp it with their trade-mark. It is put on their goods so you may identify them. It stands to reason, therefore, that it is safer for the public to always buy "known" and "trade-marked" shoes rather than "anonymous" shoes.

Each working day of the year, the A. H. M. trade-mark is stamped on the soles of thousands of pairs of shoes for men, women and children, because we want you to know our shoes when you see them—because we are making a sincere effort to produce good values in footwear—because we believe you will find our shoes satisfactory—and buy them again and again.

Ames Holden McCready are Canada's largest makers of shoes. A.H.M. footwear is sold by thousands of dealers in every part of Canada—and by the leading merchants in almost every town.

We make such a large proportion of the boots and shoes that the Canadian people wear that you are probably wearing A. H. M. shoes now. However, the next time you buy shoes, to make sure, look for this trade-mark on the sole.

We make many grades and styles of footwear, but no matter what price you pay for them you will find them excellent value for the money. You will find it profitable and satisfactory in future to always make this trademark your guide in buying footwear for yourself and your family.

The Memory Man.

A woman of intellectual tastes found it difficult to remember all the facts she collected. She therefore secured the services of a professor of one of the best memory systems. Scarcely had the professor taken his departure after a successful first lesson, when a loud double knock was heard at the front door. "Who was that, Mary?" the lady inquired of the servant. "Oh, if you please, ma'am," said Mary, "it was the memory man; he forgot his umbrella!"

Sawing Through Diamond.

The old proverb about diamond cut diamond used to be true, but today a diamond can be sawed through by a thin disc of phosphor copper revolving about 3,000 times a minute. For many years all diamonds had to be sent to Amsterdam, where the Jews had a monopoly of the trade of diamond cutting. Even the Cullinan diamond was sent there to be "cleft" in two.

GRAIN MARKET

Yesterday was quiet in the grain markets, partly owing to this being "Liberty Bond" day on the other side of the line, and the early closing of all markets. There was however a short flurry in July corn on the Chicago market that option going up nearly 3c and closing 2 5-8c over yesterday's close. The reason for the bulge was the report that the corn acreage was largely reduced as a result of the increased wheat acreage campaign. The cash oats markets were quiet, and Fort William quotations are 1-2c lower.

Manitoba wheat.—No. 1, northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, 2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-4, including 2 1-4c tax, in store, Fort William.

CATTLE MARKET

The highest prices and the strongest markets on record sums up the story of the cattle trade in Toronto markets for this week. While the cattle runs have been comparatively light a comparison with the figures for the corresponding week last year shows that over 1300 more cattle were received during this week than a year ago. The figures are: This week 4859 cattle as against 3473 the same week last year. The top quotations on cattle a year ago were $11.50 to $12. The top quotations this week have been $13.50 to $15, an advance of approximately $3, although the receipts of cattle were heavier this week than the same week last year. A comparison of the hog situation shows that last year's corresponding week there were 9940 hogs received at the stock yards as against only 6984 for this week. The hog quotation for last year was $16.75 to $16.85, fed and watered as against $20.25, the closing quotation for this week. Lambs were quoted last year at $13 to $16. This year as high as $21 and $21.75 has been paid for selected lambs. Although a year ago was accounted a season of high prices, the comparison just given shows a tremendous advance since then. And in the opinion of some of the largest dealers in the Toronto market, the end is not yet and still higher prices are looked for as the season advances. This week's markets have been universally strong, starting off on Monday with an advance of about 25c on cattle over the previous week's average, though the top price of $15 was paid in both weeks. But this week there have been more transactions within the top range of prices, in proportion to the receipts, than in the week before, thus raising the general average for the week to 50c or over, above the average for the previous week.

Prices for stockers and feeders have been correspondingly high with the high prices for butcher cattle.

Receipts of calves have been heavy and prices weakened for the commoner stuff but holding about steady for good to choice veal calves.

Sheep and lambs have again been so light as scarcely to make a market, though the prices offering are good and firm.

Hogs weakened a little during the week but finally came back to last week's closing quotation at $20.25 fed and watered.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

A PAT ON THE BACK

CHAPTER LII.

When I got home I found Mrs. Sexton there waiting for me.

"Now, tell me everything about the dinner—everything!" she ordered, after I had laid off the wraps, and insisted that she do the same. "Don't forget anything."

I commenced at the very beginning—I told her how nice George had been about dressing, how wonderfully he looked, then of the compliments anent the decorations, the menu, the costume idea, etc. Also how delighted he had been with the place cards. When I spoke of them I thought that I detected a change in her face, but as she said nothing I concluded that I had been mistaken.

She asked after each of the guests, how they looked, whether the costumes were becoming or not; then veered back to the place cards.

"May I see them again? Yours, I mean," she asked.

"Oh, I am so sorry, but I took them down to be framed." Then I told her of meeting Mr. Gray and Mr. Carpenter, of their turning to walk with us; of Julia Collins and her unkind remark; and that Mr. Gray made Mr. Carpenter turn back because of it.

"I'm sorry you met her, but go on."

So encouraged I told her the rest of the story. How Merton had returned and helped us to select the frames and then how he had stayed behind when Evelyn and I started home. Of our meeting with Mrs. Collins and her escort and what she had said, and my answer. She then laughed and urged:

"Repeat what you said to her,—please."

I did, and to my surprise, Mrs. Sexton said:

"Bully for you! I couldn't have done better, myself."

MRS. SEXTON TELLS GEORGE.

I urged her to remain for dinner, and, finally, she consented. To my horror, we were scarcely seated before she repeated to George every word I had told her. My face flamed. I was indignant that she should so treat a confidence, even though I had said nothing about keeping it from George. That she could have any other motive save to embarrass me, I never thought.

"I tell you, Mr. Howard, I am proud of my pupil," I heard, when I had conquered my indignation enough to heed what they were saying. "Why—I couldn't have given Mrs. Collins a better answer, myself. Your wife will soon have the aplomb necessary to deal with older and more worldly wise women."

"I wondered what George thought. He smiled at Mrs. Sexton, and made some remark to James who stood at his elbow. But various expressions had chased each other across his face—I thought I detected annoyance, anger—and also—could it be—a sort of pride. Anyway I noticed that every little while all through dinner he would look at me with an inquiring expression in his face, as if he were newly appraising me.

I hoped that he would not scold me after Mrs. Sexton left. I need not have worried. He never mentioned the subject.

I finally concluded he had not considered it worth while, and dismissed the subject.

Every little while I would feel so happy with George. Life seemed to be really worth the living—life with him, I mean. I was very careful not to offend him in any way. To say nothing before him at which he would cavil. And to make my ideas conform to his wishes.

I wonder if any who reads my story has been through the same experience and knows how hard it is to restrain all natural impulses, and to intrigue oneself to please another? Many times I would fail in some way—usually without the least idea in what particular I had failed—and I would be miserable for days because of the coldness with which George treated me. Never could I become accustomed to his leaving me so much alone in the evening. And it was often because of a complaint on this score that he was peeved with me.

George never confided either business cares or his pleasures to me. It seemed strange, as at home, my father and all the neighbors told their wives everything that occurred. I read much at this time, the monthly magazines which were overflowing with fiction, some of it of a hectic sort, and many novels.

Often after finishing a story I would compare my life with that of the heroine. If she were unhappily married I always tried to figure out which one was to blame. Usually, though the author laid all the blame on the woman. It was, as I told Evelyn once, as if all the women were Eves, trying to make the Adams of the world eat apples.

Social Reconstruction Coming in Great Britain As Result of Great War

THE welding of classes which has taken place in the British army in the trenches has been such as could never have been accomplished in any other way, and the hope for the future of Britain lies in the possible extent to which this can be carried into social reconstruction.

This was the opinion expressed the other day by the Archbishop of York, now visiting Canada and the United States.

"The first and immediate necessity," said the archbishop, "is of course to conquer the Germans. But we are beginning to realize that this is only a part of the problem which the time has set before us; that, having conquered the Germans, we must conquer ourselves. The Labor party, which is developing with growing success the unification of the efforts of workers with the brain and with the hand, is working toward the condition when the industries will be controlled by the workers themselves, and this is only part of the great changes in the social and industrial scheme in Britain which are sure to come. It is quite safe to say that all our older families, all the landed aristocracy, are quite conscious of the fact that things can never be again as they were before the war; and they are most willing to face the changes that must come.

"So far as I have been able to observe there is this great difference in the effect which the war has had so far on public opinion in England and America. We all feel in England that the war has compelled us to reconsider in a very wide and deep way the whole character of our social system. The thought of social reconstruction is only less constantly in the minds of the people than the immediate progress of the war itself. We all feel that the war came to us at a time when we were all becoming conscious that our social system was revealing very deep defects, and our great trust is that the spirit of common fellowship which the war has called out may be transmuted after the war into an impulse toward wider social reconstruction, carried through in the same spirit of common fellowship and sacrifice.

"Certainly our soldiers at the front feel this. They seem to respond readily and with enthusiasm to the prospect that they will return home to take a place in the building up of a new and better social system. Indeed, this is coming to fill a larger place in the consciousness of most people than the appeals for solidness and enthusiasm in the war.

"The main impulse for this reshaping of our society will come from the great labor organizations, but nothing is more striking than the way in which the employers frankly recognize that they must be prepared to look at the new situation in a new spirit. The first definite proposal for economic reconstruction with the authority of the Government was the setting up of joint industrial councils for all the great industries, in which representatives of the workmen will meet representatives of the employers on equal terms for the settlement of all matters connected with the conduct of the industry. This plan so far has been carried out with real good-will by the best of the employers and the best of the leaders of labor.

"The Labor party's manifesto naturally and rightly points out the full demands of labor in a reasonable way, and represents the tendency toward which the movement will be directed. But beyond question there are in the full program many features which could not be carried out at once without dislocating industry. The real problem, however, is that employers must recognize the necessity of giving to the workmen a larger share of the product of the industry and a greater share of control of the management of the industry.

"On the other hand, the employers feel, and the best of the workmen feel, that this must be balanced by a greater output of productive energy on the part of the workers. So far as I can judge, the output per man seems to be greater in most industries in America than it is in England. We have been hampered by trades union regulations which have been made—in all good faith, to be sure—in the attempt to obtain a high average wage, but which the best workmen feel to be based on an imperfect knowledge of the facts of economics. So the alteration of these regulations is also a part of the problem; there must be a larger share for labor both in the reward and in the management of industry, and there must be larger productivity.

"One of the greatest tragedies of the war has been the great loss of the young men of the old families, the old governing class — men who embodied our greatest promise, who were inspired by our highest ideals of national service, were among the first to be killed. But the tradition they have left, the example they have given, will remain and will have profound effect in the public schools and universities which gave them to the nation. And not there alone. There has been a spirit of delightful and trustful comradeship of all classes in the war. It has brought all social groups together.

"But a very great deal depends on the decisiveness of our victory in the war. If, after all the sacrifices that have been made, the result is inconclusive, it will have a profoundly depressing effect upon the spirit in which all classes approach the future. Such an outcome of the war would render more likely the outbreak of bitterness, of party spirit, of class antagonism. A patched-up peace would leave everybody sore and querulous, disappointed, and with a strong tendency to meet the new conditions in the spirit of antagonism in which too often they met the old."

Lobster's Shell.

The shell of the lobster is imbued with a black or bluish pigment, secreted by the true skin, which also gives out the calcareous matter after each moult, so that lime and pigment are blended together. This pigment becomes red in water at the temperature of 212 degrees Fahrenheit.

Iron Rust.

Few stains are so obstinate as iron rust is. Airplane Needs Much Wood.

About 200 board feet of wood is used in the actual construction of the average airplane. To obtain this material it is ordinarily necessary to work over about 1,500 feet of select lumber, which often represents all that can be used for airplanes of 15,000 board feet of standing timber.

BARON HERTLING IS REACTIONARY

German Chancellor Wants to be King-Maker.

HIS BAVARIAN CAREER

He Proved Long Ago That He Is a Man Without Any Moral Scruples That Might Interfere With His Political Advancement — He Succeeded In Making Luitpold King Instead of Regent.

THOSE persons who thought that Baron George von Hertling would prove more liberal in his view-point than the German Chancellors who preceded him were doomed to disappointment. If they had known the facts about this Bavarian, they would have been aware that he is as strongly Prussian in character as the worst of them. Indeed he has long aspired to be a king-maker, a sort of Bavarian Warwick. Baron von Hertling, seventh Chancellor of the German empire, was born in Darmstadt in 1843. After finishing his studies he spent two years in Italy, and in 1867 settled down at Bonn as a Privatdozent. Thirteen years passed before he obtained a professorship. The reason, as he himself has said in one of his books, was that he was written down as an ultra-montane, and the academic progress of ultramontanes in those days was "steep and difficult."

But having obtained his professorship in 1880, he was transferred two years later to Munich as professor of philosophy. He already had for some years been a member of the Reichstag, and his fortunes advanced rapidly with those of the Centre party, of which he ultimately became the leader, on the death of Dr. Lieber. While he was nominally a professor in Munich, Hertling, was in reality the chief, although unofficial, representative of Germany at the Vatican, and for a generation he has conducted every important German negotiation with the Pope.

While Hertling's career in German politics could be described only in a history of the Centre party during his time, there are two events which deserve to be remembered. When Prince Bulow at the end of 1906 join'ed issue with the Centre party—nominally about colonial policy—Hertling, as he explained some years afterwards, took the dissolution of the Reichstag as an attempt to establish "a Liberal regime" in the empire and in Prussia. The result of the elections was the defeat, not of the Centre party, but of the Socialists, and the Reichstag majority, which came into existence was not a "Liberal" majority, but the famous blue-black bloc—the combination of Conservatives and Centre party. Two years later Prince Bulow received his punishment when the Conservatives and the Centre party defeated with reactionary arguments the proposed death duties, and Prince Bulow fell.

It is characteristic of Hertling that, whereas in 1908 he had strongly supported Bulow and severely criticized the Kaiser in the matter of the Daily Telegram interview he supported in the summer of 1909 the criticisms against Bulow for his behavior towards the Emperor in the previous year—the issue which caused the Kaiser to take his own revenge on Bulow as soon as the political situation gave him his opportunity.

In February, 1912, Hertling was suddenly summoned by the late Prince Regent Luitpold to succeed Count Podewils as Minister-President of Bavaria. Hertling's appointment was found peculiarly convenient, owing on the one hand to his power and prestige as head of the whole Centre party in Germany.

Hertling had considerable troubles over the regency question after the death of Prince Luitpold, and exhibited little tact. But he kept his position, and the King of Bavaria has not been ungrateful for the fact that it is to Hertling that he owed the termination of the regency and his establishment on the Bavarian throne while the mad King Otto was still alive. Since the outbreak of war Baron von Hertling has been given the hereditary title of count.

More Fame for Stuttgart.

Stuttgart, which French aviators bombed recently, is the original home of the aircraft engine. It was in Stuttgart that Daimler evolved the internal combustion engine which a Frenchman, with an eye to utility, quickly turned to account in the first practical motor car, says the Christian Science Monitor. Here, too, Count Zeppelin evolved his monster airships, making use of the knowledge which trials and experiments in the old Daimler works had served to bring to light. Facts such as these seem more pertinent at these times than the other reasons for Stuttgart's fame. She has, as every one knows, a famous music academy, and her reputation for music is certainly far older than that which she has acquired by her machinery; also, it is unspoiled by anything of the nature which has made the very word Zeppelin a byword in civilized countries.

Lawrence was intensely interested in his father's new auto. One day he was walking with his mother on an icy street when a man just in front of them came near falling. A Lesson.

This is the way the agent got a lesson in manners. He called at a business office and saw nobody but a prepossessing, though capable appearing young woman. "Where's the boss?" he asked abruptly.

"What is your business!" she snapped.

"I've got a proposition to lay before this firm, and I want to talk to somebody about it."

"And you would rather talk to a gentleman?"

"Yes."

"Well," answered the lady, smiling sweetly, "so would I. But it seems that it's impossible for either one of us to have our wish, so we'll have to make the best of it. State your business, please!"

DOVE DALE.

A Picturesque Spot In the British Isles.

The Dale of the Dove stands out, like its inhabitants, as something apart in English history and literature. The Dalesman is of that hardy type through which one comes into most intimate contact with Norse and Saxon ancestry. The doughty Dalesman stemming the tide of battle, rallying round the English banner at the call of his king, and wresting victory from almost certain defeat when the day had gone hard with English arms, is a familiar historical figure. To-day he is no longer the most skillful of longbowmen, but is content to typify the honest, sterling qualities and that dogged love of the soil which place the yeoman on a high patriotic plane.

Dove Dales should be approached only on foot. The train drops one unceremoniously at a tiny wayside station and puffs gleefully away, priggishly satisfied at having left one within perhaps two miles of the true starting point by a glistening cascade. Here the stepping-stones, awash with the swift-flowing current, must be crossed, and then the tramp leads along exquisitely beautiful sylvan ways, through deep grass and foliage that tenaciously hold their green throughout the year. Sometimes one is compelled to stop and admire an old-world smugglers' cave of Broddingnagian proportions, or an immense overhanging rock, or towering, slender bowlders that suggest the spires of a church. Larches, in tender green, stand out in strong contrast to the darkness of the firs and the silvery hues of the beeches. Sometimes a ribbon-like stream flows down a narrow canon pocket. The whipping of the waters and the babbling rush of the stream make the softest of music, which harmonizes with the song of a thrush or the paean of the all but invisible baylets, where the monarch of the waters, the trout dozes and dreams in fancied seclusion. But in their palatial mansion in mid-stream the speckled beauties dart swiftly to and fro, and, when the watery surface is struck by the sun's rays, it is set aglow with vivid color.

Six miles from the entrance to the Dale are the cave of Dove Holes yawning like monster dragon-jaws many feet above the path. These were once the haunt of smugglers and still have an old-time romantic aspect, as if resolved to hold aloof forever from a strait-laced world. Beyond them Dove Dale becomes the Dale of Beresford, owing to the contiguity of the great Beresford estate to which Cotton was heir. The beauties of the Dove are accentuated in Beresford Dale tenfold. Modelled on more spacious lines, its precipitous sides here and there open upon lofty receding meadows and distant browsing cattle, their diminished forms strangely outlined against the horizon. A feeling of solitude hangs about these river stretches with their barren wastes of moor or heath. As the shadows begin to lengthen across the mossy path by the stream, deep mystery seems to brood over the water. Here are tiny V-shaped bridges and lonely dells mellow in gloom. Here also is the famous Pike's Pool of half lights and flitting shadows; of silvery foam and gentle cascade; of shady nooks where Izaak Walton often lingered at the close of day.

A few yards beyond, the leafy path deserts the river, and, skirting a grove of trees, runs into a paddock inclosure. On the opposite bank, as if carefully guarded against intrusion, stands the historic little memorial to Izaak. It is a small rotunda, less a monument, perhaps, than a substantial brick but built on unconventional, somewhat ornamental lines. But it is a fitting end to the Dale. Just beyond, cascades and dells disappear, the soft music of the waters dies away and, its mission fulfilled, the river leaves its shelter of trees and makes for the open, prosaic meadows, where no man-made path can follow it.—Christian Science Monitor.

Proceeding With Caution.

"How did you lay the foundation for your colossal fortune?"

"Before we get any further with this line of interview," replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "lemme know just which you are, a magazine writer or a regular detective."

Earth's Temperature.

The temperature of the earth appears to increase from the outer surface downward at the rate of one degree Fahrenheit for every 50 to 60 feet, and at the relatively short distance of a few miles the temperature must be exceedingly high.

The Best Insurance

You Can Put on Your Buildings

is the protection that good paint guarantees. Fire Insurance does not prevent fire—it only partly reimburses you for loss sustained, should fire destroy your property.

Fire may never happen.

On the other hand, the use of good paint actually prevents a loss from decay which is not just a possibility, but an absolute certainty. The destructive effects of weather, upon buildings that lack proper paint protection, go on every second of the day and night.

MARTIN-SENOUR

"100% PURE" PAINT

is the greatest known protector of all building material against time and weather, because it is made only of pure White Lead, Pure Zinc Oxide, and Pure Linseed Oil.

You would not think of letting your Fire Insurance Policies lapse in order to save the yearly premiums. It would be even poorer economy to let your Paint Protection Policy lapse by neglecting to repaint your increasingly valuable buildings this season.

When you do paint use Martin Senour "100% Pure" Paint. It spreads easier, covers more surface, and protects longer than most other makes.

Ask for copies of "Farmer's Color Set" and "Town and Country Homes". Many good painting hints in each. 121

"THEY SHALL NOT WANT"

In a moment of inspiration an advertising man recently hit upon the above four words as epitomizing the desire and determination of the people of Canada that the Armies of the Allies and the suffering peoples of the Allied nations of Europe shall be supplied with all that Canada can possibly furnish of the food stuffs necessary for their support in the energetic and successful prosecution of their struggle for the defeat of tyrannical Prussian aspirations.

Compressed in this little sentence is more real throbbing meaning than most full pages of printed matter contain. In sixteen letters it expresses the determination of a people that a great cause must be sustained at no matter what personal sacrifice.

"They shall not want."

How aptly these words also express the attitude of the NORMAL, HEALTHY-MINDED MAN towards, those who under our social system, naturally look to him for support and protection. As he thinks of the wife who has entrusted her future to his care and of the children whom he has brought into the world, his thought and determination is "THEY SHALL NOT WANT."

This is always the attitude of the normal, healthy-minded man who is willing to sacrifice, if need be, to attain this noble end.

A policy in the Sun Life of Canada provides the safest and most economical means of fulfilling this noble desire and determination and incidentally, if fortunately in time this mode of protection is no longer necessary he may himself reap the benefits of his savings and thrift.

Thus virtue has its own reward.

GERMAN METHODS ARE LAID BARE

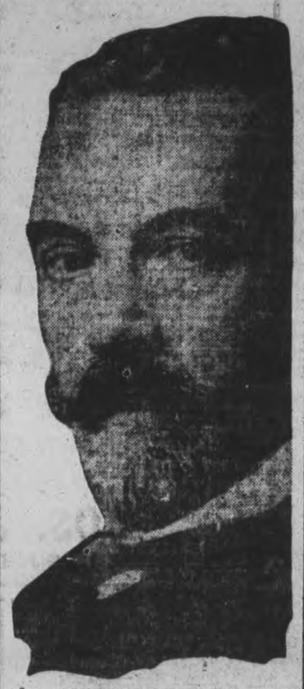
Bethmann-Hollweg Is Forced to Make Admission.

FRANCE WAS THREATENED

Former Chancellor Explains Why the Prussians Demanded Guarantees of French Neutrality, and M. Pichon's Recent Statement Adds Fresh Evidence Regarding the Guilt of the Huns.

IN an interview published in the Neuste Nachrichten of Berlin Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg admits the truth of the statement made recently by Stephen Pichon, French Foreign Minister, respecting Germany's attitude toward France at the time of the outbreak of the war.

M. Pichon said that on July 31, 1914, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, then German Chancellor, instructed Baron von Schoen, then German ambassador at Paris, to demand that France, if she desired to remain neutral in the war between Russia and Germany, should hand over to Germany as a guarantee of neutrality the fortresses of Toul and Verdun, to be occupied until after the war.



BETHMANN-HOLLWEG.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg says:

"The Russian general mobilization furnished indisputable proof that those factors which wielded power in Russia over the head of the emperor desired war in all circumstances. My instructions to Baron von Schoen on July 31, 1914, have been brought to light. But what have these instructions to do with Russian mobilization and the attitude of France. Russian regiments were on the march before these instructions were written and the French had no knowledge of these instructions when replying to our question as to whether in case of war with Russia, it would remain neutral. The French Government simply declared it would do what the interests of France demanded. It is well known that these instructions were never acted upon; consequently they had not the slightest influence on the actual course of events.

"No one could seriously doubt that we had not only to fight against the Russian mobilization but also to fight France.

"I myself was not in the slightest doubt regarding this state of affairs when the instructions were sent to Baron von Schoen, but, precisely on that account, we could not disregard the eventuality that perhaps France would provisionally make a declaration of neutrality which, however, could not be relied upon permanently, and that under the cover of her apparent initial neutrality she might complete her preparations at a moment when we were deeply engaged in the east, to fall upon us."

The Height of Chairs.

The criticism which has been made in recent years regarding the too great height of school seats also applies to the chairs in the home and office, according to persons who have been giving the matter careful study and who have made practical tests along this line. The average office or home chair, it is claimed, is so high that when occupied by a person of medium stature, or less, the front edge of the seat presses against the limbs, causing more or less pronounced congestion of the blood and nervous irritation, with a corresponding loss of efficiency. One person interested in this question shortened the legs of a number of chairs in his home and declared that the increased comfort of the family completely justified the rather drastic measure. When one is seated and the feet are flat on the floor the chair should be sufficiently low, it is said, to lift the limbs above the front edge of the chair enough to permit the open hand to be inserted between either limb and the chair seat. — Popular Mechanics.

A HUNGARIAN VILLAGE.

Life Among the Magyars In the Lowlands.

Human life is astir very early in the village of the lowlands or "alfoeld." The street, broad and irregular, is lined with little thatched, whitewashed cottages with blue lintels, their gable ends turned to the spectator, and spacious courtyards intervening. Indian corn is drying on poles, while the long, weighted beam of the primitive well swings and creaks in the crotch of the upright near the cottage's maize patch and the tumbled ricks.

Suddenly, the sound of a cracked horn winds through the village, and grows louder and louder. The sheds of the courtyards became alive with sound, and big white Asiatic cattle, with immense spread of horns, merino sheep, and pigs press out noisily toward the street, scattering the alarmed hens and geese left and right. It is the call of the herdsman who is driving a slow-moving mass of the village kine up the street to the outlying pasture on the "puszta." From long familiarity, the cattle join the motley throng of the modern Pied Piper mechanically, and even the geese and the ducks drop into line, leaving the depleted yards to the care of the rooster and his fussy brood.

One by one the people begin to straggle into the street. A peasant in wide linen trousers, the "gaiya," thrust into the "calzmak" or top-boots, is driving oxen yoked to a cart with clumsy, solid wooden wheels; another rattles along in a light wickerwork waggon drawn by a pair of unexpectedly smart-looking horses. A man hawking milk from wooden tubs slung pannier-wise across a donkey's back, pours out his wares into a metal jug extended by an unmistakable Sarah or Rachel, or a much beskirted Slovak or gypsy woman in top-boots and head cloths. The faces of some of the younger women are often characterized by a certain handsome strength.

But it is only on gala or wedding days that these primitive folk are seen at their best. For the nonce their working-day costumes and their careworn expressions are put aside. The nuptial festivities usually last three days, and are sure to mean a great and uproarious time for the "csarda," or village inn, with its huge gatherings, its tireless gypsy fiddlers, and the excited player of the national instrument, the "cimbal." There will be constant demands upon the sprightly Jack-o'-the-box, the leader of the band, to play his "non-stop" fiddle, time and again, close up to the ears of each honored guest in turn, and above all, there will be incessant dancing of the "csardas," that sprightly parent of the Viennese waltz and of the Hungarian rhapsodies of Liszt. The dance begins very solemnly and ceremoniously. The girls stand in a group, and the men, slapping their thighs and crying, "Ha, Ha, Ha!" call out the names of their chosen partners into the crowd, and a general chase commences. The couples reassembled, the real "csardas" begin, the dancers twisting, shouting, and whirling with unflagging enery. The music quickens with each minute, until it culminates in the maddest of tempos. For hours and hours the peasants keep up the sport of the great mother-dance of the Magyars, the fiddlers playing tirelessly on with a zest that seems to border on ferocity.

At dusk, the horn of the herdsman winds again through the street, and the returning cattle automatically seek their sheds. The bride's great dowry chest and all the utensils of the future menage have been loaded on the wagon, and she and her calves and pigs make their way to the new home. The peasants, returning from the fields, sing their melancholy airs. The bell tolls vespers. The fiddles screech on. Then there is the barking of dogs, and a few scattered voices, speaking in the sonorous Hungarian tongue, die away. Lights go out, and the village of the "alfoeld" is still again.

Japanese Actress.

One of the most prominent actresses of Japan, Miss Ritzuko Mori, tells the story of her career in the Chugai Shinron magazine. Of the first fifteen actresses trained at the Imperial Theatre, Miss Mori is only one of six still upon the stage. "The public has made me what success I have attained," she says, "by its criticism and incessant watchfulness, without which I might have abandoned my original resolution, as others have."

During last year Miss Mori was cast in the role of a demented woman in a play. She visited the lunatic hospital at Sugano to study madness from life. Many sad sights met her eyes. She says: "I was so affected with pity for what I saw that I well aight forgot the object of my presence among such scenes; but I set down in a notebook characteristic features in haviour of several unfortunate pa nts. Helped by these guidances, t still more by the indelible me al impressions, I acted my part with every effort at realism I could command. I am told I was successful; the critics and my audiences have commended my work. I have especially avoided overacting the part, which would be so easy and so fatal. Actors of the newest school in Japan try to be as natural; but what would be natural speech and behaviour in ordinary life would appear too insipid on the stage to impress the whole audience, especially when your role is that of an extraordinary character. Exaggeration, of which actors of the old school are generally guilty, must be shunned; but insipidity is just as much to be avoided. In the golden middle way lies the true path of histrionic art."

"Sting-flies."

The gunboats of the British navy are popularly called "sting-flies." Some of their names are: Gaddy Mayfly, Firefly, Tarantula, Sawfly Greenfly, Waterfly, Crayfly and Fly catcher.

Miserable Corns—How to end them

Touchy corns make thousands suffer—on pleasure trips—in business—at home—everywhere.

Until they once try Blue-jay. Then they are corn-free forever.

Painful corns are utterly needless. Science has brought relief. The medicated spot of wax on a Blue-jay Plaster stops pain instantly. Then in 48 hours the corn painlessly comes out.

Harsh liquids are dangerous and messy. Paring may bring infection.

No corn can resist Blue-jay. Yet this way is most gentle.

The chemist of a concern known the world over for its surgical dressings discovered Blue-jay. He studied corns for 25 years.

So with Science's way at your command, no touchy corn need ever bother you again.

Champion Sleeping Record.

Rip Van Winkle's long nap has had several counterparts in real life, the most notable being the long-distance sleeping record established by Caroline Olsson, a Swedish woman, who fell into a trance forty-two years ago, on Dec. 24, 1876, and did not wake up until 1907.

On the day before Christmas, 1875, she returned from school slightly ill, and went to bed. Although the following morning ushered in the great holiday of the year, Caroline slept on, and all efforts to awaken her were futile.

Physicians were unable to diagnose her case, which, after she had been asleep a year was the subject of interested study by all the medical men of Europe. Caroline slept from girlhood to womanhood, being kept alive by the administration of two glasses of milk daily. Two or three times during her sleep of almost thirty years she was aroused sufficiently to take a step or two, but always fell back unconscious and continued her sleep. In 1905 a gradual improvement in her condition was noted, and one day in 1907 she suddenly recovered complete consciousness. She was able to recall every detail of her youth and showed no physical weakness or mental defects from her long sleep.

Japanese "Fish Sausage."

The "kamoboko" or "fish sausage" of the Japanese is described by a consular report as made by chopping the white meat of any fish, passing through a colander, and making into a paste, with a flavoring of sugar, salt, and rice-brewed alcoholic beverage called "Mirin." The paste is made into loaves, steamed on boards an hour and a half to three hours, and at once packed in cans.

Young Diplomat.

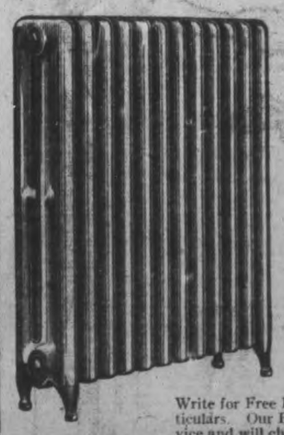
David, recovering from a long illness, was given an eggnog daily, much to his delight, and much to the envy of his sister, Mary Jane. While David was drinking his, one morning, Mary begged for one too, but mother said, "No," whereupon mother heard David whisper to his sister: "Here, Mary, you drink this one quick, and when it is all gone, I'll cry for another one."

A NECESSITY IN THE HOUSE.

Most of the common ills of life arise from a torpid, sluggish condition of the Liver, Kidneys or Bowels, and because they act on each of these organs in a direct and specific way Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills overcome serious and painful diseases over which ordinary medicines have no control.

KING HOT WATER BOILERS AND IMPERIAL RADIATORS

By all the tests to which a Boiler can be subjected, the King Boiler makes a record of almost one hundred per cent. The scientific construction of the water channels; the arrangement of the fire chamber and flues; the quickness with which heat is taken up by the water, lessening the amount of fuel required; the air tight joints, preventing waste of fuel by ungovernable drafts; the strength of the materials; the convenience of all parts; the ease of shaking and ash disposal; the dust-tight ash pan, and other points, all explained in our Booklet are reasons why you should insist on having a King Hot Water Boiler.



Imperial Radiators

The latest improvements in our Radiators have doubled their power of quick and sustained heating. For graceful lines and beauty of proportion, Imperial Radiators are unequalled.

Write for Free Illustrated Booklet containing all particulars. Our Engineering Department is at your service and will cheerfully furnish full information as to the best method of heating your house, store, factory, warehouse or building of any size or description.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

An Absurd Climax

By ALAN HINSDALE

Jules Latrobe was one of the best dressed men in Paris. Anyone who saw him walking on the boulevard in gray trousers, fancy waistcoat and spats, Prince Albert coat, the whole surmounted by a silk hat of the latest model, and carrying in his gloved hand a gold-headed cane, would have thought him a descendant of the ante-revolutionary aristocrats.

One morning Jules was walking on the Rue Rivoli, where there are many shops, and met a lady whom he mistook for a former acquaintance. Raising his hat politely, he said:

"Good-morning, Madame, it is a long while since we have met. I see that time has had no effect upon you. You are as charming as ever."

The lady gave Mr. Latrobe a withering glance and swept past him, leaving him quite disconcerted, for he intended no harm, really believing the lady to be an old acquaintance. She was an American, doing a little shopping, intending when she had finished to visit the Louvres and enjoy an hour or so among the pictures. After the incident with M. Latrobe she proceeded to the gallery and there waited for her husband, with whom she had an appointment.

"Bob," she said, when he arrived, "I will not go out alone again on the streets of Paris. These people who affect such politeness are infamous. They consider any woman who appears alone on the street legitimate—"

"You have been spoken to—insulted?"

"Yes."

"By whom?"

"By one who is evidently a gentleman. That's the worst of it."

"Could you identify him?"

"Yes, if I should see him. But how—"

"True, there is little chance of meeting him again. How unfortunate!"

"Why unfortunate?"

"Because if I could meet him I would punch his head."

Captain Bob Emerson had won a brevet in the Spanish-American war, and on leaving the service had been married and was now on his wedding trip.

The next day Mrs. Emerson, taking a maid with her for protection, went shopping again. Again she met Mr. Latrobe. Either he did not see her or pretended he did not. He turned into a shop and Mrs. Emerson sent the maid in after him with instructions to secure his name and address. The maid returned with a bit of paper on which was written in pencil, "Jules Latrobe, 16 Rue D'Alger."

Mrs. Emerson had no intention of giving the paper to her husband. She simply desired to learn whether the man who had spoken to her was a duke or a count, or possibly a member of the Corps Legislatif. She was somewhat disappointed to learn that he was neither.

Meantime Captain Emerson had narrated the incident to friends, mentioning that if he could find the aggressor he would chastise him. The captain was informed that the only chastisement allowable in Paris was under the code duello.

Mrs. Emerson, when she went to her hotel with the slip of paper bearing Jules Latrobe's name and address, tossed it on the dresser. Her husband coming in later saw it and asked her what it was. She reluctantly told him that it was the address of the man who had insulted her. Emerson took it up and left the room immediately.

He hurried to 16 Rue D'Alger and on the threshold met a man of whom he inquired where he could find M. Latrobe. The man informed him that M. Latrobe was not in. Emerson asked when he would be in, and was informed that it was impossible to tell. He came and went at his pleasure. The captain produced his card and handed it to the man, saying:

"Give that to M. Latrobe and say to him that I desire to meet him at his earliest convenience. I trust there will be no delay."

The next day a messenger delivered a small package to Captain Emerson with a bill for twenty francs written under the printed name of "Jules Latrobe, Fancy Stationary." Puzzled, the captain opened the package and found 100 visiting cards bearing the name of Edward Emerson.

Gnashing his teeth the captain seized his hat and went to the Rue D'Alger. This time he found M. Latrobe in the shop.

"Are you M. Latrobe?" asked the captain, hotly.

"I am. Whom have I the honor to address?"

"I am Robert Emerson."

"Ah! The gentleman who left the order for the cards?"

A light began to penetrate Emerson's brain. "Are you a printer of visiting cards?" he asked.

When Captain Emerson left his wife with blood in his eye she snatched up her hat and followed him. She had no disposition to have him run through by a French dueling foil and hurried to 16 Rue D'Alger to prevent it.

"Moi foi, are you or are you not Marie Boyer?"

"I am not."

"Pardon my addressing you. I thought you were she. You are her image."

There was an embarrasing silence at the end of which Emerson drew forth his portmonie and paid the bill. Then he and his wife left the shop.

The Most Artistic Roof

is the one that completely harmonizes with the design and finishing of the house. For this reason there is a steadily increasing demand for Brantford Asphalt Slates for the modern style of homes.

Brantford Asphalt Slates have a surface of crushed slate embedded into our asphalt coating, the base of the roofing being felt saturated with asphalt. They are cut the size of shingles, and their beautiful soft colors of reddish brown and dark green give a roof a most artistic appearance. The colors are the natural shades of the slate as it comes out of the quarries. Brantford Asphalt Slates are, therefore, unfadeable—never require painting.

Brantford Asphalt Slates

are accurate in size and pliable, which makes them very easily handled and quickly laid, saving time and labor, and therefore costing less to lay.

Brantford Asphalt Slates make an artistic, durable and economical roof. Booklet describing them mailed on request.

Sixteen New American Cities.

Some idea of the vast extent of the work involved in building cantonments for the new national army is given in the following paragraph from Edward Hungerford's "The Camps of the First Half Million," in Everybody's:

"Sixteen new cities for America! Sixteen cities, each of the size of Easton, Pa., or Elmira, N. Y., or Kalamazoo, Mich.; each built to a definite and fairly common plan, and all completed within from 100 to 120 days. Here, then, was some slight measure of the problem. To measure it in still another way, consider the building of a community of wood equal in population to Cleveland or Pittsburgh or St. Louis; then the division of that great town into sixteen separate communities or cantonments—an average of one for each three states—and spread all the way across the face of the land from the commonwealth of Massachusetts to the state of Washington.

Oldest European Royalty.

Though the late Emperor Francis Joseph was the oldest reigning sovereign in Europe, he was not the oldest royalty, says London Tit-Bits. The Empress Eugenie is four years older, while the Dowager Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the grandmother of the grand duke, is eight years older. Thus the last surviving grandchild of George III was the oldest royalty in Europe. The elder sister of the late Duke of Cambridge, and consequently the aunt of Queen Mary of England, it was June 28, 1843, that her marriage took place at Buckingham palace. She received an annuity of $15,000 a year from the British exchequer, which, being paid since for the period of seventy-three years, would amount to the tidy sum of $1,095,000. But when the war broke out it was announced that the annuity, as the lady was living in Germany, would be stopped.

Did He Hasten In?

She—"Oh, Jack, dear, I'm glad you've come. Father is so excited and disturbed. Do go in and calm him." He—"Very well. But what's the matter with him?" She—"Well—er—I just told him you wanted to marry me."—Boston Transcript.

Responsibility the Cure.

If there is anything that shows what a man or woman really is it is responsibility. It makes those taking a stand in the full light, where they can really justify their claims. If a person who constantly boasts his greatness can stand under the test and burden of responsibility, then his success is assured. If he fails in this test he loses friends. Until such persons regain their position they are despised and rejected.

Dynamiting the Clams.

The little pholas or boring clam is a great delicacy on the Pacific coast. Its meat is juicy and tender and is excellent in chowder. Consequently, fishermen are not content to dislodge the clams slowly with pick and crowbar. They use dynamite, one blast of which dislodges hundreds of clams, according to the Popular Science Monthly.

Word Has Had Many Meanings.

The term "pocket handkerchief" is one of the queerest in our language. At first it meant kerchief (courvechef), a covering for the head; then it became handkerchief, a covering for the head carried in the hand, and at length pocket handkerchief, a covering for the head held in the hand and kept in the pocket.

An Absurd Climax

By ALAN HINSDALE

Jules Latrobe was one of the best dressed men in Paris. Anyone who saw him walking on the boulevard in gray trousers, fancy waistcoat and spats, Prince Albert coat, the whole surmounted by a silk hat of the latest model, and carrying in his gloved hand a gold-headed cane, would have thought him a descendant of the ante-revolutionary aristocrats.

One morning Jules was walking on the Rue Rivoli, where there are many shops, and met a lady whom he mistook for a former acquaintance. Raising his hat politely, he said:

"Good-morning, Madame, it is a long while since we have met. I see that time has had no effect upon you. You are as charming as ever."

The lady gave Mr. Latrobe a withering glance and swept past him, leaving him quite disconcerted, for he intended no harm, really believing the lady to be an old acquaintance. She was an American, doing a little shopping, intending when she had finished to visit the Louvres and enjoy an hour or so among the pictures. After the incident with M. Latrobe she proceeded to the gallery and there waited for her husband, with whom she had an appointment.

"Bob," she said, when he arrived, "I will not go out alone again on the streets of Paris. These people who affect such politeness are infamous. They consider any woman who appears alone on the street legitimate—"

"You have been spoken to—insulted?"

"Yes."

"By whom?"

"By one who is evidently a gentleman. That's the worst of it."

"Could you identify him?"

"Yes, if I should see him. But how—"

"True, there is little chance of meeting him again. How unfortunate!"

"Why unfortunate?"

"Because if I could meet him I would punch his head."

Captain Bob Emerson had won a brevet in the Spanish-American war, and on leaving the service had been married and was now on his wedding trip.

The next day Mrs. Emerson, taking a maid with her for protection, went shopping again. Again she met Mr. Latrobe. Either he did not see her or pretended he did not. He turned into a shop and Mrs. Emerson sent the maid in after him with instructions to secure his name and address. The maid returned with a bit of paper on which was written in pencil, "Jules Latrobe, 16 Rue D'Alger."

Mrs. Emerson had no intention of giving the paper to her husband. She simply desired to learn whether the man who had spoken to her was a duke or a count, or possibly a member of the Corps Legislatif. She was somewhat disappointed to learn that he was neither.

Meantime Captain Emerson had narrated the incident to friends, mentioning that if he could find the aggressor he would chastise him. The captain was informed that the only chastisement allowable in Paris was under the code duello.

Mrs. Emerson, when she went to her hotel with the slip of paper bearing Jules Latrobe's name and address, tossed it on the dresser. Her husband coming in later saw it and asked her what it was. She reluctantly told him that it was the address of the man who had insulted her. Emerson took it up and left the room immediately.

He hurried to 16 Rue D'Alger and on the threshold met a man of whom he inquired where he could find M. Latrobe. The man informed him that M. Latrobe was not in. Emerson asked when he would be in, and was informed that it was impossible to tell. He came and went at his pleasure. The captain produced his card and handed it to the man, saying:

"Give that to M. Latrobe and say to him that I desire to meet him at his earliest convenience. I trust there will be no delay."

The next day a messenger delivered a small package to Captain Emerson with a bill for twenty francs written under the printed name of "Jules Latrobe, Fancy Stationary." Puzzled, the captain opened the package and found 100 visiting cards bearing the name of Edward Emerson.

Gnashing his teeth the captain seized his hat and went to the Rue D'Alger. This time he found M. Latrobe in the shop.

"Are you M. Latrobe?" asked the captain, hotly.

"I am. Whom have I the honor to address?"

"I am Robert Emerson."

"Ah! The gentleman who left the order for the cards?"

A light began to penetrate Emerson's brain. "Are you a printer of visiting cards?" he asked.

When Captain Emerson left his wife with blood in his eye she snatched up her hat and followed him. She had no disposition to have him run through by a French dueling foil and hurried to 16 Rue D'Alger to prevent it.

"Moi foi, are you or are you not Marie Boyer?"

"I am not."

"Pardon my addressing you. I thought you were she. You are her image."

There was an embarrasing silence at the end of which Emerson drew forth his portmonie and paid the bill. Then he and his wife left the shop.

Sixteen New American Cities.

Some idea of the vast extent of the work involved in building cantonments for the new national army is given in the following paragraph from Edward Hungerford's "The Camps of the First Half Million," in Everybody's:

"Sixteen new cities for America! Sixteen cities, each of the size of Easton, Pa., or Elmira, N. Y., or Kalamazoo, Mich.; each built to a definite and fairly common plan, and all completed within from 100 to 120 days. Here, then, was some slight measure of the problem. To measure it in stiff another way, consider the building of a community of wood equal in population to Cleveland or Pittsburgh or St. Louis; then the division of that great town into sixteen separate communities or cantonments—an average of one for each three states—and spread all the way across the face of the land from the commonwealth of Massachusetts to the state of Washington.

Oldest European Royalty.

Though the late Emperor Francis Joseph was the oldest reigning sovereign in Europe, he was not the oldest royalty, says London Tit-Bits. The Empress Eugenie is four years older, while the Dowager Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the grandmother of the grand duke, is eight years older. Thus the last surviving grandchild of George III was the oldest royalty in Europe. The elder sister of the late Duke of Cambridge, and consequently the aunt of Queen Mary of England, it was June 28, 1943, that her marriage took place at Buckingham palace. She received an annuity of $15,000 a year from the British exchequer, which, being paid since for the period of seventy-three years, would amount to the tidy sum of $1,095,000. But when the war broke out it was announced that the annuity, as the lady was living in Germany, would be stopped.

Did He Hasten In?

She—"Oh, Jack, dear, I'm glad you've come. Father is so excited and disturbed. Do go in and calm him." He—"Very well. But what's the matter with him?" She—"Well—er—I just told him you wanted to marry me."—Boston Transcript.

The Most Artistic Roof

is the one that completely harmonizes with the design and finishing of the house. For this reason there is a steadily increasing demand for Brantford Asphalt Slates for the modern style of homes.

Brantford Asphalt Slates have a surface of crushed slate embedded into our asphalt coating, the base of the roofing being felt saturated with asphalt. They are cut the size of shingles, and their beautiful soft colors of reddish brown and dark green give a roof a most artistic appearance. The colors are the natural shades of the slate as it comes out of the quarries. Brantford Asphalt Slates are, therefore, unfadeable—never require painting.

Brantford Asphalt Slates

are accurate in size and pliable, which makes them very easily handled and quickly laid, saving time and labor, and therefore costing less to lay.

Brantford Asphalt Slates make an artistic, durable and economical roof. Booklet describing them mailed on request.

Responsibility the Cure.

If there is anything that shows what a man or woman really is it is responsibility. It makes those taking a stand in the full light, where they can really justify their claims. If a person who constantly boasts his greatness can stand under the test and burden of responsibility, then his success is assured. If he fails in this test he loses friends. Until such persons regain their position they are despised and rejected.

Dynamiting the Clams.

The little pholas or boring clam is a great delicacy on the Pacific coast. Its meat is juicy and tender and is excellent in chowder. Consequently, fishermen are not content to dislodge the clams slowly with pick and crowbar. They use dynamite, one blast of which dislodges hundreds of clams, according to the Popular Science Monthly.

Word Has Had Many Meanings.

The term "pocket handkerchief" is one of the queerest in our language. At first it meant kerchief (courvechef), a covering for the head; then it became handkerchief, a covering for the head carried in the hand, and at length pocket handkerchief, a covering for the head held in the hand and kept in the pocket.

New Gillette Sets

For the Boys in Khaki

EVER since the beginning of the war the Gillette Safety Razor in Civilian dress—has served our Canadian troops with distinction Overseas. The Gillette "Standard", "Pocket Edition" and "Combination Sets" have played their parts so well that they have been mentioned in thousands of "dispatches", no less sincere because they are private and personal. They have made such a record that each and every American soldier is being equipped with a Safety Razor.

But some of our fighting men have never yet owned a Gillette—and others have lost the Gillettes they had. For them we have designed the new and distinctly Military Sets here illustrated—two Khaki Sets and the handsome "Canadian Service Set."

Canadian Service Set No. 20.
(Ready for Delivery May 25th.)

Each of these Military Gillettes has its special advantages—all of them are sensible, serviceable and thoroughly practical. Look in the windows for the store-cards showing them—then step inside and see the Sets themselves. You know someone who would more than appreciate one of these new Military Sets.

fear the enemy might get information of the plan. Our preparation, therefore, was limited to a certain amount of intensive training at night fighting and bombing, while officers were carefully drilled in dealing with all exigencies likely to occur.

"All the men were tuned up to a high pitch, and it was with very anxious hearts that we waited for a suitable time to strike, knowing that every day we waited there was a greater chance of our secret leaking out.

Destroyed Huns on Viaduct.

"Fifteen minutes after the Vindictive arrived alongside the Mole our submarine exploded under the viaduct connecting the Mole with the mainland. The Germans had sent a considerable force to this viaduct as soon as the submarine arrived, and these men gathered on the viaduct, attacking our submersible with machine guns. When the explosion occurred the viaduct and Germans were blown up together. The crew of the submarine, consisting of six men, escaped on board a dinghy to a motor launch.

An Unlucky Shot.

"Early in the fighting a German shell knocked out our howitzer, which had been getting in some good shots on a big German seaplane station on the Mole half a mile away. This is the largest seaplan station in Belgium. Unfortunately our other guns could not be brought to bear effectively upon it. The shell which disabled the howitzer killed all the members of the gun crew. Many men were also killed by a German shell which hit the Mole close to our ship and scattered fragments of steel and stone among the marines assembling on the deck around the gangway.

"The German fire was very hot all the time we lay alongside the Mole. At times the German guns reached as high as forty shots per minute. During the hottest part of the fighting I left my station in the flame house and went all around the ship to see how things were going. The spirit of the men was excellent. All they asked was 'Are we winning?'

Withdrawal Without Interference.

"Half an hour after the blockships went in we received the signal to withdraw. The Vindictive's siren was blown and the men returned from all parts of the Mole and thronged down the gangway. We put off after having laid alongside just about an hour. The Germans made no effort to interfere with our get-away other than to continue their heavy firing."

The Vindictive was provided with plenty of defensive equipment in case the Germans attempted to board her.

Not Worth Anything For.

"Mos' any gal," said Uncle Eben, "is smaht enough to see dat a man ain' likely to be a good pervider if he puts in time makin' up a love letter when he might be earnin' four dollars a day."

Sunshine Furnace Efficiency

McClary straight walled firepot—no ashes to absorb heat.

The test of furnace efficiency is the volume of heat it conserves for actual use, from the heat generated in burning your fuel.

There is a fixed volume of heat in every kind of fuel, whether it is wood, soft coal or anthracite.

The business of your furnace is to extract all the heat, which all furnaces do—and to conserve the maximum of it for use—which the Sunshine furnace does.

The Sunshine semi-steel firepot is built with straight walls—not sloping to form and hold a non-conducting deposit of ashes. A very important point in furnace efficiency.

The grates of the Sunshine furnace are equal in area to the firepot, so that fresh oxygen—without which proper combustion is impossible—flows to every part of the fire all the time.

All air passages are exactly proportioned so that neither too much nor too little air passes over the radiator—there can be no superheated air, nor any under heated air, sent to the rooms above.

The doors, drafts and dampers are machined to fit snugly and to exclude heat-wasting air currents from the outside.

CAPT. CARPENTER'S STORY OF THE ATTACK ON ZEEBRUGGE MOLE

Rehearsals For the Expedition Had to Be Carried On at Night

Aboard His Majesty's Ship Vindictive in Dover Harbour, April 25.—A correspondent of the Associated Press visited the cruiser Vindictive to-day as the guest of Capt. Alfred F. B. Carpenter, who commanded her in the expedition last Tuesday against the German submarine bases at Zeebrugge on the Belgian coast.

To Draw Battery Attention.

"Our chief purpose in the expedition was to distract the attention of the battery while the blockships ran, especially the battery of 11-inch guns which occupied a commanding position at the tip of the Mole. Our ship was elaborately prepared for the business of landing soldiers on the Mole which is of stone, forty feet high, and fifteen feet above the Vindictive's top deck at the state of the tide when the attack took place.

The Daffodil's Part.

"We had a special superstructure over the upper deck and three long gangways or 'brows' which were designed to take the men up to the level of the Mole as soon as we got alongside. Exactly according to plan we ran alongside the Mole, approaching it on the port side where we were equipped with specially-built buffers of wood two feet wide.

"As there was nothing for use to tie up to we merely dropped anchor there while the Daffodil, a ferry boat, kept up against the Mole with her nose against the opposite side of our ship. In the fairly heavy sea two of our three gangway were smashed, but the third held and 500 men swarmed up this onto the Mole. This gangway was two feet wide and thirty feet long.

Storming Party of 500.

"The men who went up it included 300 marines and 150 storming seamen from the Vindictive and 50 or so from the Daffodil. They swarmed up the steel gangway carrying hand-grenades and Lewis guns. No Germans succeeded in approaching the gangway, but a hard hand-to-hand fight took place about 200 yards up the Mole towards the store.

"The Vindictive's bow was pointed towards the shore, so the bridge got the full effect of enemy fire from the shore batteries. One shell exploded against the pilot house, killing nearly all of its ten occupants. Another burst in the fighting top, killing a Lieutenant and eight men who were doing excellent work with two pompoms and four machine-guns.

German Batteries Busy.

"The battery of eleven-inch guns at the end of the Mole was only three hundred yards away, and it kept trying to reach us. The shore batteries were also diligent. Only a few German shells hit our hull, because it was well protected by the wall of the Mole, but the upper structure, mast, stacks and ventilators showed above the wall and were riddled. A considerable proportion of our casualties were caused by splinters from these upper works.

"Meanwhile the Daffodil continued to push us against the wall as if no battle was on, and if the Daffodil had failed to do this none of the members of the landing party would have been able to return to the ship.

Blockships Sunk Inside Canal.

"Twenty-five minutes after the Vindictive had reached the wall the first blockship passed in and headed for the canal. Two others followed in leisurely fashion while we kept up the fight on the Mole. One of the blockships stranded outside of the canal, but the two others got two or three hundred yards inside, where they were successfully sunk across the entrance.

Practised at Night.

"One difficulty we had in preparing this expedition was that we could not have open practise what we contemplated doing for

Allies Have Gained Further Advantages In The West

Holland Has Submitted To One Of Enemy's Demands

FRENCH HAVE RECAPTURED POSITIONS IN FLANDERS WEST OF MONT KEMMEL

Heavy Losses Were Inflicted on the Germans—Allies Have Gained Additional Advantages.

BRITISH OFFICIAL

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 27. — Continuing their counter attacks on the front east of Amiens, the Allies have gained further advantages in the Hangard Villers-Bretonneux sector, it is announced officially. French have recaptured positions from Locre to Laclytte in Flanders, west of Mont Kemmel. Fighting on the Flanders front north of Lys was very severe. The enemy advance was held at all points. Heavy losses were inflicted on the Germans.

Germans made a heavy attack on the front south of Ypres. There was a long battle for Voormezeele, two miles south of Ypres, which the British retained, taking hundreds of prisoners.

The statement follows:

"There was great artillery activity on both sides during the night on the whole battle front north of the Lys river. Fighting in this area yesterday was very severe, the enemy making repeated and determined attempts to develop the advantage gained by him on the pervious day. After many hours of fluctuating battle, the enemy's advance was held at all points. Heavy casualties were suffered by his troops in the course of his many unsuccessful attacks. The enemy assaults on French positions from Locre to Laclytte were pressed with extreme violence and after three attacks has been beaten off with losses to him. His troops succeeded at the fourth attempt in carrying the village of Locre. In the evening our Allies counter attacked and drove the enemy out, regaining possession of the village. At other points all the enemy's attacks were repulsed.

Enemy Pause.

Canadian Press:

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 27. — General Von Armin, commander of the German troops in the Ypres sector, paused last night in his drive against the Entente Allied territory about Kemmel, undoubtedly to enable the reorganization of his forces for a fresh attack. German artillery continues to hammer the defending positions, but during the early hours to-day no fresh German offensive in this region was recorded.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, April 27.—(Official). — A German attack near Thennes on the front south-east of Amiens was broken up last night, the War Office announces. Artillery fighting continues on a front between Villers-Bretonneux and Hangard.

Military Experts Are Confident of the Future

The Last Fresh Man Wins the Battle is a Military Axiom —When Hindenburg Exhausts His Main Strength Foch Will Have the Fresh Men to Win— A Critical Situation

REINFORCEMENTS ARE NEEDED

(United Press Service.)
(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The German drive menace against the Channel is forcing the Allies to use great efforts to check the foe. This menace is so serious that to stop the Germans is the most to be expected for some time, and it is certain there will be no major Allied counter offensive for the present.

Foreign army men here to-day agreed on these points, following the Teuton capture of the tactically important Mont Kemmel. They warned that the outcome of the present offensive will not be determined now, but that the struggle will go on for months until the Allied strength is greater through reinforcements.

LAST FRESH MAN.

These reinforcements must come mainly from America, and it is a military axiom that the last fresh man wins the battle.

Foch's strategy, approved by American officials, is to wear down the Germans as much as possible.

There can be no mistaking that the Allied reserves have been heavily tapper for forces simply to hold the Germans thus far. This tapping quite evidently has been so serious that fresh forces must be hurried in before the Allies can even think of making a telling counter stroke.

American forces are going across in constantly increasing numbers. Italian reinforcements are being pushed to the westward and British reserves are pouring over the channel.

When Von Hindenburg has exhausted his main strength and slaughtered an incomparably large force, Foch will have the fresh men who win the battles. The days are serious, close to critical, but there is confidence in the future, military experts say unreservedly.

Serious Aspect To The Situation

British Press Comment on the Present Flanders Battle—The Capture of Mont Kemmel

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 27.— Commenting on the Flanders battle in a serious tone, the morning newspapers contend that the situation imposses upon Great Britain the necessity of putting forth the utmost effort, especially on furnishing more men to supply the wastage in the ceaseless fighting.

"We are faced with a crisis more perilous and momentous than any that has hitherto arisen, even in this appalling war," writes the military correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. "The possession of channel ports by the enemy would make our task on land and sea infinitely more intricate and costly."

The Daily News in an editorial, says the situation has changed seriously for the worst as a result of the fighting of the past two days, and that the German drive toward the channel is a matter of serious concern. Nevertheless, it regards the situation as in no wise yet established, and says that if the Germans mean to break through they must do it quickly before American reinforcements finally turn the tide.

MONT KEMMEL.

The effect of the capture of Mont Kemmel upon the sit uation at Ypres is canvassed anxiously by some papers.

The Daily Mail says it would be folloy to minimize the success the enemy has achieved, and if the loss of Kemmel should prove permanent, the difficulty in holding Ypres would be increased materially. It concludes by urging the necessity of maintaining a supply of men.

Frank Jenne Says:

LONDON, April 27.—Special despatches from Dutch sources today declared that Holland has yielded to one of Germany's demands —that of the use of the railway across the Province of Limburg—but has stipulated that it shall not be used for military traffic.

LONDON, April 27.—Diplomatic information from Holland) emphasizes formation from Holland emphasizes Holland situation.

Germany has made demands which mean the abandonment of Holland's neutrality if she yields.

Between the devil and the leep sea, Holland fears to forsake her neutrality. The questions here are: Will she yield? And, what will Germany do if she does not yield?

Aggressive Tone.

The aggressive tone of the German press indicates Germany will not recede from the course by which she seems to be deliberately picking a quarrel with Holland. The newspaper Germania shows Germany's hand, saying: "This is Holland's chance for redress and to balance her concessions to the Entente. Sooner or later both Holland and Switzerland must enter one or the other camp. May they understand the signs of the times and choose that side which will have the deciding voice at the peace conference, by right of success and victory."

Diplomatic officials hear that Germany sent four demands to Holland, and that the fifth, verbal and more drastic, has been delivered.

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The German Minister to the Netherlands is still at The Hague, and did not leave for Germany, as reported, the Netherlands Legation announced today. The Dutch Minister to Berlin returned to The Hague, it was said, to discuss with the Government the progress of negotiations with Germany.

Fighting Eased Up

Comparative Calm Prevails on the Western Front—Fighting May Start Again Any Moment.

BRITISH COUNTERED

(United Press.)
(By William Philip Simms.)

Two p.m. Despatch:

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, April 27. — There is a comparative calm on the Flanders front, following a tempestuous three days. But the fighting may start again at any moment.

Field Marshal Hindenburg has brought Gen. Sieger up from the Verdun region to help around Kemmel. Under him are five divisions (sixty thousand men). Gen. Von Eberhardt, with another five divisions, is at his left. Together these ten divisions hammered away yesterday, making only slight headway after the capture of Kemmel.

TRIED TO ADVANCE.

Sieger tried to advance towards Ypres, astride the Ypres-Comines canal, yesterday, but the British countered brilliantly, retaking lost ground and esablishing strong posts.

Von Everhardt's "hillmen," hurled out of Dranoutre four times, were unable to push on after occupying the place in a fifth charge. Likewise, they were too exhausted after taking Kemmel to succeed in turning Mont Scherpenberg.

Throughout the Ypres front, the German cannon thunders constantly. Local shelling keeps up elsewhere. The weather continues threatening. The ground is unusually dry.

BRITISH CASUALTIES

This Week's Figures Are Beginning to Approach the High Mark of Last Year's British Offensive

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, April 27.—Casualties in the British ranks reported this week totalled 18,369. The losses were divided as follows:

Killed or died of wounds, officers 408, men 2,661; wounded or missing, officers 22,071, men 13,229. Despite the heavy fighting for more than a month, the British casualties are only now beginning to approach the high figures for week after week of last year, when the British were on the offensive on the western front. The increase recently has been on an average of 50 per cent. each week over the week preceding. Last week the aggregate was 12,368 and the previous week 8,129.

SILVER IS KING.

Attention is directed to the advertisement of Messrs. Chas. A. Stoneham & Co., 23 Melinda St., Toronto, and 41 Broad St., New York. Messrs. Stoneham & Co., direct the attention of investors in Silver Stocks to make note of the fact that the fixing of silver at $1 means great prospects for Cobalt silver properties. The United States Government has lately purchased 350 million ounces of silver, which will take from five to ten years to deliver, and in the meantime, silver stocks are bound to advance. Stoneham & Co., have direct wires to the New York market and orders are executed for cash or on a moderate margin. The firm carry no promotions. The excellent stand of Messrs. Stoneham & Co., in both Canada and the United States is sufficient guarantee that they will faithfully carry out any business entrusted to their care.

NEW MOTOR TRUCK.

Mr. Roland Denne has added to the equipment of his flour and feed business a fine new ton truck for delivery purposes.

The motor truck is fast becoming a factor in all lines of business, heavy and light delivery.

BULGARIA AND TURKEY FIGHTING OVER EXPECTED SPOILS, DIPLOMATS REPORT

Flour Has Been Placed Under Restrictions Similar To Sugar

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, April 27.—By order issued by the Canada Food Board to-day all flour, made wholly or in part from wheat is placed under restrictions similar to those imposed yesterday on sugar holdings. No person two miles or less from licensed dealers may hold a supply longer than is necessary for fifteen days' consumption. Two to five miles, 30 days. Five to ten miles 60 days. Over ten miles 120 days.

CANNOT FEED MILLING WHEAT TO STOCK.

On and after May the first it will be illegal to feed milling wheat or any product thereof except bran and shorts to live stock, poultry, etc. Dealers are also restricted in their holdings. Fines of $100 to $1,000 and three months' imprisonment are provided for infractions.

EIGHT PICKED DIVISIONS USED BY THE GERMANS AND MORE ARE COMING FORWARD

Group of Hills and the Allied Armies Bar the Enemy's Progress to the Coast.

PRESENT BATTLE

(United Press Service.)
(By William Philip Simms.)

Ten O'Clock Despatch—

The French regiment, ordered to defend Mont Kemmel "to the death," obeyed the command to the letter.

Entirely surrounded by Germans, the Poilus held out for more than eight hours, slaughtering whole companies of the enemy as they swarmed up the steep slopes in the face of the French machine gun fire.

A veritable flood of grey-clad troops finally swept over the summit, obliterating the defenders as one's heel does an ant's nest. Like the "Old Guard at Waterloo,' 'this French regiment died, it did not surrender.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, April 27. — With their eyes fastened on the summits of Monts Scherpenberg, Rouge, Noir, Kokereele and Des Cats, the German hosts are ceaselessly batterying against the Franco-British lines drawn across this group of heights.

Beyond these hills to the sea one solitary mount sticks up from the Flemish lowlands, the highest in the lot. Upon its summit is the town of Cassel. This is eight miles from the present line. From Cassel, on clear days, the sea is visible. (Cassel, a town of about 2,500 population, is built on an isolate hill 550 feet high. It is four miles and a half north of the important railway and highway centre of Hazebrock, and is fifteen miles west of Ypres.) Hindenburg wants these hills. Eight picked divisions (96,000 men) were thrown against them the first day of the present assault, and more are coming up.

USING SAME TACTICS.

The Germans are using the same tactics they have employed since Liege trying to turn the hills instead of taking them by storm. Having swung around Kemmel, across the plan to the north, they are trying to smash their way onward to La Clytte (one mile north) hoping to turn Scherpenberg (a mile northwest of Kemmel and half a mile south-west of Laclytte).

Coincidentally, they are attacking northward toward to the bluff through which the Ypres-Comines canal passes, a couple of miles south of Ypres. (This canal runs south-eastward from Ypres and crosses the present battle line near Hollebeke, about half a mile south of the famous Mill 80.)

THINK ALLIED VICTORY WILL COME THROUGH THE AIR

Air Squadrons Have Shattered Traditions of Former Wars—Can Leap the Enemy Lines

(Special to Examiner.)

Paris, April 27.—If the allies cannot break the German lines, they can leap them, and victory will come to the Entente through the air, General Verrau declared to-day.

In reviewing the possibility of two practically evenly balanced armies being able to break the other's lines by force or arms, General Verrau declared that supremacy must come through the air.

"Modern armies must place their hopes in their airmen," he stated. "The victory, which Germany believes always lay just beyond her grasp, has been snatched away by the French, British, Italian and American airmen.

"With our air squadrons we have shattered traditions of former wars, we have broken the military formulas of yesteryear when stategy won battles.

"If we cannot break through the enemy lines, we can leap them, as proved in recent battles."

Two More Former Members Of 93rd Die In France

Pte. R. Scully Killed in Action and Pte. C. D. Crawford Dies of Wounds

The death of two more former members of the 93rd Battalion is announced in the official casualty lists to-day.

Pte. R. Scully, of Peterborough, who enlisted here in the 93rd, and was transferred to another Canadian battalion in France, is officially reported killed in action; while Pte. C. D. Crawford, of Campbellford, who also went over with the Peterborough county unit, is reported died of wounds.

Hunger is An Ever Present Stimulant to the Quarrel That is Developing Around Germany's Back Door.

TURKEY IS OPPOSED

(By Robert Bender.)
(United Press Service.)

WASHINGTON, April 27. — The thunder of giant guns on the west front to-day is drowning a Teutonic quarrel of growing seriousness around Germany's back door.

Bulgaria, Austria-Hungary and the Turks—with the Czecha, Jugoslavs, and hunger as ever present stimulants, are repeatedly making a situation in the Balkans alarming to Germany's ill-concealed imperialistic ambitions. Official diplomatic despatches to Italian Ambassador Cellere, and through French and British channels, disclose that Bulgaria and Turkey are fighting over expected spoils, which German papers now warn must go to neither—but, on the contrary, must be taken by Germany.

Bulgaria's Demands.

Bulgaria demands the conquest of Salonika for herself, according to Italian cables. Turkey objects, fearing any addition to Bulgaria's strength. Even greater opposition comes from Austria and Germany who need Salonika in their plans for a Berlin-to-Bagdad route to Asia.

That the British success in Palestine and Mesopotamia have not deterred the Kaiser from this dream, is evidenced by German papers, which have begun a propaganda campaign, declaring that "the Central Empires cannot give Salonika to Bulgaria. This must be a free port and German naval base for the German Mediterranean fleet."

The suggestion of a Mediterranean fleet indicates that Germany would maintain such an organization to assist in the protection of her Asiatic designs.

Turkey Dissatisfied.

Turkey, it appears, is increasingly dissatisfied with her German alliance, according to Rome advices and would be willing to concede much to the British if she was guaranteed against Teuton aggression from the west. It is declared that the Young Turks are beginning to realize that Ottoman Sovereignty will be respected to no greater extent than was that of Belgium in the event of a German victory.

Bulgaria is dissatisfied with the intention of the Central Powers to give Bessarabia to Roumania as well as the blocking of her designs on Salonika. Turkey also opposes the Bessarabia proposition.

Austria is worried by the ever-growing restlessness of the Jugoslavs and the Czechs. Messages to Italy through neutral channels, indicate an increasing solidarity between the two peoples under Austrian rule. The Czech newspaper declares that "poli-

SHOULD COME HOME.

The objection of Canadian soldiers to sending their wives and families home from England until those issuing the instructions have themselves carried them out, is easily understandable. However, it is desirable that as soon as possible the civilian Canadians in England should be returned to this country. It is said that there are thousands of Canadian women and children there at the present time, and their presence in England undoubtedly adds to the difficulty of feeding the population of the British Isles. Early in the war, in the desire to be near their loved ones, many families went overseas. They were perhaps not wise in doing so, but at that time the submarine menace was not so serious, nor were the food conditions so critical, and consequently they did not present such a problem to the authorities as they do now. It would be well for the families of the officers in high command to set the example for the others by returning to Canada as soon as their passage can be arranged. Few of them are serving any useful purpose by remaining in England—they only represent so many thousand mouths to be fed, and it would be much easier to feed them on this side of the Atlantic than it would to transport the food required for their maintenance in England.

A CRITICAL SITUATION.

The demands made by Germany upon Holland has left the situation between the two countries in a decidedly critical condition, with the chances of an outbreak becoming more and more imminent. The Germans are using the excuse that Holland committed a breach of neutrality in allowing her ships to be requisitioned by the allies, as a lever to enforce their claims against the Dutch people.

Germany's chief request at present, and the one which is causing, and has caused so much controversy between the governments of the two countries, is that she be allowed to transport sand and gravel over the Dutch waterways. These supplies are badly needed by the Huns for the building of concrete "pill boxes" on the west front, and they are willing to risk the danger of war with Holland to achieve their ends. It is said that they also have demanded the use of the Netherlands ports and of the railway crossing Dutch territory in the South Lemburg district.

Holland's troubles are multiplying. The food situation is very serious, cables stating that no meat has been obtainable for three weeks, and that it is often impossible to obtain butter or eggs.

There is likely to be some definite developments in the situation between Holland and Germay within the next few days.

THE FARMER'S PROBLEM.

The position of the farmer at the present time is scarcely to be envied. Urged by government and press to produce more, striving to put in greater crops than ever, with no assurance that the help to harvest them will be forthcoming, perplexed by almost daily changes in the regulations regarding the status of farm laborers under the Military Service Act, the average agriculturist has every reason to wonder as to the future.

Ever since the inauguration of the Military Service Act the question of the ultimate disposition of farm help has been a problem. First, there were the exemption tribunals, some of which granted exemption to farmers and farm labourers, and others which did not, and associated with these were military representatives, who appealed against some of the exemptions. Then there were farmer tribunals. Then came leave-of-absence boards who were supposed to release for work on the farms, men who had been employed on agricultural work when they were drafted.

Suddenly, the dramatic announcement was made that all exemptions in the cases of men of twenty, twenty-one and twenty-two years would be cancelled. That seemed to be definite and final. The order-in-council was approved by both Houses and an amendment providing for the "exemption of those whose services are essential for promoting agricultural production," was defeated by a majority of 48.

Now, however, from Ottawa comes the report that so many protests have been received by Members of Parliament from their rural constituents, that the order is likely to be modified. Farmers say that if their sons or farm labourers, upon whom they are depending for work this year, are taken, production plans will necessarily have to be curtailed. It is said that these views are being forcibly presented to the government by members on both sides of the House, and that, as a result, the regulations may be changed so that the Minister of Militia may grant leave of absence to all draftees actually engaged in farm work. If this is carried out, the only difference between the new regulations and the former Military Srvice Act, would be that under the new rules a farmer must be drafted first and exempted afterwards, while in the latter case he would receive exemption without being called out for service. However, it is by no means certain that the modification referred to will be made, General Mewburn having given a contrary impression to several deputations which have waited upon him recently. In the meantime, the rural sections are all at sea.

A CHANCE FOR ECONOMY.

The announcement that the Editorial Committee of the House of Commons has been successful in affecting a saving of $175,000 in national printing will not come as a surprise to anyone who has paid any attention to this subject. If there is any section of Government work that affords opportunity for economic measure it is the printing department, and a much larger saving than has already been accomplished would be possible without any suffering on the part of the public. It has been the custom of Governments at Ottawa to send out tons of blue books and reports, top heavy with maps and long tables of statistics, important enough in themselves perhaps, but hardly ever opened, let alone perused, by the firms and individuals to which they are addressed. Many of these have been suspended for the duration of the war by the Editorial Committee, and might well be permanently eliminated, while reductions have been made in the size of other editions. Editions of departmental reports have been reduced by 45,000 volumes in English and 5,000 in French, and many of these will undoubtedly be abolished altogether. Much of this Government literature is useless to the people to whom it is sent, and could be dispensed with, while the mailing lists might be rearranged so that the reports and blue books might reach those to whom they would be of value.

ELIMINATE THE UNNECESSARY.

While the Canadian people are being urged to conserve food, while those who have to eat at public restaurants are constrained by rigid regulations from eating many things that before the war were usually to be found on the menu, while the sale of wheat products is curtailed, while sugar rationing has been inaugurated, while we are told that "every time we eat a piece of white bread we are reaching across the ocean and snatching it from the lips of a starving child or of a soldier," surely it is possible to eliminate much of the unnecessary serving of refreshments at social events. It should be possible, for instance, to hold a dance with the supper feature suspended. If our soldiers at the front can hold the line for days with only their "iron rations" to sustain them, it should be possible for the young people at home to get through a few hours of dancing, strenuous as the modern forms of the pastime may be, without having to stoke up on sandwiches and other refreshments. And other social events can surely get along for the duration of the war without so much attention to the needs of the inner man. Many of the churches have set a good example by eliminating the round of suppers and teas, but there is still room for improvement.

Upon what the people of Canada can save in the next few months much depends. The food situation overseas is desperate, and we on this side of the Atlantic must not only produce all we can, but conserve all we can.

It is easier to start by doing away with the unnecessary things first. And certainly in this category must come refreshments at dances and entertainments.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The capture of Kemmel Hill is one of the biggest results achieved by the German drive in Flanders.

The Australians who were moved south from the Armentieres sector just in time to escape the enemy's attack on April 9th have had their innings in the Picardy Battle. The recapture of Villers-Bretonneux was a glorious triumph for the Anzacs.

To the list of unnamed heroes who took part in the Zeebrugge expedition must be added the fireworks expert who, although he had never been at sea or under fire before, calmly continued to illuminate the harbour with giant rockets fired from the "Vindictive" in the midst of a perfect hell of shells and machine gun fire.

Judicial Sale of Property in the City of Peterborough

A Comfortable House To Rent

Just what a number of good people are looking for at the present time. If you will judiciously invest in a home, that three or four hundred dollars, more or less that is only earning you a small rate of interest you will not have to pay rent; you do not have to vacate at the behest of a landlord or an incoming purchaser. At the present time, millions of feet of lumber, as well as other building material is being contracted for in Canada for future shipment. This means advancing values. NOW is the time to buy; no prospect of values lowering. Every prospect of an advance. I have a number of homes for sale. Here is just one sample.

RED BRICK TWO STOREY — attic floored, four bed rooms, three rooms and hall down stairs, with summer kitchen, and shed; full plumbing, furnace and gas; verandah and balcony; full basement; large lot; good locality. Price $2,350. Yes, twenty-three hundred and fifty dollars, if you call on

SCENES FROM "INTOLERANCE."

Conference Will Open To-morrow In St. Paul's Church

Arrangements Completed For the Series of Meetings Opening To-morrow Morning

The committee in charge of the Bible and Prophetic Conference which opens in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Sunday, April 28, and lasts until Friday, May 3, has completed all arrangements. The speaker, Rev. Lewis Sperry Chafer, who has been in great demand of late years at the big Bible conference held at various points in the United States and who is a well known author as well as speaker, purposes discussing two main subjects in his addresses. Opening on Sunday morning and continuing at 3 o'clock each afternoon, he will discuss the possibility of Christians having victory in their lives over besetting sins. Most Christians long for victory over certain besetting sins, but many have concluded that it is impossible to obtain it for any long continued period of time. The speaker will show that this is not the case, that victory is possible and how it may be obtained. Victory is given as a gift to the life that complies with the necessary conditions, and is not the result of struggle or effort on the part of the Christian.

SUNDAY EVENING.

Starting Sunday evening at 7 o'clock and continuing each evening thereafter at 8 o'clock, the speaker will deal with prophetic subjects and will show what light prophecy throws on present world-wide events, as well as the great events that prophecy indicates are still to take place. Those who are able to hear this series of addresses will probably be surprised to find what great light the Scriptures give on present-day conditions. The evening addresses on Sunday and Monday will deal largely with the Jews. On Tuesday to Thursday the addresses will deal with what God has been accomplishing during this age, and what is to take place at the close of the age, which is now believed to be drawing near its end. The concluding address, Friday evening, will be on the "Two-fold Promise and the Signs of the Times." The meetings are free and open to the public, that as many as possible may have the privilege of hearing the addresses. It often happens that people have to be turned away from meetings addressed by Dr. Chafer. A very large attendance therefore is expected.

TEETHING TROUBLES

Baby's teething time is a time of worry and anxiety to most mothers. The little ones become cross; peevish; their little stomach becomes deranged and constipation and colic sets in. To make the teething period easy on baby the stomach and bowels must be kept sweet and regular. This can be done by the use of Baby's Own Tablets — the ideal laxative for little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Henry Bernard, St. Emile, Que., says:—"Baby's Own Tablets cured my baby of constipation and made his teething painless." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Commission Form Of Government To Be Fully Discussed

The first meeting of the committee delegated to discuss municipal government by commission, was held last night at the City Hall. Those present were Mayor Duncan, Mr. J. J. Turner, Mr. J. J. Hartley, Mr. G. N. Gordon and Ald. Edgar, who presided. Government by commission is one of the subjects that Ald. Edgar advocated in and out of the Council. On a motion by Mr. Gordon, seconded by Mr. Hartley it was decided to obtain information of the operation and results of commission government in other cities.

Don't Wait and—Wish Work Now and—Have

When drastic regulations for the rationing of food come into effect (and such an Order in Council may be made very early next Fall) you will wish then that you had a crop of nice vegetables ready to take off your garden or nearby piece of vacant land that you could have cultivated if you really wanted to.

Well, all we say is—

Don't Wait and—Wish

If you have not yet decided to plant a vegetable garden make up your mind to do so now. You will not regret it. There is still lots of time. Potatoes and beans may be planted up to June 1st and these are the best substitutes for wheat and meat.

For good, practical advice upon how to lay out and cultivate a Vegetable Garden, write for a free copy of the booklet entitled: "A Vegetable Garden for Every Home." This has been prepared by the Ontario Department of Agriculture for the guidance of citizens who will respond to this call for increased production.

Progressive Euchre Party A Success

ENTERTAINMENT AT THE KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HALL WAS THOROUGHLY ENJOYED.

The Progressive Euchre party last night at the Knights of Columbus Hall was one of the brightest and most successful entertainments this season.

Under the convenorship of Miss Margaret Lynch, the affair was run in such a well organized manner that nothing was neglected and the twenty four tables of ladies and gentlemen enjoyed a most delightful evening.

THE PRIZES.

Miss Lynch received in the reception room prettily decorated in pink carnations after which euchre was played in the card room upstairs, the prizewinners being Mrs. George Giroux, the ladies' first, a beautiful piece of hand embroidery, and Mr. J. C. Sullivan, the gentleman's first prize, a sofa cushion.

Other prizes were won by Mrs. Ed. Conroy, Miss Picard, Miss J. Doris, Mr. Cronyn, Mr. Gainey, Mrs. McFadden, Mrs. F. Fairen, Mr. Crowley Miss Derocher and Miss Lonergan.

SOCIAL EVENING.

After a dainty supper served in the billiard room a few minutes were spent socially, and Mr. Ed. Hanrahan contributed some solos, accompanied by Miss Lillian Hurley.

Mrs. J. J. Lynch was treasurer for the evening.

The new sugar regulations might have been improved by a definition of what constitutes a day's allowance for each individual. As they stand at present the rules are vague.

CHILL STARTS COLD

WAS SICK FOUR WEEKS

JUST ABLE TO CRAWL ABOUT

Mr. Weldon T. Hawkes, Curryville, N.B., writes: "Last spring I was taken very ill with a severe cold. I got wet and it started with a chill. I was sick four weeks, and was just able to crawl about. People all said I had inflammation of the lungs, and I think I did. I told a friend to get me two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before the first one was taken my cold and cough were broken up, and the second did its work completely. I am raising a family and find that it is a good medicine for the children."

There is no remedy that will cure stubborn colds or coughs, the kind that won't let go, like Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It allays the inflammation, soothes the irritation, heals the diseased mucous lining of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and rids the system completely of all the bad effects of lingering coughs and colds.

There are so many spurious "Pine" preparations on the market that you should see you get "Dr. Woods" when you ask for it.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c.; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"CLEOPATRA"

With Theda Bara

In producing so remarkable a spectacle as "Cleopatra," in which Theda Bara is said to give a glaringly effective portrayal of this Egyptian beauty, more astonishing in its detonement of love and passion than has ever before been portrayed on the screen, William Fox has revealed the limits of motion picture production. There have been plays, also pictures, that have aimed to disclose the motives and causes leading to the downfall of women, with the avowed intention of warning them of the pitfalls that are always open for them to fall into, but here is an illustration that great men, too, are quite as easily led away from duty and their wives, when a bewitching woman determines to win them over to herself. Julius Caesar, Marc Antony and Pharoh, the hereditary king to the Egyptian throne, who had sworn to kill Cleopatra, are the three illustrations of the weakness of man that are used in this picture production. And modern men were never so entranced by the display of magnificence, the gorgeousness of surroundings, the fetes and feasts given in their honour, as made by Caesar and Antony her slaves. Cleopatra was the arch siren of the world and as such she will be personified by Miss Bara in "Cleopatra" at The Grand the last three days of next week, the first performance beginning next Thursday afternoon.

Douro Man Fined For Assault

Magistrate Langley Imposed Minimum Fine of One Dollar.

John Condon, Douro, was fined $1 and costs by County Magistrate J. A. Langley yesterday in Lakefield on a charge of assault. The Magistrate said that while the assault was not of a serious nature it was technical and without legal justification or excuse. He therefore imposed the minimum fine.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements, must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor.—

Sir.—In your report of accidents where two automobiles collide at a corner, your reporters convey a wrong impression in regard to the right of way. According to law the vehicle on the right has the right of way. That is granted, of course, but always provided the car on the right is conforming to the speed limits mentioned in the City or Provincial Act.

Cars must slow down to between 6 and 8 miles and hour when approaching a corner, and if a car does this and hugs the right curb, he, on coming to a crossing at the same time as a car to the left, has the right of way.

Under these conditions, a car going north on George street and crossing Hunter on which there is a car going west, but which is back perhaps a third of a block, there is ample time for the north bound car to pass in safety ahead of the west-going car. But if the west bound car is exceeding the speed limit he is likely to hit the north bound car because of the unlawful speed he is travelling, and which was not taken into consideration by the north bound car. Then, if there is a collision your paper reports it as the fault of the north bound car, because the car on the right has the right of way, when in reality the blame rests with the other car by reason of his excess of speed.

I maintain that the onus should be put in the right place, and before your reporter places the blame he should endeavor to ascertain the speed of the car on the right, and not concede it the right of way, regardless of the speed it may be travelling. You would in this way avoid giving the wrong impression to drivers that no matter how fast they drive or how badly they are shattering the speed limit, if they are on the right side they have the right of way.

Thanking you for the use of this space in your paper, I am, very truly yours,

MOTORIST.

SANG GOD SAVE KING IN BERLIN'S STREETS

What Irish Did After Many Stops For "Beers."

CHICAGO, April 27. — Karleton Hackett to-day gave out details of the lamentable failure of the late Sir Roger Casement to recruit an army from Irish prisoners in German camps. Sir Roger was supplied with abundant money and empowered to offer the prisoners land, titles, and anything else if they would join an invasion of England.

After a long campaign, Sir Roger mustered a total of 45 men. These were provided with brilliant uniforms and paraded through Berlin as "the advance guard of a mighty army" that was to co-operate with Germany in overthrowing the haughty British Empire.

It was a hot day and the Irish "army" was hungry and thirsty. The parade had not moved a half block until a beer stube hove in sight, and the columns of fours made a hasty break for it. There were many such stops during the parade, which by the way, was never finished, for the Irish, after about the twelfth stop showed rising temperature.

The "army" staggered along. Suddenly the Irish gathered in a circle in the middle of the street, and with one accord and at the top of their voices yelled, "God Save the King." They continued to sing it until the scandalized police arrested the entire army and hustled it back to prison camps.

TERRIER DESTROYED.

Owner Consented Rather Than Pay Usual Fine. to Report.

William King, who lives at the old Palace Hotel on Hunter street, preferred the destruction of his little terrier, that had run unleashed and unmuzzled on the street, rather than pay the usual $4.60 fine. He was ordered to pay the catcher 75 cents, and to take his dog to the incinerator this afternoon.

GETS A KHAKI SUIT.

Jas. Healey, of Westwood, Had Failed

James Healey, arrested at his home near Westwood, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to failing to report for military service after having been called out. He was arrested by County Constables Dickson of Westwood and Puffer of Norwood on instructions from High County Constable A. R. Moore. A military escort came up from Kingston for him.

BRITISH DESTROYERS DEFEATED AUSTRIANS IN THE ADRIATIC

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, April 27.—Two British destroyers defeated five Austrian destroyers in the Adriatic, the British Admiralty announced to-day.

"Two of our destroyers in the Adriatic engaged five Austrians," the report said. "The enemy fled to Durazzo for shelter.

"British air forces raided the seaplane base at Lurazzo, Tuesday, and apparently were successful."

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts, which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

DAINTY WHITE DRESSES FOR CONFIRMATION

The children's department on the second floor presents a delightfully attractive array of thevery prettiest little white dresses that you could ever wish to see. Neither price nor illustration explains the finess of the materials, the quality of the workmanship, the dainty touches of hand stitching nor the varied and pretty styles. There are frocks so simple, and therein lies their charm, and others with bewitching little touches of trimming. Some have long sleeves. ¾ length and short sleeves. Visit the children's department and see the display in the Arcade window, rear.

Fine English voile makes a lovely dress. This style is made with a baby waist, trimmed in zonoe fashion with val lace, alternated with fine tucks. It has long sleeves with turned back cuffs. In sizes 6 to 14. Priced at $2.49

You are sure to like this French dress, a long waisted model with ordandy embroidered front. The skirt is trimmed with rows of lace and insertion, and there are tiny rose buds here and there. It is size 6, and the price is $3.25

Another style is called the "Gretchen Dress." Made high waisted with a smart little coat of Swiss embroidery and lace, laced together with ribbon. The skirt is gathered and pleated with a little lace trim. Comes in size 7 only, and the price is very moderate at..... $4.50

And this little dress of French voile is charming. It has a yoke effect and panelled front of embroidered voile outlined with lace and insertion. Full skirt with insertion banding and lace finish. Sizes are from 10 to 14. Priced at $3.50

We have pretty, ready-made confirmation veils of embroidered Brussels net. They are 1½ yards square, two designs..... $1.50 and $2.00

COLOSSAL SPECTACLE AT EMPIRE THEATRE

"Intolerance" or Love's Struggle Throughout the Ages — A $2,000,000 Achhievement

The greatest film picture yet produced will be presented in this city at the Empire Theatre two days only, Monday and Tuesday, April 29th and 30th.

It is the latest work of D. W. Griffith, who has gathered together epics from Belshazzar, the life of Christ, Charles IX. of France, and from today, moulding them together in a marvelous production. He calls the picture "Intolerance." There are four plots in the photo-drama. All are magnificent in detail. The most wonderful scores of mobs and battles shown during the different periods entrance and thrill the spectators.

This new work is the largest production Mr. Griffith has ever made. For over four years he has been evolving and completing its details. The motivating theme is of the twentieth century and realistically presents some stirring phases of everyday life. The ancient periods show medieval France during the reign of Charles IX., when his mother, Catherine de Medici, dominated his career; Jerusalem at the birth of the Christian era and Babylonn, about 520 B.C., when Belshazzar's forces were overpowered by the Persian armies under Cyrus. "Intolerance" is described as a combination of the poetic and dramatic in epical form, designed to indicate the visions that could flash across the mind while contemplating a crisis in one's personal affairs. It reveals that anyone can be the victim of the intolerant forces which led to the fall of Babylon, the midnight massacres of medieval France and the dominant tragedy on Calvary.

This colossal spectacle has achieved a triumph of art. It is the condensation of a thousand centuries of evolution. A red-blooded romance, tense with the spirit of adventure—annihilates time and space—125,000 people fill its scenes—7,000 horses and 1,500 chariots add to the excitement. Babylon, about 250 B. C., when Belsh-Holy City—Paris, the Mediæval Siren—America, of the Overwhelming-Today are the features of its background. Men of valor—Houris of the Orient—heart-throbs and smiles—titanic struggles on towering embattlements—ancient luxury in its wildest excesses—are parts of the four great stories rushing to a thrilling climax that keeps alive the hope of redemption in the shuddering heart of man.

A new art form that illumines every fundamental of drama, music, literature and painting. It is pre-eminent because it tracks intolerance to its lair and dares to tell the truth. 400 performances in New York, 300 in Chicago, 200 in Philadelphia! Now playing Drury Lane Theatre, London, England, and Theatre Royal, Sydney, Australia.

In placing the VIVID Lamp before our patrons we can highly recommend it to give satisfaction, because it results in cheapness in the end, as it is thoroughly tested in every way against electrical and mechanical defects. It is the life of the lamp that makes it cheap or dear. Nothing better than this lamp can be had at the present time.

Colds Settled In The Kidneys

Lumbago, Backache and Rheumatism Was the Result—Now Enthusiastic Over Cure Obtained.

CHATTERTON, Ont., March 27. — The kidneys are extremely sensitive to sudden changes of temperature, and much pain and suffering is a frequent result, as all who have had attacks of lumbago and rheumatism know.

The writer of this letter was a great sufferer until she found that by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills she could regulate the action of the kidneys, and thereby remove the cause of lumbago and rheumatism.

Mrs. John Lancaster, farmer's wife, Chatterton, Ont., writes: "We would not want to do without Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house, for we have proven their merits in so many cases. I have weak kidneys and whenever I catch cold it settles in the back and develops into lumbago. I used to suffer terribly from lumbago and rheumatism, but find that by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and applying Dr. Chase's Backache Plaster that I obtain the greatest relief, and am soon all right again My daughter has also used the pills with splendid results, as has also a neighbour woman who suffered greatly from constipation."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills one pill a dose, 25c. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co. Limited, Toronto. Be sure to see the portrait and signature of A. W Chase, M.D., on the box you buy

BIG MODERN GARAGE WILL BE BUILT BY J. J. DUFFUS TO ACCOMODATE ALL CARS

On Historic Property of the Corner of Charlotte and Water Streets, East of the Empress Hotel—Will Have Capacity For 250 Cars

COMPLETELY EQUIPPED

The biggest and the best equipped garage between Toronto and Montreal will be built this summer by ex-Mayor Duffus at the south east corner of Charlotte and Water streets, to be completed and ready for occupation in August. A stone's throw from the heart of the city, (the corner of George and Charlotte streets) the new Duffus garage will be immediately east of and opposite the Empress hotel. An idea of its size and capacity may be gained from its estimated accommodation for 250 cars. Not only will it embody all the newest ideas in garage construction and facilities, but will also be of an attractive design and finish that should make it a welcome addition to the mercantile district. Built of reinforced concrete and brick, it will be sixty feet by 190 feet in size, and of two storeys, comprising a main ground floor and basement. Another storey may be added at any time when needed. The long dimension will parallel Water street, with the foundation and piers of concrete, and the walls of red brick. Between a new sidewalk and the building there will be a seven foot space which will eventually be seeded in grass. The general effect is designed to add a touch of beauty to the premises.

In outlining the plans, Mr. Duffus has adopted ideas he observed in garages he visited in many cities, and has combined these with his knowledge of the demands of the business and a desire to anticipate its development. Thus, the departments have been set out to secure compactness, easy access and communication and a general shop efficiency that will reduce friction and congestion to a minimum.

The ground floor is level with Water street. At the north end are the offices and show rooms with their separate entrance. In this section will be a wholesale and retail automobile accessories department that will be as complete as possible. A long show case will divide the show room from the accessories, and at the same time provide a counter for sales. On the south side of a separating partition will be the main room of the garage with a wide door to the north through which automobiles will enter. They will pass out through another door near the south. This will avoid turning in the garage and should contribute largely to its smooth working.

The basement will contain the coal bunker and boiler room at the north end with special provision for receiving coal. A vulcanizing room will be a feature of the establishment and will be thoroughly equipped for very tire need. These departments will be divided by fire walls. A stairway leads from the retail accessories department down to the wholesale and stock room, where the supplies will be received and kept and from which large orders will be filled and delivered. The rest of this floor will be devoted to garage work.

A railway siding will be laid close to the building on the east side, presenting an invaluable shipping advantage. Entrances for automobiles will also be at the rear; east and west windows will furnish abundance of light, the west windows being boxed under the mechanics' benches. Illumination will be a decided feature of the garage as there are no adjacent buildings to obstruct the light.

Wash racks on both floors should appeal to car owners who object to carrying excess mud, not only for appearance sake, but also becaues they realize the depreciation and injury it causes. There will be a gasoline tank at the curb, and inside the entrance a special office where gasoline, grease and oil will be paid for and all such sales recorded.

WILL BE FIRE PROOF.

Mr. Duffus has obtained the advice and direction of fire underwriters in his plans to make the building fireproof. The roof and ground floor will be of reinforced concrete seven inches thick, supported by concrete pillars. The roof will form the floor of a second storey if business expansion requires it. Iron, cement and brick will be the only materials in the skeleton of the garage, the only wood being in the office partitions and fixtures, and in the bins of the retail accessories department.

ALL CARS TAKEN CARE OF.

"We have not been able to take care of our own cars as we should have liked," Mr. Duffus said, "to say nothing of others which we could not handle at all. In the new garage we will be able to give our cars proper attention, and also all others that come to us. This applies not only to cars of all makes, but also to trucks which are becoming a more important branch of the automobile business ever day. We will have day and night staffs, so that trucks and cars that are used daily may be put in order during the night and made ready for the next day. The garage will be steam heated, and doctors and other citizens who use cars in winter will have a warm place for storing them at a reasonable cost.

We hope to receive a large share of the tourist trade, to whom we will offer every accommodation. We are close to the city's leading hotel, and will, therefore, offer a special advantage to its tourist guests, who motor to Peterborough. I believe that the truck business is due for a rapid growth in this city, as soon as the business men more generally realize the saving of time and money that trucks afford. Our motor and electric accessories will be as complete as we can make them, and automobile owners will not have to go out of Peterborough for their needs in that line. We will also have a modern vulcanizing equipment that will fill a long-felt want.

RAPID ADVANCEMENT.

The new garage will represent another milestone in the rapid and extensive progress Mr. Duffus has made since he launched into the automobile business under the firm of Drummond and Duffus in 1909, when it was still in its swaddling clothes as far as this district knew it. The local home of the first Fords remained at the old Drummond & Duffus store on Simcoe street, until Mr. Duffus took over the business himself, moving into a shop on George street, opposite the Barrie building. In 1912 the business leaped up the ladder, skipping many rungs when Mr. Duffus opened the biggest garage in the city in his present premises on Simcoe Street. For a time the new accommodation was ample, but presently its limitations began to cramp the activities that grew out of the sales Mr. Duffus kept increasing year after year. In 1909 there were only nine Ford cars sold in Peterborough, and they were almost alone in the field. To-day they are ubiquitous in Peterborough County, as elsewhere. Every body seems to have one, and if they didn't emerge from the Duffus garage on Simcoe street, they were sold from the Norwood or Millbrook branches. It is true that the price of the Ford cars and their reliable service were invincible arguments to the general public and Mr. Duffus gave them a wide fame in this district. He must have canvassed the city and county with equal assiduity, for there seems to be as many finding brief resting places in farmers' driving sheds as in the conspicuous backyard garages that dot the city.

ON HISTORIC GROUND.

Mr. Henry T. Hickey has the contract for the new Duffus garage, the construction of which will be begun at once. Mr. Hickey, although a young man, has a number of successful, large contracts to his credit at home and abroad, and will score another in the completion of this building. The property was bought from the Chamberlen Estate, who, it is understood, received it from the Crown. It is historic ground. Peterborough's first settlers raised their homes in that neighbourhood when the community comprised a mere handful of pioneers squatting on the riverbank. In those days it was probably the heart of the hamlet, and although a city has spread around it the main artery of business is only a stone's throw away.

A GOOD DIGESTION

Depends Upon Keeping the Blood Rich, Red and Pure

To be able to eat what you want and to digest it properly is a priceless blessing. Good digestion is not appreciated until you lose it. Then you cannot afford to experiment, for strong medicines are hard on weak stomachs. If you have indigestion do not be persuaded into believing you can cure yourself by the use of pre-digested foods or so-called stomach tonics. There is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for every part of the body. It is through the blood that the stomach gets its power to assimilate and digest food, and as the blood goes to every part of the body and improvement in its condition not only results in strengthening the stomach but every organ in the body. Rich red blood is absolutely necessary to good digestion. If your stomach is weak and you are troubled with sour risings in the throat, a feeling of pressure about the heart, or nauses after eating, try the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. So many dyspeptics have been cured by this medicine that every sufferer from stomach trouble should try it. You will soon know the joy of good digestion and enjoy better health in other ways you give this medicine a fair trial. Mr. Fred J. Kendall, Darlin Ave., Toronto, says: "For upwards of five years I was a great sufferer from indigestion, which gradually undermined my general health, leaving me in a weak and anaemic condition. I spent considerable money with one doctor and another, but failed to receive any lasting benefit, and had become quite discouraged. One day my wife urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills but I thought it would be the same old story. But she had so much faith in them that she got me a box, and to please her I began taking them. By the time the box was finished, I noticed a slight improvement, and I continued taking them and soon found myself gaining. I could sleep better and my appetite improved, without the distressing symptoms that had previously followed eating. I think I took in all about a dozen boxes, and to-day I am a stronger man than I ever was in my life. When I began the use of the pills I weighed 143 pounds while now I weigh 167. You may use this letter as you choose, hoping it may reach some poor, discouraged sufferer as I was."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE REXALL SALE DRAWS CROWDS TO TWO STORES

The "One Cent" Rexall sale at McDermid's and Payne's drug stores has been an uptown excitement during the past three days. Purchasers have actually loaded up with all their requirements in the wide range of articles that bear the Rexall name and reputation. Other interesting lines have been included, and the complete offering is a decided attraction to the public. The crowds have actually been two and three deep before the counters in both these stores.

Every Weak Throat Quickly Strengthened And Bronchitis Cured

Grand Results Follow the Direct Breathing Remedy, Which Cures Without Drugging.

The country is fairly wild over the wonderful recovery that throat sufferers are making every day with Catarrhozone. From ocean to ocean come letters telling of rapid cures—and cures when the complaint was chronic and long standing. It's a brand new principle upon which Catarrhozone works—not a single dose of medicine to take—nothing to upset the stomach or spoil digestion.

You can breathe through the Catarrhozone inhaler medicated air that is full of healing, soothing balsams, full of piney antiseptic essences that resemble the air of the pine woods in the Adirondacks. The piney vapor has a truly marvelous action on weak throats. It brings strength and health to the bronchitic, stops that hacking, irritating cough, prevents hoarseness and difficult breathing. You can't find anything for weak-throated people on earth more beneficial than Catarrhozone. It means heaven on earth to the man that has had bronchitis, catarrh or throat irritation. You will realize this the first time you use Catarrhozone, which is a scientific preparation specially designed for diseases of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes. Get the large size, it lasts two months, costs $1.00; medium size, 50c.; sample size, 25c. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Farmers Follow Old Time, Rural Schools The New

The farm clocks are keeping standard time, ignoring the daylight savings plan, according to a number of farmers who spoke to-day for practically all their neighbours. "We are getting up at five o'clock now, and there is no use advancing the time and rising at four o'clock. We are using all the daylight as it is, and the new time makes no difference to us. Of course when we have any city engagement we have to remember that the city are following the new time."

The rural school clocks synchronize with the city's, but the farmers regard this as a hardship to the children. They have to leave that much earlier in the morning, and those who return home at the noon recess require their dinner one hour earlier than the regular meal served the men who come in from the fields at the old hour. On the whole, however, the farmers have no complaints, and if it works a benefit in the cities, the farmers are content.

PUT OLD ENEMY TO UTTER ROUT

Tells how to lift off that touchy corn without hurting one particle

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority, who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called freezone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You simply apply a few drops of this freezone on a tender, aching corn and the soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

This drug is sticky, but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.

"Y" EXHIBITION WAS REPEATED

Miss Madeline Pulkinghorn Won the Pennant.

Friday's attendance at the Y.W.C.A. Gymnasium exhibition was even larger than the previous night, and 175 extra chairs had to be secured to accommodate the increased audience.

Won the Pennant.

Miss Madeline Pulkinghorn and Miss Phyllis Young tied on the high jump, going over at 3 feet 11, but on account of having won the honours of the highest jump the previous night Miss Pulkinghorn was awarded the pennant.

Some Presentations.

Miss Littlefield, the physical director, was presented by Master Grant Breckenridge, on behalf of the advanced and beginners classes, with a camera, also a number of beautiful bouquets from the girls. Miss Edith Pryce and Mrs. Rogers, the trainers of the Athena and Silver Link clubs, were also presented with bouquets.

Some Confusion.

The committee were greatly at a loss to untangle a slight mistake made by the young ladies who acted as ushers and who unused to the work were unable to keep the rightful reserved seats for the rightful owners. However every one saw the show and that was sufficient.

Sang a Solo.

Miss Ruby Quartermaine contributed a most enjoyable solo accompanied by Mrs. Greenslade.

VERSATILE MUSICIAN WILL VISIT PETERBOROUGH.

Adjutant Urquhart Plays Fifteen Different Instruments.

Adjutant Urquhart, the Musical Wonder from Toronto, will visit Peterborough on Monday, 29th.

Adjutant McElhiney has been trying to get this officer to visit Peterborough for two years, and has just succeeded. Adjutant Urquhart plays about fifteen different instruments, and his daughter Eva will accompany him.

Some of his instruments are very old, and are quite curios in themselves, apart from the playing. Others he has invented himself. He will be well worth hearing Sunday night.

DRAMATIC PRODUCTION WAS REPEATED LAST EVENING IN ENNISMORE.

Last evening, in the Ennismore Parish Hall, the young people of Ennismore repeated their 17th of March dramatic production, "A Bit of Blarney." A large crowd turned out to witness the performance, including a number from Peterborough.

WAS OFF WORK 4 OR 5 MONTHS A YEAR WITH CONSTIPATION

If the truth were only known you would find that over one-half of the ills of life are caused by allowing the bowels to get into a constipated condition.

When the bowels become constipated the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, the sourness of the stomach, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They work on the bowels gently and naturally, and will cure the worst cases of constipation.

Mr. Sylvester Clements, Galt, Ont., writes: "I desire to express my heartfelt thanks for what Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have done for me. I have been suffering from a bad stomach and constipation and would be off work 4 or 5 months a year. I was hardly able to be inside without getting a severe headache. I tried doctors' medicine and other remedies, but got no relief until a friend advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. Now I can work inside without any headaches or pain. I would not be without your remedy for anything. I write this so that anyone suffering the same as I did may use them and be cured."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OVER 1,000 PRISONERS
(By PERRY ROBINSON.)
(London Times Cable to The Globe. Copyright, 1918.)
British Headquarters, April 26.—Our prisoners in the fighting to-day at Villers-Bretonneux cannot be less than 1,000; for I know one unit of the Australians have taken 200, the Berkshires 200 and another English county regiment 65, making over 900, with other sections of the battle still to be heard from.

This was but one of many cables that appeared in no other paper in Ontario.

FLOWER EMPORIUM ON GEORGE STREET

Peterboro' Floral Company Completes New Stores

In completing the prettiest addition George street has had in many years, Mr. R. Denne and Mr. C. Williamson, the joint owners, have spared no pains in their new floral emporium. The store, formerly the Coughlin drug store, 347 George street, has, by a complete transformation, been turned into what is literally an oasis in the desert. Here, with daily supplies from the Dale, Brampton, and Millers, Toronto, conservatories cut flowers and design work will be specialized upon.

The window show cases and stock are up-to-date and could compete with any similar establishment in any of the big centres. White enamelled panels make an appropriate back ground for the countless bowls of fresh and lovely flowers which to see alone are worth a walk down town, while the back rooms are fitted up with the latest ideas in flower cooling refrigerators and basins.

A Separate Store.

Mr. Denne will run his new establishment entirely separate from the Water street plant, where seedlings and ferns will be specialized on, and only a running stock of seeds will be kept.

Lakefield News Of Interest

LAKEFIELD, April 27. — At the regular meeting of the Maple Leaf Club, held in the Town Hall on Thursday evening, April 25, it was decided to dispose of part of their share of the concert proceeds as follows: $5 to the Belgian Relief Fund, $5 to the Secours Nationale, $5 to the British Navy League, and $5 to the Canadian Maple Leaf Club. This is very commendable, and the girls deserve congratulations for their patriotism.

Navigation News.

The Government steamer "Bob Hall" made a trip to Young's Point on Friday morning.

One of the new lock gates for Young's Point, which is being built at the Lakefield wharf, is to be put in the water on Friday.

UNCOMFORTABLE TIME PROMISED DESERTERS

Twelve Thousand Class "A" Men Will Start to Report For Duty at the Montreal Barracks

Canadian Press:

MONTREAL, April 27.—Twelve thousand Class "A" men of the ages of 20, 21 and 22 will start to report for duty at the Montreal Barracks at the rate of approximately one hundred and fifty a day, starting on May the first. Registrar Godin, of Montreal district, stated to-day that he had already started sending out notices to the Class "A" men under the new Order-in-Council, abolishing exemptions except on medical grounds, and the calling out of all Class "A" men of these three years to report. It is stated that the intention is to enforce the order rigorously, and that deserters under the Military Service Act from this time forth will have a very uncomfortable time.

tically and nationally, the Jugoslavs and the Czechs are identical. Their economic interests also agree. The Czechs need a route to the sea as offered by the territory of the Jugoslavs, and the Jugoslavs need Czech industry and capital."

Unity of Ambitions.

A Czech and Jugoslav press joins in favourable sentiment toward the unity of the ambitions of the two oppressed races.

The food difficulties with which Austria is struggling is rapidly assuming serious proportions, say further diplomatic despatches here. The stocks supplied by the Roumania harvest are entirely exhausted and that wheat from Ukrania cannot be counted upon for some time. Under these conditions, the despatches add, the government must seize cereals held in reserve for the personal consumption of the peasants.

Miss Jean Harstone Has A Busy Time At The Front

Peterboro' Girl Says Everyone is Very Optimistic—Holding the Germans

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harstone, 565 Water Street, has received a very interesting letter from their daughter, Miss Jean Harstone, who for the past two years has been driving an ambulance at the front.

The Letter.

The letter reads as follows:

March 25th.

Dear Father and Mother,—As you see by date, I am having the busiest time we have ever had. Last Wednesday four of us had a run to Peronne with medical teams and nurses. We got there Thursday at 1 a.m. The ambulances there had been going day and night, clearing the casualty clearing stations as they were being shelled, so we helped for a little.

About 4 a.m. the offensive began, and we stayed for a while until it became clear that Peronne was going so the whole place was evacuated. It was all so interesting, as it was old battle ground and a mass of trenches and ruins. Even the French had returned and were begging to cultivate again. It is so tragic that they have had to fly again.

The only sleep we got was in the back of the ambulance, which wasn't much.

I imagine the evacuations in 1914 must have been like this. It was a sight one will never forget. The difference I think must be that there was no panic as people have become more accustomed to it. Some of the sisters we took up stayed to the very last, and then had to leave on foot. The worst part of all was trying to keep awake coming home. We had been driving for two days and a night with short snatches of sleep, and on the way home it was terrible. It was impossible to keep awake. Time and time again we got out and walked up and down to try to get awake, but as soon as we were at the wheel again we would come too with a start and find we were making for the ditch.

Ever since we returned we have been on the go, and so far as I can make out, we are likely to be busy, even through a lull, as they are using this more as a casualty clearing than a base now.

However, every one is very optimistic. We have lost ground, which is not as one would like, but is not the important feature. The line has held, and it is a strong line which can retreat fighting and not break, and it hasn't broken.

So far the Germans have not succeeded in their real objectives to get to Amiens the first day, and to separate the French and British armies. If they had done that I hardly know where we would go. We couldn't evacuate south, and probably before we could clear the bases they might have crumpled us up towards the north.

It has been a wonderful resistance, 6 to 1, and in parts 9 to 1. So the outlook is bright. Their losses have been fearful. They came in massed formation—the only way they can fight, as they give each other moral support. We simply mowed them down, wave after wave, and still they came. The planes dropped tons of bombs and used machine guns in the midst of masses of men.

The difficulty with the offensive on their side is that so many of our wounded become prisoners. Even so, we moved 16,336 here so far. But all the men are cheerful. The whole countryside is swarming with troops, who have lost their units for the time, and were sent back here for the time being. They will all be equipped and sent up again shortly.

This is a huurried note. Will send another shortly. Love to all,

Jean.

Mr. Al. Spenceley Bumped Mayor's Car In Its Right of Way.

Mr. A. W. Spenceley's collision with Mayor Duncan's car at the corner of Hunter and Water streets, cost him $7.60 in police court this morning, when he pleaded guilty to failing to give the Mayor, on his right, the right of way.

"The sun shone on my wind shield and I couldn't see," Mr. Spenceley explained, but the Magistrate replied that the law admitted no excuse whatever.

"This law is no joke, and we cannot afford to treat it lightly," Mr. Dumble added.

The Anniversary Of St. James' Church Will Be Observed Sunday

Captain Rev. J. W. Magwood Will Preach at Both Services—An Interesting Speaker

The anniversary of St. James' Methodist Church will be held tomorrow, and will be followed on Monday evening by a tea and then a lecture to be delivered by Captain Rev. J. W. Magwood, who will relate some of his experiences at the front. Captain Magwood will preach at both services on Sunday. He is a splendid speaker, and will doubtless be favoured with large congregations. His address on Monday evening will be of special interest at this time, as Captain Magwood will have a fund of information to give concerning actual warfare as was witnessed by him during his stay on the battle-front in France. On Monday evening tea will be served from six until eight o'clock. On Sunday evening the Orangemen will attend the service in a body.

Insomnia Cured Without Drugs

INTERNAL BATHING RELIEVES THE CAUSE.

If you do not sleep there is always some cause. Don't start dosing with drugs. Nerves can't consume them. Relieve the cause and a good, sound sleep will be the result.

The system cannot be right if the Colon or large intestine is not kept clean, and free from all waste matter. Bathe internally if you want perfect health.

Mr. F. C. Voight, Rapid City, Man., writes: "For several years I suffered from Indigestion, Nervous Debility, Insomnia, and Constipation. Had no appetite, and the doctors did not expect that I would live throughout the winter. Your book interested me. I got a 'J.B.L. Cascade,' and in a few days obtained remarkable results. I now sleep and enjoy my meals better than for years before. I regard the 'J.B.L. Cascade' as a God-send to me."

The "J.B.L. Cascade" as a perfected appliance for Internal Bathing invented by Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, and has been the means of restoring thousands to perfect health. It is shown and explained by the Warne Drug Co., who will be pleased to give you an interesting book called "The What, The Why, The Way of Internal Bathing," on request. Ask for it.

OBITUARY

MARY HEALY.

The funeral of Mary Healy, the 17-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Healy, 172 Dufferin street, took place this morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's cemetery.

DESIRE LEGENDRE.

Desire Legendre died suddenly yesterday afternoon at 3.15 at his residence, 90 Lock Street. He had been ill for two days, but his death, the result of heart trouble, was quite unexpected.

Deceased was born in St. Lin, Quebec, 57 years ago, and came to Peterborough to reside in 1893. Since coming to the city he has been a traveller, and associated with the Prudential Life Assurance Company. In all his business dealings he enjoyed the trust and confidence of his associates, and was well thought of by his many friends in the city. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus.

Surviving are his wife, four children—Carmel, of the Royal Flying Force, Toronto; Corinne, at home; Palmer, in Montreal, and Anita, at home—and two sisters, Madame Thibault and Miss Hedridge, of Quebec.

Funeral on Monday morning at 9 o'clock to the Sacred Heart Church, thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

ST. GEORGE'S DAY FESTIVAL AT ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.

St. George's Day national service will be held at St. George's Church, Braidwood Avenue, to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Macklem, Provost of Trinity College, Toronto. The first lesson will be read by His Worship A. O. Langley, County Police Magistrate, and the second lesson by His Honour Judge Huycke.

The Reeve and Council of North Monaghan will attend the service, and the city will be represented by the Mayor and City Clerk.

Unless You Can Play all These Records You Have Not a Complete Phonograph

The BRUNSWICK is a complete Phonograph

No makeshift "attachments" on the ALL-record Brunswick—it was DESIGNED, not adapted, to play any record. And it was designed to play them all BETTER. No needle noise, no scratching, no metallic or nasal tones. This is due to the all-wood white holly tone chamber,—built like a violin.

The Brunswick is "All Phonographs in One"—an unusual phonograph that has frankly adopted the best features of all and with some added refinements of beauty and finish. And the price of this COMPLETE phonograph is in keeping with the economy of the times.

The Brunswick brings ALL singers, ALL bands, ALL orchestras, ALL music to your home. Your choice is not restricted, because it plays ALL records.

And in the Brunswick record you have a remarkable reproduction of the true voice without scratch or nasal tones.

Find this out for yourself. Don't take anybody's word for it. You buy but ONE phonograph—be sure you get the best.

We invite you to hear it in Peterboro. All models in Stock

NOTICE—All persons, in ordering their food, ought to consider the need of Great Britain and her Allies, and their armies, for wheat, beef, bacon and fats, and that the Canada Food Board desires the public to do everything in their power to make these commodities available for export by eating as little as possible of them and by making use of substitutes and avoiding waste.

Santa Marta.

Santa Marta, Colombia, is one of the great banana ports. After the days of the Spanish Main, when it was the scene of hot fighting between Spanish and English, and won a place in the romances of Kingsley as the setting for a naval battle, Santa Marta sank into a tropical siesta that lasted until the banana business was put on a world-wide basis by a great corporation. The banana shippers awoke her, and now there is a great air of activity and bustle in the old bay.

Little Doubt About It.

Mary and Bobby were playing on a picket fence when Mary accidentally slipped and her little dress caught on one of the pickets and held her suspended about a foot from the ground. Bobby tried and tugged, but in vain; he could not release her, so he said: "Never mind, Mary, I'll go and call muvver." And poor little Mary, hanging by the lone picket, replied earnestly: "All right, Bobby, and I'll wait for you here."

Really Man's Friends.

If the snakes, owls and hawks were able to write and vote, they would probably undertake a "campaign of education" on their own behalf, for better public understanding, or seek protective laws in congress. As man is the only writing and voting animal, it is clearly his duty to understand the snakes, owls and hawks. With understanding will come intelligent protection.

CANADA IS FACING SHORTAGE OF WOOL

Very Difficult For Red Cross to Get the Supplies It Needs—Manufacturers Are Shipping to United States, Where Profit Is

QUALITY IS BETTER

The yarn situation grows more serious. The Canadian Red Cross are struggling to secure sufficient to meet their needs. "It is one of the most serious questions in connection with the war conditions," in the opinion of Mrs. Stearns Hicks, convener of the Toronto branch, who reports a decided shortage, and states that everybody should put forth every possible effort to conserve yarn. At the present time yarn which sold at the outbreak of the war at 65 cents a pound is now selling at $2.25 a pound. "This yarn is much superior in quality, however," said Mrs. Hicks. Since the British Government has taken over the Australian wool market, No 4 topping has been replaced by a No. 1 topping, which is a much finer grade, and a six-pound spindle of yarn knits from two or three more pairs of socks than the old yarn.

According to Mr. T. D. Wardlaw, adviser of the Canadian Red Cross, conditions are somewhat alarming. They have enough on hand to supply their immediate needs, but are meeting with great difficulty in securing a surplus supply. One manufacturer was only able to supply 25 pounds of wool, and could not promise 100 pounds before the end of May.

"There is plenty of wool coming into the market," stated Mr. Wardlaw, "as the British Government released several millions of wool tops to Canada alone. It is believed that a large percentage of this is being exported into the States, where the manufacturers are selling at a considerable profit."

Exporting Where Profit Is.

In February of this year a war measure was passed which set forth a revised and consolidated list of goods prohibited for export from Canada—other than to the United Kingdom, British possessions and protectorates. Included in this list were yarns, jute, woolen and worsted.

From information gathered it is learned, however, that the Canada War Board has issued licenses to various manufacturers granting them the privilege of exporting yarns which is believed to be responsible to no little extent for the shortage here.

It is the feeling among the Red Cross buyers that the Canadian Red Cross should get the preference over the American Red Cross, even though there is a greater profit in selling on the American market. Canadians are receiving all their wool at a special price from the British Government, while the Americans have to buy from the open market, and therefor of necessity pay bigger money than the Canadians do for the same material.

GROCERY LINES GETTING SCARCE

Flour Has Declined Fifteen Cents a Barrel During the Week—Market Report

The import situation is becoming increasingly difficult, licenses now being required for practically all goods bought in the United States for shipment to Canada, says Canadian Grocer this week. The question of freight rates and steamers is so uncertain from Europe that sellers are unwilling to quote prices at f.o.b. points; in fact, it is really impossible to quote prices, even if importation is practicable. A great scarcity in all groceries dependent on ocean transportation for supplies can be looked for.

An important element in the cost of foreign goods from countries where silver currency prevails is the very high and increasing rate of exchange. Rupees have advanced from 1s. 5d. to 1s. 3d.; Spanish pesetas, the par value of which is 19 1-3c., are selling in New York at 27 1-4c.

Montreal.—There has been no great activity in any goods on this market during the past week. The difficulty in securing some lines leads to a decidedly firmer feeling, but in the majority of cases this firmness has not resulted in any changes in price. Flour has declined 15 cents a barrel during the week, and there is a decided firmness in the cereal market. Especially is this the case in cornmeal. Starch products, too, show a stronger feeling, with an advance of 1-2c. a pound in most lines. Both rice and spices are in a very strong position, and while stocks at the moment are comparatively good, any increase in the demand would in all probability force increased prices, as there is great difficulty in replacing these goods. Molasses is somewhat more in demand, and shows an increase in price. Dried peaches are the only line of dried fruits that show any change. There is an easier feeling in these. Further declines in potatoes are expected, while in fruits, both oranges and pineapples are somewhat easier.

Toronto.—The attention of retailers is directed to the law in force governing the sale of extracts, which states that bottles larger than 2 1-2 ounces cannot be sold. This is now in effect and sales made in any larger quantity would be a violation of the law.

Latest advices from Japan indicate that the government there has commandeered a large percentage of available tonnage for their own use, and further shipments of rice to this country, if allowed at all, will likely be on a greatly curtailed basis. This is given as the reason for the statement that rices to-day are a good buy while stocks are in very fair condition.

All lines of spices are reported scarce and growing scarcer. It is becoming increasingly hard to secure supplies, and in some quarters it is stated there is no cassia offering at all. The market is extremely firm, celery seed showing the greatest change in an advance in some quarters of 15c. per pound over lowest quotations previously ruling.

The scarcity of sugar has resulted in one manufacturer of jelly powders and summer drinks, having to refuse to accept any more orders before June 1. Orders now on hand cannot be filled prior to that date, it is stated, and unless the sugar situation improves materially business cannot be accepted after that date.

The better grades of tea are scarce in first hands, though a plentiful supply of cheaper lines is apparent. The situation is one of extreme firmness, and the general tendency is to look towards higher prices. A good movement of Japans has been reported for the week, and stocks are light.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

PLAYING WITH FIRE

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

CHAPTER LIII.

I had decided, partly because George neglected me, partly because I so enjoyed his society, that I was perfectly justified in being with Merton Gray whenever I could do so. I believed George thought me not a good wife for him; that he even regarded his marriage to the country girl, so ignorant of social duties and amenities, as a mistake, but one which he would make the best of—by leaving me to myself.

Of course I did not feel this way all the time—not when George was nice. And he could be awfully nice. But I was not sufficiently trained in the ways of the world as yet, not sufficiently interesting, to make an interesting companion. He showed it in his manner; of course I could but notice it.

So, in spite of Mrs. Sexton, of my determination to learn my social duties as soon as possible, I was very unhappy and discouraged. At such times Merton Gray was more than welcome. And if ever a shadow of a doubt as to the wisdom of being with him or of allowing him to drop in when I was alone, crossed my mind, it was immediately dismissed.

Then, too, Merton was good for me, so I argued. He had travelled extensively and just to talk to him, was a liberal education.

THE DANGER SIGNAL.

If there is a time in the life of a married woman when she should hoist the danger signal, it is when she commences to make excuses—to herself—because she is with another man than her husband. So when I said to myself that this polished man of the world, this much sought after artist, could help me become the kind of a woman my husband longed for me to be, I was treading very close to the danger point — for me.

Something like great waves of pity would occasionally break over me; mere pity for myself. Another danger signal which I did not heed. For it is amazing how much comfort one can get from self pity. It is possible that had George been less neglectful I never would have intrigued myself into thinking so much about Merton Gray. But quickened to life the cells of my soul stirred, and became articulate clamouring for what was my due; for what every woman believes is her heritage—the love of some man.

Never before had I contrasted myself with the woman I met in a casual manner. Never had I envied their loveliness, the intimate beauty and bravery of their lives; Now, suddenly there loomed always before me the idea that I, too, must be possessed of all this if I would hope to cope with them. The thought was appalling. Yet I was determined to make good—to show George Howard that the woman, the country woman, he had married, was the equal of any he had ever known. I knew there was something in my life, this new, untried life, upon which I was entering, upon which I had entered, which alternately thrilled and frightened me, but for which I sensed an imperative need, the need of poise, of worldliness, of all the social graces lacking in a country girl. At times I felt as if I was playing in some frantic masquerade. That I would wake up and find myself back home with father and mother and the boys, just a plain, happy country girl.

THE SURGE OF LOVE.

Then again when George would show an unwonted affection for me I would forget all about him; and at his sudden and unexpected revival of affection, which seemed to spring up with renewed vigour, life would not seem so dreary, such a puzzle, after all. To have him back again, seemed the one issue, the one desire of my life. Then I would forget Merton Gray and the others whom I knew, sometimes even Evelyn and Kurts, and devote myself with all the abandon of youth to the task of pleasing the man I had married.

Then the reaction.

How wretchedly George had treated me. This always lay in a vague heap in the background of my mind, even while everything was subordinate to my keen desire to have him care for me. He neglected me so.

Was life worth living under such an emotional stress?

I felt belittled and chagrined when I thought of my position as the wife of a wealthy and popular man. My husband evidentally looked upon me as mentally as well as socially the inferior of his old time women friends.

I often wondered if he loved me at all. If ever he had really cared as the married folks at home seemed to care for each other. The married people went everywhere together, had the same friends, enjoyed the same pleasures. But here in this new life, each seemed to go his or her own way. So long as there was nothing wrong, no scandal, they seemed free to enjoy themselves as they wished, as did the unmarried people.

It was all horribly complicated, anyway; I would do the best that I could and try not to worry.

FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up, and the skin is left soft and velvety.

Keeping Busy.

There was a hideous noise issuing from the waiting room of the lonely country station, and the stranded passenger feared foul play.

"Who's that howling in there?" he asked the small boy who played porter.

"That's the station master," said the lad. "'E's got so little to do now—there ain't many trains stop 'ere—se 'e's settin' the timetable to music for the porters to learn when they come back from the war."

A ROYAL BETROTHAL.

Japanese Crown Prince Is Engaged To Be Married.

The engagement of Princess Naga-ko, eldest daughter of Prince and Princess Kuni, to the Crown Prince of Japan was informally announced on Jan. 17th, although the official statement will not be issued until April 29th, the seventeenth birthday of Prince Horohito, heir to the throne.

Princess Naga-ko, the Imperial fiancee, celebrated her fifteenth birthday on March 6th, this year. She is now a pupil in the third-year class of the Peers College, and is known as one of the prettiest young princesses of the Imperial Court. Her father, Prince Kuniyoshi, Kuni-no-Miya, is a lieutenant-general in the Japanese army and commander of the Fifteenth Division, Toyohashi. Born in 1873, he entered the military service in his 'teens and was attached to Gen. Kuroki's staff during the Russo-Japanese War as a major of infantry. From 1907 to 1910 he travelled through Europe, studying military affairs in Germany and other countries. The fiancee's mother, Princess Chika-ko, is the seventh daughter of the late Prince Tadayishi Shimadzu, one of the greatest feudal lords of the pre-restorian era. She was born in 1879 and married to Prince Kuni when nineteen years old. She travelled in Europe with her husband.

In Japanese history there are many precedents for creating a Crown Princess, or the future Empress, from among the daughters of the Imperial princely families. But up to the recent date, says the Japan Advertiser, it has been almost the common custom to select the Crown Princess from the daughters of the Gosekke, the five noble families of Ichijo, Kujo, Sanjo, Konoe and Takatsukasa, from whom every Prime Minister of ancient Japan was to be appointed. The late Dowager Empress was the daughter of Prince Ichijo, and the present Empress is the daughter of Prince Kujo. The unexpected has happened and the engagement being decided, Baron Hatano, Minister of the Imperial Household, visited Prince and Princess Kuni on Jan. 14th for the transmission of the Imperial judgment.

Their Majesties the Emperor and the Empress received in audience Prince and Princess Kuni, where congratulations were exchanged.— East and West News.

Burn Locomotive Cinders.

There has recently been completed at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, what is said to be the first large railroad power station to be operated entirely on locomotive cinders. Three boilers are fired by automatic underfeed stokers and burn cinders, alone or mixed with coal-dust. The cinders are brought on a traveling electric crane directly into the boiler room. The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

PLAYING WITH FIRE

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

CHAPTER LIII.

I had decided, partly because George neglected me, partly because I so enjoyed his society, that I was perfectly justified in being with Merton Gray whenever I could do so. I believed George thought me not a good wife for him; that he even regarded his marriage to the country girl, so ignorant of social duties and amenities, as a mistake, but one which he would make the best of—by leaving me to myself.

Of course I did not feel this way all the time—not when George was nice. And he could be awfully nice. But I was not sufficiently trained in the ways of the world as yet, not sufficiently interesting, to make an interesting companion. He showed it in his manner; of course I could but notice it.

So, in spite of Mrs. Sexton, of my determination to learn my social duties as soon as possible, I was very unhappy and discouraged. At such times Merton Gray was more than welcome. And if ever a shadow of a doubt as to the wisdom of being with him or of allowing him to drop in when I was alone, crossed my mind, it was immediately dismissed.

Then, too, Merton was good for me, so I argued. He had travelled extensively and just to talk to him, was a liberal education.

THE DANGER SIGNAL.

If there is a time in the life of a married woman when she should hoist the danger signal, it is when she commences to make excuses—to herself—because she is with another man than her husband. So when I said to myself that this polished man of the world, this much sought after artist, could help me become the kind of a woman my husband longed for me to be, I was treading very close to the danger point — for me.

Something like great waves of pity would occasionally break over me; mere pity for myself. Another danger signal which I did not heed. For it is amazing how much comfort one can get from self pity. It is possible that had George been less neglectful I never would have intrigued myself into thinking so much about Merton Gray. But quickened to life the cells of my soul stirred, and became articulate clamouring for what was my due; for what every woman believes is her heritage—the love of some man.

Never before had I contrasted myself with the woman I met in a casual manner. Never had I envied their loveliness, the intimate beauty and bravery of their lives; Now, suddenly there loomed always before me the idea that I, too, must be possessed of all this if I would hope to cope with them. The thought was appalling. Yet I was determined to make good—to show George Howard that the woman, the country woman, he had married, was the equal of any he had ever known. I knew there was something in my life, this new, untried life, upon which I was entering, upon which I had entered, which alternately thrilled and frightened me, but for which I sensed an imperative need, the need of poise, of worldliness, of all the social graces lacking in a country girl. At times I felt as if I was playing in some frantic masquerade. That I would wake up and find myself back home with father and mother and the boys, just a plain, happy country girl.

THE SURGE OF LOVE.

Then again when George would show an unwonted affection for me I would forget all about him; and at his sudden and unexpected revival of affection, which seemed to spring up with renewed vigour, life would not seem so dreary, such a puzzle, after all. To have him back again, seemed the one issue, the one desire of my life. Then I would forget Merton Gray and the others whom I knew, sometimes even Evelyn and Kurts, and devote myself with all the abandon of youth to the task of pleasing the man I had married.

Then the reaction.

How wretchedly George had treated me. This always lay in a vague heap in the background of my mind, even while everything was subordinate to my keen desire to have him care for me. He neglected me so.

Was life worth living under such an emotional stress?

I felt belittled and chagrined when I thought of my position as the wife of a wealthy and popular man. My husband evidentially looked upon me as mentally as well as socially the inferior of his old time women friends.

I often wondered if he loved me at all. If ever he had really cared as the married folks at home seemed to care for each other. The married people went everywhere together, had the same friends, enjoyed the same pleasures. But here in this new life, each seemed to go his or her own way. So long as there was nothing wrong, no scandal, they seemed free to enjoy themselves as they wished, as did the unmarried people.

It was all horribly complicated, anyway; I would do the best that I could and try not to worry.

FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up, and the skin is left soft and velvety.

Keeping Busy.

There was a hideous noise issuing from the waiting room of the lonely country station, and the stranded passenger feared foul play.

"Who's that howling in there?" he asked the small boy who played porter.

"That's the station master," said the lad. "'E's got so little to do now—there ain't many trains stop 'ere—se 'e's settin' the timetable to music for the porters to learn when they come back from the war."

A ROYAL BETROTHAL.

Japanese Crown Prince Is Engaged To Be Married.

The engagement of Princess Naga-ko, eldest daughter of Prince and Princess Kuni, to the Crown Prince of Japan was informally announced on Jan. 17th, although the official statement will not be issued until April 29th, the seventeenth birthday of Prince Horohito, heir to the throne.

Princess Naga-ko, the Imperial fiancee, celebrated her fifteenth birthday on March 6th, this year. She is now a pupil in the third-year class of the Peers College, and is known as one of the prettiest young princesses of the Imperial Court. Her father, Prince Kuniyoshi, Kuni-no-Miya, is a lieutenant-general in the Japanese army and commander of the Fifteenth Division, Toyohashi. Born in 1873, he entered the military service in his 'teens and was attached to Gen. Kuroki's staff during the Russo-Japanese War as a major of infantry. From 1907 to 1910 he travelled through Europe, studying military affairs in Germany and other countries. The fiancee's mother, Princess Chika-ko, is the seventh daughter of the late Prince Tadayishi Shimadzu, one of the greatest feudal lords of the pre-restorian era. She was born in 1879 and married to Prince Kumi when nineteen years old. She travelled in Europe with her husband.

In Japanese history there are many precedents for creating a Crown Princess, or the future Empress, from among the daughters of the Imperial princely families. But up to the recent date, says the Japan Advertiser, it has been almost the common custom to select the Crown Princess from the daughters of the Gosekke, the five noble families of Ichiio, Kujo, Sanjo, Konoe and Takatsukasa, from whom every Prime Minister of ancient Japan was to be appointed. The late Dowager Empress was the daughter of Prince Ichijo, and the present Empress is the daughter of Prince Kujo. The unexpected has happened and the engagement being decided, Baron Hatano, Minister of the Imperial Household, visited Prince and Princess Kuni on Jan. 14th for the transmission of the Imperial judgment.

Their Majesties the Emperor and the Empress received in audience Prince and Princess Kuni, where congratulations were exchanged.— East and West News.

Burn Locomotive Cinders.

There has recently been completed at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, what is said to be the first large railroad power station to be operated entirely on locomotive cinders. Three boilers are fired by automatic underfeed stokers and burn cinders, alone or mixed with coal-dust. The cinders are brought on a traveling electric crane directly into the boiler room. Steam produced with this fuel is employed to drive two turbines that generate current for the light and power systems in the station.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Sweet That Turned Bitter

By JAMES BRAINARD

When Orville Hedrick was graduated at the Faraday Scientific school the fact was published all over the United States that a prodigy had been launched who would astonish the world. But greatly to the disappointment of his classmates years passed and he was not heard from. Moreover he had disappeared.

Hedrick inherited a fortune and it was supposed that this was quite enough to spoil any genius, for even a phenomenon requires the spur of necessity. But Hedrick's fortune did not account for his disappearance.

The truth is that soon after graduation Hedrick was impressed with a statement of scientific investigation that a live body had in it the elements of perpetual youth. But unfortunately there is a microbe that enters into the material part of the being which causes what we call old age; just as a worm will cause a tree to wither and die.

Hedrick resolved to devote his abilities to finding a way to eliminate this microbe without injuring the subject on which it was feeding. He purchased a huge estate and in its center built a laboratory which he furnished with every article used in scientific research. His citadel of science he protected by a pack of dogs of a fierce breed scattering them all over his domain.

Hedrick investigated for several years on animals, beginning with the lower grades and ascending till he reached the anthropoid ape. The age-producing microbe was not affected by any of Hedrick's antitoxins until he experimented on this animal next below man. Here after many trials he found an antitoxin that killed the microbe without injury to the ape.

The very day that he made this discovery he was walking back and forth on the porch of his laboratory thinking of the next step in his experiment—an attempt to eliminate decay in human beings when he saw approaching a marvel of beauty. A girl about sixteen years old was passing among his dogs, who fawned before her, then fell in behind and followed her. When she reached Hedrick she stopped and said:

"I understand that you are able to preserve youth."

"Who told you that?" said Hedrick.

"A little bird."

"As good a reply as might be expected from a woman. What can I do for you?"

"Keep me always as I am."

A desire seized upon Hedrick to preserve this remarkable beauty, and to appropriate her to himself. He began to apply his antitoxin and by the aid of a microscope at the end of a year felt assured that not the faintest change had occurred in the girl's fair skin, not the slightest mark of age had fastened itself upon her.

Meanwhile he wooed and won her.

Hedrick was thirty years old when he married the girl, whose name was Constance, an age when a man most admires beauty. Ten years passed and he began to pine for a companion. Constance was still the girl she was at seventeen, both in body and mind, entirely unfitted to entertain him.

After having rendered her immune to decay he concluded to observe the effect upon her before practicing it upon any one else. It required but little time to discover that he was not conferring a blessing. All the rest of the world was growing old while Constance remained young.

When she had lived twenty years with her husband they separated by mutual consent, and Constance married another man a few years her senior, but since he was growing older while she was still a child he finally tired of her and divorced her.

While Constance's nature had not changed from youth to age, as the years passed the mold of experience settled upon her. She was like an old woman who continued to wear the same apparel as when she was a young girl. People who met her remarked: "What a queer person. She acts like a girl but if it were not for her marvelous beauty I would sometimes think her an old woman."

All this had its effect upon Constance. Over her beautiful face there slowly gathered a melancholy. Then she shut herself up in her home. But there still remained in her the element of youth.

She met a man of nineteen. He was enchanted with her beauty, but when she responded to his proffered love there was something in the response that repelled him. It was like a posy made up of buds and withered flowers.

He fled from her. Slowly and in tears she returned to her home. She wished that she could find Hedrick and induce him to take away her immunity from age. She made inquiries for him, but received no response. Then she went to the laboratory where he had made her immune from age and found it desolate. On a tombstone nearby she saw his name and found that he had died aged one hundred and two. He had died a centenarian while she was still in her teens.

The next morning when she did not appear at breakfast her maid went to her room and found her dead.

Those who had supposed when Hedrick had graduated that he would achieve some great scientific triumph never knew what a marvel as well as failure he had made.

MRS. DE WEESE COULD NOT STAND

Because of Functional Disorder—Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oakland, Cal.—"I suffered from irregularities and congestion, so I could not stand on my feet for any long period of time and did not sleep well. The physician who treated me did not seem to help me any and a friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and before I realized it I was well. I shall recommend your valuable remedy to my friends."—Mrs. L. H. DE WEESE, 605 Alcatraz Ave., Oakland, Cal.

Every woman at some period or other in her life suffers from just such disturbances as did Mrs. Weese, and if there is no interested friend to advise, let this be a reminder that this famous root and herb remedy has been overcoming these ailments of women for more than 40 years.

If any complications exist, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

A Field of Romance.

There was a characteristic reason why he did not consider taking her to a restaurant, and I wish to give it, since it was characteristic. He had made a study of foods and their prices—a study as careful as any that he made subsequently into the details of life and local color for his romances of Elizabethan and medieval times, and he understood how grossly the restaurants overcharged. He knew, for example, that rolled oats, in bulk, cost him two and one-half cents a pound; that there were six teacupfuls in a pound and that half a teacupful made a portion for one meal. Cornmeal, at two cents a pound, gave only four cupfuls to the pound; oatmeal, at two and a half cents a pound, ran five cupfuls to the pound, and hominy, at five cents a pound, four cupfuls to the pound. (These, of course, were the prices of 1899.) He paid thirty cents a pound for coffee; there were ninety-six teaspoonfuls in a pound, and he used a teaspoonful to a cup of coffee, stingily. He paid fifty cents for a pound of tea, of 128 teaspoonfuls. He had figured out that granulated sugar cost him one-eighth of a cent for a spoonful. There were usually 240 potatoes in a bushel, and a cent's worth made a portion. He had learned where to get meat enough for one meal for ten cents, remnants, rather, but edible. He made a two-cent package of salt last him about three months, and he sprinkled eight cents' worth of pepper over as long a period. On an average his meals cost him $2.03 a week, and naturally a restaurant looked like a robber's cave to him.

He had covered pages of his notebooks with these calculations, and it was not only impossible to overcharge him, but equally impossible to give him underweight, because he knew the number of spoonfuls that ought to be in any pound of staple groceries, and he measured every pound when he got alone with it. Having a mind of that quality, it is strange—isn't it?—that he ever became a romanticist.—Harvey O'Higgins in the Century.

The estimated national expenditure in Great Britain on education, natural science, and art for the forthcoming year—1917-18—is £21,412,175.

This Letter From Newcastle

IS A MESSAGE OF GOOD CHEER TO PEOPLE SUFFERING FROM NERVOUS AND KIDNEY TROUBLES.

Newcastle, Ont., March 25.—Mr. Wilmot had been treated in hospital and at medical springs but found that cure only came when he used Dr. Chase's medicines.

His kidneys were deranged, circulation was bad, so that he suffered from cramps and the nerves were upset. By the combined use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills he was enabled to entirely restore the system to health, and thereby get rid of the many annoying symptoms.

Mr. B. W. Wilmot, Newcastle, Ont, writes:

"For the last eighteen months I have suffered from nerve and kidney troubles My hand would cramp up and also my side, and at times my hands were utterly useless. My kidneys pained and my liver was also deranged. I took doctor's medicine, was in a hospital, and even went to medical springs, but I must say that nothing has done me so much good in so short a time as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney Liver Pills. Since using this combined treatment my cramps have completely stopped and I feel a great deal better. I may also say that the word constipation need never be mentioned since the goodness of Dr. Chase's medicines has been found out by the public. You may use my letter and my name if it will aid others to profit by my experience."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, a full treatment of six boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co, Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Friends in Need.

Gov. Thomas E. Campbell, in an argument in favor of an excess profit tax, said in Phoenix:

"These fellows are great friends of the government, but when it comes to being taxed, why, then—then they're like Murphy.

"'Cheer up, man!' said Murphy to Dooley. 'Yez look as if yez didn't have a friend in the whole wurrld.'

"'Oi haven't, naythur,' Dooley groaned.

"'G'wan!' cried Murphy heartily. 'If it ain't money yez want to borry, O'm as good a frind as ever yez had.'"

Bullet-Proof Tires.

Experiments made at the Northwestern Military and Naval academy apparently show that our best pneumatic automobile tires are fairly immune from injury from rifle bullets, and it would be interesting to know how much trouble has been experienced from this cause on the European front, says the Scientific American. It is probable, however, that this is the least of the causes of trouble, and that punctures resulting from running over rough ground, and the debris of battle wrecked villages are far more serious.

THE SWEDISH KLONDIKE.

Gold and Wine Flow Freely In Haparanda.

The Tornea river is frozen over again and business is good in smugglers' haven, writes an Associated Press correspondent in Tornea, Russia. From far up in the Arctic Sundra of Lapland down to ice-filled Tornea Bay, thirty miles south of the circle, sledges drawn by reindeer, dogs and ponies are crunching across the river by night, laden to the runners with tea, coffee, rubber and sugar, all bound for Sweden, where they are worth almost their weight in gold.

Their sources are Russia and Finland, and their immediate destination Haparanda, on the Swedish side of the Tornea river, where exsailors, hotel waiters and a typical collection of frontier town types are making money hand over fist and drinking champagne for breakfast.

Haparanda is Swedish, as different from war distracted and revolution-ridden Russian Tornea as if it were hundred of miles away, instead of being separated only by a ten-minute sleigh ride in winter and a ten-minute ferry trip in summer, across the mile wide, salmon filled river. Haparanda is the Dawson of the new Klondike, and its gold comes from sledges that slip by the Russian frontier guards full of the commodities Sweden needs.

It is nearly Arctic, and, now, in the heart of winter, there is daylight only five hours. The town doesn't awaken until 10 in the morning, when the champagne—at about $12 a quart—begins flowing and bubbles in the coffee room of the hotel until 10.30 at night, when the electric lights are extinguished because Sweden is short of coal. And then it bubbles and fizzes by candlelight in bleak-looking wooden houses, warmed by porcelain stoves and made air-tight by sealed-up windows, until some one insists on breaking up the game.

Before the war Haparanda was a tiny village, a frontier customs post. The Russian frontier gendarmes were vigilant and those who slipped through from Finland with smuggled goods were very few and far between, and there was less incentive to smuggle, for Sweden imported freely from across the seas. The war made Tornea the rival of Archangel and Vladivostok as a port of entry into Russia. Haparanda shared the gain. Business buildings of wood and a large hotel that looks like a typical American small town hall sprang up almost overnight. It is still growing.

The goose that lays the golden egg that buys the wine and keeps the poker games going lives over in Finland, which, although short of food itself, permits millions of kroner worth to slip through every month.

A year ago a Swedish preacher, on an innocent mission, was shot by a Russian frontier guard. The trouble that resulted led to almost complete laxity at the frontier, and now on any dark night scores of sleighs slip across the river, unmolested, and deposit their cargoes on the Swedish side. Some of the goods go through the Sweden customs houses, and the duty is paid. Even with the Swedish duty there is tremendous profit on the shipments.

Coffee that the Finnish agents secure for ten kroner a kilo (2.20 pounds) brings twenty across the frontier. Small boys, muffled in great overcoats, waddle across the river on skiis with rubber tires for automobiles wrapped around their waists—and rubber is the most difficult of all commercial products to obtain in Sweden. Its export from Russia is forbidden.

The smugglers are the richest, but Haparanda's "Gay White Way"—the hotel—is filled always with other spenders. There are German agents—the German Consul always has a "party" at his table. Haparanda is the spot where invalid prisoners are exchanged, through the agency of Swedish Red Cross workers, and has for months been the only place where Russia was in free contact with Europe. Hence the Germans.

Here is a typical picture of any night in Haparanda when business is good on the Torneo. The coffee room is crowded early. A Serbian "kepelmeister" tunes up his violin. A young Austrian with a bass violin, and three plump, smiling German girls, with mandolins, the rest of the orchestra play American ragtime. Swedish barmaids hurry about with champagne and other wines, just as expensive.

A young Swede, with a blank-looking face, who has just made ten thousand kroner on a coffee deal, is spending it, buying for every one who will accept. At a corner table, tipsy but dignified, a group of Swedish officers stiffly reject such familiarity. At the other tables are Russian officers in civilian clothes, who have slipped across from prohibition Torneo to make a night of it; Finnish smugglers, over for the same purpose and perhaps a dozen Englishmen, Americans or Frenchmen, just escaped from Russia's troubles and stopping until the night train for Stockholm, all glad for a breath of gayety in a neutral town. And in a far corner, quietly watching it all, is an American woman, now a Russian baroness, who is marooned in Haparanda while her officer husband is held in Tornea.

This is any night—but on "punch days," the three days each month when it is permitted to sell brandy and other spirits, the line of sledges that cross to Tornea is continuous, and in the bedlam of noises the 'kappelmeister'" and his players cannot make themselves heard. So they make it unanimous and join the crowd.

AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

EASED BY SECOND DOSE OF

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all-gone" sinking feeling, or, again you may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die.

In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond question, marvellous.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N.B., writes: "I have awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At present my sister is taking them for nervousness, and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The tendency towards substitutes for wheat flour is becoming more marked in an increased demand for corn flour. The market on corn flour has stiffened, quotations on 98-lb. bags being up about 75c. Rolled oats generally are in somewhat lighter demand with ample stocks available.

SAINTE CHAPELLE.

One of the Famous Gems of French Architecture.

The news that the stained glass windows of Sainte Chapelle, that Parisian architectural gem which symbolizes the mysticism of Louis IX., have been removed to safekeeping, will give rise to universal rejoicing. Of course, to remove the windows is almost like removing the building bodily. Bess of Hardwick's retreat, "more glass than hall," was just another illustration of this palpable Gothic striving after the light of day. It is a chapel of glass, not of masonry, which serves it merely as a frame to the lofty windows. Upon it one reads the whole story of Gothic growth. The master builders of France and England felt their way timidly as they tried to adapt Romanesque to their dull climes. Romanesque was born of the brilliant East. It had small window openings. It had ponderous walls and oppressive barrel roofs, to gain more light, windows had to be widened and pointed, roofs to be gabled and high-pitched, walls to be narrowed and buttressed to withstand the new stresses and strains. Step by step the revolution went on, all through Transition, Early English, Decorated, and Perpendicular, until it culminated in the extravagance of French Flamboyant. At last the walls had all but fallen away and there stood, apparently, a church of glass!

Sainte Chapelle has strange surroundings nowadays. When it was built for Louis IX. after his return from the Crusades, which incloses it, was a royal residence, and the Hall of the Lost Footsteps, where lawyers and litigants now congregate, was then the festival hall of the monarchs. These were the days when Sainte Chapelle, deserted now except to echo the footsteps of myriads of pilgrim-tourists, saw the rubicund canons who called forth the jibes and jokes of a Boileau. To-day it is devoid of seats and its reliquary is bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard.

Gibbon tells us the whole history of the curious circumstances which led to the building of Sainte Chapelle. Baldwin, the adopted son of John of Brienne, was Emperor of Constantinople and King of Jerusalem, but, having become impoverished, he was compelled to seek pecuniary aid. Snubbed in England, he was finally reduced to such straits that he leagued himself with the Turks and pawned his son and heir at Venice as security for a debt. In these difficulties, he bethought himself of the Crown of Thorns which had long been preserved in the Imperial Chapel at Constantinople, and negotiated its sale with Louis. The Court of France travelled as far as Troyes to receive the relic. It was borne in triumph through Paris by the King barefooted, and Sainte Chapelle was projected as a shrine for the priceless object. That he might have a chapel worthy of the purpose, he issued an appeal to all the stone workers in Europe for a design. They flocked to Paris from all countries with their plans. One showed a plan which fascinated the King, for the workman had drawn a marvellous edifice, pure and simple in design, its spire springing toward heaven with that elasticity of elevation peculiar to true Gothic. The work was begun, but the architect refused to give his name, and not only shunned his fellow men but seemed to nurse some secret woe in mystery and silence. When the chapel was finished he disappeared in a monastery and only later did the world discover that his plan had been stolen from another by violence. It is, of course, only a legend, with a fault, common to many, of being an old familiar friend. A variation is written on St. Ouen at Rouen, and it is also told of Daedalus and his nephew Talus of ancient Athens.

Apart from coronation ceremonies, there have been strange and curious incidents enacted within the chapel. In 1791 the place was converted into a clubhouse by the Revolutionists. It afterward became a flour store, and the sides were lined with shelves which seriously injured the gilding, the carving, and the windows. In the Communist outbreak of 1871 the chapel narrowly escaped destruction when the Law Courts adjoining were set on fire. But the flames did not touch what is the city's most beautiful landmark of the past. Its loss, after all the centuries of preservation, by fire from the marauding enemy, would be an anti-climax indeed.

WONDERFUL BILIOUS REMEDY ACTUALLY PREVENTS ATTACKS

There are two great causes of biliousness—they are constipation and defective liver action.

When Dr. Hamilton's Pills are taken, they are not only correct constipated bowels, but act upon the liver as well.

Quite unlike ordinary medicines which purge and give temporary relief, Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the conditions which cause biliousness, and this permanent cures are effected. No person who occasionally uses Dr. Hamilton's Pills will ever suffer from the headache, bad stomach or mild but thorough in their action; do day.

Old Folks' Coughs Permanently Cured

The Public is Loud in Its Praise of the Modern Direct Breathing Cure.

Elderly people take cold easily. Unlike young folks they recover slowly, if ever. That is why so many people past middle life die of pneumonia. Even though pneumonia does not develop and kill, coughs certainly weaken all elderly people.

Cough Syrups seldom do much good because they upset digestion. Any druggist or doctor knows that a much more effective treatment is "CATARRHOZONE," which heals and soothes the irritated surfaces of the throat.

In using Catarrhozone you do not take medicine into the stomach—you simply breathe into the throat, nose and lungs rich piney balsamic vapor, so full of healing power that colds, catarrh and bronchitis disappear almost instantly.

"At sixty-eight years of age I can testify that I am never troubled with coughs or colds," writes J. E. Pilgrim, of Kingston. "They used to be the bain of my life, and that was before I used Catarrhozone, which was recommended to me by C. L. Prouse, druggist. To use Catarrhozone is just like being in an immense pine woods. The balsamic vapor of Catarrhozone is like a tonic, it is so stimulating to the breathing organs, so soothing to sore spots, so full of power to drive out colds and congestion. I will always use and recommend Catarrhozone as a preventive and cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, throat irritation and catarrh.

(Signed) "J. E. PILGRIM."

A Catarrhozone Inhaler in your pocket or purse enables you to stop a cold; $1.00 and supplies treatment costs $1.00 and supplies treatment for two months; small size, 50c.; trial size 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists. The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Tasmanian Mammals.

There is a species of mammals in Tasmania the females of which lay eggs, from which the young are hatched like the young of birds. This mammal, the echidna, is perhaps of the lowest order of mammals, and is a kind of connecting link between mammals and reptiles. They are about the size of a baby porcupine, are covered with strong spines set thickly all over their skins, and by way of a nose they have a slender and narrow beck of white horn. The echidna has very long sharp claws, with which it digs a deep burrow. In this burrow it builds a nest for its young and deposits one or two eggs, which are enclosed in a strong flexible shell three-fourths of an inch in length by two-thirds of an inch in diameter.—Family Herald.

In Germany.

The wife of a German Reichstag member had two sons who were in the habit of taking the pretty nurse maid out for a good time. The boys would not own up to it when she tried to caution them lest their father learn of the situation. She then went to the pretty nurse and by a little finesse disarmed her of thinking she was displeased. "Minna," she said, "which of the boys do you like to go out with best, Rupprecht or Wilhelm?" "Well," said the maid, "I think I prefer Rupprecht, but for a real good time I like your husband best."

Free notepaper in Church Army huts costs £15,000 annually.

Superstition Concerning Caul.

It used to be the belief that a child "born with a caul" would turn out very fortunate, and that the caul itself would bring luck to those who purchased it. Even lawyers used to buy them at high prices, as a means of making them eloquent, but their chief virtue always has lain in the fact that they were supposed to be an infallible amulet against death by drowning. Hence in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries there was a great demand for them in the British navy.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years old, had bronchitis and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for her and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

Packing the Soil.

It has been estimated by authorities that a man weighing 170 pounds, wearing No. 8 shoes, creates a pressure of 14 pounds to the square inch of surface where he steps. A horse weighing 1,400 pounds creates a pressure of approximately 18 to 38 pounds per square inch under his hoofs while pulling an average load. A tractor weighing in the neighborhood of 1,800 pounds exerts a pressure only about ten pounds to the square inch.

Authentic Bronte Relic.

An interesting relic of Charlotte Bronte, the novelist, has been presented to the museum at Haworth, England. It is a traveling trunk used by Charlotte Bronte. Inside is a label giving the maker's name and address in Brussels, and there is little doubt the trunk accompanied Charlotte on her journeys between Monsieur Heger's Pensionnat in the Rue d'Isabelle in that city, and her home at the Haworth rectory.

Red Heads Have the Advantage.

Many physicians of note are responsible for the assertion that the red-headed are more resistant to disease than less fiery-haired persons, and Sir Arbuthnot Lane expresses the view that "a disease becomes less virulent in type when it gains entrance into the body of a red-head than when it attacks a person with hair of a more modest color."

Whence Grammar Came.

The world reached its highest known stage of intelligence before grammar was even invented, much less studied, Ernest C. Moore writes in the Yale Review. I have had some curiosity to find out where and how so great a blight upon young life first came into being, and why it ever became a school study, and I find that the Greeks knew it not; that their triumphant literature and their matchless oratory came to flower before grammar was dreamed of; that it was not in any sense one of the great arts which they wrought out and with which they armed the human race; that after Greece had declined, a barbarous Macedonian made himself owner of all Egypt, and in order to surround himself with the most spectacular form of ostentation of which his vain mind could conceive he set to collecting not only all the rare and precious objects and books and manuscripts there were in the world, but he capped it all by making a collection of the living men of the world who had any reputation anywhere for knowing and thinking.

Taking them from their homes where they had some relation in the daily necessities of human beings and had really been of some use, he shut them up for life in one of his palaces at Alexandria, which the folks were in the habit of calling "the pencoop of the muses"; and out of sheer desperation, since they could do nothing better to amuse themselves, they counted the words in the books which real men had written, and prepared tables of the forms and endings which the users of words employed. The lifeless dregs of books which their distilling left we now call grammar, and study instead of books and even speech itself. In their lowest depth of indifference to the moving, pulsing life of man, not even the Alexandrians sanks so low as that.

Restoring French Farms.

The damaged industries and the upheaval and exhausted farm lands of France, it is thought now, may be restored to their full productive capacity within five years after the conclusion of peace, with the exception of the denuded forests and the most gravely wasted land in the immediate vicinity of the line where the front has been practically stationary for more than three years.

These are some of the elements upon which they count to make up for what France will have lost: Continued and developed use of female labor in industries; entrance of youths into active business and industry at an earlier age; greater activity and consequent greater productive capacity of all categories of workers; and an enormous extension of the use of modern labor-saving equipment in the factory and on the farm.

The development of water power will contribute immensely to fill the void in industrial facilities while five year's recruits of boys coming to age for active participation in the country's affairs is expected to replace at least a third of the wastage in human material.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease

LADY'S KIMONO WAIST.

The slip-on blouse has evidently come to stay, for everybody is wearing it, either for sports or dressy wear, and it is made up in Georgette as well as in linen. A particularly graceful style is shown in No. 8728. The kimono waist which is worn underneath has the closing at centre back and the sleeves are long and close fitting. The overblouse is to be slipped over head, and the U-shaped neck is cut low enough to allow it to go on comfortably. The armholes are cut very deep and all edges are finished with a simple but very decorative blanket stitch. Large pockets are stitched at the sides and a narrow belt completes the trim effect.

The lady's kimono waist pattern No. 8728 is cut in three sizes—36, 40 and 44 inches bust measure. The 36 inch size requires 1½ yards of 36 inch for the kimono waist and 2 yards 36 inch for the overblouse.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, APRIL 29, 1918

HEAVY FIGHTING CONTINUES ON THE WESTERN FRONT

NEWEST RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT DENOUNCES PEACE TREATY

THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN PUSHED BACK WITH HEAVY LOSSES

Week-end Reports From the Front Are Distinctly Heartening--Ypres May Have to Be Abandoned.

A FINAL PUSH

LONDON, April 29 (via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—Week-end reports from the front are distinctly heartening, showing that the Germans have been prevented from exploiting the Kemmel success, thanks to the stout Anglo-French resistance. On the whole, the Germans have been pushed back somewhat, losing even heavier than they did in the storming of Mount Kemmel. The French at Locre and the British at Voormezeele, two local points of fighting, fought with the most furious tenacity. Little doubt is entertained that the enemy having failed to roll up the British army from Givenchy to Arras, has decided to strike nothward for the coast with all his weight. Reuters correspondent at British Headquarters says that whether the enemy attempts to carry strongly defended hills by frontal attack or reduce them by converging movement, he will find the operation of the closliest kind.

Writers in London discuss with regret the possibility of the abandonment of Ypres, so long the northern buttress of the Allied line, drenched with British blood as no other battlefield, but they emphasize that it is for Foch to decide whether it is too costly to hold or so vital that every effort must be made to recover the positions whence Germans are now threatening it.

"Bill" Watched the Battle.

(Special to The Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, April 29. — The Kaiser watched the Kemmel battle early Thursday morning from an "advanced position," Karl Rosner, the Kaiser's favourite war correspondent declares in the Lokal Anzeizer. Rosner says the Kaiser followed the details of the battle "by eyesight and telegraphically," marking them down on his map. He remained on the battle front until afternoon.

A Final Push.

(Special to The Examiner.)

ROME, April 29.—"The Germans are preparing for a final push," declared the Zurich correspondent of the Corriere D'Italia. "They are ready to sacrifice thousands of their men. All available troops have been drawn from their garrisons. Even the little Grand Duchy of Tippe furnished two divisions (24,000 men), while Wurtemburg furnished eight.

"Despite German denials, Austrian devisions have crossed the Brenner Pass en route to Flanders.

"The enemy is determined to stake all on a great effort before the full strength of America materializes."

S. O. S. Signals.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Ajril 29 (Reuter's) — British troops around Ypres several times after dawn this morning sent up S.O.S. signals for artillery support. Although no definite report of infantry attack in this region has yet been received, tremendous German bombardment points to certainty of a German attempt to advance.

INTENSE SHELLING

Germans Opened An Attack This Morning Beginning at the North —S. O. S. Calls

(United Press.)

(By William Phillip Simms.)

Ten o'c.ock despatch.

With the British Armies in Flanders, April 29.—The French in the Mount Kemmell region, who were heavily shelled all last night, reported a violent bombardment beginning early to-day. Later S.O.S. signals, indicating an attack, and calling on the artillery for support, went up from this part of the line. Two similar calls were received from the region of Ypres and later from Locre.

At three o'clock this morning the Germans began a hurricane bombardment of the British and French lines from Ypres southward to Lys.

Various allied divisions sent up S.O.S. rockets. At five o'clock the shelling became extraordinarily intense. The Germans were opening fire by sectors, beginning at the north. As this is cabled it is too early to describe any of the developments

Technical Difficulties In Way—Education Campaign Has Had Effect on Motorists.

The clause in the Ontario Highway Act giving the Government power to prohibit motorists carrying any lighting device with a blinding glare is not to be brought into effect, owing to technical difficulties, but the Government announces that the tentative adoption of the statute has drawn attention to the matter, and a large proportion of car owners seeking to avoid offensive lights have procured lenses and other devices which moderate the glare, so that the difficulty is largely curing itself.

Americans Are With The French

Censor Lifts the Curtain Revealing American Forces in New Positions—Sectors Formally Taken Over

COUNTRY IS OPEN

(By Fred F. Ferguson.)

With the American Army in Northern France, April 29—The American forces are now fighting beside the French in northern France, holding a sector in the heart of the world's greatest battle. This announcement is now made possible after three weeks' silence regarding movements of troops.

Infantry, artillery, machine gunners and other branches of the service are in the line.

FACE THE GERMANS.

The Americans face the German army at the peak of a German salient. The outposts are only 200 yards apart at some places. At some points the American positions are maintained in shell holes.

As soon as all troops and guns were in positions the sector was formerly taken over from the French. The American commander, who is under a French corps commander, expressed the greatest confidence in French leadership.

The entire country here is open and rolling with very few woods or other facilities, and no trenches; the entire problem is one of open fighting.

The Boche artillery, which is active in shelling all roads and villages within range, is visible from an American observation post.

FURTHER RESTRICTIONS ON THE USE OF SUGAR AND SHORTENING

Candy Manufacturers Will Be Cut Down to One Half the Monthly Average of Sugar Used Last Year

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, April 29.— Drastic war time restrictions on the use of sugar and shortening in the manufacture of biscuits, candy, cakes or sweet dough products, the entire prohibition of manufacture of certain of these products, the curtailment of the sugar consumption of candy manufacturers to one half the monthly average used by them last year, the limitation of the amount of fats and sugar in the manufacture of ice cream. Such are the principal provisions of an order just issued by the Canada Food Board.

The new regulations are intended to readjust Canada's consumption of sugar to the available supply, and to prepare for the requirements of the canning and preserving seasons. The use of fats is curtailed because of the increasing need for edible fats overseas. Further restrictions are made on the use of wheat flour in the manufacture of candy and sweet dough products. After June the first all manufacturers of candy, cake and sweet stuffs must be licensed by the Canada Food Board.

Germans Opened a Heavy Bombardment This Morning—Important Attacks Developing

GAS SHELLS USED

LONDON, April 29.— (Official.) — The Germans this morning opened a heavy bombardment with high explosives and gas shells on the entire front between Meteren and Voormezeele, south and south-west of Ypres. Infantry attacks developed shortly afterward.

THE STATEMENT READS.

An enemy attack which developed yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of Locre, west of Mount Kemmel, was repulsed. There was great activity by hostile artilelry during last night from the River Scarpe, opposite Arras, north of Lens and between Givenchy and Nieppe Wood, on the south side of the Lys battle front.

ATTACKS DEVELOPING.

Hostile attack reported developing yesterday afternoon in the neighbourhood of Locre was repulsed by rifle and machine gun fire. A heavy bombardment with heavy explosive and gas shells was opened by the enemy this morning on the whole front from Meteren to Voormezeele, and attacks are now developing.

POST RECAPTURED.

The hostile artillery has also shown great activity during the night from the River Scarpe to Lens and between Givenchy and Forest of Nieppe. By successful enterprise carried out by us last night a post in the neighbourhood of Festubert, captured by the enemy on the night of April 26-27, was retaken by us, together with over fifty prisoners. A number of prisoners and four machine guns were also secured by us in successful raids south of Albert and in the neighbourhood of Neuville Vitasse.

LIEUT. SORSOLIEL NOW A CAPTAIN

Achieved His Tenth Victory Recently and is Only 18 Years Old

Lieut. Jack Sorsoleil, M.C., son of Mr. M. A. Sorsoleil, formerly of the Peterborough Public School staff, and now Principal of the Normal Model School, has been promoted to a captaincy in the Royal Flying Corps.

The young aviator has seen only six months' service at the front, and his work earned him a Military Cross on March 1, after he had seven victories to his credit. Entering the corps early last year as the youngest cadet that has passed through the training school at Burwash Hall and Camp Borden, Lt. Sorsoleil showed a marked aptitude for aerial work from the outset, his record being free from any accidents. He received his training at Camps Mohawk and Borden, and after going overseas six weeks' preparation in England was sufficient to fit him for service in France.

Gallant Work in the Air.

Before Christmas Lt. Sorsoleil had four victories to his credit, and the toll of Hun planes rose steadily until he figured in a fight with ten enemy machines late in February, accompanied only by two British planes. For sending two of the Germans crashing down, the decoration of the Military Cross was conferred. One of the machines was a two-seater which was brought down behind the British lines.

The news of the latest honour was contained in a cable received by the aviator's father, Mr. M. A. Sorsoleil, 281 Grace street, Principal of the Normal Model School. Lt. Sorsoleil was educated at the Model School, and matriculated from the University of Toronto schools, joining the flying corps immediately afterward. "Jack" was for several years prominent in the activities of the boys' department of Central Y.M.C.A.

China Will Send A Million Men

Special to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 29.—China will send a million well-trained fighting men to the French front as soon as the Allies call for them and furnish transportation, according to Admiral K. H. Li, who left for a Pacific port to-day after accomplishing an important official mission in this country.

FRENCH OFFICIAL

German Attempts To Advance Were Checked By French Fire—Artillery Activity

PRISONERS TAKEN

PARIS, April 29.—(Official.)— The Germans made several attempts last night to advance on French positions in Hangard Wood, on the front before Amiens, but were checked by French fire.

THE STATEMENT FOLLOWS.

"During the night the Germans attempted several times to attack French positions in Hangard Wood. Our fire checked all their efforts. There was great activity of artillery on both sides between Villers Bretonneux and the Luce River, and in the region between Lassigny and Noyon. A German raid north of Grivemer was without result. French detachments penetrated the German lines in the vicinity of Corbeny, near Courcy, on the right bank of the Meuse, and in Upper Alsace, bringing back prisoners. There was very heavy artillery fighting at Fosses Wood and Caurieres Wood, on the Verdun front. On the remainder of the front the night passed in quiet.

Former 93rd Bandsman Is Now A Casualty

Pte. Harry Worrall is Reported Dangerously Wounded

Pte. Harry Worrall, a well known former member of the 93rd Battalion Band, is officially reported dangerously wounded, word from Ottawa to that effect having been received by his wife, residing at 268 1-2 McDonnel street. The official message states that Pte. Worrall is dangerously ill and admitted to No. 18 General Hospital, Camieres, on April 25th, suffering from a gunshot wound in the back.

Pte. Worrall was among the first to enlist in the band of the 93rd Battalion. He went overseas as a member of that unit and returned to Canada with the 93rd Band at Christmas, 1916. The band was on its return, attached to the 247th, and when that battalion was amalgamated with the 235th, Pte. Worrall returned overseas with Lieut.-Col. Scobell's unit and was transferred to another Canadian battalion in France. He was one of the most popular members of Bandmaster Hughes' organization and was the life of every gathering he got into.

Important Meeting Of The Veterans

There will be an important special meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association to-night at 8 o'clock in the sergeants' mess room of the armouries for the purpose of deciding what part the Veterans will take in the reception to His Excellency the Governor-General on May 6th.

An Explanation To Our Subscribers

Statement Regarding the Late Delivery of the Examiner in Some Sections

War times have brought difficulties in production to many manufacturing concerns, and the printer and publisher has not been exempt. The Examiner, together with a number of other Ontario dailies, has been having its difficulties during the past month. At this time of the year, between seasons, considerable trouble exists in the feeding of the paper even with the best of stock, but as is the fact a car of newspaper stock of doubtful quality has aggravated conditions to a greater extent than is usually the case, thereby causing in some localities later delivery of The Examiner than should exist for a daily paper.

Under the circumstances the news boys have not been to blame in any way, and it is hoped that the difficulties will be overcome in a very short while.

TURKEY HAS OFFERED TO SIGN PEACE NEGOTIATIONS WITH RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT

Action is Credited to Germany Who Could Use Turk Troops to Advantage—New Government Reported in Russia.

A SERIOUS BREACH

(United Press Service.)

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, April 23. — Despite the Caucasian declaration of war, Turkey has again offered to begin peace negotiations with the Russian Government, proposing that they be concluded at Trebizond. This action can be explained as resulting from a hint from Germany—which needs all the Turk troops it can obtain.

This despatch is the first received from Shaplen since early in the month. It shows the unusual delay in cable news from Russia.

SERIOUS BREACH.

(By Jos. Shaplen.)

(United Press.

PETROGRAD, April 29.—Germany's brazen rule in Ukrane is hastening the branch between the Rada government and Berlin.

The most serious disagreement has broken out in the Ukra'German Commission at Kieff. Germany demanded that land be taken from Ukrainian peasantry and returned to landlords, and that all stores of bread be transferred to Germany.

Col. Von Kronenblem and Lieut. Von Ffeder, the German representatives, also demanded part of all future harvest.

A REPUBLIC.

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Germany has demanded of Russia an exchange of prisoners and has threatened to take Petrograd unless the Russian Government agrees to the terms advanced, the State Department here has learned. Moscow despatches say German and Austrian war prisoners there are discussing a republic for the Central Empires.

NEW GOVERNMENT.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, April 29. — The newest Russian government in Petrograd, according to "Aftonbladet," of Copenhagen, has denounced the Brest-Litovsky treaty with Germany. It calls for new treaty with Esthonia under Russian rule.

An Associated Press despatch from Stockholm Saturday, reports a rumour that former Grand Duke Alexis has been declared Emperor of Russia in a counter revolution.

Fate Plays A Cruel Joke On Winnipeg Soldier's Wife

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, April 29.—Fate has played a cruel joke on a twenty-year-old Winnipeg girl who became the bride last fall of Pte. Ernest Rowe, the legless war hero. She is the central figure to-day in a war mystery, the solution of which may shatter the happiness of their little home at 465 Logan avenue, where she and her crippled husband have been living since their romantic marriage last fall.

FIRST HUSBAND REPORTED LIVING.

Word has come that her first husband, whose death in battle was officially reported to her a year ago last July, is alive.

Mrs. Eva Rowe's first husband was Pte. Stanton I. Robinson, to whom she was married when she was eighteen years old. Soon after the wedding Pte. Robinson went overseas and he had been in France only a few weeks when the official notice came from the War Office that he had been killed in action.

Germany Is Preparing To Launch Whispering Campaign

Huns Attempt to Stir Up Trouble in India and Persia—A Tremendous Propaganda.

COUNTER OFFENSIVE

(By Robt. Bender.)

Washington, April 29.—Germany's bloody effort to split the British and French armies in the west, will soon be followed by a tremendous propaganda effort directed to the same end.

Diplomatic advices to-day indicate that the Teuton is laying his plans for a "whispering offensive" of treachery as carefully as he prepared the gigantic military effort in Flandes and Picardy.

For the advanced guard of the propaganda assaults it appears Germany will follow two courses—offer to arrange for a settlement of French lands, to Russia, now apparently lost, and stir up dissatisfaction with England for "starting the war, and then not doing her share."

Advices here indicate that much of the new propaganda is emanating from Switzerland.

PREPARING FOR FUTURE.

The Germans apparently preparing for the future, have organized a virtual army of propagandists in Persia, in an effort to demoralize the allied people there.

By creating trouble there, at the rear door of India, Germany believes she may hasten her expected realization of a dominated east.

President Wilson, in his Baltimore address, warned of Germany's purposes to ultimately enslave under her power Persia and India. The allied chiefs here to-day warned gravely that German propaganda directed to this end is now under way, and the allies must act.

It is now evident, according to diplomatic advices, that Germany seeing the prospect of a long struggle in the west, is trying to create in Russia, India, etc., as will find the allies after eighteen months more engaged in a dozen struggles, each almost equal in importance to that on the fields of the west.

To beat the Germans in this campaign, the allied and America leaders here are suggesting a strong allied offensive in Italy or Macedonia. This might be made sufficiently strong to disengage Germany's undisturbed movements in Russia, which ultimately, it is believed by many here will result in the pressing of thousands of Russians on the side of the Germans.

The more Hindenburg bleeds his Germans in the west the greater will become his demand for more men from Austia and fighters from Bulgaria. The Austrians have sent but few men to date, and the Bulgars are fighting only in defence of their own territory. Official advices say an allied offensive in Italy or Macedonia would stop any possible troop movements from these nations westward, it is held.

Frank Jenne Says:

The man who enters my store may leave doubt behind. The man who purchases a Semi-ready suit or overcoat isn't timid or suspicious. He knows he is securing suit value of the staunchest type, and, this value includes perfect lines reinforced by the craftsmanship which has come down to Semi-ready through years of critical production. "Come to me."

POSITIONS FOR RETURNED MEN.

Returned men, wishing employment, are invited to consider the following positions, now open. If interested communicate direct, and promptly. This information is forwarded to the local officer of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, and may be relied on as authentic. Address as follows:

E. C. Lambert, Canadian Copper Cliffe, Ont., a typist for night work, (no stenography). Wages 42 cents per hour.

H. O. Symms, Horton Co., Chippewa, Ont., fifteen men, as furnace operators; 40c per hour; with an 8 hour day.

C. P. R., Trenton, Ont., clerk for stores, 30c per hour. Apply to Mr. Donaldson, room 293, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

Germans Laid Up For Repairs

Majority of the Germans Already Have Shared in the Offensive —Battered Divisions Being Built Up

NEW CLASSES CALLED

(By Wm. Phillip Simms.)

Ten O'clock Despatch:

With the British armies in France, April 29. — Practically seven-ninths of the fit German divisions on the west front have appeared in the fighting, either on the Somme or the Lys front, since Hindenburg loosed his drive on March 21st.

About 35 fresh divisions (420,000 men) have been thrown agaist the allies on the northern front, and about 100 divisions (1,200,000 men) on the southern.

As about 20 enemy divisions are unfit of the 205, (2,500,000 men) on the west front, it is plain the majority of the Germans already have shared in the offensive.

EXPLAINS THE LULL.

This explains the lull in the fighting. The tired demand rest and these units which were slashed up are undergoing repairs, the gaps being filled with receipts from the field depots of the interior.

One must not get the idea that the divisions mentioned are definitely used up, although at least 133 of the 195 fit divisions have been in the fighting.

Hindenburg has been busy during April in building up and making fresh divisions from the battered ones. This is the meaning of the long quiet period on the southern battle front. Perhaps 40 divisions which were used on the Somme are already to return to the lines.

The ship on which they sailed was torpedoed yesterday morning and sank in twelve minutes. All passengers and all but three of the crew were saved.

HEAVY PENALTIES FOR HOARDING OF FLOUR

The new flour regulations permit city consumers to have in their possession sufficient flour for fifteen days' requirements. Surplus stocks now held must be resold to the dealers from whom it was purchased, and at the market price on April 20th. For the violation of this order an offender may be fined not less than $100 or more than $1,000, or three months' imprisonment, or both a fine and imprisonment.

BANDSMEN, ATTENTION

It has been decided to increase the present strength of the 57th Regt. Band from 30 men to 50, and with this object in view all bandsmen in the City are cordially invited to become members. Instruments provided and all the privileges of first-class quarters at the Armouries accorded new men as well as every assistance in securing positions. Rehearsals every Tuesday and Friday. GIBSON SHOWS THE WAY.

Canadians have always been proud of George "Moose" Gibson, crack baseball catcher and one of the few Canadians to make a name for himself in Major League baseball. The announcement from New York that the famous catcher has enlisted for overseas service with the American Army will make the people on this side of the line more proud than ever of the big fellow from London, Ont., whose name is a household one in baseball circles. A New York despatch says that in enlisting Gibson has made the greatest sacrifice of any big league player, pointing out that he is married and over the draft age, and that in exchanging the uniform of the Giants for the khaki of the United States Army he is not only giving up a big salary but also sacrificing an almost certain chance of obtaining $3,000 or $4,000 in world's series money at the end of the present season. Gibson, however, decided to get into the big game overseas and instead of being with a baseball battery he is now Captain of a Battery of United States artillery. Thousands of Canadian fans will honour Gibson for his choice and unite in wishing the star catcher a safe return.

OVER WELL KNOWN GROUND.

Peterborough's returned soldiers, especially those who saw service in France and Belgium previous to the summer of 1916, are following the progress of the great battle in Flanders with probably more intense interest than any other section of the city's population. For these men of the first, second and third Canadian Divisions, it is hard to realize that the struggle is taking place over ground that in their time at the front, was far behind the firing line. They can scarcely credit the fact that the Huns' drive has won possession of Kemmel Hill, that Locre, in whose buildings the 21st Battalion used to billet, has been the scene of a terrible battle, that the cemetery of the 21st and other battalions of the 4th Canadian Infantry brigade at Ridgewood, must be in the enemy's hands, that St. Eloi, where the 2nd Canadian Division had its first big clash with the Germans, is once more held by the enemy, and that the fighting has reached as far as Voormezeele only two miles southeast of Ypres itself. To the Peterborough men who were in the salient during all the hard battles of the early days of the war, the whole district is as well known as the streets upon which they live, and so it is that every scrap of news from the battle line brings to them a thrill that cannot be felt by those who have never fought there. They can imagine how conditions are in Poperinghe or Westoutre, or Boescheppe, or Goedesvervelde just now, with the German heavies seaching the back areas. Roads that used to be safe, where men could walk boldly when the Canadians were first there, are now shattered and wrecked.

Concerned as they are by a realization of what has happened, Peterborough's returned men are confident that the enemy will not break through to the channel ports. They will find in Philip Gibbs' message from the firing line a confirmation of their confidence. The famous war correspondent cables that the enemy is making slow progress and that every attack is costing him an immense price.

THE SERVICES OF SUNDAY

Being An Interesting and Frank Statement of a Man Who Wished to Go to Worship Yesterday But Did Not

I came to this city some time ago, and being anxious to play the part of a good citizen I seek to regard the seventh day "as the Sabbath of the Lord my God" and as the day set apart by "earthly authorities" for rest and quiet. I am like Will Carleton's "first settler" who on the Lord's day:

"Shaved and dress as well's he could,
And did a day's work trying to be good."

I wanted to go to a place of worship last Sunday, and purchasing a local paper I sat down to decide "where to go to church." The task was greater than I had ever dreamed it might be. I was as perplexed as I used to be in the olden days when at certain stations my carpet bag would be seized by one cabman and my overcoat by another and I would stand like the character described by the Apostle James who must not think that he shall receive anything of the Lord being unstable in all his ways. Whether I was to receive anything of the Lord or not I was offered many things by men. The advertisements for the Sunday puzzled me beyond measure. One church offered a discourse on "Danger Signals and Perils of the Sea," but those very things had haunted me all the week. The submarine had faced me in every paper I had read for months. I had dreamed of it, I had been fed up on the perils of the sea to such an extent that to submit to any consideration of it on Peterborough's peaceful Sabbath, even with a "splendid programme of very appropriate music" thrown in, seemed to me like putting myself in perils by mine own countrymen.

Another church offered the presence of the Black Knights, and still another a parade of the Oddfellows, but in a neighbouring column I saw that shortly another church would repeat "Hunker's Corners" and that the "coloured assistant" would be there and that there would be a disappearing act, and that "The Tramp" would just help himself. I got the Oddfellows and the tramp and the Black Knights and the coloured assistant so mixed up that I decided that a restful, helpful hour must be sought elsewhere. I turned to another column where I read that "What Jesus Taught Regarding His Second Coming" would be laid before the people, but with sorrow of heart I have to confess that I have by no means made full use of what I have been taught regarding his first coming, and consequently I had to "pass up" what was said to have "engaged the attention of Christian people in all times of great upheaval through the centuries."

Still another church had an attraction. Would I not come and hear one of undoubted scholarship who would prove beyond all possibility of contradiction that at this very hour that people were running to and fro on the earth and that the Jews are beating it back to Jerusalem. I had already read a book which supported the contention that the people were running to and fro, with the statement that in 1895 the United States railroads had carried 535,120,756 passengers. I believed it all, and I was perfectly willing to bid a more or less sorrowful farewell to certain Jews if they were determined to hoof it to the ancient city, but I was not attracted by the programme for an evening of worship. I had scarcely reached this conclusion when I read in big black type the astounding declaration that I might sit in an absolutely free seat and without having my feelings jarred by the presentation of any collection plate. I might hear that "the world has already ended and that millions now living would never die." This paid advertisement was supplemented by a local which urged me to attend and hear a "heart cheering message" with conclusive Biblical proof of future blessing for those who perish on the battlefield, whether they die Christians or not." The note concluded: "This message will bring joy and comfort to every heart." I decided in a moment that the author "did protest too much" and that his message would have no opportunity to bring comfort to my heart.

I was about to drop the paper when my eye was attracted by one more bid for my presence. A certain church proposed to let me hear a magistrate reading the first lesson and a judge reading the second (not from the pulpit of course) and also to see the reeve and council of North Monaghan actually attending church, if only I would occupy one of their pews.

Well—It is now Sunday night and I occupied no pew at all. I have an unshaken faith in God the Father, and in Jesus Christ the Saviour, and in the ministry of the Holy Spirt, the Comforter and Teacher, but I am not enamoured of the ways of men.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

In selecting vocational training as a subject for discussion at their meeting on Thursday night the Board of Trade has chosen a topic that should provide a most interesting evening's debate, out of which it is hoped that some practical results will ensue. Vocational training, as applied to returned soldiers, will be the principal feature of the discussion, and there are so many angles to the subject that it is fortunate that the Board of Trade has afforded this opportunity of having the matter publicly discussed.

The chief drawback to the scheme of vocational training for soldiers inaugurated by the Military Hospitals Commission and which is being carried on by the Soldiers Civic Re-establishment Department is that it is not extensive enough in its scope. In its present form it is designed only for those soldiers who are unable to follow their previous occupation after discharge and the greatest difficulty the returned man has is to convince the medical officer who decides this point that he is really unfit to go back to his former employment. "You have to have your head cut off almost, before they will give you a chance" was the way one Peterboro soldier referred to the matter after a fruitless interview with the vocational training officer, and this exaggerated remark reflects the difficulty of getting recommended for a course of re-education.

As the system is at present no opportunity is given the returned man, who is anxious to better himself in life to do so, unless he has been so badly injured that he cannot carry on the work he was doing when he enlisted. Many of the men who went overseas were employed as labourers. On their return they do not want to go back to their former employment. Naturally they would like a better position in life, feeling that their services to the country have earned for them a chance to carry out their ambitions. It is certain that the counry owes these men an opportunity to earn a livelihood and, if possible, a better livelihood than before they went out to battle with liberty. Many of them are young men, to whom a course of vocational training would be of invaluable assistance, but to whom the courses are barred, because the medical officers have decided that there is nothing in their physical condition to prevent them from resuming their old employment.

There are many problems in connection with the matter. The question of what occupation a man might be trained for is a medical question, as well as an economic one, touching the law of supply and demand. There are a number of occupations for which it is not difficult ti each men, but it does not follow that employment can readily be obtained in them.

One method that has been adopted is of placing men for training in private workshops, but it is doubtful if this has proved very satisfactory. There is no guarantee that real instruction will be afforded, and in many cases a man who has been recomended for a three or four months' course, under such circumstances, has really learned very little. He may be anxious to learn motor mechanics, for instance, and is placed in a garage whose proprietor, knowing that he is receiving a government allowance, pays him little or no wages, at the same time expecting him to do the same work as the other employees of the concern. He learns something about simple repairs to one or two makes of cars, and that is about all. His course has practically been wasted as far as fitting him for accepting a better position is concerned.

These are a few of the points in regard to the vocational scheme that will likely be discussed on Thursday along with the practibility of the government establishing a vocational training school in this city.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If the new Russian revolution succeeds there will be much gnashing of teeth in the Wilhelmstrasse.

The article from the local Fuel Commission published in this issue, contains many useful suggestions. Citizens should preserve this study of the fuel situation for future guidance.

Dr. McFall, new Cost of Living Commissioner, should know something about monopolies, as he has been lecturing on their regulation at Minnesota University. He will have a chance to test his theories now.

From the difficulty the Toronto ball club is having in signing players for this year's team, one would imagine Dan Howley was recruiting for the army rather than for the International League.

The Germans announce that no damage was done by the British naval raid on Zeebrugge, which was probably the reason why the German admiral who was in command there has been dismissed, and why the Kaiser made a hurried trip to inspect the harbour.

A Comfortable House To Rent

Just what a number of good people are looking for at the present time. If you will judiciously invest in a home, that three or four hundred dollars, more or less that is only earning you a small rate of interest you will not have to pay rent; you do not have to vacate at the behest of a landlord or an incoming purchaser. At the present time, millions of feet of lumber, as well as other building material is being contracted for in Canada for future shipment. This means advancing values. NOW is the time to buy; no prospect of values lowering. Every prospect of an advance. I have a number of homes for sale. Here is just one sample:

BIBLE CONFERENCE OPENS IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Much Interest Shown—Special Meeting For the Children —The Jewish Question Dealt With—Services Will Continue

Two great themes were dealt with yesterday at the opening sessions of the Bible Conference that is to be held this week in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, one being discussed at the morning service and the other in the evening. In the morning the speaker, Rev. Lewis Sperry Chafer, of East Orange, N.J., made clear some very vital Christian truths in regard to the work of the Holy Spirit in the life of the believer. Basing his remarks on the concluding verses of the second chapter of 1st Corinthians, and the first few verses of the third chapter, Rev. Mr. Chafer pointed out that the apostle divide men into three great classes. First, there is the natural man who has not been born again, who, because he is dead spiritually, is unable to understand spiritual things. Second, there is the carnal man. This man has accepted Christ as his atonement, has been born again, is indwelt by the Holy Spirit but is living after the way of the world. He has not fully surrendered himself unto God and lives a life of powerlessness in all the more important spiritual matters. Such men Paul was speaking to when he said, "And I brethren could not speak unto you as unto spiritual but as unto carnal even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk and not with meat: for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able."

The Third Class.

The third class is the spiritual man who has not only been born again, but has fully consecrated himself unto God and yielded his life to God to be used as God wills. This man receives the filling of the Holy Spirit and is able to live a life of power and service, and have victory over the sinful tendencies and inclinations which control the natural man and largely the carnal man.

The text used by Rev. Mr. Chafer was based on the words, "He that is spiritual." The discussion of this subject will be continued throughout the afternoon meetings this week. In explanation of the work of the Spirit Rev. Mr. Chafer said that Christians are such because they are related to Christ as Saviour. Christians that are spiritual are such because they are rightly related to the Spirit. Every Christian is born of the Spirit; baptized of the Spirit; indwelt of the Spirit; and sealed of the Spirit. These ministries of the Spirit are all performed once for all at the moment one is saved. They form a part of the whole work of God that is called "salvation." It is quite different to be "filled with the Spirit," or to have the Spirit "upon" us. This is the key to the life of power and blessing, and it is provided for every Christian. Being filled with the Spirit depends on certain well defined conditions according to the Bible.

At the meeting this afternoon and to-morrow afternoon Mr. Chafer will present from the Scriptures exactly what the Spirit accomplishes in a Chistian whom He fills. The closing days of the conference will be given to the conditions upon which all this may be realized.

The Jewish Question.

In opening the series of addresses on prophecy, Mr. Chafer spoke last night on "The consolation of Israel." "This," he stated, "was the expectation of the Messiah and King with the earthly kingdom that had been covenanted to David and foreseen by all the prophets of the Old Testament. From all these writers this was to be an earthly kingdom for Israel and the fulfilling of the promises for an unending reign of David's Son, the Messiah." Mr. Chafer gave extended expositions of several important Old Testament passages. Among these were the seventh chapter of 2nd Samuel recording the covenant made with David; the 89th Psalm, in which the Davidic covenant is confirmed; Deuteronomy, chapters 28 and 30, which reveal the prophecy of Moses concerning the dispersion and final regathering of Israel into their own land. He also gave some of the visions of the Kingdom from the prophets and closed with the 72nd Psalm with its description of the King and His Kingdom as it will be set up in the earth.

To-night Mr. Chafer will give an address on the offer of the kingdom to Israel, at the first coming of Christ, and of the rejection by that nation of their kingdom. The evening services this week will be on prophecy, its present fulfillment and the Signs of the Times.

Special Service for Children.

In the afternoon a special service was held for the primary and adult bible classes of the Sabbath school. Rev. Mr. Chafer's address was a clear, simple, clear-cut gospel message. The main point emphasized was that we are not saved because we live a good life but because we believe in Christ. Rev. Mr. Chafer is a Presbyterian minister and the son of a Presbyterian minister, and has had a wide ministry in the United States both as an evangelist and as a Bible teacher. Of late years he has taken a prominent part at the leading Bible Conferences in the United States such as those held at Princeton, N.J., the one held recently in Florida and many others.

Tribute To Labour In Rare Honour To Mr. Samuel Gompers

OTTAWA, April 26. — Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labour, and chairman of the Committee on Labour of the Council for National Defence, was signally honoured by the Canadian Parliament when he was received on the floor of the house.

The national Legislative Chamber has twice before paid honour to distinguished visitors, who were given places upon the floor, and whose words found admission to the official Hansard. Rene Viviani, ex-Premier of France and Arthur J. Balfour, ex-Premier of Britain, have in turn spoken their message to the Dominion in its Parliament. They were statesmen who came as the accredited representatives of their Governments. To-day Parliament heard from Samuel Gompers, the Plenipotentiary of Labour, who came, not as the representative of any Government or nation, but was acclaimed as the man who stood for patriotic effort and industry in the ordinary walks of life.

"In this hour of world's travail, with its suffering and its struggle," he declared in a stirring address, "there must be unity of spirit among the peoples of all our allied nations. In this world struggle this must be not only unity of spirit and cooperation and ideality, but there must also be uity of spirit and activity among the people in all walks of life in each of the allied countries." He recited the resolution wherein the labor leaders of the United States pledged themselves to devote themslves to the service of their country. And he added: "From the time of that declaration until this present moment here has not been a difference of opinion between the policy of the government of the United States and the organized bodies of the working people. My primary object in coming here was to receive inspiration, as I have already received it, and to give a word, if need be, that unity of action and of spirit on the part of the Government and of the workers and of the business men of Canada should prevail in order that we may win this war. There is no course of generosity or consideration which can be shown but what the workers will understand and appreciate it, and give, if necessary, more heartily of their cooperation and their energies and their services."

Mr. Gompers stated the issue in the present conflict with eloquent force, "on the one side a dominating force, a militaristic machine effective in the science of murder and the denial of individual rights and opportunities; on the other side—your side, my side—the spirit of freedom, the spirit of democracy with a sense of justice to all mankind and willingness to afford opportunities to the peoples of all countries to work out their destinies as best they would."

Hoarders Of Sugar Growing Anxious About Their Supplies And Possibility Of Arrests

Householders who have considerable stocks of sugar in their larders are wondering whether they will have to disgorge their supplies, retaining only the quantity sufficient for 15 days' requirements. Chief Thompson stated that he had received no instructions yet, but it might be that private stocks would not be touched and that the regulation probably applies only to present and future purchases until the order is rescinded or modified.

In the meantime there are grocers in Peterboro who have had no sugar for a week, and one dealer found himself without a single pound of sugar this morning, for the first time in his experience. An uptown grocer expressed the belief that consumers would be compelled to surrender all excess supplies (at the market price of course) in order that all such available stocks could be fairly distributed among the people. Refiners in their letters to the trade, urge the retailers to be as sparing as possible in their sales of sugar. One big company wrote last week that they had only enough raw sugar for one week's manufacture.

While it is true that the Cuban crop is a big one, the scarcity of ships is the inhibitive influence that 320,000 tons of sugar for the season is causing the present straits in the Canadian and American markets.

In a recent statement Mr. W. G. A. Lambe, the Toronto representative of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries, said:

"At the present moment there are bigger supplies of raw sugar in Cuba than ever before there being in the neighborhood of three million tons waiting shipment, but the shortage of sugar in Canada to-day is owing to the shortage of ships to bring the raw sugar from Cuba and the West Indies to the Atlantic ports. The sugar division of the Food Control Board have allotted to Canada about of 1918, which is the average of the last three seasons, but owing to the shortage of ships not nearly the average amount has so far been brought into the country.

DUTCH SHIPS TO RELIEF.

"However, the estimate is made that within the next few weeks about 20 of the Dutch ships recently taken over by United States will be used in Cuba and West Indies trade which should help to relieve the situation greatly."

Sugar, which before the war duties were put on, retailed at 6c per lb., is now retailing at 11 cents, and a good deal of the shortage at present is blamed on consumers, who, as soon as they heard prices were going up, began to hoard.

NINE BOILS

Kept Coming On Neck One After the Other

Anyone who has ever suffered from boils, knows how sick and miserable they make you feel.

When you think you are about cured of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your wretchedness. All the poulticing and lancing you may do will not cure them and stop more coming.

Boils are simply bad blood bursting out, and the bad blood must be made pure before the boils disappear.

Burdock Blood Bitters is the greatest blood purifier known. It cleanses the system and removes every particle of foul material from the blood, then never another boil comes and the cure is permanent.

Mr. Geo. Ayers, 302 Gloucester St., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I wish to tell you what I know about your wonderful Burdock Blood Bitters. In the spring I suppose my system needed cleaning out, for I had nine boils come on my neck one after the other. I quickly got a bottle of B.B.B., and before it was half finished I felt a great change, and it certainly put an end to my boils, otherwise I might have had a lot more. I recommend B.B.B. to all I can, for I know it to be a great remedy."

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of Private George Ernest Manley, who was killed in action, August 15th, 1917.

Dearest brother, thou hast left us;
And thy loss we deeply feel;
But he died for his King and country,
And we hope his soul's amongst the blest,
We seem to listen for his voice,
We miss his kindly thought,
And willing help about the place.
Which he ga e all unsought.
We know that he is safe from all,
Yes, safe for evermore,
Our loved one is not lost to us
But only gone before.

FIRE MARSHAL'S RECOMMENDATION

Field Men or Inspectors May Be Appointed to Visit Municipalities.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 29.—The appointment of a number of field men or inspectors to visit the municipalities of the province and induce them to enforce the by-laws which they have the power to pass, was the recommendation made to-day to a fire insurance commission at the Parliament Buildings by E. P. Heaton, Provincial Fire Marshal, as being the most important step which could be taken to prevent the fire loss in the province.

ESTABLISHED A QUARTER OF A CENTURY.

The old reliable firm of Jordan Bros. have made cut flower growing a specialty for years. They have recently enlaged their plant to a $20,000 establishment, where flowers are cut fresh every morning for their city trade. They use no cold storage flowers, as the fresh cut will last twice as long, and give their customers the best of satisfaction. Their output is now an average of 10,000 blooms a month, including everything in cut flowers except roses. Buy home-grown flowers from the largest cut flower growers in the city, and encourage home industry.

BRITAIN TO TAKE SURPLUS CHEESE

ARRANGEMENTS FOR CREDIT MADE BY PREMIER AND SIR THOMAS WHITE.

Ottawa, April 29. — It is officially announced that Sir Robert Borden and Sir Thos. White during Sir Robert's recent visit to New York, succeeded in arranging a necessary credit in Canada for the British government to purchase the entire exportable surplus of Canada's cheese production for the present year. The amount of the credit will be forty million dollars. The arrangement will mean a certain market for Canadian produced cheese at market prices already fixed.

Sir Thomas will proceed from New York to Washington this week to take up further questions of international finance with the United States government.

KIDNEY DISEASE OVERCOME.

Mr. James Prouse, cattle dealer, Sheho, Sask., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from kidney disease: at times was bad with backache, and derangements of the digestive organs. During that time I was treated by four different doctors. One day I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac about the Kidney-Liver Pills and began to use them. Altogether I used six boxes. All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Firebugs Work For $200 A Job Says Fire Marshal

Italians Said to Overinsure Their Shacks, Then Send Them Up in Smoke - .oo Many Insurance Agents in the Field

WOULD ESTABLISH A FIRE SCHOOL

TORONTO, April 30.—When the fire insurance inquiry was resumed at the Parliament Buildings yesterday afternoon, Mr. G. F. Lewis, deputy fire marshal, said that as a result of proper fire protection facilities the fire loss for the town of Kenora for the six months ending March, 1918, had only been $4,833, as compared with a monthly average loss of $11,300 for the three years previous.

Mr. Lewis said that there was a gang of Italians operating in the vicinity of Hamilton and Niagara Falls who would set a fire for $200, but so far the fire marshal's department had not been able to round them up. He explained that the Italians would buy land and build a shack on it, and after getting the property over-insured, would set fire to it. The activities of the police, however, had scared off the fire bugs, and the fire loss had decreased.

OVER-INSURANCE BAD.

Mr. Lewis said that manufacturers claimed that over-insurance was a cause of a great many of the fires throughout the country.

Mr. Justice Masten: "Are nit the agents and insurance companies largely to blame for such a condition?"

Mr. Lewis: "There are too many agents in the filed for the amount of business that is available." Mr. Lewis thought that there should be some method of ascertaining the actual value of the property that was insured, in order that it would not be over-insured.

Mr. Justice Masten: "It has been suggested to me by a justice of the High Court that in every case of business where there is a stock over a certain amount that an inventory of the stock should be taken at least once a year, and the stock sheets should be kept at some place other than the place of business, so that when a fire occurred they will not be burned."

ESTABLISH FIRE SCHOOL.

The establishment of a Provincial training school for firemen to be established in Toronto was recommended by Mr. Lewis. He suggested that the school should be conducted in connection with the Toronto fire brigade and while taking the training course, the firemen would be used to help out the local fire department. "There should be a course of three months for firemen, six months for lieutenants, and 12 months for captains," said Mr. Lewis. "The captains who would be turned out could act as chiefs of outlying fire department."

THE SCIENCE OF "SMELL."

Prof. Bell Asks If It Can Be Measured.

Have you an ambition to found a new science? Why not measure a smell? Can you tell whether one smell is just twice as strong as another? It is obvious that we have very many different kinds of smells, from the odor of violets down to asafetida, but until you can measure their likenesses and differences you can have no science of odor.

In the first place we have to define an odor. Is it an emanation of material particles into the air or is it a form of vibration, like sound. If you can decide that question, you will have the starting point for an entirely new investigation. If odor is an emanation, it could be weighed; if it is a vibration, it could be reflected from a mirror. Light and sound and heat can be reflected. I have even warmed my hands at the reflection of a fire in a mirror of polished metal.

That a cultivation of the sense of smell may be very valuable was provided in the discovery of the substance selenium. In experimenting with the waste products obtained in manufacturing sulphuric acid, a distinguished chemist noticed the characteristic smell of tellurium—an odor that has no counterpart on earth or in heaven. But the smell was the only indication of the presence of the substance; all the chemical reactions declared that there was no tellurium present in the powder. The chemist therefore concluded that, if no tellurium was present, there must be a new substance there, as yet undiscovered, which resembled tellurium. When he had extracted from the mass all the materials that he knew were present, he found a residue, which proved to be, as he had suspected, a new elementary substance.

This new substance, which was named selenium, resembled black sealing wax in appearance. In its vitreous form it was a nonconductor of electricity, but when heated to the fusing point and allowed to cool very slowly it completely changed its appearance. It acquired a dull, metallic look, like lead; and in that, its crystalline condition, it was a conductor of electricity, but of extremely high resistance.

A little pencil of crystalline selenium, not much more than an inch long, offered as much resistance to the passage of an electrical current as ninety-six million miles of wire, enough to reach from here to the sun. Yet it was a conductor.—Alexander Graham Bell in the Youth's Companion.

Her Misfortune.

Nancy, much afraid of dogs, was walking happily along beside her father when a little dog snapped at her heels, and soon another dog barked at her. Nancy said nothing, but held her father's hand pretty tightly. Finally a great big St. Bernard rushed by and nearly knocked her over. "Oh, dear me, daddy," said Nancy, "why is it that I always get on the dog side of you?"

Canada Got $40,000,000 Credit More Is Soon Expected

Cabinet is Engaged in Putting the Finishing Touches on the Budget—Plan of Taxation in the U. S. Discussed at Ottawa

NEW TAXES PROPOSED

OTTAWA, April 30.—The Cabinet is engaged in putting the finishing touches to the budget, which will be announced in the Commons to-day by Hon. A. K. MacLean, Acting Minister of Finance.

Sir Robert Borden who went down to New York on financial matters connected with war finance, and entering into the budget calculations, has returned, and it is officially stated that Sir Robert and Sir Thomas White succeeded in arranging a necessary credit in Canada for the British Government to purchase the entire exportable surplus of Canada's cheese production for the present year. The amount of the credit will be forty million dollars. The arrangement will mean a certain market for Canadian produced cheese at market prices already fixed. Other credit arrangements have not yet been announced.

Will Get Credit.

The whole difficulty in regard to the trade balance is that while Britain's purchases from Canada are much greater than our's from the States, the international exchange rates prevent payments due from overseas being made in New York, and thus permitting a squaring of accounts. All the British orders because of these conditions are temporarily financed by credits made in America. It is expected that either a Canadian credit will directly be secured in the States or that a slice of the huge credit there to Great Britain will be assigned to Canada. Arrangements are facilitated by the fact that it is all war finance, in which the cause of all the allies is common.

Details of the budget are never fixed up till the last minute and the usual secrecy is being maintained, but it goes without saying that new forms of taxation will be necessary to meet the augmented revenues required. There have been many suggestions as to their form. Interests affected by the business profits war tax have been pulling strongly against its enactment.

One Per Cent. Tax.

One proposal duly exploited has been a tax of one per cent. on all commercial transactions, but objection has been urged against this on the ground that, whatever revolutions there may be in the process from manufacturers to consumers, and in the recurrent application of the tax, it would be a case of "passing the buck" down the line. In the end the ultimate consumer would pay the whole shot. The question of import restrictions suggested by the War Trade Board will, it is expected, be dealt with in the budget speech.

Follow U. S. System.

Canada already imposes taxes on cheques and railway tickets, but most of the taxes included in the following list from the United States, 1917, legislation would be new to Canada:

Bonds debentures or certificates of indebtedness, 5 cents per $100.

Indemnity and surety bonds, 50 cents; or, if premium is charged, one per cent. of each dollar of premium.

Capital stock issues, 5 cents per $100.

Capital stock sales or transfers, 2 cents per $100.

Sales of produce on exchange, 2 cents per $100.

Drafts or cheques payable otherwise than at sight or on demand, and promissory notes (also renewals), 2 cents per $100.

Conveyances, including deeds or writings, whereby property is sold, assigned or transferred, 50 cents if value of property (exclusive of encumbrances) exceeds $100 and does not exceed $500, and 50 cents for each additional $500 or part thereof.

Import Restrictions.

Entry of any goods at Customs house, either for consumption or warehousing, 25 cents up to $100 value; 50 cents up to $500; $1 if value is over $500.

Entry for withdrawal of goods from Customs bonded warehouses, 50 cents.

Passenger tickets costing over $10 to places not in the U.S., Canada and Mexico, $1 for first $30, $3 up to $60; $5 over $60.

Proxies for voting at meeting of incorporated company (except religious, charitable, fraternal or literary societies or public cemeteries), 10 cents.

Power of attorney, 25 cents.

Playing cards, 5 cents per pack, in addition to existing tax.

Parcel post packages, one cent for 25 cents charged for transportation, where charge is 25 cents or more.

Tariff Schedules.

There is no anticipation in Ottawa of any material change in tariff schedules. The budget is the last big thing of the session, apart from a day or so on the railway question, and on its character will depend the date of prorogation. A debate of a week is promised, for nearly every Opposition member claiming to be a speaker wants to say something about it, while on the Unionist side numerous speakers are in prospect. Since last session the Opposition has lost its financial critic and A. R. McMaster, of Brome, is designated to step into the breach. There are prospects of prorogation by the 15th of May, unless the budget introduces elements more controversial than are expected.

A Parsec.

The parsec is a unit of distance made use of by astronomers. It is equal to 20,000,000,000,000,000 miles, and is the distance travelled by light in three and one-third years.

A Useful Cement.

A useful cement for mending delicate china may be made by mixing rice flour with cold water, and simmering it gently over a fire until it becomes thick.

French Losses.

Capt. Knight, member of French National Commission to the United States, says that France has lo 1,000,000 killed and another 1,000 000 are crippled for life, but the are 3,000,000 fighting men in t trenches, and 1,750,000 men be the lines dressed in civilian ar garb. France entered the war w 38,000,000 inhabitants.

Social Structure and Criminality.

It is a herculean task to bring about reform in the administration of the criminal law. But the dawn of a better day is at hand. It is becoming more generally understood that the criminal is one of the by-products of an evil social system, and that in the improvement of our social structure will be found the solution of the problem of the criminal.—Alexander Karlin in the Humanitarian.

Trees and Lightning.

There is a strange superstition relative to the liability of certain trees being struck by lightning. All kinds of ideas have been advanced along these lines. The ancient Romans believed that the mulberry, laurel, peach, larch and box trees were lightning proof. Not a few foresters of modern times are of the opinion that certain trees are more or less liable to destruction by lightning.

"On the Stump."

In early times in this country if was the custom of campaigners in a political canvass to travel through the country and make open air speeches. Public halls and platforms were rare and the stumps or trees were numerous and furnished convenient places from which to speak. Hence the words, "stump speaker," "stump orator" and "stumping."

WERE CURED BY

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Mrs. Arthur Appleyard, Novar, Ont., writes: "This past winter my children and I had awful colds and coughs which we got by being in drafts. I tried a number of different remedies for us, but got no relief. I bought I would try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I found it an excellent and sure cure. It gave relief to the tickling in the throat, and stopped the cough, and with a few bottles we were all cured."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is a remedy that has been on the market for over twenty-five years, and we can recommend it as being without doubt, the best cure for coughs and colds that you can posibly procure.

There are a lot of imitations on the market, so when you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get it. Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

AN ABSORBING QUESTION

CHAPTER LIV.

George had telephoned that we were to go to the theatre. That was the way he always did. He said we were to do this or that—never asked me if I would like to.

But this time he was not coming home after me; I was to meet him at the Elite restaurant for dinner. What I should wear was an absorbing question. If I didn't look just so, George would be cross. Finally, I decided risking his displeasure in another way. I would call him up and ask him what I should wear. He had warned me never to call him during business hours. When we were first married I used to call him occasionally, but it had been months since I had ventured.

"I'd like to speak to Mr. Howard," I said in an uncertain voice, when his private secretary answered.

"Who is calling?"

"Mrs. Howard."

"Hold the wire please."

"Hello," it was George.

"Oh, George, I didn't think to ask you what I should wear!"

"And is that what you disturbed me for?" an impatience he took no pains to disguise in his voice.

An Unpleasant Moment.

"But I thought you would want me to look nice and I didn't know whether you wanted me to wear evening dress or not"—

"I shall be glad when the time comes that you have a mind of your own! wear what you please, but see that you look well," and the click of the receiver told me that he had cut me off.

"Oh, dear!" I said aloud, as I moved away from the telephone. "Why couldn't he have told me? I haven't the faintest idea what to wear."

Suddenly I thought of Mrs. Sexton. She would know.

"Please tell me what I shall wear?" I asked her, after I had explained the situation on the telephone.

"Is your husband going to dress?"

"I don't know! He isn't coming home. I am to meet him at the restaurant."

"Well, to be on the safe side, wear one of your best afternoon gowns. One a little low in the neck. Then dress your hair with extra care, and I am sure Mr. Howard can find no fault."

I was not so sure, but I thanked her and immediately ran up stairs to tell Celeste to lay out a dress which George had once said was becoming.

"Madame is not going in evening dress?" she asked.

"No, Celeste, not to-night. But Celeste I want to look my very best, so take great pains with my hair."

A Satisfactory Result.

When I was dressed I really looked very nice. My dress was an old blue satin and chiffon, trimmed with delicate hand embroidery.

Of course I had to wear a hat, but I very carefully adjusted the big floppy black hat with a blue facing to match my dress. It was a hat George particularly liked, and which I had worn when out with him once before.

"Madame looks very well," Celeste remarked, as she held my coat for me. "Monsieur cannot help being pleased."

I had not mentioned George, but Celeste's remark showed she was not unaware of my anxiety to look well when going out with him.

When the car drew up to the curb in front of the restaurant, George was just going. Knowing his promptness, his impatience when he was delayed, I had timed myself exactly.

He gave me a quick, appraising look, and his face relaxed. He was satisfied with my appearance. I would try to be tactful. I would say nothing about the telephone, nothing to remind him of anything disagreeable.

Our dinner was delicious. George was really nice and kind and I gave myself up to the unusual pleasure, dismissing all other thoughts.

We arrived at the theatre just as the curtain went up. Our seats were in the fifth row on the aisle. We usually had a box, but I liked the orchestra seats better; I could see without being stared at by everyone in the house. It invariably made me uncomfortable.

The play was a delightful comedy drama, and once more George was in good spirits. His laugh rang out often, and several times he looked at me with an approving nod. Suddenly I noticed an uneasy movement around us; then an acrid smell. Then someone screamed "Fire!" and in a moment, instead of a quiet audience, there was a fighting, struggling mass of frightened people rushing for the exits. I sensed in a way that some one on the stage was talking, that the curtain had rung down, and that was all. The smoke was thick. I felt a choking sensation, then someone lifted me high, and I knew I was being carried in strong arms.

To-morrow—A Terrible Experience.

John Dillon and Ireland

PROBABLY from the Ulster point of view the succession of Dillon to Redmond will be a move from bad to worse. On the other hand, it may well be an improvement. It will tend to clear the air and get the issue joined. As far as the late leader was concerned there was never any personal objection to him or distrust of him on the part of the Irishmen who opposed Home Rule. John Redmond was always a gentleman. He was universally respected as a man, no matter how violently his judgment or his influence might be distrusted. Ulstermen used to say that if Redmond was to be accepted as a fair sample of the sort of leaders that Ireland would have under Home Rule there would be little to fear. Their idea was that after the South had reached the goal Redmond would be tossed aside and a leader more of the Sinn Fein type substituted. It was this domination rather than the domination of men like John Redmond that the North feared.

Perhaps John Dillon has earned his position as leader of the Nationalist party by his long devotion to the cause. But he may have been chosen because he is more likely than a man like Redmond to heal the breach between the Sinn Fein party and the orthodox Nationalists. He is talking now of taking the case of Ireland to the Peace Congress that will end the war, unless his views are accepted by the British Government. The thing that a British subject can most properly object to in the Dillon program is that it is an Irish program. He has nothing to say about winning the war; he has everything to say about freeing Ireland, as though Ireland were like Belgium or Serbia. However, he was not elected to win the war, and probably is attending strictly to the business that appertains to the leadership of his party. This, however, is what distinguishes the Nationalists from the Unionists and the Liberals. The war comes first with them. With the Nationalists Ireland comes firs:

A few weeks ago John Dillon addressed an open letter to Mr. De Valera, the half-caste leader of the Sinn Feiners, in which he told the Sinn Feiners what he thought of the prospects of Irish freedom and also his opinion of the Sinn Feiners. He was not then the leader of the Nationalist party, but what he said then may be considered now to be binding upon his followers. The purport of the letter was to get the Sinn Feiners to cease their most unChristian warfare upon the Nationalists, and to show that the ideals of the two bodies were not necessarily in conflict. He gave a certificate to Mr. De Valera for his patriotism and, as the New York Post remarks, his tribute to De Valera "marks the end of official tolerance by the Nationalists of that species of propaganda which labels as Judas Iscariots all Irishmen of Sinn Fein." They may be regarded as Judas Iscariots by men who regard themselves primarily as British subjects, but not to men whose chief idea is to free Ireland from the tyranny of the English.

John Dillon differs chiefly from the Sinn Feiners in that he does not believe that there will be an Irish republic. He stands for the self-government of Ireland within the British Empire, which was the position held by John Redmond. He commits himself to a continuance of the struggle that will secure a settlement of the Irish question before the end of the war, the alternative being an appeal to the Peace Conference that will settle the final details of the present conflict. In other words, he will continue to agitate for Home Rule while the war lasts, and if Home Rule has not been won before the victory over the Germans, he will beg to associate Ireland with Armenia and Poland in the Peace Conference. In the meantime, he thinks that the Sinn Feiners ought not to oppose Nationalist candidates in bye-elections, or if they do, the two parties ought to agree as to the number of outside speakers — and voters, maybe—that will be permitted to operate in any given constituency.

It is plain that Mr. Dillon recognizes in the Sinn Feiners an element that can make or break him as an Irish leader. If he can make an arrangement which will permit him to speak for both the Sinn Feiners and the Nationalists his position will be a powerful one. In that event he will have to face only the opposition of the Unionists and anti-Home Rulers of Ulster. If he is left in the position that John Redmond held in the year before his death, namely, of being the spokesman for an insignificant minority, as it seemed, of Irishmen, the footprints that he leaves upon the sands of time will be like other footprints after the tide has come in. He makes no overtures to the Unionists, for he announces that he will agitate for the immediate adoption of Home Rule, the very thing that the Unionists have fought against. In short, John Dillon promises either to make or break the cause of Irish Home Rule, and perform the operation in the course of the next few months.

Killing Woodchucks.

Woodchucks may be easily exterminated by the slow burning of dynamite in the burrows, according to the Popular Science Monthly. The kind of dynamite to use is the low grade ammonia. A stick of this, well saturated with kerosene, will smoulder and give off a deadly gas, which when confined in the burrows, will asphyxiate any of the animals contained in them. After placing and igniting the stick, cover up the entrance to the hole tightly so that no air can penetrate or gas escape.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink.

Merits of Wooden Barrel Obvious.

A barrel can be rolled. This is its greatest merit, says Popular Science Monthly. Every other shape of container which weighs over a hundred pounds when filled, must be lifted bodily and carried on a hand truck or by hoisting machinery. One man can unload a carload of sugar—200 barrels of it—in less than an hour. Don't you wish it were at your door? No other container can be handled at this rate, even by two men working at top speed.

Fitting Expiring Sentiments.

To Vespasian is attributed as an expiring sentiment, "An emperor should die standing!" which seems to have appealed to two sixteenth-century English bishops—Woolton, whose last utterance is recorded as, "A bishop ought to die on his legs," and Sewell, who declared, "A bishop should die preaching."

Why He Hadn't Slumbered.

"I'm surprised at you, Mr. Twobble. You fell asleep right in the middle of Professor Digga' lecture." "Don't blame me for that, my dear." "Why not, sir?" "I would have fallen asleep sooner, but the person seated immediately behind me kept coughing on the back of my neck."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Birds of Towns.

Somebody must have a love for bird life, if these names, selected at random from the postal guide, indicate anything: Pigeonroost, Ky.; Lark, N. D.; Parrot, Ky.; Sparrow, Ky.; Swan, Tex.; Swallow, Ky.; Wren, S. C.; Crow, W. Va.; Blue Jay, W. Va.; Nightingale, Ala.

Take That Extra Forty Winks.

The sage observation that "it's nice to get up in the morning, but it's nicer to lie in bed" is no longer a shameful confession of laziness. The British ministry of munitions investigating the health and efficiency of its workers found that too-early rising is harmful.

ROMANTIC STORY OF EARL READING

Rufus Isaacs Becomes a British Ambassador.

WAS FOND OF ADVENTURE

Miss Edith Cohen, the Young Woman With Whom He Fell In Love, Urged Him to Study Law, and In Course of Time He Rose to Be One of the First Men of the English Nation.

SIR RUFUS DANIEL ISAACS, Baron Reading, Lord Chief Justice of England, who is Ambassador to the United States and head of the British War Mission, is one of the most interesting figures in English political life.

Descended from the ancient Portuguese Jewish family of Menddoza from whom come the D'Israelis, he is not unlike "Dizzy" in appearance.

Reading is 57, but looks ten years younger, and he is really a young man; young in tastes and activities with the elastic and curiosity of mind of youth, a man who will never grow old. Tall, slim, gray hair brushed back, a kindly face that is smooth as a boy's in repose but breaks into hundreds of tiny wrinkles when he smiles; a quiet, unassuming manner, a keen sense of humor, graceful in gesture, precise in diction, with a marvelous command of language, the facility for making everyone at ease with the charm of his conversation.

BARON READING.

Rufus Isaacs was born in London in 1860, the son of Joseph Isaacs, a fruit merchant. In his boyhood he was rather uncontrollable. One of his schoolfellows described him as the worst boy in school.

"Lessons he left unlearned. Class work he shirked. Mischief was his only devotion—a demoniacal young imp with sparkling eyes, who was always in disgrace or being caned; yet ever merry and deliciously humorous."

"Isaac Secundus, you will go to the devil," was his schoolmaster's constant wail.

At 15 young Rufus ran away and went to sea, and a year before the mast knocked the devil out of him.

At 20 he became a stock broker, but, though he has since developed powers of finance, his early efforts were unsuccessful. At 26 he was declared a bankrupt. In England this is a more serious matter than here. A man once bankrupt is automatically barred from the exchange for all time.

Young Isaacs started the study of law, urged on by Miss Edith Cohen, with whom he was in love. She was the daughter of Albert Cohen, an American merchant who had moved to London. In a year Isaacs was admitted to the Bar and he and Miss Cohen were married.

His progress was rapid. It is said that for ten years he rose at 4.30 to read over his briefs, worked all day in court and was busy with consultations and study until midnight. When asked one time about these early trials, Reading said, reminiscently:

"Yes, I worked in those days; I certainly worked."

During these years he was counsel in many notable cases and in 1904 he entered the House of Commons as Liberal member for Reading. In 1910 he became Solicitor-General and was knighted. Soon after he was Attorney-General, the first holder of this office to be included in the Cabinet. In 1913 he was mentioned for Chief Justice. Lord Robert Cecil led a bitter fight against him, but in October, 1913, he was appointed to that high office and became Baron Reading.

His wife has been of tremendous help to him. It was she who insisted on his taking up law when he himself thought it hopeless. It is said that Lady Isaacs inspired Barrie with the germ of his play, "What Every Woman Knows." She is now a confirmed invalid. They have one son, Gerald Rufus Isaacs, born 1889.

Lord Reading is orthodox and is the first Jew to hold the office of Ambassador to the United States. He was a guest at personal friend of King Edward VII., and was a regular fourth at the royal bridge table, invariably playing a poor game.

Famous Old English Castle.

Warwick castle is said to have been built by the Saxons before the first William landed on Albion's shores. One of its old towers has seen a thousand summers come and go, while the other portions of the structure belong to the fifteenth and the sixteenth centuries. It is one of the most romantic and picturesque edifices in England and is associated with the memory of the great "kingmaker" of the wars of the roses, Count Guy and other heroes who have clanged in heavy armor through the spacious rooms and in the banquet hall drank the health of the beauteous ladies of their line.

Deepest Lake in America.

A lake known as the Great Sunken lake, is reported to be the deepest lake in this country, and perhaps in the whole world. Located in the valley of the Cascade mountains, about 70 miles north of Jacksonville, Ore., this lake, which is about 15 miles long and four miles wide, is so deep that its depth cannot be measured. It is situated so far below the crest of the mountains that winds cannot reach it, and its surface is like a sheet of glass. It is sometimes called the "lake of mystery."

Pineapple Planting.

Pineapples are planted in three ways—for shipment raw, for canning, and for juice. If the planter wants large, perfect specimens of the fruit he sets about 5,000 plants to the acre. The uniform smaller discs that are found in the cans are the result of closer planting, while the planter who desires only juice sets his plants still closer.

Wall Hangings of Patchwork.

The art of making patchwork is very old. It was practiced in the days of ancient Egypt. It was not used there for quilts, however, as the Nile valley has a warm climate, but was used extensively as wall hangings and screen coverings.

With Fingers! Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus right off. Try it!

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic drug freezone recently discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn or callus and instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet, shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

Longevity of Customs.

The longevity of customs is curiously illustrated in the case of Lord Forester, the fifth baron, whose death is announced. King Hal took an ancestor of Lord Forester so deeply into favor as to grant him leave to wear his hat in the "presence." The right became an heirloom, and is one of the trifles of etiquette to be remembered on occasion by officials of the court. The Foresters were originally of Watling street, and had charge of the Wrekin forest.

Taller Trees Attract Lightning.

Foresters say that the tall cottonwood, with its rigid bark, is more apt to be struck than the lower beech and that in a great forest the taller trees are much more liable than the lower trees. Superstition is held to be responsible for the belief that tall trees near a house protect it from lightning, for such a thing as a lightning-proof tree is said to exist only in old tales and fables.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A British Volunteer

By F. A. MITCHEL

Ralph Sackville left London to the plaudits of crowds of people who were viewing his regiment march to the station to be entrained for the coast and thence to Belgium. In six months he returned under very different circumstances. There were no crowds to greet him. Instead of the handkerchiefs waving from the windows and the sounds of martial music many of the blinds were closed, and there was only the rattle of the cab in which he was driven through the streets.

Sackville had lost a foot and ankle and was discharged from the ranks. He had been among the first to respond to his country's call, leaving the service of a bank in which he was employed, to join the colors. His position in the bank was still open to him, but it required him to stand all day paying checks, and he was unable to fill it. Indeed, there were few positions he could fill. The only occupation that occurred to him as suited to his altered condition was that of chauffeur. He was a gentleman without means and shrank from doing menial work, but it was the best he could do, and he hobbled to a garage and secured a position.

One day he was directed to go to a hotel and call for Miss Amelia Duncan, an American young lady traveling with her invalid mother, who was confined to her room under her daughter's care, assisted by a nurse. The daughter needed the air and proposed to drive out every day when the weather admitted. This was not very often, for the sun seldom shines in England. She had called for a reliable chauffeur whom she might use when required.

On this first afternoon that Sackville drove Miss Duncan they became cornered in a street crowded with people who were witnessing the departure of troops for the war. Drums were beating, flags were flying, and the air was filled with cheers.

"Isn't it splendid!" said Miss Duncan, partly to herself and partly to her chauffeur. "If I were a man I would surely go to the war."

"And either leave your bones in Belgium or return minus an arm or a leg or an eye or perhaps all three," replied the chauffeur.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Miss Duncan in disgust. "Have you no patriotism?"

"I don't believe in a nation relying solely on its best men in case of war. I think every man of proper age should be liable to military duty. These soldiers are all volunteers."

"That's what I like about them," replied Miss Duncan. "Our war between the states was fought by volunteers. Our manliest men enlisted."

"And bore the brunt of the struggle for two years, when those on the northern side began to pay the laggards to enlist. Just before the war closed men were enlisting and deserting to get the bounty. Do you consider that justice?"

"I don't know anything about that war. I was not born till many years after it had closed. It must be nice to be one of those noble men who volunteer. Don't you think so?"

"No, I don't."

"Then you admit that you belong to the class of laggards?"

"I don't admit that either. I believe in conscription."

"There's nothing noble in a man going to war because he is obliged to go."

"War is a duty, not something to be proud of. It is a horror. Did you ever see men standing in line ready to face death?"

"No, of course not."

"Every face is serious, solemn. Not a word is spoken. They are like prisoners facing a firing squad, only with a prisoner death is certain, while with them it is probable, or, what is worse, they may expect to be maimed for life."

"Are they cowards?"

"No; they are men, but when the fight is on they cease to be men and become wild beasts."

"It's a shame for you to talk in this way. Instead of sitting comfortably in an auto you should be among those noble fellows marching to war."

"It will not be so fine when they return."

"They will come back victorious with their battle stained banners flying, greeted with the applause they deserve."

"Many of them will never come back. Many will hobble back. If the regiment returns as a unit most of its members will be men who are not marching now. Quite likely they will be conscripts; possibly they will have been paid to go."

By this time the troops had passed and the auto was released. Miss Duncan ordered her chauffeur to drive her to her hotel. She did not like his talk and resolved not to have him drive her again. When she alighted he got down and handed her out. She noticed that he limped.

"What's the matter with your foot?" she asked.

"It's made of wood."

"How did you lose the real one?"

"Fighting in Belgium."

"Oh, how horrible!"

Then, red as a rose, she stalked into the hotel.

The next day the young lady sent for Sackville to drive her out again, and, after berating him for not telling her that he had been a soldier, she forgave him. After all, he didn't lose so much by serving his country. He lost a foot, but he gained an American heiress for a wife.

Notable Sayings.

In William Dean Howell's novel, "The Quality of Mercy" the dying and repentant defaulter Northwick exclaims "That's good!" as the handcuffs are placed upon his wrists, "Time flies! Bid Clifford come to me!" orders Judge Jaffrey Pyncheon, in "The House of Seven Gables," taking from his vest pocket the watch which he was never to replace.

Time to Watch Them.

The sagacious old New York Herald says there is no gallantry in politics. Oh, yes, there is, but when the politicians begin to act with gallantry the chances are they are getting ready to bamboozle you or slit you in the back.

Keeping Warm in Finland.

In many ways the Finns are a very queer people. It is during the terrible cold months that the Finns revel in the mighty ovens that fill one corner of every kitchen and often loom up large and vastly impressive in the other rooms of a Finn home as well. The tops of these monster stoves are perfectly flat, and steps lead up on one side. When the weather becomes bitterly cold and bleak, the entire Finnish family will take quilts and pillows and, mounting to the top of the big heater, spread down their bedding and sleep very comfortably and contentedly on the hard hot bricks until morning.—Nevia C. Winter, in Christian Herald.

SLUGGISH LIVER CAUSES LOTS OF TROUBLE

When the liver becomes sluggish it is an indication that the bowels are not working properly, and if they do not move regularly many complications are liable to set in.

Constipation, sick headache, bilious headache, jaundice, heartburn, water brash, catarrh of the stomach, etc., all come from a disordered liver.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are a specific for all disease or disorders arising from a slow, sluggish, lazy or torpid liver, and they have been universally used throughout Canada for over 20 years with the greatest success.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 7 Poplar Grove, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you concerning the great good I have received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a sluggish liver. When my liver got bad I would have severe headaches, but after using a couple of vials of your pills, I have not been bothered any more."

Eastern Ferry Boats.

Over on the River Tigris, in Mesopotamia (Eastern Arabia), British soldiers are having unusual experiences in adapting ancient utilities to modern use. One of the first institutions to receive their attention has been the venerable "goofas," or ferry-boats, which natives have used unchanged for thousands of years.

The British soldiers put paddle wheels on the "goofas."

"Goofas" are perfectly round in shape and made of willow limbs and twigs, just like a large basket. The outsides are covered with skins.

Navigating a goofa in its improved form must be akin to floating around on a magnified butter chip. When ordinary paddles are used as a motive power, the goofa has a disconcerting habit of going off in any direction but that desired. Since it has no keel, or other directing device, it is difficult to keep it on a given course.

But with paddle wheels the goofa crosses the river with unprecedented directness.

Simple cranks and sturdy arms of the soldiers furnish the motive power.

The fleet of goofas has been duly numbered for identification and is doing yeoman service in the Far East for moving supplies. — Popular Science Monthly.

Messages by Shell.

Transmission of urgent orders to troops in the first line and the sending of interesting information to the rear by projectile is one of the new developments of trench warfare, according to the monthly review, La Science et La Vie, of Paris.

One of the instruments employed for this purpose by the Germans was captured in a recent successful attack made by the French at Moronvilliers. It consisted of a tin cylinder about 15 inches long and an inch and a quarter in diameter, at the mouth of which is placed a box containing the message.

The cylinder and message box are placed in the grenade-thrower, which launches it in much the same way as aerial torpedoes and grenades are fired from a trench mortar.

The extreme range of these new engines is about 1,300 yards, which is generally sufficient to cross the zone of French curtain fire.

The utility of such a system became apparent with the development of barrage fire, that made the carrying of messages by despatch bearers always hazardous and frequently impossible.

THE CITY OF JASSY.

War Has Put Life Into Quiet Little Community.

Few cities in Europe have been more profoundly affected by the war than the little city of conquered Roumania. From a quiet, tranquil municipality with a population of 75,000, the place has suddenly grown to such proportions that the Government authorities have found it difficult to provide comfortable living quarters for the civil population, which now numbers 300,000. After the evacuation of Bucharest this modest little city became almost overnight the home of the King and Queen and the seat of the entire Government. Here also are located the legations of all friendly foreign Governments and the headquarters of the Roumanian army and of important divisions of the Russian forces. Before the war Jassy was known chiefly as the ancient capital of the Province of Moldavia, and as a city of interesting churches and historic associations. It is now the centre of all official, commercial and military activity in the unoccupied territory of Roumania. When Bucharest and the southern portion of the little Latin kingdom were evacuated a large part of the population of that section sought refuge here. Schools, colleges, churches, stores, barracks and indeed any form of structure that afforded shelter had to be converted quickly into living quarters to provide for the great influx of homeless people who fled before the invading Germans. Provision had also to be made for the various departments of the Government and for the many branches of the army.

Not far from the centre of the city are the residences of the King and Queen, which in times of peace were the quarters of military companies. In keeping with the tendency of the times, they are severely plain in all their appointments and surroundings, and it is difficult for the visitor to realize that within the plain, rude walls are housed the sovereign heads of a nation. The Queen may be seen almost any day setting out from the royal residence in an automobile, unguarded and unattended only by one of the ladies-in-waiting from the court. The King, likewise, is a familiar figure on the streets of Jassy. He usually travels by motor, accompanied by one of his generals or military aides. The royal family is much loved by the people, and both he and the Queen mingle among their subjects with a spirit of democracy and catholicity that is deeply impressive to the visitor from other countries.

While the city has many picturesque aspects, it is not without its scenes of sorrow and depression. Making its way slowly along a narrow street is a shabby, dilapidated, box-like vehicle, so small that it resembles a top waggon, which the natives generously call a hearse, and which is bearing to find repose the body of one of the late residents of the city. Drawn by a single horse, pitifully decrepit and lame, the hearse is followed by a young man on foot. Then, in turn, comes a crude, grey cart, on which is seated a patriarchal figure, bent with the weight of years. The spectator enquires the details of the sombre spectacle and is informed that a young woman has fallen a victim of typhus—that terrible scourge which has claimed so many thousands of Roumania's population; that the young man in the rear with the bowed head was the young woman's fiancee and that the old man on the waggon, who is too feeble to walk, is the last of the family of the deceased. Scores of military officers and soldiers bare their heads and stand in silent attention while the little procession makes its way to the local cemetery.

To Bathe the Baby.

When bathing the baby fold a thick towel and lay it at the bottom of the bath. This will prevent the child from slipping, which is the cause of the nervousness exhibited by most babies when being bathed.

Aching Head, Pains In Back

Heart Action Was Weak and Nerves Greatly Exhausted—Now in Extra Good Health.

TWEED, Ont., March 28.—This is a cheering letter from Mrs. Wagar, because it describes the condition in which many women find themselves and tells how cure was effected.

Once the food cure was resorted to the system was gradually and certainly built up and reconstructed. The old symptoms disappeared, because the reason for their existence had been overcome. It is well worth while to give Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a trial when such results are obtained.

Mrs. H. E. Wagar, Tweed, Ont., writes: "My system was in a run-down condition. I could not sleep well, and was very nervous. I had frequent headaches and pains through my back, and my nerves used to twitch. I took weak spells, was short of breath and my heart action seemed weak. I was in very poor health generally. I went to a doctor and he advised me to take a rest, and gave me medicine, but it did not help me. My husband got me some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food one day, and this treatment gave me such relief that I took many boxes—I cannot tell just how many, but enough to build up my system and rid me of the old symptoms. I gradually began to get stronger, until I could get around and do my own house work. I am not bothered now with sick headaches and am enjoying extra good health. I would recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all suffering from nervousness of any kind."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, a full treatment of six boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Germany at Brest-Litovsk.

It is hard to imagine a more humiliating or intolerable position than that in which German leadership found itself at Brest-Litovsk. It was negotiating with anarchy, itself the champion of autocracy. It was listening to threats and insults from the representatives of a mob, not a nation. It was compelled solemnly to debate with men who had no army and no real force behind them and it was compelled to do all this because it had involved itself in a game, designed to strike at allied morale, but, as it turned out, destined to affect the morale of its own populations.

German terms at Brest-Litovsk are not interesting as such. Germany is demanding the "war map" and a little more. She is seeking to erect a Baltic state, under her control, in which 250,000 Germans shall rule 5,000,000 Slavs. She is endeavoring to construct a new Poland in which Hapsburg power shall prevail for the present. She refuses all evacuation until after the war. She insists upon self-determination of political allegiance by the people, while her armies guard the ballot boxes, and she refuses to let her own Poles share in the same self-determining process. In a word, all her protestations are sham, covering extreme territorial ambitions.

Black Diamonds.

Though black diamonds are pure carbon they in no outward appearance resemble the diamonds worn as ornaments. They are slightly harder than the crystal or gem diamonds, and in fact are nearly the hardest substance known. Black diamonds, or carbons, are without crystalline form, and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a carat up to three, four and five hundred carats. They are dark grey, black, or brownish in color, and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade is also pure carbon, but translucent and crystalline in form. Two objects so alike in composition could not be found so opposite in appearance as these two forms of carbon.—Family Herald.

First Soldiers' Home.

The Soldiers' home at Washington, the first institution of the kind in the United States, was established in 1851. A tract of land for the purpose, 200 acres in extent, was purchased with a sum of money levied by Gen. Winfield Scott on the City of Mexico during the war with that country. There are now several branches of the national home, and state homes in twenty-seven states.

Advance In The Price of The Weekly Examiner

On the First of July next, the Subscription Price of the "Weekly Examiner" will, in future, be at the following rates:

Year - $1.50 Six Months 75c

Three Months 40c

Payable in Advance

Outside of Canada, the yearly rate will be $2.00

In war or peace this is as low a price as a Weekly Newspaper of the size of the Examiner can be published for. The Examiner was established in August, 1856—sixty-two years ago and has been a staunch and faithful visitor to its Subscribers ever since.

Subscriptions will be received at the rate of $1.00 up to May 1st, Subscribers in arrears will be charged at the $1.50 rate as has been the rate in the past.

Address all letters to the "Examiner" Office, 419 George Street

Owing to the continually increasing cost of paper, labor and material, the Weekly Examiner can no longer be published for $1.00. Nearly all other weekly papers of a similar size as The Examiner have already increased their rates.

MENACE OF HUN PEACE

TEUTONS COULD NOT BE TRUSTED TO KEEP FAITH.

Germans Have Admitted Themselves That They Are Not to Be Trusted, and War Must Be Continued Until the War Lords Confess Themselves Beaten—Motto of the Year Is "Hold Fast."

"WOULD you," I asked, "go to a peace conference with Germany at the present time?"

Lord Leverhulme, long known as Sir William Lever, opened his eyes. "Before she is beaten?"

"The theory is——,'" I began.

"Never! Never! Why, is there a single man holding a responsible position who would suggest such a thing?"

"You mean that Germany in her present mood——"

"I mean that Germany in any mood, until she is beaten, is not to be trusted."

"But you know what the argument is: suppose we go to a peace conference, and suppose that Germany comes out from that conference in warlike mood, we should be able by the economic weapon to bring her to reason."

"You will never get Germany to entertain just peace terms until she is beaten. She might agree to terms which seemed just, which seemed as if they promised peace, but she would never honor her signature. I can imagine her delegates going out from such a conference shaking with laughter and hugging themselves with joy, because they had fooled the English. How can a man in his senses believe for a moment that Germany would keep her word? She has told us that treaties are not binding. She has said categorically that she would break a treaty that is not in her interest. She has not only said these things, she has done them. The greatest of all her crimes is this burglar morality which she has introduced into Europe. Would a business man trade with a firm which proclaimed Germanic principles? Would it be safe to deal with such a state of mind? Nothing in the modern history of Europe is more menacing to the civilized life of democracy than this Germanic state of democracy than this Germanic state of mind—this state of mind which repudiates treaties and dishonors a solemn word."

"But there are reasonable men in Germany."

"Many, but they don't control the Government."

"Don't you think that when peace is established and German democracy finds that it is ruined, don't you think that then the war caste will be broken and a new system of government will be set up?"

"That change will only come when Germany is convinced that war does not pay."

"Exactly. And the argument is that you can only bring home to Germany the fact of her economic ruin by establishing peace on the basis of a league of nations?"

"But you will never be able to dictate terms to Germany till she is beaten. The argument you mention is founded on the dangerous fallacy that because Germany is sick of this war she is sick of war in general. She isn't. I doubt if her Government is even sick of this war. You've read the speech of that old brigand Hertling. Is there any sign of repentence in that speech? Is it a chastened speech? Is it the speech of a statesman who wants disarmament and a league of nations? No! Germany is back in her mood of 1914. She believes she is winning the war. She believes she has won it now. And if we talk of peace to her she has won it. Why, it would be better a thousand times that every man in England should be dead than that Germany should issue from this war with the feelings of a conqueror."

"We must hold fast, you mean, till Germany says she has had enough, never mind how long it may last?"

"Certainly. The salvation of the world depends upon it. We are back to 1914. We are confronted by a Germany which believes itself to be the lord of the nations. Russia is out. Roumania is out. Italy has received a hard blow. France and the British are the only enemies left who remain to be crushed. Germany means to crush them before America gets into her stride. She believes she can crush them. All this talk of peace heartens her. She thinks we are war-weary. She thinks she can endure longer than we can. She is flushed with triumph. She is absolutely cock-o-hoop. Why, look at Hertling's speech! Dare a man suggest that we should surrender Malta and Gibraltar, and all the rest of it, if he were not confident of victory? Think of the mere audacity of it! When have we ever used Malta and Gibraltar for the oppression of nations? Look at our colonies! They are free to all the Germans who choose to go there. Any German can go to our colonies and buy raw material or set up for himself in business. We have used the British Empire for the good of the human race. And this Germany, whose colonies are bolted and barred against mankind, who no sooner got Heligoland than she transformed it into a menac against England, whose whole spirit is tribal and selfish and arrogant, this Germany dares to speak of the British Empire as a danger to humanity! What hypocrisy, and what confidence! Why, she was never in more truculent mood. It was never more necessary than it is now for the British to hold fast."

"You think we can outlast Germany?"

"I'm perfectly sure of it. Our people are not so sheepish, but they are of sterner stuff. The population of this country is composed of wonderful material. All down the ages men have come to England out of other countries because they would not bow to tyranny. We have been the rock of defence to many thousands of fine spirits who could not breathe the air of autocracies. I believe our moral stamina has been enormously strengthened by these refugees. We have freedom in our blood. We feel that liberty is as necessary to us as air. When it is brought home to our people that this war is for freedom or slavery, you'll hear no talk of peace, no plausible suggestions for a conference; you'll hear nothing but the word, passed from man to man, 'Hold Fast.' Our only danger is that the pacifist suggests to Germany that timorous souls over here are looking for any other way out of this war than the way of victory. The more that suggestion gets abroad, the more cheerfully will Germany harden her heart. The only thing that can dismay the German Government is our resolute announcement that we'll fight, and go on fighting, yes, if it takes us twenty years more, till Germany asks us for peace. That's the true Britishness of this war, and the sooner it's known in Germany the sooner the war will be over."

"And when he asks for peace, you'd admit him to the league of nation?"

"I'll trust Germany when I know she is convinced that war does not pay. Till then I would as soon think of trusting anything she says as I'd trust a forger or a thief. Out and away the most dreadful thing she has done is to shake men's confidence in contracts. That is a crime of the greatest magnitude. She is a confessed brigand. The moral law means nothing to her. She herself has proclaimed to all the world that she is above the moral law. She has introduced anarchy into the society of nations. She has pulled civilization to pieces. She has dragged the whole earth back to tribal barbarism. The very suggestion that we should dream of conferring with such a nation strikes me as madness. Germany herself has told us she is not to be trusted."

It is important for the Liberals of Germany to realize that even those extreme pacifists in England who would welcome a conference as a way out of this horrible carnage and most bitter suffering are entirely convinced that no peace terms would satisfy British democracy which did not ensure the dethronement of the German war caste.

The one thing which silences the intellectual pacifist in England is the argument of Lord Leverhulme that Germany by her own word is not to be trusted. It do not think the Liberals of Germany can be aware of the tremendous force of this argument. It is the sole cause of all their suffering.—Harold Begbie in London Daily Chronicle.

PRIVATIONS IN WAR.

Some Facts From Great Conflicts In the Past.

Just now when there is fear of a world famine by reason of the war's raids on the world's producers, it is instructive to glance at conditions which prevailed during previous great wars. The idea of price-fixing, it will be seen, is far from a new one. During the distressful times of the French revolution the maximum price of wheat was fixed in France after much agitation, and farmers were ordered to bring their product to market at stated times. Strong efforts were also made to guard against attempts at speculative holding. The effect, however, was unsatisfactory, for the farmers became inert and the mechanism of the grain trade was badly disorganized.

Britain's condition during the Napoleonic wars was one of varying comfort so far as food was concerned. In 1800 wheat rose from 50s to 134s 8d per quarter. In February of that year — and how modern it sounds—a committee of the House of Commons "strongly recommended that all families should use every means in their power to reduce the consumption of wheat and flour, and that charity and poor relief should be given in some other article, such as soup, rice, potatoes or other substitute." So high did bread become that riots broke out in England and Scotland, and Parliament was called by the King "out of a tender regard for the welfare of his subjects and a sense of the difficulties with which the poorer classes particularly had to struggle."

Of course there was much complaint over high prices. In Parliament the Ministers were roundly scored for incompetence, and outside the blame was thrown on the "middlemen." "Even well-educated people," says a chronicler, "ascribed the high prices to the speculation of merchants. Adam Smith, in his day, pointed out that the popular odium which attached to the corn merchant in years of scarcity was so great that the trade was abandoned to an inferior set of dealers and that packers, millers, maltsters and meal factors, together with a number of wretched hucksters, were almost the only middle people that in the home market came between the grower and the consumer."

These conditions brought a golden age in farming in England in the early years of the war, until the Earl of Warwick, in an ill-natured speech, complained that the farmers were able to play guinea whist and to drink brandy! There were ups and downs of prosperity for the farmers until the cry for "steady prices" resulted in the corn laws in 1815, giving tariff protection to the agriculturists.

A more impressive picture of war sacrifices is given by the people of the Southern States during the American Civil War, 1861-65. This struggle bore especially hard on the South, with a population of 5,500,000 combatting 22,000,000 people. The blockade tied up cotton exports, the greatest source of Southern prosperity. As the Southern armies grew, post offices, courts, counting houses, plantations were emptied, and only women and boys remained to direct the work of the slaves which was to sustain the Government and feed the armies. Trade died for lack of markets. Business offices were emptied, the flower of the population were drawn into the armies, resources were sapped and could not be renewed. All this time the North increased in wealth and population. In the South there was presently nothing to tax, and the Confederate Government was at its wits end where to get money. Specie was scarce, and was hoarded until it almost passed out of circulation. Paper money took its place, and was soon so depreciated that postal clerks at Richmond could not live on a salary of $9,000 a year.

There were abundant harvests, but no way of marketing them, as the railroads were needed by the troops. Commodities for domestic use reached unheard of prices, if available at all. There were no tea and coffee, and substitutes, such as grain, nuts and sassafras, being used. Homespun was revived for clothing, people went ragged and children without shoes as long as weather allowed. There was no salt, and the floors of old "smokehouses" were scraped for the drippings of past hams. There was not iron enough, and brass preserving kettles and bells were melted down to make cannon and arms. The end came with every sign of sheer exhaustion and despair.

Toti-Italy's One-Legged Hero.

The war has furnished many extraordinary instances of daring deeds performed by men while suffering under severe physical disadvantages, but the most startling yet recorded is that of Enrico Toti, an Italian patriot, who, though minus a leg, managed to join the Italian forces in the Carso, where he died fighting for his country. But Toti was a remarkable character, and that his life and deeds have stirred the people throughout Italy is evidenced from the fact that a statue is being erected in Rome to his honor. In the Wide World Magazine appears a well-illustrated article dealing with this hero's life and death written by L. R. Freeman who, with the sanction of the authorities, made a special journey to the Carso Front to learn from comrades how Italy's one-legged soldier fought and died. This remarkable story should prove an excellent stimulant to patriotism.

A Chameleon Rose.

White in the shade, red in the sun—such is the twofold character that has given a name to the "chameleon rose." At night, or when it is carried into a dark room, it assumes a wax-like whiteness. This does not occur abruptly, but the petals first pass through a bluish tint, which rapidly changes into a very pale rose, and finally ends by becoming the purest white. Then, if it is taken into bright sunlight, with the greatest rapidity it resumes the scarlet tint of the most brilliant peony. This phenomenon comes from Japan.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S ONE PIECE PAJAMAS.

A very sensible style for a night garment suitable for a small girl is shown in No. 8763. It is in kimono style, with sleeves shirred in at the elbows. The neck is drawn in on a ribbon run through eyelets. The Empire waist line is formed by running a ribbon through a wide casing with a pretty bow tied at the front. The long pantalettes are also shirred on elastics at the ankles, forming a narrow ruffle. Cotton crepe, batiste, long cloth or nainsook may be used for making the pajamas.

The child's one piece pajamas No. 8763 are cut in three sizes—small, medium and large. The medium size requires 3 yards 27 inch or 2¾ yards 36 or 40 inch material, with 1¾ yards narrow ribbon and 2½ yards wide ribbon.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

NOTHING LIKE PHOSPHATE TO INCREASE STRENGTH, VIGOR AND NERVE FORCE

ORDINARY BITRO-PHOSPHATE WILL DOUBLE THE STRENGTH OF WEAK, DELICATE, NERVOUS PEOPLE IN TWO WEEKS' TIME IN MANY INSTANCES.

Weak nerves quickly reduce the strong and robust to an extremely pitiable condition and rob men and women of all the joys of life. Slowly and stealthily the health is destroyed, the poor sufferer only realizing the magnitude of his ailment when faulty memory, sleeplessness, indecision, lack of energy or other unmistakable symptoms indicate weak nerves. Then it is a serious and dangerous mistake to resort to the use of so-called tonics, alcoholic or drug stimulants.

Weak and exhausted nerves need food and nourishment—not stimulants that lash them into temporary activity. The food and nourishment advised by present day physicians is just one 5-grain tablet of pure bitro-phosphate taken during or immediately after each meal. Simple advice, but its soundness has been proven over and over again.

Moreover the genuine standard bitro-phosphate is inexpensive and is sold by McDermid & Jury and most all good druggists under a binding guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

Russia Plans To Re-Organize Her Army

Russia Plans To Create A New Army Within Next Ten Months

Plan For Universal Military Training of All Men From 16 to 40 Has Been Adopted—Allied Representatives Were Present at Important Meeting in Moscow

ELECTIVE SYSTEM HAS BEEN ABOLISHED

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, April 24.—(Delayed.)—Russia is preparing in most serious manner to re-enter the war so far as possible under present circumstances. The Pan-Executive Council at Moscow on the eve of the receipt of the 'forty-second ultimatum' from Germany, adopted War Commissiare Trotsky's plan of universal military training for all men from sixteen to forty and conscription of all workers and peasants. Those not belonging to these classes will be forced to train but will not be taken into the army until necessary. Old specialists in military apparatus and the best general officers have already been called into service and elective committee systems in the army have been abolished, only civil commissiares being retained. The new plan is expected to yield a large army within ten months.

Return to the War.

The opposition charges that the Soviet government is aiming at its own preservation rather than the defence of Russia. British American and Japanese representatives attended the meeting. All parties agreed that Russia's slogan now is "return to the war as soon as possible." Either that or Russia must become the object of contention and division for other powers.

If the Allies hold until next spring Russia will be able to strike with new fresh millions—and the doom of Germany will be sealed.

SCRAPS OF NEWS COMING THROUGH

(By Ed. Keen.)
(United Press.)

LONDON, April 31.—The only scraps of news tending to bear out rumours of a Russian counter revolution so far are reports from Zurich regarding the arrest of M. Putiloff and Baron Vons Dem Bussche Haddenhausen's strange wireless to Gen. Von Mirbach.

A Zurich despatch says it is learned from Petrograd that M. Putiloff, President of the International Bank at Vichni-Gradsky has been arrested on a charge of financing a monarchist counter revolution. Putiloff is said to have escaped.

Wireless Made Public.

The British Admiralty has made public a wireless despatch from Berlin stating that Bussche-Haddenhausen the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, sent a wireless to Mirbach, the new German Ambassador to Russia, asking him for a report concerning rumours of a monarchist restoration in Petrograd. Russche-Haddenhausen said he had received a letter from Petrograd dated April 13, stating that a monarchist proclamation was imminent and that Michael Rodzianko, Michael Alexieff, Alexander Gutchkoff and Paul Milliukoff were in Petrograd, these four were identified with the Kerensky regime.

Favourable News.

Authorities, in view of Joseph Shaplen's despatch to the United Press rezarding Trotsky's attempt to reorzanize a Russian army, say that Germany would be greatly interested in stirring up trouble in Petrograd—possibly going so far as to back the Monarchists. The Kaiser may even have a finger in the mess. The presence of Allied representatives at the Moscow meeting tends to confirm recent reports that Trotsky was "coming around to the side of the allies," which is most favourable news from Russia in a long time.

The Ypres Struggle Represents Most Serious Crisis Of War

(By Carl D. Groat—United Press Service.)

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Actually fighting with their backs to the wall the British and French in Flanders are making a defense comparable to the bravest in history, army men here said to-day. That they will be able to halt the Boche before Ypres appeared to experts almost impossible, but in any event he will get this vantage point only at a price of thousands of wasted lives. Army men said that the Ypres struggle is one of the most serious crisis of the war. It is using up so much man power that the replacement of troops is a big problem.

Germans Have Been Heavily Repulsed All Along Northern Line

Successful Counter Attacks By the French Troops Yesterday Afternoon and Evening Drove the Enemy From the Remainder of the Ground Gained by Him During the Morning--Number of Prisoners Captured.

BRITISH AND FRENCH OFFICIAL REPORTS

Canadian Press.

LONDON, April 30. — (Official)—The French now hold the entire Village of Locre, west of Kemmel, says an official statement from the War Office to-day. In the vicinity of Locre the French, by counter attacks, yesterday afternoon and evening, drove the Germans from the remainder of the ground they had gained in the morning. The Germans have been heavily repulsed all along the northern battle front. The night passed in comparative quiet.

THE STATEMENT READS.

Successful counter attacks carried out by the French troops yesterday afternoon and evening drove the enemy from the remainder of the ground gained by him during the morning in the neighbourhood of Locre and captured a number of prisoners. The whole of the village is in the hands of our Allies. After the heavy repulse inflicted on the enemy yesterday the night passed comparatively quiet on the northern battlefront.

We advanced our line slightly during the night east of Villers Breton neaux. On the remainder of the British front there is nothing to report beyond artillery activity on both sides in certain sectors.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, April 30. — (Official)—Heavy artillery fighting occurred last night north and south of Avre, in the sector of Noyon and along the Oise, the War Office reports. The long-range bombardment of the region of Paris was resumed this morning.

THE STATEMENT FOLLOWS.

The artillery battle was wielded with considerable violence north and south of the Avre, in the sector of Noyon and on the south bank of the Oise. French patrols were active along all this front and brought back prisoners. On the right bank of the Meuse, Verdun front, and in Upper Alsace the German detachments were repulsed by our fire, leaving prisoners in our hands without obtaining any result. There is nothing to report on the remainder of the front.

During the night the British advanced their line east of Villiers-Bretonneux, on the front before Amiens.

Disastrous Defeat

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 30.—(Via Reuter Ottawa Agency) — Correspondents agree that the enemy has suffered nothing less than disastrous defeat in the first phase of the battle consequent on their desperate attempt to capture the line of hills held by the Allies which endangered their position on Mount Kemmel. They have probably used thirteen divisions from the east of Ypres southward on the line of battle, with two more northward and the violence of the gun fire was never greater or more unceasing at any period of the war. Our successful defence made yesterday's the bloodiest yet experienced by the enemy, as attack after attack was smashed by our artillery and infantry fire. The Germans had already suffered heavily on Sunday when their concentrations of troops were caught and shattered by gun fire. Their waves yesterday were mowed down and the British wings and the French centre neither bent or broke.

COMMISSION IS UPHELD

Electric Development Company Must Turn Surplus Power Over to the Hydro Power Commission

JUDGMENT TO-DAY

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, April 30. — A complete victory has been scored by the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario over the Electric Development Company, according to a judgment that has been delivered to the Ontario Government by the Commission presided over by Chief Justice Sir Wm. Meredith, and including Justice Kelly and Justice Sutherland that was appointed to investigate the charge that had been preferred against the Development Company by Sir Adam Beck. The Hydro claimed that company could not develop more than 125,000 horse power for commercial purposes at any time and that excess amount that was developed amounting to 25,000 horse power, should be turned over to the Hydro-Electric system at a nominal rate. The Company, on the other hand contended that it could exceed that amount. If the average quantity used did not exceed 125,000. In its judgment the Commission states that claims of the Hydro are correct in every respect.

WOUNDS ARE FATAL TO PTE. H. WORRALL

Former Member of 93rd Battalion Band Makes Supreme Sacrifice in France.

His many friends will be grieved to learn that Pte. Harry Worrall, formerly of the 93rd Battalion Band, who was yesterday reported dangerously wounded, is now officially reported to have died of wounds, word to this effect having been received by his wife at 958 1-2 McDonnel street this morning. The message stated that he passed away on April 25th at No. 18 General Hospital, Camieres, the same day he was admitted to that hospital suffering from a gun shot wound in the back.

The death of Pte. Worrall is the first that has taken place among the 93rd bandsmen since the members of that organization returned overseas.

He is survived by his wife and one daughter, to whom the sympathy of the community will go out in their bereavement.

More Soldiers Arrive Home From Overseas

Lance-Corp. Geo. Cookman Among Last Evening's Arrivals

Another party of Peterborough soldiers invalided from overseas arrived home on the 5.35 G.T.R. train last evening. Among the arrivals was Lance-Corp. Geo. Cookman, formerly of the local police force, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion. Lance-Corp. Cookman was transferred to the 4th Battalion, and was put out of action at Vimy Ridge a year ago, having been in hospital in England ever since.

Pte. D. Edwards, formerly of the 256th Railway Construction Battalion and Pte. R. Irwin, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, also returned home last evening.

Among other Peterborough people who arrived in Canada on the same boat were Lance Corp. J. Begg and Pte. Tiny Powers, formerly of the 93rd, and both of whom have lost a leg, and Nursing Sister Beatrice Blewett, who went overseas with the first Canadian contingent.

HINDENBURG HAD A BAD DAY YESTERDAY

German Artillery is Roaring From Ypres Meteren But the Allied Line Holds Firm — Severe Enemy Losses.

A TERRIBLE SIGHT

(By William Philip Simms.)
(United Press Service.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, April 29.—(Night.)—The German artillery is roaring from Ypres to Meteren, but low flying aviators have brought in reports that the attack is less furious than this morning when wave after wave broke down.

The German High command ordered its men to take the nest of hills from Kemmel to DesCats, a distance of five and a half miles east to west at all costs, likewise Ypres, but as this is cabled neither the British nor the French have yielded ground, despite one of the most furious onslaughts of the war.

Are Well Named.

Monts Rouge and Moir, two miles west of Mont Kemmel, are well named. On their stops the Germans lie thick, weltering in their own blood. A gruesome testimonial to French tenacity. The French word rouge, means red, or bloody. Moir means foul, or horrible.

Further north around Voormezeele, less than two miles south of Ypres, the flat fields are full of terrible sights. Here the British divisions caught the stormers with artillery and machine gun fire, decimating the enemy, who fought well and with courage. The farms here are strewn cadavers. On the whole, yesterday was a day of heavy losses for Crown Prince Ruppreet, without commensurate gain. The German command wants these Flanders hills because they command the surrounding plains. The German politicians want Ypres, because they have an absurd idea that its occupancy will have a moral effect on the Allies. Hindenburg is ready to sacrifice his legions for this double purpose. There is reason to believe that additional Austrian howitzers are in action. Gas shells high explosives and long distance projectiles are raining on the front and back areas. The village of Fletre, two miles northwest of Meteren is in names.

A Later Despatch.

A later despatch by William Philip Simms says:

Hindenburg has had one of the worst days since the commencement of his offensive. After repeated onslaughts throughout yesterday and far into the night, the Allied lines are intact save between Monts Rouge and Scherpenberg, known as Hyde Park Corner, where the situation is somewhat obscure.

As this is cabled, it is doubtful if the Germans are holding the cross roads which they captured Monday, as a magnificent French counter attack retook Locre, putting the Germans in a nasty pocket.

Franco-British troops advanced their line to Nut road, in the valley between Monts Kemmel and Scherpenberg. Attacks and counter attacks are occurring with hellish regularity in the hills and plains around Ypres.

Von Armin put in about five fresh divisions (60,000 men) Monday. Today their freshness was considerably worn off. The Allies everywhere claimed great execution. The British twenty-fifth, forty-ninth and twenty-first divisions repulsed at least ten attacks. The twenty-fifth alone had smashed up three by 10 a.m. and four by noon.

BRITISH CASUALTIES

LONDON, April 30.—The British casualty lists published during April showed 1,688 officers killed, 4,541 wounded andd 2,459 missing, 8,189 men killed, 35,306 wounded, and 814 missing.

FOOD RATIONING WILL NOT LIKELY APPLY TO FAMILIES

Certain Commodities to Be Included in the Restricted List

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, April 30. — The Food Control Board has not in contemplation the compulsory rationing of families except in so far as prohibiting the holding of more than a certain quantity of certain commodities may be construed as rationing. It may be that these prohibitions will be extended to other commodities than sugar or flour, but so far no decision has been reached in that respect.

Detroit Goes Dry To-night

Famine Prices Are Being Paid For Wines—"No Beer" Signs Out

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

DETROIT, Mich., April 30.—Capacity business in retail houses dealing in package goods, famine prices for wines, and whiskey in cafes and barrooms, and no beer signs in many of them marked the last day of the legal sale of liquor in Detroit and Michigan to-day. The constitutional amendment making Michigan a prohibition state, becomes operative at midnight to-night.

LIEUT. BIRNIE IS TRANSFERRED

Lieutenant J. F. P. Birnie, who was severely wounded in the chest, back and legs on April 1st, 1918, has been transfered from Etaples to the Second Western General Hospital, Manchester, England.

Lieutenant Birnie is a graduate in Arts of Victoria University, in 1911 he graduated from Osgoode Law School and was called to the Bar in 1914, with honours in both cases.

Lieutenant Birnie always took a prominent part in athletics while at University and Law School, he was captain of the Victoria University Football team, who won the "Muloch" championship cup in 1910. He was also haptain of the Victoria University Hockey Club who won the "Jennings" cup in 1910. He obtained the coveted "Y" of Toronto University by being a member of the Champion Lacrosse team which toured the United States in 1910, defeating both Harvard and Yale. He was also a half-back in the Parkdale Canoe Club Rugby Football team, the champions of Ontario in 1911. Lieutenant Birnie is a great yachtsman. He learned sailing on his father's yacht, the "Lalla Rook," from his earliest youth, and ever since he was eighteen years old has owned and sailed his own yacht.

He was called to the Bar in 1914, and practised the first year at Wadena, Sask. He then was associated in business with R. R. Hall, Barrister, Peterborough, where he was practising when he enlisted in the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery in January, 1916, when he served for nine months at Kingston Military School and then went overseas in September, 1916.

THE COAL SITUATION

Serious Conditions Face the Whole of Eastern Canada —People Are Slow With the Orders

CARS DELAYED

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, April 30.—A very serious coal situation, both in regard to anthracite and bituminous coal, is facing the whole of Eastern Canada according to the Canadian Railway Board which, after studying the matter earnestly has placed a provisional embargo on coal shipments from the mines. The discussion and information placed before the Board showed that there is great difficulty in getting United States' coal cars emptied and back to the United States, and that especially during the last two weeks there was a big number of these cars lying loaded up in Canada.

BLAME CONSUMERS.

The trouble is, according to the War Board, that people are letting the ordering of their fall and winter coal stand over and dealers are consequently, for want of orders, not able to make deliveries, and so the outcome is that coal is not discharged from the cars in anything like reasonable time. Profiting by the experience of last year the railways are sparing no efforts possible to get in all the coal needed, but they find that their efforts are neutralized to a great extent by the fact that in many parts cars of coal are on hand hand for two weeks at a time. This will be brought to the attention of the Fuel Controller by the War Board, but the more serious side of the issue is that if the cars are not emptied and shipped back quicker to the United States, the United States' Railway Commission may, for want of cars to convey the coal, have to reduce greatly the amount wanted for Canada, and this would mean a big shortage for the coming winter. The Canadian Railway War Board it is stated, is working in close conjunction with the United States Railway Commission for the movement of coal and though the railways on both sides will be kept up to maximum effort, it has been compelled to issue instructions to the railways concerned not to accept any more coal from the mines for importers who do not empty their cars in a reasonable time. It is further stated by the Canadian Railway War Board that it is unwise for firms or individual citizens to hold back in the placing of their orders as prices are not likely to go down, and that if they continue this policy it may result in them not getting coal when they want it.

THE CASH SYSTEM.

In many respects the war has revolutionized the business world. There have been changes, some of them bad and others so good that it is hoped that they will become permanent after peace is declared. Notable in this category is the cash method of business already inaugurated by a number of grocers, and to be generally adopted by all the city grocers to-morrow, May 1st. The credit system has been the means of wrecking many business concerns and no class of merchant has suffered so much from this evil than have the grocers. It is an economic axiom that the merchant who buys for cash can offer his customers closer prices than his competitor who has to carry on his books a large number of accounts. The putting of the whole grocery business of the city on a cash basis should prove beneficial not only to the merchants but to the buying public. For the former it will mean no bad debts and for the latter better prices and also probably more economic buying, for it has been found that the ability to obtain credit almost invariably leads to extravagant and unnecessary buying.

THE UNITY IDEA.

The special Unity and Confederation Number of the Telegraph which has just been issued is, we are gratified to find, attracting widespread notice, and not only is the office besieged by the people of Quebec desirous of procuring a copy, but from far and near letters are being received lauding the conception of a publication whose primary aim wes to foster and promote the spirit of racial harmony in this our country. The press of Canada, too, have been generous in their bestowal of praise in extolling our purpose of cementing closer the constituent portions of our nation in a genuine national concord. It has been particularly noted that Ontario business firms have been liberal advertisers thus rendering possible, from a financial point of views, this Unity Edition. It is eloquent of a better spirit among the people of Ontario than many of our Quebec extremists and demagogues would have us believe. While many of the letters which we have received from private individuals, subscribing with the greatest heartiness to the vital importance of a better understanding between our races, come from Ontario centres.

If, then, our Unity Edition has served in any way to clear away the fogs of misunderstanding, and if it has increased, even slightly, the spirit of concord between our Provinces, we shall rest well satisfied; for, above all, our unity Edition has demonstrated to us conclusively, that it is only mutual understanding which is necessary to a spirit of mutual accord and harmony.—Quebec Telegraph.

A DESIRABLE INNOVATION.

As an object lesson, Fire Chief Grange has had a red light erected over the fire alarm box at the corner of Hunter and George streets, with a view of impressing upon the public the desirability of adopting a similar system in connection with the whole alarm system. As it is now, the fire alarm boxes are very difficult to locate at night. Unless a person knows exactly where the boxes are situated, much valuable time is liable to be lost in turning in a night alarm and, as the majority of bad fires occur at night, the advisability of a better method becomes apparent. The scheme demonstrated by Chief Grange at the corner of Hunter and George street, and recommended by him in his annual report, seems to be a practicable solution of the problem, and it is hoped that the Aldermen will investigate its possibilities. The red lamp hung over the box can be seen for several blocks, and if all the other alarms were located in a like manner there would be no need of citizens running from corner to corner in search of a box, as has been the case with several fires recently.

It is all very well to say that citizens should be familiar with the location of the boxes. It is doubtful whether any of the Aldermen know where half of them are situated, and the red light plan proposed by Chief Grange would render such knowledge unnecessary, and make the finding of an alarm an easy matter. The cost would not be great in view of the advantages to be gained.

"BREEDING DISCONTENT."

A contemporary's charge that "party organs are trying assiduously to breed discontent among the farmers" over the new draft law, is amusing. Surely it must be plain that no effort on the part of any newspaper could add to the opposition developed in the rural sections of Canada to the measure, as far as it effects the exemption of bona fide farmers. The series of meetings held everywhere, and the tone of the resolutions passed, show discontent." That feeling is already that there is no necessity of "breeding discontent." That feeling is already in existence, and all the papers in Canada could not alter the sentiment, no matter what attitude they might take.

The resolution of the Brant County Board of Agriculture is typical of the feeling in the agricultural districts. The Board put itself on record as realizing the seriousness of the war situation, and the need of drastic measures, but expressed the opinion that taking more men from the land until they could be replaced, would prove disastrous to greater production plans. The Brant view is reasonable. It says, in effect, take the men if they are needed but before doing so make some arrangements to replace the farm help you are drafting. The resolution suggests that this could be done by securing the release of experienced farm labour from shops and factories, and replacing male with female labour, when possible, making more man power available for production, and by closing up and restricting unessential industries.

These are suggestions that are worthy of the government's attention, as is also the plea that Category B men, who are farmers, should be left on the land. If the Forestry Corps is over-manned, as it is stated, it should be easy to get all the non-combatant men needed from the B Catgory men who are not required as farmers.

Everybody will agree that the farmer owes a duty to the State, and that as a class there is no reason why the farmers should be exempted. The war situation leaves no doubt as to the need of men overseas, and at the same time the appeals of the British and Canadian Food Controls have made it clear that the food conditions are desperate. The contention that before bona fide farmers are taken away from their labour on the land, the government should take steps to replace them, is a logical one. The trouble is that so far at least there has been no announcement of how the authorities propose to solve the problem.

THE NAVAL QUESTION.

It is interesting to note the cable from London summarizing a letter in the London Daily Express from Admiral Sir Charles Beresford, says the Toronto Daily Star in an interesting article on the naval question.

In his letter Admiral Beresford speaks with pride of the new meaning given to the Empire's sea power by the share in the war taken by the Royal Australian Navy, New Zealand's navy forces, officers and men of the Royal Canadian Navy, also Newfoundlanders, West Indians, and South Africans.

It will be noticed that the admiral chooses his wording to mark a difference. The Airstralians and New Zealanders fought with their own ships under their feet. The officers and men of the Royal Canadian Navy, being shipless, were absorbed, like a money grant, into the general British service. The despatch adds:

"Lord Beresford also notes, apparently with sympathy, H. B. Farraby's forecast in his newly published book of the future naval forces of the Empire. Each Dominion would have its own fleet unit, its own Admiralty, its own bases, united for purposes of Imperial defence, under the general guidance of the Imperial Admiralty and Imperial navy staff, both of which would apparently be representative of the Dominions as well as the Mother Country."

If this idea be adopted by the Admiralty as the plan for the future it does not mean that the Admiralty sees now what it was unable to see before. The plan here outlined is almost precisely the plan recommended by the Admiralty to Australia, New Zealand, and Canada, and accepted by all three when the Laurier Government was in office, with the Opposition of that time led by Sir Robert Borden and Sir George Foster fully agreeing.

This was the plan of the Admiralty, the first plan, the one recommended to Canada, Australia, and New Zealand, and accepted by these three Dominions, and the Admiralty only produced the other and second proposal about contributing the cost of dreadnoughts after its first proposal had been bedevilled in Canadian politics in the election of 1911, and there came into power a Government composed of the anti-naval party of Quebec joined with the anti-reciprocity party of the rest of Canada. The naval question was dropped entirely for twelve months; then an alternative policy was devised. It had to be and was a naval policy that the anti-naval party of Quebec would accept. It was, of course, not a naval policy at all, involving, as it did, nothing but a grant of money and the washing of our hands of all those undertakings and responsibilities which were assumed under the Laurier naval policy.

The events of the past five years have been instructive, and it is a little too much to expect the Liberals of this country and the Liberal press to maintain silence in the face of arrogant and idiotic accusations from journals that supported the shameless abandonment, to please the anti-navy Nationalists of Quebec, of the Liberal naval policy which the Admiralty desired and Canada, Australia, and New Zealand agreed upon.

That policy, wrecked in Canadian politics in 1911, the Admiralty evidently turns to again. There is no other policy that is now or ever was worth considering. If Canada is going to do any lifting she has got to stand on her own feet while she does it. The Admiralty proposal to Canada was that we should have one fleet unit on the Pacific, with a dreadnought at the head of it complemented with other vessels. The Laurier programme was for two units, one on the Atlantic and one on the Pacific, beginning without dreadnoughts, but to which they would afterwards be added as Canada developed her naval personnel.

Time has shown that this was the plan that should have been carried out, and we do not doubt that it is the plan which must yet be adopted.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

One disadvantage in publishing a newspaper next door to a butcher shop is that the constant smell of the raw meat tends to make the members of the staff ferocious.—The Review.

There is not much in this environment theory, however. Our contemporary is printed next door to a drug store and yet the editorial liver is generally in need of a toning up.

According to our contemporary Mr. R. R. Hall deserves no credit for bringing the question of the feeding of wheat to live stock to the attention of the Government, or for the resultant pasing of an order-in-council prohibiting this practice. The fact remains, however, that Mr. Hall's letters on this subject have been acted upon, which will probably be enough reward for him.

It is surprising to realize sometimes that in spite of all the information in the newspapers and all the books on the war that have been published, how little many people know of the conditions at the front. Yesterday, a war correspondent mentioned in his despatch from Flanders that the British infantry in the Ypres sector had been seen to send up S.O.S. flares for artillery assistance, intending by this reference to show that an infantry attack was developing on that part of the line. The use of flares as a means of communication between the infantry and the artillery has been carried on systematically by both Germans and Allies, the S.O.S. signals, as they are sometimes called, being sent up whenever there is an indication of an intention on the part of the enemy to make an attack. However, many peograph referred to, and apparent unaware of the almost nightly use of such signals on some part of the line or other, became concerned that some dire disaster had happened the British and as a result there were all kinds of wild rumours in circulation last night.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

TECHNICAL TRAINING.

(Toronto Globe.)

It is not only soldiers returning from the front who need technical training. All young Canadians would benefit by it. The Dominion in this respect lags far behind the more progressive nations.

ONE GALLANT GERMAN.

(Hamilton Herald.)

The military honors paid to the remains of the famous German airman Baron von Richthofen by British airmen, were deserved. For it can be truthfully said of the baron, what can be said of but few German combatants in any service, that he was an honorable and chivalrous fighter. He had the reputation of one who never killed an enemy in cold blood. It is reported of him, and by one of his enemies, too, that "after driving his opponent down he often landed beside him, helped him from the machine, and saw that he was comfortably treated." His character as a humane fighter is all the more conspicuous because of the contrast between him and the mass of German combatants.

WORTHLESS, ANYWAY.

Brooklyn "Standard-Union." "There are some things that seem attractive about a law to put everybody to work. The distressing side of it is that those who have to be made by law to go to work are usually not worth a continental half cent piece when they do work.

IRELAND'S POSITION.

(Albany Knickerbocker.)

Ireland, granted political economy, mistress in its own house at last, will hardly be willing to lag behind while France, the United States, Italy and the British Empire stand shoulder to shoulder against the German peril.

A Comfortable House To Rent

Just what a number of good people are looking for at the present time. If you will judiciously invest in a home, that three or four hundred dollars, more or less that is only earning you a small rate of interest you will not have to pay rent; you do not have to vacate at the behest of a landlord or an incoming purchaser. At the present time, millions of feet of lumber as well as other building material is being contracted for in Canada for future shipment. This means advancing values. NOW is the time to buy; no prospect of values lowering. Every prospect of an advance. I have a number of homes for sale. Here is just one sample:

RED BRICK TWO STOREY — attic floored, four bed rooms, three rooms and hall down stairs, with summer kitchen, and shed; full plumbing, furnace and gas; verandah and balcony: full basement; large lot; good locality. Price $2,350. Yes, twenty-three hundred and fifty dollars, if you call on

Interesting Themes Discussed At The Bible Conference Held In St. Paul's Church

The Jews and the Prophecy—Their Mission on Earth—A Great Future Foretold For Them—To-night's Address.

That the children of Israel, or the Jews as they are commonly called, though now in dispersion, despised and tossed about among the nations the earth was touched on last evening and destined to fulfill a great place in the earth was touched on lost evening by Dr. L. S. Chafer, of East Orange, N.J., in the second of his addresses on this subject at the Bible Conference being held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. In his Sunday evening address Dr. Chafer showed that the theme of all the prophets in the Old Testament was the coming of a great king and Messiah to the Jews. It was the great home of the Jews as a people. Even when they were under the domination of the Roman Empire they still had faith in the prophecies that the time would come when their Messiah and king would be given unto them and they would once more become a great people and dominate over their enemies.

The Gospels.

Last evening Dr. Chafer proceeded from this point by showing that the New Testament takes up this theme in the Gospel of Matthew directly where it stops in the Old Testament in Malachi. Briefly he showed the purpose of each of the four gospels. Matthew having been written especially for the Jews and portraying Christ as the king of the Jews tracing His genealogy back to Abraham. Mark portrays Him as a servant and therefore does not give any genealogy for Him. Luke reveals Him as the Son of Man and traces His genealogy back to Adam from whom all mankind trace their birth. John's gospel reveals Him as the Son of God and shows that in the beginning He was with God.

Dealing in greater detail with the gospel of Matthew Dr. Chafer showed that the opening chapters are addressed mainly to the children of Israel or the Jews. When Christ came the kingdom was offered to the Jews. While our Bibles divide the Old and the New Testaments between Malachi and Matthew the division between the Old Testament and the New, as concerns the structure of truth is at the cross of Christ rather than between Malachi and Matthew. Christ had first to offer himself to the Jews and be rejected by them before He commenced His new purpose which was the preaching of the gospel of Grace to the Gentiles. The new covenant with Christians was made in His blood rather than by His birth.

Bible Students.

As we open our New Testaments we find that John, the Baptist, came announcing that the kingdom of heaven was at hand and calling upon the Jews to repent. In the fourth chapter we read that Christ Himself had called upon His hearers to repent because the kingdom of heaven was at hand. "Every Bible student," said Dr. Chafer, "must be prepared to see that Jesus first ministered to Israel and during that period He could not minister, or suffer His followers to minister to Gentiles. "I am sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." "Go ye not into any way of the Gentiles." During this period or ministry to Israel, which is stated in Rom. XV. 8, He preached the "Gospel of the Kingdom." "The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand." "The Kingdom of Heaven" is a phrase not found outside the Gospel by Matthew, and it most evidently refers to the rule of God in the earth. Such a rule is seen in several distinct forms in this Gospel. In its first mention, or in the first ten chapters of Matthew, it refers to the Davidic, earthly Kingdom that was the one hope of the prophets of the Old Testament and the hope of the Nation when Jesus came. This was "the consolation of Israel" for which every faithful Jew was waiting. Jesus, in sending His disciples out, did not tell them how to preach; but He did tell them every detail of the manner of their journey. The fact that He did not give them more instruction in the message was due to the conditions. They knew the hope of the Kingdom and needed not to be told anything, other than that it was "at hand." The first sign of rejection of the Kingdom and the King was seen in the imprisonment of John the Baptist, who was the herald of the King.

As the King and His Kingdom began to be rejected by the Nation, Jesus began to anticipate His death, with the great blessings that were to flow out of it and of His coming again, when He would bring in the Kingdom with power and great glory. As He said He would come again, so He will come. This event is the first great theme of prophecy in the Bible spoken by Enoch the seventh from Adam, as found in the Epistle of Jude. It is also the last word of the Bible and so the last word of prophecy, "Behold I come quickly."

To-night's Address.

In his address to-night Dr. Chafer will continue the same subject by showing that the Kingdom after being offered to the Jews was rejected by them. To-morrow evening the same theme will be continued when the new purpose of God in this age will be described. The same subject is to be continued Thursday evening. Friday evening the subject will be "The Two-fold Promise and Signs of the Times." In Hamilton Dr. Chafer one night, about two weeks ago, delivered this address to about 1,600 people, about 1,000 being turned away.

Spiritual Themes.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Chafer gave the second of his addresses on the spiritual life. "It is," he said, "the clear teaching of the Bible that all Christians have the Spirit; but not all Christians are filled with the Spirit. We receive the Spirit when we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour. We are filled with the Spirit when we yield our lives wholly to God. This life of divine blessing depends on a right adjustment to the Spirit who indwells us. He came to do certain things in the believer's life and He will do them when the way is made clear. To be filled with the Spirit is simply to have the Spirit fulfill in us all He purposed to do when He took up His abode in our lives. It is not a question of getting the Spirit, or of getting more of the Spirit; it is a question of the Spirit getting more of us.

In the service this afternoon, Dr. Chafer will give the seven manifestations of the Spirit, which, he stated, is the full statement of what the Spirit does in each life that is spiritual, or Spirit-filled.

A large attendance is expected at to-night's address which will be the third on prophetic themes. The service starts at eight o'clock.

FIFTEEN YEARS' USE OF BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Thousands of mothers keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house as long as there are little ones about. Among them is Mrs. Marcel D. LeBlanc Memramcook West, N.B., who says: "For the past fifteen years I have never been without Baby's Own Tablets. Whenever any of my children are ailing the Tablets promptly relieve them. I have such faith in them that I never hesitate in recommending them to any of my friends who have little ones in the home." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

Trinity Epworth League Held A Wartime Banquet

Rev. J. P. Wilson Presided—The Toast List

On Monday evening the members of Trinity Epworth League held a war time banquet in the basement of the church over which the Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., presided.

A feature of the evening was the toast list in which the members who took an active part, proved beyond doubt that they are coming orators of no mean order, the speeches being delivered in a very praiseworthy manner.

The toast list was as follows: Our King. The President. "God Save our Gracious King." The special head of all the land.

Our Flag. Mr. W. Parsons, Miss V. Zealand.

"But Freedom has made it majestic
And Time has honored "The Flag."

Our Country. Mr. Hugh Austin, Miss Sloane.

"Let them not live to taste this land's increase,
That would with treason wound this fair land's peace."

Our Noble Dead. Miss Katherine Adee, Miss Ada Lane.

"Go seek thy peace in war,
Who falls for love of God, shall rise a star."

Our Boys in Khaki. Miss Annie Rigby, Miss Lenore Lyle.

"Defenders of our soil!
Who from destruction save us; who from spoil
Protect the sons of peace."

Our Boys in Blue. Miss Laura Soden, Miss Willa Pethick.

"Lords of the wide world and the wild watery seas."

Our Society. Miss Eva Waugh, Miss Corbett.

"We must bend unto all means,
That may give furtherance to the holy cause."

Our Ladies. Mr. J. Kennett, Mr. Ray Brown.

"Earth's noblest and best."

The League members greatly appreciate the kindness of ladies who assisted in making the evening such a success.

Under the able leadership of Mr. N. J. Ireland, of whom the League is justly proud, the forward movement of the Young Peoples' Society is assured.

The programme for next Monday evening is as follows: Reception of new members; reports to the different committees and installation of officers for the coming year. A good attendance is looked for.

PETERBOROUGH FIRE LOSSES FOR THE MONTH OF APRIL

During April the Fire Department responded to 54 calls, of which three were of a more or less serious nature.

The fire loss for the month totalled $1,685 this amount from the fires at the Taylor estate, George street, the Chamberlain property, corner of Dalhousie and Stewart, and Suddards' house, East City.

The Chief is confident serious loss in the city was prevented only by the new chemical car. The pulmotor was not called out during the month.

Home Wrinkle Recipe -- Astonishing Results

Such startling, sensational results come from a very simple, harmless, home-made wrinkle-remover, there's no excuse now for anyone wearing those hateful marks of age, illness or worry. No need fooling with worthless pastes, creams, nor "skin foods" which don't feed the skin. No need rubbing, massaging, steaming—senseless methods which expand and loosen skin and underlying tissue, aggravating a wrinkled, flabby condition. Better, surer, surer, is the scientific saxolite formula. Thousands have successfully tried it—thousands freed of wrinkles, enlarged pores, saggy cheeks, double chin — themselves younger looking, happier!

All you need do is to dissolve one ounce of powdered saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel, and bathe your face in this. The effect is almost magical. Even deepest crow's feet completely, quickly vanish. Skin becomes firm, smooth, fresh looking—bears no trace of treatment except that of enhanced beauty. Get these inexpensive ingredients at your druggist's and try this marvelous saxolite lotion to-day.

MENNONITES EXEMPT. OTHER FARMERS PROTEST

AGINCOURT, April 30.—Although there is no lack of help so far, the farmers are very dissatisfied with the new conscription regulations, especially in the vicinity of Markham, where there are many Mennonites. In some cases on neighbouring farms there are three or four Mennonites exempted in one place, while on the next the only son is drafted. A meeting to protest against the new measure will be held at Markham on Tuesday, and a meeting for the same purpose will be held at Stouffville later in the week.

Western Canada's Live Stock Trade Increasing

(1) Calgary Stock Yards. (2) First Prize Aberdeen Angus Bull.

THE effects of the increased production campaign in Western Canada are already noticeable. All over the country farmers are enlarging and improving their herds, while many others, desiring to emulate their success, are entering mixed farming in earnest. Besides feeling it a patriotic duty to produce as much food as possible, more and more farmers are finding that mixed farming in Western Canada pays. Of course, this is not a new realization. The most successful farmers of the West are those who have divided their attention between grain growing and live stock raising, but the possibilities of quick returns with the former have blinded many to the advantages of the latter. Notwithstanding the high prices now being obtained for wheat, oats and other grains, prices which a few years ago were undreamed of—mixed farming is becoming increasingly popular among the farmers of Western Canada. Nothing is too good for them. They have money to invest and are investing it wisely with an eye to the future. The country is continually being scoured for well bred animals. Just now word has been received that more than a hundred pure bred Aberdeen-Angus females and bulls from the best herds of Iowa and Illinois have been loaded for shipment to Western Canada. These are choice specimens from the herds that have been producing the grand champion carloads and individuals at the International Live Stock Show; they will become seed stock for the farms and ranches of the Prairie Provinces.

The movement of pure bred stock to Western Canada is going on continually—from day to day, from week to week. To-day it is Aberdeen-Angus and Shorthorns, yesterday it was Jerseys and Herefords; last week all these and others breeds as well. One day dairy cattle predominate, another day beef cattle, and another dual purpose animals. They are brought from Eastern Canada, from all parts of the States, from England and Scotland, and even from other parts of Europe. Already possessing some of the largest and most valuable herds of particular breeds of cattle, the Western Provinces of Canada bid fair to become one of the greatest cattle countries in the world. They have every advantage for the raising of cattle economically—healthy climate, low priced lands on which grow nourishing foods, an abundance of clear water, convenient markets, etc. And, what is more important, these advantages are beginning to be fully recognized by the settlers, who are making use of them to their own and the country's profit. —R. The CRESSMAN Company Limited

CRESSMAN WELFARE CLUB FORMED LAST EVENING

Sixty Employees of the Company Met at the Empress Hotel and an Enjoyable Evening Was Spent

OFFICERS ELECTED

The Cressman Welfare Club, the first society of its kind ever formed in the city, was organized last night at the Empress Hotel, and to-day is a reality, and a definite working order. It had long been the idea of Mr. E. E. Bates, a member of the firm, that the idea of a definte amount paid by each member to a central fund, to be devoted to any member should sickness detain him from work, would be a benefit of no small importance. As the system stood up to yesterday, over-time was paid, lost time docked. Under the rules of his idea things would be readjusted, and a form of accident and sickness insurance instituted.

At 6.30 last night the sixty members of the Cressman Company met at the Empress where a most enjoyable hour was spent in the grill room. Mr. Graham had with his customary thoroughness, prepared a sumptuous repast. Toasts proposed by the chairman, Mr. E. Manning, were responded to as follows:

The King, responded to by Mr. H. E. Raynor.

The Firm, responded to by Miss Walker.

A PROGRAMME.

Following the dinner a programme was given in the upstairs parlour by talent from the staff:

Solo, Miss Metheral.
Solo, Mr. Carlisle.
Piano solo, Miss Gardiner.
Solo, Mr. Ford
Solo, Mr. Wolff.

AN ADDRESS.

Mr. J. E. Bates gave a splendid address on the benefits of Brtoherhood, Cooperation and Education in wrk.

He suggested that organization could amongst other great benefits, materially assist in making for better facilities for the holiday seasont. A club owned cottage which all could share in their particular vacation time, might be a feasible plan.

Lastly Mr. Bates spoke on the duty of the employees to the employer. "We must find our own faults," he said, "before we look for those of our employers. Some of our faults led to a considerable loss annually to those for whom we work. Three instances of such loss are: That of lateness, wrong measurement and wilful habits of giving samples. All of these faults could be remedied by the employee before looking for faults in the employers. Some of our faults lead to a the employees to correct from a standpoint of honor

DISCUSSION.

Following Mr. Bates' address a discussion, ending in the drafting of the following rules, took place:

Name: The Cressman Welfare Club.

Members: All regular employees of the Cressman Company will be eligible to benefits as provided in Sections 1, 2 and 3.

It shall be necessary for employees to have paid their monthly dues to the Welfare Club in the service of the Cressman Company, before they become eligible for benefits.

All dues to be paid in advance to the treasurer.

That employees will draw benefits for 13 weeks only in any current 12 months.

All sick benefits shall be under the control of the executive officers, and the visiting committee.

The membership shall be divided into three sections, namely:

First Section: Members shall consist of those receiving a salay of $7 per week or under; second section, members shall consist of those receiving a salary of $10 per week or under; third section, members shall consist of those receiving a salary of over $10 per week.

The monthly dues of each member of—1st Section shall be 30c per month.

2nd Section shall be 40c per month.
3rd Section shall be 50c per month.

After member shall have paid into Club one year they shall upn leaving the employ of firm receive one-half of said money, less the amount paid them during their employment for sick benefits.

Any member, who shall be unable "by reason of illness or accident" to follow their occupation for the space of days or more, shall be entitled to benefits.

If a member of the 1st Section, the rate shall be $3 per week.

2nd Section, $4.50 per week.

3rd Section, $6 per week.

In case of illness or accident notice must be sent immediately to Secretary of Club.

The beneficial terms will date from receint of notice unless otherwise ordered by the Executive Committee.

The officers shall be: President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, and a Welfae Committee of three.

The officers to be elected yearly by ballot; the Welfare Committee to be elected quarterly.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The officers elected to the Club were:

President—J. E. Bates.
Vice-Pres.—Miss Williams.
Treasurer—Miss M. Michael.
Committee—Miss Logan, Miss Davidson, r. A. E. Wolff.

VOTE OF THANKS.

After a hearty vote of thanks had been moved to the firm for the successful evening the meeting broke up with the National Anthem.

The Budget May Precipitate Long Drawn Out Debate

Majority of the Members Have Got their Bearings and Like the Town Council Will Want to Talk all night.

OTTAWA NEWS

(Special to Examiner.)

Ottawa, April 30.—Already a very considerable number of members of the Opposition side have expressed a desire to speak on the Budget debate, and as a consequence it promises to be of longer duration than that on any subject yet before the House. The debate on the address at the opening of the session has traditionally been the longest drawn out, but this session there are one hundred and twenty five new members in the House who had not at the time got their feet or their bearings. So it petered out in one day. Since then, however, most of them have become acclimitized to the atmosphere of the Chamber, and the debate on the Budget, which permits the utmost latitude, and in the course of which any subject under the sun may be discussed, will undoubtedly develop their attention to finance. Others probably will not. Upon the nature of the proposals of the government, will largely depend whether any amendment will be offered by the Opposition.

ABOLISH DUTIES.

At the commencement of the session it was rumoured that a resolution calling upon the government to abolish duties on agricultural implements would be moved and seconded by Dr. Molloy of Provencher, and W. H. White of Victoria respectively. But both of these members have departed west for seeding operations and there does not appear to be any immediate inclination on the part of the other members of the opposition to precipitate the question at the present time.

The railway question, the question of labour and greater production, the cost of various commissions, and committee alleged election scandals, shipbuilding, etc., all these subjects will find airing during the debate.

Ald. Dobbin Is The Registrar For West Peterboro'

Ald. Dobbin and Mr. R. B. Rogers have been appointed registrars for West and East Peterborough respectively to supervise the census of all persons, men and women, between the ages of 16 and 60. Ald. Dobbin was notified of his appointment several days ago, but the public announcement appears for the first time in a despatch from Ottawa to the morning papers to-day. This registration of the man and woman power of Canada will take place about the end of June. A meeting has been called in Toronto next Saturday.

RED GUARDS WERE DEFEATED

Nearly 6,000 Killed Or Taken Prisoners

Special to The Examiner:

COPENHAGEN, April 30.— White guard forces in the capture of Viborg killed or took prisoners nearly 6,000 Red Guards who attempted to break through the lines, according to a despatch received from Vasa to-day. Other Red Guard forces are reported fleeing in Western Servala and Western Trentsars

Viborg is the capital of a Finnish province situated on the Bay of Viborg, 75 miles north-west of Petrograd

FEWER DOG TAGS.

Demand Is Very Much Less Than Last Year—The Dog Catcher Has Decimated Their Number.

The work of Dog Catcher Gates shows its results in the diminished number of dog tags that have been sold this spring. On April 29th last year there had been 374 tags distributed, and this afternoon, April 30th, there have been only 126 taken out. Those who still have dogs are reminded that they must buy new tags, and that the time is now expiring for the old licenses.

GIRL GUARDS MEET TO-NIGHT

The Girl Guards of the S.A. Temple will meet for drill to-night at 7 o'clock sharp, and then do a hike down to Byersville to the great musical meeting given by Adj. Urquhart and his daughter, Miss, at 8 o'clock.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING THURSDAY

At the meeting of the Board of Trade to be held in the Council Chamber on Thursday evening, the 2nd of May, at eight p.m., all citizens are invited to be present and to take part in the discussion of the subjects to be considered, "Vocational Training" and "Street Railway Extension." The Board of Trade is making a special effort this year to interest the citizens generally in its activities and this is an excellent opportunity for the citizens to show their appreciation of the work being done by a few residents, for the benefit of the whole city and district. In other cities, Boards of Trade are very active organizations and the present Board appears to be taking its rightful place in the activities of the city, and its success and usefulness will depend on the co-operation and encouragement given by the citizens.

MEMBERSHIP.

Membership in the Board costs little and everyone who takes an interest in the development of the city, and such class should include all citizens, ought to be members. Application for membership received before the meeting by the Secretary, Mr. B. D. Hall, accompanied by the membership fee, $2.00, can be voted on at the meeting and the applicant installed as a member at once. Prompt action would be appreciated by the officers of the Board.

WET GOODS HAS BEEN DELIVERED

The 8 o'clock G.T.R. train was an hour late and the 8.10 G.T.R. was forty minutes late because of the detention of the trains at Bonaventure station, Montreal. Each passenger's luggage was searched for "wet goods." To-night at midnight the express companies will turn all their undelivered or uncalled for liquor over to the license inspector at Montreal. The local express companies, however, state they have none to turn in. The delivery of Peterborough's consignment was completed over a week ago.

Captain (Rev.) J. W. Magwood Delivered A Stirring Address In St. James' Church Last Night

Soldier Preacher Related Some of His Experiences at the Front —Musical Programme.

DR. HARVEY PRESIDED

"I would rather lead the life I have led with our Canadian Tommies than be the pastor of any church in Canada." The speaker was Captain (Rev.) J. W. Magwood, of Toronto, who last evening gave a stirring address in St. James' Methodist church. The occasion was the first anniversary of the church, which was observed on Sunday in the form of special services, and followed last evening by a banquet and another address by Capt. Magwood.

The chairman was Dr. E. E. Harvey, who performed his duties in a very capable manner. A short musical programme was given by the choir with Miss Galt presiding at the organ. Miss Ruby Quartermaine contributed a solo.

Capt. Magwood.

Speaking of his experiences as a soldier, Captain Magwood told of life at Camp Borden, of the willing spirit of the soldiers and the unselfishness and fatherly spirit of the officers. A sergeant-major asked Captain Magwood if he slept on a bed or on the floor.

"I sleep on the floor," was the reply.

"Sir, you are a real soldier," responded the sergeant.

It took four days to go by train from Toronto to Halifax. On board the transport we were under definite instructions never to part with our life belts. On the deck, below in the dining saloon, when we slept, those life belt were always with us.

In the Morning.

At half past three one morning we saw four destroyers approaching us, cutting the water like a knife, two on each side. It gave us a great sense of security to see these watch-dogs of Old England always at the bow or astern bobbing up and down like so many corks. We reached the mouth of Mersey on a Sunday morning; here was old England. Then, and only then, did the captain leave the bridge. Throughout the danger zones the captain stayed on the bridge day and night, always on the watch.

Visited the Churches.

While on leave I visited some of the different churches in London, also at Kingsely Hall, where the Rev. J. E. Rattenberg fairly electrified the audience. We went also to the Old City Temple, one of the most famous churches in England. We also went to the church of the Rev. Father Bernard Vaughan, the great Roman Catholic divine. At the door they passed the collection plate; inside we again had the acquaintance of the plate. As we were going out we were asked to contribute, and lo! when we got outside we were asked to contribute to the building fund. So I say if you do not get enough there in one collection have four.

Father Vaughan was in favour of allowing the working man to have his pint. The labouring man knows best. All the time I was in England I saw only one drunk and he was still able to carry on after a fashion.

Went to House of Commons.

We gained admittance to the House of Commons when the Irish question was the main issue. I heard Lloyd George, Carson Asquith, O'Brien, Dev. lin and Redmond speak. But I shall never forget the speech of Redmond who with tears in his eyes, made an appeal to close the cantakerous sore which had been open so long. In the House of Lords I heard the Marquis of Lansdowne speak. I liked him much better on the Irish question than on the peace question.

Women Take Men's Place.

In England the women have taken the places of the men. On the elevators, the trams, on the farms, the women are working faithfully.

We used to say self-preservation was the first law, but this never enters the heads of the soldiers. The motto in the army is "play the game," and they certainly are living up to it.

We must not get discouraged. The news from the front looks dark, but remember we are going to win. The cause of truth will triumph as it ever has done. Let us stand by our boys and the brave girls.

Guard Of Honour To Be Furnished By The Veterans

Will Be Out in Force to Receive His Excellency the Governor-General

At a special meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, it was decided that the Veterans should furnish a Guard of Honour in connection with the visit of His Excellency, the Governor-General, on Monday next. All returned soldiers in Peterborough, whether members of the G. W. V. A. or not, will be invited to take part in the affair. A list is being opened in the G.W.V.A. headquarters in the Barrie Building, and every returned soldier who can be present on Monday is asked to sign this list. Rifles will be secured from Kingston for the occasion.

It is also planned to have the Duke of Devonshire formally open the new club rooms of the Veterans during his visit to Peterborough.

President Staunton and Secretary Whatley were appointed as a committee to wait upon the City Council o-night in regard to the reception.

Authority was also given for he purchase of a new flag for the Association.

TO-DAY'S WAR SUMMARY

Special to the Examiner:

NEW YORK, April 30.—The Associated Press war summary says to-day: To-day's reports from the Flanders battlefront only serve to emphasize the completeness of victory won by the Anglo-French forces yesterday in withstanding the tremendous assault by which the Germans hoped to break into the Allied hill positions south-west of Ypres, and begin cutting their way on toward the Channel ports. The situation seems to have been one of the Entente High Command deciding once more to make a stand after having forced the Germans to use up tens of housands of men in fighting their way desperately forward as far as they have. The decision made, the stand was taken, and the Germans were stopped as they have been previously on other fields since the great offensive opened on March 21.

Charged Australian Veteran With Big Poker And Added Insult That Provoked Fight

Thomas Graystock's Charge of Assault Against Harry White Failed in Police Court This Morning—Old Man Was Badly Battered By New Manager of the Head House.

Thomas Graystock's charge of aggravated assault against Harry White at the Head house on Aylmer street, yesterday, was dismissed by Magistrate Dumble this morning after all the details of the encounter had been exhaustively presented in the police court.

From time to time Graystock has been boarding at the house for years White, an Australian soldier, who had served two years and seven months at the front, came to Head's three months ago. He had recently been working for Mayor Duncan as a painter at the Quaker Oats plant, but yesterday morning became manager of the boarding house for an unspecified period, during the absence of Mrs Head, who was boarding on Brock street, and recuperating her health. He supplanted as manager Edward Hatton, who handed over the cash and managership on Sunday night.

On Monday morning, Graystock went to Cooper to pay his board bill, offering a five dollar bill and asking for a refund of $1.25, for the remainder of his week. Cooper told him to take the money to White, but Graystock admitted that "he never had any use for White," and asked Cooper in the dining room to take the money to White, wh was in the bar.

It was then that ystock and White came together. White came out of the bar into the sitting room, and informed Graystock that the charge was one dollar a day for those who did not pay by the week; that he did not know much about the details, but would consult Mrs. Head. He changed that decision by saying that there was no chance of Graystock getting the discount that he sought.

Graysock is an old man of sixty. This morning his right eye had a blue patch around it, and its mate was hidden beneath a blood stained bandage. Other marks on his face were convincing evidence of the Australian soldier's "haymakers."

GRAYSTOCK OPENED HOSTILITIES.

Relating the incidents of the fight, Graystock said that there was nothing further spoken after White delivered the ultimatum on the discount. "I reached for a poker and gave White a tap on the arm. He struck me on the right eye. I hit him back with my fist. I don't know what happened then, or what he hit me with on the left eye, but he gave me this——" The old warrior pointed to the bulge under the bandage.

Witness said he saw White some time ago. Mr. Head put him out for striking a man, but he returned after Mr. Head was brought home from the hospital. Magistrate Dumble rejected this evidence.

Graystock—I never had anything to say to him except at election time. He was talking then that Canada and Canadians were no good, that the Victory bonds would never be paid, and a lot of other stuff.

Mr. Wearing, counsel for the defendant—"That's because he's an Australian."

Graystock told Mr. Wearing he had ense Inspector Stewart said he was interested in the witness.

George R. Davidson, a boarder at the Head house, was in the sitting room when the fight took place. He saw the start of the fight, but sensed trouble and got out of the dining room as quickly as he could. He apparently wanted to tell what he knew of it; but both Mr. Hatton, the Crown Attorney, and Mr. Wearing abandoned the task as hopeless. He said he knew that White had succeeded Cooper, but added that Cooper was back on the job to-day.

"They change around quickly, and often there," Mr. Wearing remarked.

EDWARD HENRY COOPER.

When Mr. Cooper was called, Licut. Stewart said he was interested in the witness.

"You can't fish in these waters," the Magistrate told him.

"Mrs. Head told me I was to leave on Monday," the witness said, "so on Sunday night about 12 o'clock I handed over the affairs to White." Cooper told of taking Graystock's money to White, but all he saw of the fight was the finish. White was throwing the old man out of the door. Cooper said he saw blood on the floor and on the sidewalk.

WHITE'S STORY.

Harry White, the defendant, said he was a veteran of the war. He had been overseas for two years and seven months. Mrs. Head had engaged him to manage the place while she was staying at Brock street recuperating her health. He began his duties yesterday morning.

"I told Graystock I did not think he was entitled to a refund of $1.25, but I would consult Mrs. Head about it. He asked me who I was. I told him that I was looking after the place in Mrs. Head's absence, and that there was no use of him asking for the money.

He said he would make me give it to him. He rushed to the stove and grabbed the iron poker. He came towards me with the poker uplifted in both hands. He made a slash for my head. I dodged and caught it just as it hit my shoulder. I held it, and asked him what he meant.

He said: "You —— —— I'll kill you!" and at the same time let go of the poker, and struck me in the face.

"I threw the poker away, then hit him a clout. He made a grab for a piece of cannel coal. I threw him from the box over on to the floor as he tried to get some coal. He gave me two or three more blows and I returned them. I dragged him out to the street. Afterwards I went to the Quaker Oats factory for my back money and went to the police station to lay a charge of assault against Graystock, but he was there before me."

To Mr. Hatton, White said that he had been engaged on Sunday, but was on the job only a couple of hours.

In dismissing the charge, Magistrate Dumble remarked that White might have told Graystock to come back and see Mrs. Head, but when the old man grabbed the poker he was dangerous. "He lost discretion, and reason, and I do not know what else Mr. White could have done but knock him down. He might have wrestled around with him, but that is not easy."

LATE DESPATCHES

Canadian Press Despatch:

BULLETIN, April 30. — British Headquarters in France(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency). —The Allied line has been advanced between La Clytte and Kemmel. There has also been some progress south of that region. Thus far the German capture of Kemmel Hill has done them little good, for the Entente Allied artillery has kept the crest so smothered in shell fire that it has been impossible for the enemy to occupy it in force.

Fierce Fighting.

Fierce fighting continued about Locre. All of yesterday the enemy sacrificed a great number of men. At Ridge Wood, west of Voormezeele, also, heavy fighting continued throughout the day and the number of German casualties in that region was great. It is impossible to say how many attacks the enemy made in course of the day. They came forward in waves throughout the long hours.

Associated Press:

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY, April 30.— This morning the Allied armies in Flnaders were, to all intents, the same as when the Germans surged forward yesterday. In front of the defending positions, gray-uniformed ing the awful price paid by Germans ing the awwful price paid by Germans for nothing gained.

GERMAN HOSPITALS.

Special to The Examiner:

AMSTERDAM April 30.— Three of King Albert's palaces in Belgium have been converted into German hsopitals according to reports received to-day from the frontier. The number of German wounded is said to be actually ten times the total estimated when the drive began.

"DEFENCE" FUND.

DUBLIN, April 30.—The Irish "defence fund" probably now exceeds any similar fund ever collected here. Four towns sent in $20,000.

FOOD RIOTS IN ALACIA.

Canadian Press.

LONDON, April 30.—Berlin Vorwaerts reports that serious food riots have broken out in Cracow, Galicia, where shipments have ben cut off for several weeks.

STORES CLOSE EARLY.

All But Druggists Begin New Time Schedule To-morrow.

May Day, to-morrow, initiates for the employees of all the uptown stores, with the exception of the drug stores, the five o'clock closing every day except Saturday. Citizens are reminded of this change, and are urged to complete their purchases earlier in the day. The merchants, by this innovation, afford their employees a measure of rest that will continue throughout the summer months, and should result in untold benefits to all their staffs. Clerks who used to quit last summer at six o'clock, are enabled to get away now at four o'clock on the old time basis, thus giving them really two more hours of light than they enjoyed last summer.

CLEOPATRA

A THEDA BARA SUPERPRODUCTION!

SEE 1,000 Marvellous Scenes—30,000 People—3,000 Horses—50 Ancient Battleships—Rebuilt Sphinx, Pyramids, Roman Forum — Cleopatra's Palace, Barge—Egyptian Cities.
SEE how and why one woman overturned the world.
SEE Theda Bara portraying the most thrilling love story of all history.
SEE Theda Bara's Wardrobe.
It cost more than Cleopatra's.

All the signs, scenes and stupendous spectacles ever devised are as nothing in magnitude, in magnificence, massiveness or munificence to this manifold marvel of all ages and all times. So beautiful as to make description beg for words to portray.

A story of gripping interest—intense, breathless climaxes, in which the beautiful Theda Bara appears as a fascinating, veritable reincarnation of Cleopatra, the siren of Caesar, Marc Antony, Pharoh, Egypt and Rome

City To Proceed With Suit Over Romaine St. Sewer

City Solicitor Gordon's report to the Finance committee regarding the authority of the Council to license and regulate restaurants was received last night and laid over for further details.

The City Trust's offer to purchase $13,200 of Waterworks debentures at par was accepted on motion of Ald. Dolbin, seconded by Ald. A. A. McIntyre.

It was moved by Ald. McIntyre and secouded by Ald. Saunders, that a debenture or debentures to the amount of $10,000 be issued and hypothecated with the Bank of Toronto as security for advances for the purchase of fuel, etc., for the municipal fuel yard.

The committee authorized the City Solicitor to take the necessary steps to secure expert and other witnesses required to prosecute the city's claims against Messrs. Bogue and Conroy in connection with the Romaine street sewer, which the city finally assumed and completed.

It was decided to issue $25,000 of 6 p.c. debentures on June 30th.

OBITUARY

FOSTER SHIELD.

MILLBROOK, April 30. — The death, on Wednesday last, of Foster Shield, of Mount Pleasant, removed one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Cavan Township. He was born 82 years ago on the farm on which he died. He had been confined to his room for three years. His sister, Miss Margaret Shield, nursed him through his long illness with patience and Christian fortitude. Deceased was a member of the Methodist Church. The Shield family have all been staunch Methodists since the time of John Wesley.

The funeral on Friday to Shield's cemetery was largely attended. Rev. W. H. Clarke conducted the services at the house and grave.

CRETA CAHILL.

The death occurred this morning, shortly after five o'clock, of Greta Cahill, daughter of Patrick Cahill, 499 Parnell Street, in her twenty-fourth year. She leaves to mourn her loss her father, two brothers, Patrick and John, and four sisters, Molly, Nelly, Hilda and Marcella. The funeral takes place on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock to the Sacred Heart Church, and from there to St. Joseph's Cemetery.

PATROL LEADERS RETURN HOME

Patrol Leader Hilda Card, also Guard Leader Mrs. Badley, along with the other leaders, have returned home, after conucting the week end services at the Salvation Army in Tweed.

GRAIN MARKET

The cash grain market is a little firmer. C. W. oats are quoted 1-4c to 5-8c higher, Fort William, in store basis. Other local quotations are unchanged but business continues quiet.

The option markets were inclined to weaken under the influence of milder weather prospects and more favourable planting conditions in the corn districts. Oats weakened with corn.

MORE WHEAT WAS USED DURING THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY THAN IN JANUARY

W. F. O'Connor, Former H. C. of L. Expert, Takes a Whack at Economists—Declares No Lawyer Can Submit to Dictation of Conduct

TWO WAYS TO CONSERVE FOOD

TORONTO, May 1.—"Notwithstanding all the efforts to conserve wheat, flour and food, for some reason during February, the consumption exceeded that of January," declared Mr. W. F. O'Connor, late Cost of Living Commissioner for the Dominion, when interviewed yesterday. "All the economists in the country can make all the claims they wish, but they cannot get away from the bare facts."

"If the various Government activities will devote themselves to their proper sphere, not overli , and at the same time keep as closely to the point as I did in my line, I can promise considerable success," he said. "My efforts were successful when one considers what my duties comprised. I have built up a practical system of application, and it cannot be run by theory."

When asked if his resignation resulted from differences with the Minister of Labour, Mr. O'Connor stated that at no time was he an employe of the Labour Department. He was a judicial officer, loaned to the department for these services by the Minister of Justice, and at no time was the question of authority considered.

"I took the position assuming that I was to be the supreme dictator in my department," he said. "No lawyer can submit to dictation as to the method in which he shall conduct his own case."

Mr. O'Connor said that he was at present engaged in the performance of other judicial services and there was positively no chance of his going back to the Labour Department.

Two Ways to Conserve Food.

Touching on the question of food, Mr. O'Connor said there are two methods of conserving food. One way was to raise the prices of commodities to such an extent that people would be forced to reduce consumption, while the other was to increase production. He stated that the turning of the white light of investigation upon business in genera had no doubt helped to keep some people honest, although in his recent exhaustive inquiry into the profits of cold storages he had found, out of 110 companies examined, only three to have accumulated excess profits.

"The cause of the present serious situation is due to the fact that the cold storages, generally speaking, have gotten away from the old practice of conducting their business along a basis of 90 per cent. storage and 10 per cent. trading," said Mr. O'Connor. "The percentage now is completely reversed, and the majority of the companies are trading to the extent of 90 per cent.'

"You are paying excessive prices for eggs, for example, simply because the individual buyer is competing with the storages having an im.. .. capital. At the present time the companies are purchasing eggs throughout the country at the prevailing price, in quantities sufficient to last them for ten months. April eggs will last longer than others, and consequently the householder next Christmas will buy eggs gathered now, and pay the normal price plus the cost of storage, and the margin placed upon them by the storage company. Without this competition eggs would now be selling for about 25 cents a dozen."

Has Stood the Gaff.

The former commissioner stated that during his investigation he had dealt in quantities, costs of prices, necessarily involving profits. Knowing that his findings were correct, he was ready to stand the gaff, and had stood it, and no arguments have ever been advanced that could convince him that he had erred.

When asked regarding the soaring prices of rye bread, which had been used as a substitute for wheat bread, Mr. O'Connor said that hitherto rye had not been developed as a breadmaker in this country of enormous wheat producing facilities, and the question had been more to the point of saving wheat, for the needs of the men at the front, by the finding of a substitute regardless of cost. It was unreasonable to expect that substitutes of this nature can be procured at a lower price. The substitution of whole wheat bread had resulted in a saving of wheat flour, but had necessitated the using of an increased amount of the berry.

The present supertax is continued as at present up to incomes of $50,000, after which the following classification comes into effect:

From $50,000 to $75,000, 15 p.c.
From $75,000 to $100,000, 20 p.c.
From $100,000 to $200,000, 25 p.c.
From $200,000 to $400,000, 30 p.c.
From $800,000 to $1,000,000, 45 p.c.
Over $1,000,000, 50 p.c.

OTTAWA, May 1. — Hon. A. K. Maclean, acting Minister of Finance, in the presence of a crowded Chamber and galleries presented the annual budget statement in the Commons late yesterday. In opening, he said it was but fit and proper that he should give expression to the profound and sincere regret of Parliament that Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, was unable to deliver the annual budget by reason of an enforced and lengthy absence from official duties.

GREAT REVENUE INCREASE.

Dealing with the financial situation Mr. Maclean said that for the fiscal year ending March 31st the revenue will reach, when all accounts are closed, $258,000,000, exceeding the revenue of the preceding year by $26,000,000, and that of the first year of the war by $125,000,000. Customs will yield $146,000,000, and excise $27,000,000, while other taxations will bring in $25,000,000. Of this latter amount the business profits war tax yields $21,271,283; banks, $836,724; insurance companies, $385,127; trust and loan companies, $267,917; inland revenue from railways, steamships, telegraph and cable companies, stamps, etc., $2,229,922; a grand total of almost $25,000,000.

EXPENDITUI E $203,000,000.

Ordinary expenditure for the fiscal year 1917-18, Mr. MacLean estimated at $173,000,000, inclusive of $45,000,000 for interest, and $7,000,000 for pensions or $52,000,000 altogether. Prior to the war the outlay on interest was $120,000,000, and the expenditure for pensions had not yet begun. The ordinary expenditure also included the sums of $25,000,000 and $7,500,000 voted on account of the C. N. R. and G. T. P. railways. For capital outlays an expenditure of $30,000,000 is estimated, making the outlay of Canada for all purposes apart from the war, during the past fiscal year $203,000,000. With a revenue of $258,00,000, the Government had a favorable balance or surplus of about $55,000,000 to apply to war expenditures.

Coming to the present fiscal year, Mr. MacLean said that apart from increased interest caused by our war borrowing and the amount required for pensions, substantial reductions have been made in the estimates of practically all the services.

ACTUAL EXPENDITURES LOWER

"I anticipate," said Mr. Maclean, "that actual expenditures will be well below the amounts voted. These deductions, however, are more than offset by the additional sums needed for interest and pensions for the current year over the past year, and which excess is estimated at $25,000,000, so that ordinary expenditure will increase materially over that of the previous year. Substantial disbursements will be necessary in connection with soldiers' land settlement programme, and in connection with the Halifax disaster. The capital expenditure vote has been materially cut. It is estimated that for the present fiscal year we shall be able to pay our ordinary and capital expenditure out of our revenue and have, as in the past two years, an appreciable sum over which we can apply to war purposes. The unexpended balance of the Victory Loan will finance our war expenditures and advances to the Imperial Government until July next, when Treasury bills will be temporary negotiated until the proceeds of the next public loan are available."

39,208 RECRUITS UNDER M.S.A. UP TO THE PRESENT TIME

Some 2,063 Had Joined Imperial Units, Leaving Only 37,145 For the Canadian Expeditionary Force—7,096 Failed to Report

OTTAWA, April 30.—Major-General Mewburn, Minister of Militia, explained to the House this afternoon the workings of the new Military Service Act regulations

He declared that after most careful consideration the Government had decided to call out men between the ages of 20 and 22, inclusive, first on the ground that these could better be spared from the business and industrial activities of Canada.

The registrars under the Military Service Act were instructed to notify first those of these ages who resided in urban centres, as this would give men in the rural districts a respite in which to finish certain farm work, seeding and the like.

The responsibility for carrying out the regulations had been placed in the hands of the Militia Department which would have to apprehend those men who failed to report.

For all men subject to military service, but of other ages, the Military Service Council was still in force and the regular machinery would go on.

39,208 Reported.

Up to April 29, said the Minister 39,208 recruits had reported under the Military Service Act, but of these 2,063 had joined Imperial units, so that there remained 37,145 for the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Up to the same date 7,096 class 1 men had failed to report and had not been apprehended.

"Every effort is being made to apprehend these men," said General Mewburn. "I wish the House to understand that these men are deserters and therefore law-breakers It is the intention of the Department of Militia to carry out its duty and to use whatever measures are found necessary."

One Ground For Exemption.

The Minister explained that there was only one ground for exemption, the fact that other members of a family had been killed, disabled, or seen actual service in a theatre of war.

This was interpreted as applying to an only remaining son of military age in a family. All men of any class called out would be required to report and they could then claim leave of absence on this ground. All would be deemed to be soldiers until demobilization, even if on leave of absence without pay. Every application for leave of absence would be dealt with on its merits.

"Cases may arise," said the Min-

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards — Receipts 49 cars, with 644 cattle, 575 calves, 723 hogs, and 18 sheep and lambs.

Trade was quiet yesterday for the reason that most of the drovers decided they would hold over their cattle for to-day's market. Not that there was any apparent let-up in the demand, for buyers were as keen for good butcher cattle as they were on Monday's market. Prices, in fact, for such cattle as were offered were fully maintained at Monday's high mark. The market ru to the present, therefore, hlds good and strong for all classes of cattle and unless a heavy run should come in for the week-end markets, which does not seem at all likely, will continue so to the end.

Hogs were holding steady at Monday's prices.

Trifles That Make Perfection

Walking through our shops, a visiting buyer said casually, "What is the reason for putting such a brilliant finish on that shafting? I have noticed in several instances that you seem to spend time and labor upon little finishing touches that don't mean much, considering that the equipment is going into plants where nobody pays particular attention to looks."

Our Superintendent replied: "Your point is well taken and appreciated, but the reason for those finishing touches is this: From the time the raw material comes in to the time that the finished product is shipped out, we insist upon every process being completed to a point where that process represents perfection.

"We know that this extra effort will not be apparent to the eye of the buyer, but the difference in time occupied in turning out a commonplace job and one which has the touches which make for excellence is infinitesimal compared with the ultimate result in the efficiency of the finished product.

"Then there is another effect that is possibly not apparent to you, and that is this:

"The standards to which we work make our men take a greater pride in their jobs, for we may be old-fashioned in some respects, but we still like to imbue our men with the spirit of pride in perfect craftsmanship.

"What's the result? We get good work. We can afford, and do pay wages above the average. Consequently, Dodge Power Transmission Machinery has secured and maintains a reputation that is a credit to Canadian industry, and it enjoys a good-will amongst buyers that no money could buy."

The buyer replied: "I understand now why Dodge has become synonymous with efficient power transmission machinery."

MAY LOWER MINIMUM.

Ottawa, April 30. — Corridor gossip to-day credits the government with the intention of announcing when the budget is presented this afternoon that hereafter the federal income tax will be payable on all married men's income over $2500 instead of over $3000 as at present. The single man's exemption will probably be reduced to $1000.

"THEY SHALL NOT WANT"

In a moment of inspiration an advertising man recently hit upon the above four words as epitomizing the desire and determination of the people of Canada that the Armies of the Allies and the suffering peoples of the Allied nations of Europe shall be supplied with all that Canada can possibly furnish of the food stuffs necessary for their support in the energetic and successful prosecution of their struggle for the defeat of tyrannical Prussian aspirations.

Compressed in this little sentence is more real throbbing meaning than most full pages of printed matter contain. In sixteen letters it expresses the determination of a people that a great cause must be sustained at no matter what personal sacrifice.

"They shall not want."

How aptly these words also express the attitude of the NORMAL, HEALTHY-MINDED MAN towards, those who under our social system, naturally look to him for support and protection. As he thinks of the wife who has entrusted her future to his care and of the children whom he has brought into the world, his thought and determination is "THEY SHALL NOT WANT."

This is always the attitude of the normal, healthy-minded man who is willing to sacrifice, if need be, to attain this noble end.

A policy in the Sun Life of Canada provides the safest and most economical means of fulfilling this noble desire and determination and incidentally, if fortunately in time this mode of protection is no longer necessary he may himself reap the benefits of his savings and thrift.

Thus virtue has its own reward.

The Stanley Cup.

The famous Stanley Cup, a twenty-five-year-old emblem of hockey supremacy, which was originally intended for amateur competition only, has recently won by the Torontos, champions of the N.H.L., from Vancouver, champions of the Pacific Coast League. The trophy was last in possession of the Seattle team, they having defeated Canadiens last season. The Stanley Cup was offered for competition in 1893 by Lord Stanley, then Governor General of Canada. It was won that season by the Montreal Hockey Club's team. Since then, with the exception of the seasons of 1895 and 1893, the cup has been competed for annually. Challenging teams have come from as far north as Yukon Territory and from the Pacific and Atlantic coasts. Altogether twenty-six teams have endeavored to win the cup since it was donated by Lord Stanley.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.
CHAPTER LV.

I heard cries, groans and curses; but they seemed to come from a great distance. The acrid smell of smoke, then a crackling sound that was not like anything I ever had heard.

"Hurry!" I heard some one cry; then more cries and curses; then I must have fainted as I knew no more until I opened my eyes out of doors. George still held me in his arms but he was as pale as death.

"What is it? Put me down," I said as the remembrance of that cry of "fire" came to me. "Are you hurt?" I asked just as George sat me on my feet. He swayed weakly, but steadied himself.

"No; but you are rather heavy." He looked anxiously at me as his color returned.

"Feel all right?" he asked.

"Yes; a little weak, and my throat is so dry."

"That's the smoke. I covered your face but some brute dragged the handkerchief off in the rush past us."

"Was anybody hurt?" I asked.

"A few were trampled upon; I do not think that any were burned," he replied, as he signalled a passing taxi cab.

A ROUGH EXPERIENCE.

"Your coat is all torn, George," I said, noticing for the first time that his coat hung in tatters, that his collar and necktie were awry; that he was wholly disheveled.

"It was a pretty rough path I had," he said, looking at himself in absolute unconcern.

I commenced to laugh hysterically as soon as we were in the cab.

"Stop that!" he said severely, then "what are you laughing at?"

"At you!" and again I laughed until I cried; "you look so different. No one would ever know you," and it was true. George was so immaculate that this man with smears on his face, ragged clothes, and untidy neckwear, with no hat and tousled hair, would never be recognized as the well groomed clubman, George Howard.

"Stop it! I tell you! No hysterics. It will make you ill" Then he tenderly drew me to him, holding me close. "You aren't so pretty yourself —" he said after I became quiet. I looked down at my skirt, and it was hanging in ribbons. I put up my hand and my waist was torn, one sleeve was nearly gone. "You see, there is a pair of us," he said after I had tried to straighten myself a bit. "Never mind, we are nearly home."

When I tried to get out of the taxi I nearly fainted again. It was silly of me, but I could not help it. So George carried me into the house, and called Celeste. I soon "came to" this time, and heard him say:

"Take good care of Mrs. Howard, Celeste. We nearly lost her. The theatre caught fire, and I am afraid she inhaled some of the smoke. I will telephone for the doctor. You get her in bed." Then he leaned over and tenderly kissed me.

UNUSUAL TENDERNESS.

This unusual tenderness quite unnerved me. I reached up and put my arms around his neck but saidnothing. He kissed me again, and said:

"Thank God, darling, you were not hurt!"

All the time Celeste was preparing me for bed and the doctor. I was absolutely unconscious or what she was doing; of anything she said. All I heard was "darling" spoken in that tender tone that made me feel that he meant it. So I was his darling after all.

The doctor came, examined my throat, asked me numberless questions, gave me some medicine, then after doing the same for George, he departed, saying:

"You were very fortunate. Many were hurt in that scramble to get out, a few very seriously. Why people act like mad beasts in such a case I can't imagine. If they would keep their heads there would be no injured. But these panics are terrible things."

George sat with me a little while; then he went to bed. But first he left word that on no account were either of us to be disturbed in the morning. We both slept until nearly noon. Annie said she had been kept busy all the morning assuring friends who had seen us at the theatre that we were not injured. That the telephone had rung incessantly.

George dressed and went down to the office, but made me promise that I would remain in bed. I gave the promise very willingly; I still felt faint and rather shaky.

Evelyn came over and I told her all about it, as much as I had sensed.

"Your husband was wonderful!" she said when I had finished.

"Indeed he was!" I agreed but I did not tell her that to me the most wonderful of all was his calling me "darling" and being so tender of me.

Dean Stanley.

It must, I think, have been when he was still at Canterbury, investigating, almost with the zest and passion of the explorer of Troy or Mycenae, what bones lie hid and where, under the cathedral floor, what sands "fallen from the ruined sides o. Kings"—that this passion of death and dates was upon him. I can see myself as a child of seven or eight standing outside the drawing-room door at Fox How, bracing myself in a mixture of delight and fear, as to what "Doctor Stanley" might ask me when the door was opened; then the opening, and the sudden sharp turn of the slight figure, writing letters at the middle table, at the right o. "little Mary" and the expected thunderbolt:

"Where did Henry the Fourth die?"

Confusion—and blank ignorance!

But memory leaps forward to a day four or five years later, when my father and I invaded the little Dean in his study at Westminster. I remember well the dark high room and the Dean standing at his reading desk. He looks round — see "Tom," and the child with him. His charming face breaks into a broad smile; he remembers instantly, though it is some years since he and "little Mary" met. He holds out both hands to the little girl—

"Come and see the place where Henry the Fourth died!"

And off we ran together to the Jerusalem Chambers.—Mrs. Humphry Ward in Harper's Magazine.

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

Registering a "Kick."

"Do you rememebr thim moth balls yez sold me to kill moths wid?" said Casey to the druggist. "Well, I'm tellin' yez they're no good. Oi broke tin shillin's worth of chiny and winders throwin' thim little balls at the plaguey things, and niver killed wan!"—London Tit-Bits.

ANOTHER EXPLORER.

Captain Joseph E. Bernier Will Seek North Pole.

Captain Joseph E. Bernier, Arctic explorer, who commanded the Canadian steam hip Percesien, which foundered in the Atlantic in February, has returned from England after an adventurous voyage. He now is completing arrangements for a trip to the polar regions on board his ship the Guide from Quebec.

The Arctic navigator is going to Ottawa, where he will confer with the Marine Minister. His interview may have a bearing on Stefansson, now in the Arctic. Captain Bernier may take up some important work of exploration in the Arctic which will supplement the efforts of Stefansson. This, however, will depend upon the result of his conference with the Government officials in Ottawa.

Captain Bernier seeks to leave about July 1 on board the Guide, which is now being outfitted for a polar voyage, and he will take supplies and provisions enough to last for two years. It is his intention to establish caches in the Arctic for Roald Amundsen, the famous explorer, who will sail for the North Pole from Norway about June 1.

The members of Stefansson's expedition owe their lives to Captain Bernier, who established a cache at Winter Harbor. When he arrived in Canada Captain Bernier told of the loss of the Percesien and of his rescue from the sinking ship 800 miles off the coast of Ireland.

The Percesien was one of a convoy of eighteen vessels going from this side of the Atlantic to England.

For four days Captain Bernier and the seamen of the Percesien battled with high seas and snow squalls. The heavy seas washed the cabin away and destroyed two lifeboats. Then the steering gear became unamanageable and the pumps in the engine-room were choked with coal. All hands were ordered to the pumps to keep the vessel afloat.

The water made steady inroads as the gale increased and, finally, the fires were extinguished and the electric lights put out.

Distress signals were hoisted and were observed by one of the ships in the convoy—the Lord Arne, of Belfast—the officers on that ship taking the signals at first for a submarine. At last their signals were recognized and the mate and seamen of the Lord Arne went to the rescue of Captain Bernier.

U. S. BILL PROPOSES TO ADD 3,000,000 MEN

Bills Introduced in Senate Point Out Need For Increasing Army.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Three bills to increase American man-power in the war were introduced in the Senate. Senator Poindexter, of Washington, offered one authorizing the President to call immediately 1,500,000 men under the selective draft law; Senator Reed, of Missouri, offered one to add 3,000,000 men to the army, and Senator Smith, of Georgia, introduced a resolution proposing to raise the army to 5,000,000 men.

ECZEMA ON BABY'S EAR

Mrs. F. Clarke, Belmont, Man., writes: "My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to do her very much good. Hearing of the remarkable cure Dr. Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend this preparation too highly."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

She Paid The Forfeit

By EDITH V. ROSS

The Hawksworth twins were so much alike that when they were little chaps their mother was obliged to tie a pink ribbon on Jimmie and a blue one on Billie to tell which was which. When they grew to be men Billie, who was of a roving disposition, went to South America, leaving his brother at home.

One evening at a function Jim Hawksworth met a girl to whom he took a desperate fancy, and the girl did the same by him. They danced together a number of times, and what dances they didn't know they "sat out" in a cozy corner by themselves.

The very next day the girl met Jim on the street. He was nearsighted and didn't recognize her, but seeing a lady smiling at him he took off his hat. The girl stopped; so did Jim.

"Upon my word," she said, "you have a short memory. You don't remember me."

Jim did remember her very well as soon as he got near enough to distinguish her features, but he didn't remember her name. He skirmished for time to think it up.

"I certainly do remember you, having passed some time with you very pleasantly last evening. But I am not sure that you have not mistaken me for some one else."

"How ridiculous!"

"Who am I?"

"What assurance! You are talking this way for a purpose."

"I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll make two calls on you and another will make a third. If you write my name correctly when I call and never write my name to the other visitor I'll pay any forfeit you may suggest. If you fail you pay any forfeit I suggest."

"There's a catch."

"No catch at all."

"What's the forfeit I pay you?"

"That I'll tell you if you lose."

"What is your full name?"

"James Smithson Hawksworth."

"Have you a pencil and paper?"

Jim tore a bit of paper from a letter and handed it her with a pencil. She wrote the name he had given her on the paper and put it in her bag.

"I agree to your terms," she said. "But, mind, if there is any catch I won't pay. Now tell me who I am."

"You're Miss Turnlee."

Jim bowed himself away and proceeded to put a plan he had in his mind into operation. His brother Bill had returned from South America a few days before, and the two were still alike as two peas in a pod. Jim went home, where he found Billie, whom he told of his agreement, adding:

"Now, Bill, I wish you to call on the girl tomorrow night, personating me. The next night I will call on her myself."

Bill assented and the next evening, after being thoroughly coached by his brother, made the call. He asked the young lady to write his name on a bit of paper, which she did, and before handing it to him she took care to compare it with the name Jim had given her.

The next day the twins had their photographs taken standing side by side. As soon as the pictures were delivered Jim put one of them in his pocket and, with a written statement from his brother that he had called on Miss Turnlee on a certain date, went to see her himself. Miss Turnlee, who could not divest her mind of the suspicion that some trick was being played upon her, was a bit rattled. She was looking for some difference in her writing the names on the two different occasions. After chatting awhile, during which period she scarcely heard what Jim said, he drew the paper on which she had written the name when his brother had called and, handing it to her, asked her to write his name below the one she had written before.

This time she was in no hurry. She studied the name she had written, compared it with the one Jim had given her and held the first paper to the light, looking at it and through it. Jim handed her a pencil, but she refused it, seeming to suspect that there might be something wrong in it. After much thought and hesitation she wrote the name under the one she had already written, but even then she seemed loath to part with the paper. However, a time came when she reluctantly surrendered it.

"I suppose now it will depend on my not mixing you up with the other visitor. If you have played me fair I have won. I have identified you twice. All I have to do is to say when he comes that he is not you. When is he coming?"

"He has been here."

"Been here!" Miss Turnlee looked incredulous.

"He was here some time ago. He is my twin brother."

He drew the photograph of himself and his brother and showed it to her. For a few moments she looked at it with a blank stare; then, the explanation coming to her, she exclaimed reproachfully:

"That's not fair!"

Jim admitted that it was a bit tricky and said that he would not hold her to her bargain unless she preferred to be held.

"What forfeit am I to pay?" she asked.

Jim did not reply at once. The lady's curiosity was aroused. She urged him.

"Yourself!" he said at last.

Miss Turnlee did not pay at once, but she did in time—not, she said, because she had lost fairly, but because Jim assured her that if she did not his life would be wrecked.

ON GUARD

At this time of the year people feel weak, tired, listless, their blood is thin, they have lived indoors and perhaps expended all their mental and bodily energy and they want to know how to renew their energy and stamina, overcome headaches and backaches, have clear eyes, a smooth, ruddy skin, and feel the exhilaration of real good health tingling thru their body. Good, pure, rich, red blood is the best insurance against ills of all kinds. Almost all diseases come from impure and impoverished blood. It is to be noticed in the pale or pimply face, the tired, haggard appearance or the listless manner.

Drink hot water a half hour before meals, and for a vegetable tonic there's nothing better than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the old-fashioned herbal remedy, which has had such a fine reputation for fifty years. It contains no alcohol or narcotics. It is made from Golden Seal root, Blood-root, Oregon grape root, Queen's root, Black Cherry bark, extracted with glycerine and made into tablets and liquid. Tablets fifty cents, at most drug stores.

In order to insure pure blood and to build up the system try this tonic known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Get it now!

THE JOY OF MOTHERHOOD

Came to this Woman after Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Restore Her Health

Ellensburg, Wash.—"After I was married I was not well for a long time and a good deal of the time was not able to go about. Our greatest desire was to have a child in our home and one day my husband came back from town with a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wanted me to try it. It brought relief from my troubles. I improved in health so I could do my housework; we now have a little one, all of which I owe to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. O. S. JOHNSON, R. No. 3, Ellensburg, Wash.

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in most cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of 40 years experience is at your service.

The Size of the Sun.

During the day, when the sun is high, nothing is near it to compare it with in distance, so we think it is small; but when we see it on the horizon, with houses and trees and church spires intervening, we believe it to be large. How often have you swallowed this explanation as the truth? To be candid, it is a scientific fib. To prove it, look at the moon from behind a lace curtain or from behind a bush. It will appear not a whit larger.

The real explanation of the sun's apparent dilation is this: The sun is enlarged at sunset because the air magnifies it. Of course the air is in a condition to magnify objects all day. But when the sun stands high, we look up through only a thin layer of air, whereas at sundown our eyes have to pierce the entire depth of the atmosphere—multiplied at least 16 times. This accounts for the enlargement of the sun. Dust and heated air appear to be the causes of the magnification. Thus the phenomenon is more noticeable in summer and autumn, our dusty seasons.

New Weed Eradicator.

A Hawaiian sugar-cane grower has devised a labor-saving method of eradicating weeds from his fields by smothering them. After the harvest, the rows of stubble are fertilized and then strips of light tar or asphalt-felt paper are laid over them and weighted down with stones and dirt. The sharp points of the new cane shoots are strong enough to penetrate the paper, though they may be assisted by slitting it where they are seen to be pressing up from beneath. The weeds, being unable to pierce the covering, soon wither and are dried up by the heat radiating from the under side of the paper. It is said the increase in yield has averaged 10 tons per acre.—Popular Mechanics.

Earthquake Waves.

From the speed at which earthquake waves travel through the earth an English scientist has evolved a theory that the world has a dense central core, which may be measured in time.

HEART WAS BAD NERVES ALL GONE

Very important it is in this age to have a clear cool head, a strong heart and steady nerves.

Too much rush and bustle, work and worry, fall to the lot of women attending to their household duties and social obligations. The constant strain under which they continue day in and day out will soon shatter the strongest system. Before long the heart gets weak, flutters and palpitates, the nerves become unstrung, you start at the least sound, the pulse becomes weak and irregular, then finally comes physical breakdown or nervous prostration.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the remedy you require to strengthen your heart and steady your nerves.

Mrs. Jackson, 457 Bolivar St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Fifteen years ago I was so bad with my heart I could not walk across the house, my nerves were literally all gone, and I was frightened at my shadow. I commenced to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and was soon able to do my own work. I have told dozens of people about them, some as bad as I was, and to-day they are also doing their own work. If more people would take them there would not be so many weak hearts."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Prime Ministers' Wives.

Though quiet, the part played by the wives of British Prime Ministers in the political fortunes of their husbands cannot be said to have been insignificant. Lady Campbell-Bannerman, for instance, by her Scots' sagacity caused her husband to prove adamantine in his refusal to let himself be sidetracked into the House of Lords. Mrs. Gladstone's devotion to her famous husband is a matter of general knowledge. Elizabeth Lee, who writes a book on the "Wives of Prime Ministers," speaks of her wise diplomacy concerning her husband's affairs: "When she was asked what Gladstone was going to do in some crisis or other, she would answer, with the greatest naivete, 'Well, I wonder, don't you? What do you think he ought to do?' Once only, in the early days of her married life, she unwittingly said something that showed she possessed some important knowledge of a confidential character. She was very penitent, but Gladstone said: 'It is the only mistake you ever made.'" In devotion to her husband Mrs. Disraeli may be said to have rivaled Mrs. Gladstone, but she undoubtedly had the knack of saying things which might have been left unsaid, or said a little less clumsily. Some one once asked Disraeli if he did not get annoyed by the gauche things his wife so often said. He replied, "Oh, no! I am never put out by them." "Well then," retorted his interlocutor, "you must be a man of most extraordinary qualities." "Not at all," answered Disraeli, "I only possess one quality in which most men are deficient—gratitude."

Shortage of Jute.

Owing to the rather critical conditions prevailing in the jute industries in Scotland the Dundee jute spinners and manufacturers are largely in favor of resorting to a stoppage of a certain proportion of machinery in their works. The Government has made known its desire for a reduction of 10 per cent. on the 1916 consumption of raw jute, and at a recent meeting of the spinners and discreet, fair judgment, unusually agreed that the reduction should be effected by a curtailment of machinery rather than by running on short time.

People Who Are Too Good.

We have in this world all kinds of organizations for making bad people good and good people better, but I know of none for making too good people—well, let us say, normal. We have all known people who would have been greatly benefited by an occasional "spree," with perhaps a night in jail, but whom no one is courageous enough to corrupt. It is not their fault that they are so good; all the forces of their social circle work to make them more respectable.—Robert M. Gay in the Atlantic Monthly.

Removing a Broken Caster.

A broken caster may be withdrawn from the leg of a piece of furniture by tapping a hole in the center of the caster stem, and threading in a machine screw, thus securing a suitable hold. A heavy metal washer is placed under the head of the screw. One side of the washer is supported by a block of wood, or leather, while a claw hammer, or "jimmy," is used to pry out the broken part.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Defining the Nonessential.

A nonessential is something that belongs to somebody else and that he should be forced to get along without.

Just Landed.

"Clarence is so poetical," she sighed; "when I accepted him he said he felt like an immigrant entering a new world."

Sight of Fishes.

Scientists have recently discovered that most fishes are able to focus their eyes on near objects by means of the superior and inferior oblique muscles.

Daily Thought.

The possession of great powers no doubt carries with it a contempt for mere externs' show.

Few People Know This

Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

Colorless faces often show the absence of Iron in the blood.

Carter's Iron Pills will help this condition.

"Native" Science.

The traveller of superior knowledge doesn't always impress the "native," or indeed, get the better of him in a contest of wits. A story is told of Sir John Lubbock that a countryman was assisting him in a field. Sir John, who was always ready to quicken the intelligence of any one who might be in his company, said to him, pointing to a heap of stones: "Do you know how these stones are made?" "Why, sir, I 'spect they growed, same as 'taturs." "Well," rejoined Lubbock, "if they lay there for fifty years, they would not get any bigger." "No, sir," was the reply, "in course they wouldn't—same as 'taturs. Take 'taturs out o' the ground and they stop growin'!"

DOCTOR SAYS VINOL IS THE BEST TONIC

Honest Opinion Doctor Gave His Patient

Bedford, Ohio.—"I was in a pitiful condition, weak, nervous and run down so I could not do my housework. I had doctored for years and tried everything under the sun. A friend told me about Vinol. I asked my doctor about it, and he replied, 'It certainly is the best medicine that can be had today. I couldn't give you any better.' I took it, and today I am as well and strong as any woman could wish to be, and it was Vinol that saved me."—Mrs. Frank A. Horkey, Ash St., Bedford, Ohio.

We guarantee this famous cod liver and iron tonic for all such conditions.

Unconsumable Fire.

The property of asbestos which renders it of economic importance is that it is formed of elastic and flexible fibres. These are sufficiently tough to be woven into a kind of cloth which resists intense heat without fusing or burning. Such a cloth was much used in ancient times. The fact of its fire-resisting properties gave it the name of asbestos—that is, the inconsumable. The finest variety of asbestos is known as amianthus, and the most beautiful specimens of this come from Tarantaise, in Savoy. Hence the fabric woven from asbestos is sometimes known as amianthine cloth.—Family Herald.

Disappointed.

"I don't understand why your father has taken a sudden dislike to me. He seemed friendly enough when I first began to call."

"Why—er—I think I can explain it," answered Miss Peacher. "Father is naturally courteous and I suppose he thought you would be drafted or something before you and I discovered that we were soul mates."

More Letters From Gananoque

Scores of People Telling of Their Experience With This Well-known Medicine.

GANANOQUE, Ont., April 1. — More evidence has come to hand today to prove the great good being accomplished in this town by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mrs. R. W. Henderson, Main St. S., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a household remedy for about fifteen years, and for kidney and liver troubles have found them excellent. I have also proved that in a case of tonsilitis or severe cold, if given in time, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will quickly relieve the patient. I have had experience of this in my own family, and think these pills cannot be equalled."

Mrs. T. H. Harper, River St., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "For quite a number of years we have made use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in our home. They are an excellent remedy for kidney and liver troubles, and my husband finds they also relieve him of lumbago, from which he sometimes suffers.

"My husband used Dr. Chase's Ointment for itching piles and in a very short time he was completely cured.

"We have also used Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine when the children suffered from coughs and colds, and think it excellent. We have received such good results from the use of Dr. Chase's Remedies that it is a pleasure to recommend them."

Some Very Quaint Devices Worn by the Regiments Fighting in British Army

THERE are some very quaint devices worn by the different regiments of the British army. Lions, tigers, bears, elephants, horses, foxes and cats are fairly representative of the animal world, and the creatures of mythology claim a place, too, as we have the sphinx and dragons of all kinds and colors. How some of these beasts came there is a mystery, but custom has installed them as firmly as the battle honors of the corps they represent.

The United States Army artilleryman is distinguished from his fellows by the crossed guns on his collar, his British comrade-in-arms wears a flaming grenade; but this distinction is shared by all the sappers, the Grenadier Guards, the eight fusilier regiments and the Scots Greys. In the old days infantry regiments all had a grenadier company, composed of picked men, the Grenadier Guards and the Greys are a relic of this custom as the First Foot Guards received this title and badge as the senior or picked guards regiment, and the Scots Greys were at one time Mounted Grenadiers. The light infantry bugle worn by no fewer than eleven regiments, in one form or another, has a similar origin, having been handed down as a distinction to "light" and rifle corps from the "light" companies of olden days. There is no difference whatever now between an ordinary infantry regiment and one distinguished as light infantry, but the title and badge remain a cherished distinction for all time.

Queen Anne gave to the Norfolk Regiment the badge of Britannia for their gallantry at Amanza in Spain, and years later, under Wellington, this corps inspired considerable respect among the Spaniards by the badges on their cross belts, the natives insisting that it represented the Virgin. Two regiments have, as their device, the crest of a distinguished general, the Seventh Dragoon Guards that of Lord Ligonier, and the West Riding Regiment, the old Thirty-third Foot, that of the Duke of Wellington. The thirty-third was the great duke's first command of importance, when, as a young colonel, he first led a regiment in the field.

The origin of the skull and cross bones with the words "or glory" beneath, borne by the Seventeenth Lancers, is as follows: The officer who brought home Gen. Wolfe's despatches from Quebec was ordered to raise a regiment of light dragoons, and he chose as a badge this grim device, still worn by the Seventeenth Lancers.

The elephant frequently seen as a regimental badge, or part of one, commemorates service in India, as also does the tiger. In the same way the sphinx is an honor gained in the land of the Pyramids, when the Gloucestershire Regiment won their unique distinction of the back badge. For their gallantry when fighting back to back against heavy odds, the privilege of wearing a sphinx on the back of the cap was granted, and the custom is still in vogue. The bear worn by the Warwicks is the "Bear and Ragged Staff," the heraldic cognizance of the famous Earl Warwick, the "King Maker" of the history books.

One regiment alone wear the royal arms on their collars—the Norfolk Yeomanry, the King's Own Royal Regiment. The oak leaf of the Cheshires recalls the Battle of Dettingen, the last occasion on which a British sovereign took the field in person. The story goes that a company of the old Twenty-Second extricated His Majesty from a very difficult and awkward predicament during the engagement, and a sharp struggle took place near some oak trees. King George bestowed the oak leaf as a badge, in honor of the occasion, and it has been worn ever since. The castle and key worn by so many regiments recalls the heroic defence of Gibraltar, and it is curious that there is a Prussian regiment which has, as one of its badges,

PIMPLES AND RUNNING SORES

Would Hold Head Down Face Was Such a Sight

Pimples are caused by the blood being out of order. Those festering and running sores appear on the forehead, on the nose, on the chin and other parts of the body, and although they are not a dangerous trouble they are very unsightly to both you and your friends.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and this is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This sterling remedy has been on the market for over 40 years, during which time we have received thousands of testimonials as to its curative powers over all skin diseases.

Mrs. Victor G. Fry, North Battleford, Sask., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters when I was about eighteen. I was so bad with pimples and running sores, that when I went down town, I would hold my head down, when I would see anyone coming, my face was such a sight. I got two bottles, and my face began to clear so I kept on until I had a beautiful complexion. I have recommended it to everyone who is in a run down condition, as it builds up the blood, and when the blood is Al the face is clear."

a representation of the Rock with the motto "With Elliot fame and victory," the corps having served under Gen. Elliot, afterward Lord Heathfield, during the siege. Napoleon's Eagles find a place on the badges of those regiments who captured these trophies during the Napoleonic wars.

Many of the distinctions of peace time disappear when the army dons its fighting garb; but one or two remain, notably the "feash" worn by the officers of the Royal Welsh. This is a knot of black silk, resembling a fan in shape, and attached to the back of the collar. Its origin is curious and dates from the old days of hair powder, when a soldier wore a greased pigtail down his back. When this picturesque, but useless fashion was abolished, the Royal Welsh were on a long tour of foreign service, and when they eventually returned home they still wore their hair in the old way; this was soon altered, but the silk, which was used to protect the scarlet coat from the queue, remained, and is now a cherished privilege. The back badge of the Gloucesters has already received notice, and the other quaint customs and devices are laid aside till the armies return to their more peaceful duties.

British Warship Botha, Although Badly Crippled, Sank Enemy Destroyer

IN the engagement between allied and enemy destroyer squadrons off Dunkirk on March 21st the British destroyer Botha cut a German warship in half and took a leading part in the fight, although her main steampipe had been severed by a stray shall.

Early Thursday morning the British destroyers Botha and Morris and the French destroyers Capitaine Mehl, Magon and Boucher were patrolling the eastern waters of the English channel when they heard enemy ships bombarding the coast of Dunkirk.

The fired star shells which had the effect of silencing the bombardment and scattering the enemy.

The destroyers started in pursuit of the Germans in a northwesterly direction and discovered eventually that the enemy ships were making for their base. A grim fight ensued, according to the stories of eye-witnesses. None of the German torpedoes found a mark, but the Morris, emerging from an enemy smoke screen, cut off a German destroyer of a large type and torpedoed her at a range of 500 yards. There was an explosion in the enemy vessel and she sank immediately.

Meanwhile the Botha had been crippled and she began to lose her way. The crew determined to do what damage they could and fired both their torpedoes at the two leading enemy boats. Then, her helm having been put hard over, the Botha rammed another boat cleanly amidships, cutting the enemy vessel in half. Swinging around the Botha attempted to repeat the ramming manoeuvre on the next German astern. The enemy craft, however, eluded the effort of the crippled Britisher but only to fall a victim to the French destroyers. Ablaze, the German boat lay disabled while the Frenchman pounded her with torpedoes and gunfire.

The Morris lost the rest of the quarry in the mist and took the lame Botha in tow, while the French destroyers circled around, picking up prisoners. From the statements of prisoners it appears that eighteen German craft participated in the raid and when they fled from the French coast, leaving three of their number behind, they were attacked by a British naval air squadron which pelted them with bombs and scattered them in all directions.

Two German destroyers and two German torpedo boats were believed to have been sunk in the action off Dunkirk, according to an announcement made by the British Admiralty on March 21st. It was said that no allied vessels were sunk and that one damaged British destroyer had reached port.

ister, "where there are two remaining sons in a family, one of military age and another soon to be. In that case, one will be obliged to serve."

Leaves of Absence.

It was explained that only category A and those in the ages called who had not been medically examined, will be notified to report. Every man reporting would be medically examined and those in categories other than A would be granted leave of absence.

Realizing the value of food production, it had been decided by the department that any members of the C.E.F. in Canada, in categories lower than A, who can be spared, would be granted leave of absence without pay on a certificate that they were efficient farm labourers.

"There are in Canada, between the ages of 20 and 22 some 70,000 men," said the Minister. "There are a number of men who have not been examined and others who are not medically fit. This would bring the numbers to 35,000."

Realize the Hardships.

Very few men in these ages can be really considered indispensable, declared the Minister. Though it was a hardship to call up the only son of a widow, whether he is either in the city or country, it had to be remembered that the widowed mother would have the assigned pay, patriotic fund money and separation allowance.

"The Government realize the hardship, but hope the people will understand the necessity," said he.

He also explained the necessity for immediate help at the front. During the summer the Government hoped to have a better registration of the man power.

Quebec Enlistments.

"In Quebec, I am glad to notice an increase in enlistments," asid the Minister. He also remarked on the number of men who had enlisted from Laval University and St. Mary's College. "The tank battalions have been filled up by these men and the universities have given leave of absence to the students."

Other universities, he claimed, had made arrangements to raise fresh units and to help out the country.

Gen. Mewburn, in conclusion, said that so far as he was concerned every effort would be made to promote good feeling between all the provinces and present a common front to the common enemy.

Rodolphe Lemieux thanked Gen Mewburn for his complimentary reference to Quebec. If the Government would keep them together in units, they would get one tank battalion in Quebec city alone.

HEADACHE OVER THE EYES? LOOK FOR NASAL CATARRH

Catarrh Never Stops in One Place—It Spreads Rapidly—Often Ruins Health Completely.

In this changeable climate it is the little colds that drift into Catarrh. Unless the inflammation is checked it passes rapidly from the throat or nose to the bronchial tubes and then to the lungs. You can't make new lungs any more than you can make new fingers or toes, but you can cure Catarrh.

The surest cure consists of breathing in the healing balsamic essences of CATARRHOZONE, which is simply a medicated vapor so full of rich curative properties that every trace of Catarrh vanishes before it.

The soothing piney vapor of Catarrhozone is the most powerful medicine I ever used," writes Mrs. Edmond J. Christine, of Saskatoon. "Every breath drawn through the Inhaler sends a grateful feeling through the air passages of the nose and throat. Catarrhozone cured me of frightful headaches over the eyes, relieved me of a stuffy feeling in the nose, and an irritable hacking cough that had been the bane of my life for a year. My general health is greatly improved, my appetite and digestion are considerably better than before. Catarrahozone has been the means of giving me such health as I always desired, but never possessed."

Even though catarrh has a firm hold on you, and affects your throat, nose or ears, you can thoroughly cure it with Catarrhozone. Large size, guaranteed, costs $1.00; smaller size, 50c.; sample size, 25c. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Jungle Camouflage.

In the jungle a huge python lies hidden from its prey, waiting. It resembles some twisted, fallen branch, and is unnoticed by the small furred creatures which pass near. Suddenly the python strikes, the captured creature is crushed and disappears into the throat of the hunter. Another instance is the tree toad, which clings like some green bough to a tree, and seems to be a knot or lump in the wood. Through the entire day it will hang there, while flies and butterflies hover near without fear, only to be snapped up by a long, forked tongue, the prey of the wily hunter.

Probably It Was.

"Mars John," excitedly exclaimed Aunt Tildy as she rushed panting into a fire engine house, "pleas, suh, phonograph to de car cleaners' semporium an' notify Dan'l to emergrate home diurgently, kaze Jeems Henry sho' done bin conjured! Literary Men Fond of Cats.

Johnson's successor in Shakespearean scholarship, the late Doctor Furness, confessed that he could not work without having his big black cat somewhere about the library. William Butler Yeats likes cats; and he has remarked with a fine touch of natural observation, "There is a time at twilight when all cats are gray and all men are handsome."

New Year in British Navy.

Three hundred and sixty-four times in the year is midnight's passing marked by the striking of eight bells in every ship in the British navy. At the moment when the old year draws its last breath, and the new year is born, the whole navy strikes 16 bells, but never on any other occasion, for then eight are given to bid farewell to the old year and to welcome the new. By tradition, the youngest officer of the ship strikes the bell, and by tradition the youngest boy in the ship acts as his echo by hammering the blacksmith's anvil.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S FOUR PIECE MATERNITY SKIRT.

The practical features of this maternity skirt are apparent at a glance. It not only takes care of the gradual expansion, but it also retains its good style—a quality which is usually sadly lacking in garments of this character. The front panel opens at both sides from the hip line to the waist line, making the skirt very easy to put on. The loose yoke develops into a narrow belt at the back, which covers the gathers. The yoke is shaped so that it gives a desirable dip to the front of the figure. The skirt is gathered full on a wide elastic and the belt is supplied with buttons and buttonholes, so that it can be let out as comfort demands.

The lady's four piece maternity skirt No. 8761 is cut in seven sizes—26 to 36 inches waist measure. Width at lower edge of skirt is 2¾ yards. The 26 inch size requires 3¾ yards 36 inch or 3 yards 44 inch or 2¾ yards 54 inch material.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, May 1. — On and after June the first wholesale dealers in flour and food will be brought under the licensing system of the Canada Food Board and after that date no person may trade wholesale in flour, grains, hay or straw, without this license, which will range from $20 per annum up.

The Food Board has extended the date that the grocers must be licensed until June first, after which date it will be illegal for any grocer in Canada to keep shop without license.

93rd Soldier Killed In Action

Pte. L. A. McIntosh is the Second Member of Family to Lay Down His Life

"Regret to inform you that Pte. L. A. McIntosh has died of wounds at the Third Stationary Hospital, France. He suffered from a gunshot wound in the chest, perforating the left side."

DIRECTOR OF RECORDS.

The foregoing telegram was received to-day by Mrs. Angus McIntosh, 469 Cedar street. Private McIntosh was a student at the Collegiate Institute and was only 16 years of age when he enlisted with Lieut.-Col. Johnston's unit. He was later transferred to the 19th Battalion, C.E.F.

His elder brother, Angus McIntosh, was killed in action on the fifteenth of September, 1916. Another brother, Wilbert, who enlisted with the 16th Highlanders Hamilton, was invalided home over a year ago.

The late Private McIntosh is a son of Mr. Angus McIntosh, caretaker of the Peterborough Curling Rink.

1,000 Farmers In Big Deputation Going To Ottawa

One thousand farmers is the prospective force of a huge deputation that will present to the Dominion Cabinet a petition protesting against the drafting of farmers' sons and other help, as announced in the recent changes in the Military Service Act. Hon. Mr. Crerar has notified Mr. J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, who are organizing this rural invasion of Ottawa, that the deputation will be received probably on May 14. In a letter to Mr. H. B. Cowan, of Farm and Dairy, Mr. Morrison writes that Durham County is sending fifty delegates, the Downsview Farmers' Club, west of Toronto, will have five members, and many other centres are responding with quotas which, it is expected, will reach a total of one thousand farmers, representative of the entire province and especially of the best farming sections.

It is manifest that this evidence of united movement is rendered possible through the rural organization, which by the way, is fast spreading throughout the country. Mr. Morrison has just returned from New Brunswick, where he assisted at the inception of a kindred organization in that province.

The French Armies Were Prepared To Meet The Foe When Offensive Opened

Vital Question of Transportation Was Solved Beforehand ---Green Placards Bearing Black Arrows Marked the Line of Travel For the French When They Went In to Fill the Breach

MINIMUM NUMBER OF MEN USED

(United Press.)

(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 1.—I am now at liberty to describe the thoroughness with which the French armies had prepared to meet the German attack and the precision with which the French met the foe's advance. Hardly had the Germans begun their offensive at 8 o'clock the morning of March 21 than a telephone message from French General Headquarters was sent out, and instantaneously repeated along the whole French front. As if by magic there appeared almost immediately thereafter at every cross roads behind the French front and along every route of travel huge green placards bearing simply a big black arrow.

THE BLACK ARROW.

The green placard meant that the Germans had chosen for their field of offensive the sector of St. Quentin. The black arrow marked every foot of the way that the French reserves must followw to arrive in the quickest possible time at the point of contact.

Had the Germans chosen any other sector for their attack this mechanism would have worked just the same. A different coloured placard would have indicated the sector where the Germans had opened battle. As a result of this minute preparation every man destined long in advance to meet the Germans at whatever points they might choose for their offensive, was able to arrive there in the shortest possible time by the quickest way.

QUESTION OF TRANSPORTATION.

The war long ago demonstrated that victory in a modern battle depends largely on transportation. This time the French General Staff knew four months in advance that the Germans planned to attack and the problem of transportation was solved in advance.

The distribution of placards and arrows was only one detail. In the four months which the General Staff had to prepare its transportation facilities it worked out to the last minute the exact time in which every unit, every gun, every pound of ammunition and supplies could reach—by horse, automobile and train—any point at which the Germans might attack. When the moment came it was only necessary to touch a button, as it were, and the General Staff knew the moment at which every man and every gun would be at the point of contact.

MINIMUM NUMBER OF MEN

I visited the Noyon battle front during the first days of the German attack and saw long columns of artillery, reaches of infantry, convoys of munitions, automobiles and trains of artillery waggons rolling up to the front in the most matter of fact, unhurried, unworried, mechanical manner it is possible to conceive.

It was precisely this preparation that allowed the French troops with only a minimum number of men engaged, to fall quietly into the breach made between British and French lines and while covering retreating British to aid in checking the German advance.

Military Men Are Optimistic

Allies Have Won One Phase of the Battle—Confidence in the Future

DEFENSIVE VICTORY

(United Press.)

(By Ed. L. Keen.)

LONDON, May 1.— Although it is too early for anything definite, and notwithstanding the drive in Flanders may be renewed any minute, military officials are more optimistic than for several days. Whatever follows, the Allies have won one phase of the battle in the Flemish hills. They have smashed the Germans in a trial of sheer strength, have inflicted a severe, costly jolt and have won a notable defensive victory, although the Germans hurled at least 223,000 men into the hills around Ypres. The situation has a brighter aspect than for weeks. It believes Monday's stone wall defence warrants a confidence in the future and speculates as to whether the Germans will now strike elsewhere in pursuit of their recent tactics.

Satisfied With Trend Of Events

Premier Clemenceau Returns From a Trip to the Front—A Confidential Report

NO IMMEDIATE DANGER

(Canadian Press.)

Paris, May 1. — Premier Clemenceau, just returned from the front, entered the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, and to a crowd of Deputies explained the situation, and it is understood he declared that he was satisfied fully with the trend of events. What the Premier told the Deputies was of a confidential nature but it may be said he declared the front as a whole has now become stable, and that the steps taken by the high command justify the opinion that the points against which the enemy has delivered his attacks are out of immediate danger.

CAPTAIN H. B. ROGERS RETURNS HOME

Son of Former Peterboro' Postmaster Spent a Few Days in the City

Captain H. B. Rogers, C.A. M.C., an old Peterborough boy, who has been stationed at a base hospital in France during the past two years, was a transient guest in the city this week, returning to his home in British Columbia. Captain Rogers is a graduate in medicine of Toronto University and entered practice at Chemainus, B.C., some eight or nine years ago. Later he removed to Victoria, entering general practice there. In 1914, he was one of the first to volunteer for service, obtained his commission, and proceeded overseas. He is now accepting discharge to re-enter civilian life, having accepted appointment as medical superintendent of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital at the Pacific Province's Capital.

Captain Rogers is a son of Mr. Harry Rogers, formerly postmaster in the city and with his bride spent a few days in the city with his uncle, Mr. R. B. Rogers, Auburn, en route for Victoria.

INCOME TAX AMENDMENTS

Every Child Under 16 Years of Age Reduces the Income Levy by Four Dollars—Assessable Income

AN INTERPRETATION

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, May 1.—Every child under 16 years of age cancels $4 income tax, except where there are more than five such children in a family, and then each additional child cancels $8. This is what the Finance Department thinks will likely be its interpretation of the child exemption clause in the amendments to the income tax act. It meaus that in the ordinary family each child saves Dad $4, except where such a saving would amount to more than the tax would be in case there were no children. A married man without children is exempt up to $2,000, pays 2 per cent. from $3,000 to $6,000, and after that pays a super-tax and war surtax in addition. Take the case of a man receiving $3,000, and with one child under 16. He is exempt to $2,000 because he is married, and $200 more because he has a child. Thus his 2 per cent. is payable on only $800, the difference between $2,200 and $3,000—and his tax is $16. He saves $4 on each child, and if he has five of them under 16, of course, he does not pay any income tax at all. If he has more than five children of that age and is getting over $3,000 the additional children cancel the assessable income which would otherwise pay not 2, but 4 per cent, and each additional one saves him $8.

The Interpretation.

Such is the interpretation likely to be placed on the $2,000 exemption, but the Finance Department officials admit it is quite possible that they may take another course and strike off the $200 per child from the income before assessing it at all. In that case a man in receipt of $6,200, and having one child would be considered as in receipt of only $6,000, and would not be assessed for super-tax and war surtax which applies to all incomes over $6,000. This method of applying the exemption is upheld by some officials of the treasury, but they say they will have to investigate the British and United States practice. As the new income tax is not payable until next year when it will be due on 1918 incomes, the department has plenty of time in which to work out this detail.

Another feature of the income tax is that on incomes of $3,000 or over the tax on a married man without children is always $50 less than on a single man, no matter how high the incomes may go. Such a sume as $50 is negligable in the case of very great incomes.

The Difference.

The difference arises as follows: Over $3,000 the normal tax is the same on all incomes—4 per cent—and the super-tax and war surtax also apply in the same way to married as to unmarried men. But up to $3,000 there are the following distinctions:

1—Married men don't pay on anything under $2,000, while single men pay nothing on anything under $1,000. Over $1,000 the tax is 2 per cent on $500 and 4 per cent on $500, total $30.

2—Married men pay 2 per cent from $2,000 to $3,000 which makes a tax of $20. In addition to the other taxes single men pay 4 per cent from $2,000 to $3,000 thus adding $40 as compared with the married man's $20—a difference of $20. This with the $30 already mentioned makes up the $50 difference between married and single men's taxes for incomes of $3,000 and over. Under the old act the difference was $40.

PRIZE WINNERS TO BE DRAWN FOR

At An "At Home" in St. Alphonsus Lyceum on Monday Evening Next

An "At Home" will be held in St. Alphonsus Lyceum on Monday evening, May 6th, after which a drawing will be held to determine the prize winners for the different prizes which were donated and offered at the Spring Fair. A very pleasant time will be spent and you will also be able to learn first hand if you have been the fortunate winner of any one of the many prizes that were offered. 2d-1-4-102

PRAYER MEETING.

Have you any loved ones overseas? If so, come and pray for them; if not, come and pray for some other mother's boy, at the home of Mrs. Hartshorn's, 512 Stewart St., to-morrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock; all welcome.

HUNS SPAR FOR TIME

The Past Twenty-four Hours Have Been Conspicuously Calm on the Western Front

A NEW SHIFT

(By William Philip Simms.)

(United Press Service.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, May 1.—Staggered by the Allied blow before Ypres, Sunday, Gen. Von Armin sparred for time yesterday and last night, utterly unable to push on. Save for considerable shelling of the back areas from Ypres westward toward Hazelbrouck, and except small raids and outpost clashes, the last twenty-four hours have been conspicuously calm.

May Try Again.

The Germans doubtlessly will try again to turn the nest of hills southwest of Ypres, but Sunday's jolt compelled a shift of the enemy divisions. This shift will require hours and perhaps days of preparation depending on the severity of the mauling they received Sunday. I heard upon unimpeachable authority that babies have been found in the firing line among the dead.

When the British retook Neuve Eglise they found two babies in the German trenches. The Germans apparently discovered the babies in the village and took them to the comparative safety of the trenches. The Tommies took them to safety below ground.

Unable to Hold.

The British were unable to hold the shell-deluged position and the babies were taken with them when the Tommies fell back. They are now well in a hospital where they are pets of the nurses. In a part of the Flanders lines two British artillery observers discovered a child which had been separated from its parents. They placed the infant between them in a hay loft, their bodies keeping it warm. From here they watched the German movements. Shrapnel burst above the barn, killing both men. The baby was found sound asleep between two corpses. It is now in a British hospital sound and healthy.

Executive Named Last Evening

Local Advisory Council Held Another Meeting Last Evening

The Local Advisory Council for Co-operation in Boys' Work, appointed the following executive at a meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. last night:

President—Mr. C. E. Sisson.

Vice-President—Mr. C. C. Parsons.

Secretary-Treasurer — Mr. A. B. Gates.

The above gentlemen will hold office until October 1st. next, which date marks the beginning of the season's drive in boys' work.

A Promotion committee consisting of Mr. W. H. Moore, Mr. G. H. Roper, Mr. C. C. Parsons, was appointed to instigate and promote the study of the Canadian standard efficiency test work among the teachers and officers of the organized boys' classes in the various Sunday schools of the city.

Mr. R. C. Reid, Mr. T. Hendry and Mr. A. McNab were appointed by the President as a Statistical committee to compile information regarding the boy life and work in Peterborough.

All denominations were fully represented last evening and judging from the enthusiasm shown by the different members of the Council a splendid programme in connection with boys' work in the city may be anticipated.

The next meeting of the Council will be held in the Y.M.C.A. at 8 p. m. on Thursday evening, May 16th.

COUNTY COURT MET YESTERDAY

Yesterday at a special sitting of the County Court His Honour Judge Huycke tried an action of W. D. Tyrer, formerly a Dominion Life Agent, against P. A. Ferguson, District Manager of the Company for commissions.

The case took most of the day, and a large number of insurance agents gave testimony of business usages among them.

The Judge finally dismissed Mr. Tyrer's claim against Mr. Ferguson with costs.

Mr. Corkery, of O'Connell & Corkery, acted as solicitor for Mr. Tyrer, and Mr. Gordon, of the firm of Gordon, Widdifield & O'Brien, acted as solicitor for Mr. Ferguson.

Failure Of The German Attacks Is Commented On In A More Hopeful Tone

Enemy Suffered a Very Costly Repulse on Monday---French Troops Improved Positions During the Night--Several Successful Minor Enterprises Carried Out

THE WAR OFFICE REPORTS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 1.—The failure of the German attacks southwest of Ypres Monday with its immense losses to the enemy is commented on here in a more hopeful and more confident tone which is in marked contrast with some recent comments on the news of the progress of the German advance towards the Channel Ports. The consensus of opinion is that the enemy on Monday suffered a most severe and costly repulse since he began his offensive March 21, and it is contended that if the terms of victory and defeat are applicable to single phases of such prolonged battle, then the Allies on Monday won a very substantial victory. Comparisons is made between the present operations and the French defence of Verdun, and the opinion is expressed that the German experience on the Verdun front is being repeated in their effort to capture the group of hills southwest of Ypres. The enemy failure up to this time to achieve his object and especially his bloody repulse on Monday are regarded universally as hopeful augury for the future of the Allied defense.

Nevertheless commentators warn against optimism. They remark that although the enemy has been foiled it does not mean necessarily that the enterprise has been abandoned but rather that it has been suspended in favour of an attack at some point where a successful defense seems less assured.

OFFICIAL REPORTS.

LONDON, May 1.—(Official) — French troops last night improved their positions in the neighbourhood of Locre, on the Flanders front, the War Office announces. The British rushed German posts in the Meteren sector and took prisoners.

THE STATEMENT FOLLOWS.

A local attack made by the enemy yesterday upon one of our posts in the neighbourhood of St. Julien was repulsed by machine gun fire. Posts held by the enemy in the Meteren sector were rushed by our troops during the night and a few prisoners were secured by us.

By successful minor enterprise carried out last night, French troops improved positions hel bdy them in the neighbourhood of Locre.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, May 1.—(Official)—Artillery duels of some intensity occurred last night on the Somme front, near Villers-Bretonneux, and on both sides of the Avre, southeast of Amiens, says to-day's War Office report. In the Lorraine region French patrols brought in prisoners. The night was quiet on the remainder of the front.

The New Tobacco Tax Will Yield Revenue Of $8,500,000

This Will Partially Offset the Fifteen Million Dollars Revenue Loss on Spirits—Ten Cents a Pound Tax on Tea.

WAR TAXES

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, May 1.—Fifty million dollars of new revenue is the additional sum which Canada's Union government hopes to raise from its war budget as announced Tuesday. On tobacco products alone it is calculated that there will be a new revenue of $8,500,000, partially offsetting the $15,000,000 loss on spirits. A ten cents per pound tax on tea—the exact tax evidently decided at the last moment, for it is written into the typewritten schedules — should yield at least $3,000,000. Not all of the new taxes will boost the revenue for the current fiscal year, however. The new income tax will not be collected in time, but on the other hand, the present tax has yet to be collected and will swell the current year's receipts.

War Taxes.

The special war taxes for the year ended March 31, 1918, yielded about $78,500,000 in addition to ordinary taxation, so that another twelve months should see the following war revenues collected:

War revenue as of 1918, $78,500,000. From the C.P.R., $7,000,000; from income tax, $11,500,000, from that portion of $50,000,000 new taxes collectable this year, $43,000,000. Total, $140,000,000; less whatever part of $15,000,000 spirit tax was attributable to war and less other expected reductions, say $15,000,000. Balance, $125,000,000. Thus in addition to ordinary revenue, Canada will this year impose $125,000,000 of special war taxes.

Local Grocers Refusing To Repurchase Flour From People

Grocers have been pestered since the issuance of the new flour regulations by customers who were anxious to re-sell some of the bags they had stored away in the attic in anticipation of a white flour famine. These citizens desired to keep within the law, and they may have been influenced by the fact that their purchases were recorded in their dealers' books. The order announced last Saturday plainly permits persons living in towns to have in their possession sufficient flour for fifteen days' requirements. They must not only return their surplus to the dealers from whom they bought it, but the dealer must buy it back at the purchase price, or the market price on April 30th, 1918.

The Toronto authorities have decided that the people are not holding large stocks of flour, that buying has been generally for immediate needs, and consequently a house-to-house search is unwarranted. They will confine their attention to the future transactions of grocers and other dealers in flour. In other words, Toronto has apparently decided that if provident and thrifty persons have two or three hundred pounds of flour stored away they may keep it; but let no one henceforth buy more than they need for fifteen days.

CONSCRIPTION IN IRELAND HAS BEEN POSTPONED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 1.—An order-in-Council has been issued further postponing the operation of the National Service Act or conscription, as respects Ireland, beyond May 1, to which it had been postponed previously. Some of the morning newspapers say the postponment is due to the Government's wish to introduce the Home Rule Bill, and to see what measure of success it gets before proceeding to enforce conscription in Ireland, which it is said, in some quarters, is not likely to be attempted in the next few weeks. The opinion in the lobby of Parliament is that the Home Rule Bill will be presented in the House of Commons next week, but the difficulties of drafting it have not been overcome entirely.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, MAY 1ST, 1918.

THE RUSSIAN SITUATION.

That if the Allies can hold during the present campaign, the Russians will be back into the war by next Spring with millions of trained men, is the cheerful message that comes from the stricken country of the Slavs. This is the meaning of recent events in Russia, as interpreted by Joseph Shaplen, correspondent of the United Press, and a close student of Russian conditions, for which the fact that he himself is a Russian by birth, makes him especially adapted. Shaplen has been closely in touch with affairs in Russia, and the optimism shown in his despatches can be accepted as genuine.

Some newspapers have taken the view that the recent developments in Russia have been inspired by the Germans, but from the fact that the Brest-Livotsk peace treaty has been repudiated and a system of military training adopted, it would appear that there is every probability of Russia coming back strong on the side of the Allies an event that would ultimately destroy Germany's chances, and hasten a successful peace for the Allies.

A REAL S. O. S. CALL.

Many people were needlessly alarmed at a newspaper correspondent's reference to the use of S.O.S flares by the British infantry the other day. The anxiety over this incident was caused by lack of knowledge of the conditions at the front. To-day, however, a real S. O. S. call is coming across the Atlantic, and the people of Canada must be sufficiently acquainted by this time with the needs of the hour to realize the seriousness of the call. From the British Ministry of Food comes the grave message that wheat imports are not arriving in the United Kingdom in quantities sufficient to meet weekly requirements, and Lord Rhondda adds that "every effort that can be exerted in Canada to increase shipments of wheat and meat will be invaluable."

That is an S. O. S. call to which every one can respond. All cannot fight, all cannot work on farms, but every man, woman and child can answer Lord Rhondda's appeal by reducing their consumption of wheat products to the minimum. The regulations in regards the consumption of wheat, the a certain amount of saving, but after all the chief waste is in the private household. It is there the conservation must take place, and there every individual can do something to increase Canada's shipment of wheat.

For months newspapers and public speakers have been endeavouring to drive home the need for economy in the use of wheat products in view of the situation overseas. Surely in the face of the serious admission from the British Ministry of Food, that wheat is not arriving in England in quantities large enough to meet the needs of the people, no patriotic Canadian will go on eating wheat products at every possible opportunity and wasting nearly as much as he eats, as has been the case in many households.

The food situation was never more serious and unless the people of Canada voluntarily ration themselves as regards the consumption of wheat, the government will have to step in and make such saving compulsory.

As a matter of fact, instead of there being a reduction in the use of wheat flour in Canada, figures just issued show that the consumption for February was higher than for the preceding month.

PTE. HARRY WORRALL.

The death from wounds sustained in action in France, of Pte. Harry Worrall, former member of the 93rd Battalion Band, should touch the conscience of those people who were so free to criticize the members of the band when that organization was sent home from England in December, 1916. It will be remembered that after the 93rd Battalion was broken up in England, and the bandsmen were being kept on fatigue work, the proposal was made to Ottawa that the band would be of more value as a recruiting medium in Canada than it was as a fatigue squad at Sandling. The military authorities took the same view and ordered the band home, whereupon, in some quarters, there arose a most violent criticism of the members of the organization, who were denounced as one newspaper and by individuals as chocolate soldiers, and made the subject of various other epithets from people who chose to ignore the fact that as soldiers the bandsmen had to obey orders. When the 247th Battalion, to which the band was attached, was ordered overseas, the bandsmen who were medically fit for overseas service, once more crossed the Atlantic, cheerfully ready to fight if they were needed.

The men that were sneered at and reviled are over there now. Some of them are in the Royal Flying Corps; others are helping Currie hold the line at Lens. Harry Worrall, cheerful, genial, gay, the kindly spirit who used to keep his comrades enlivened on the gloomiest days of camp life, was one of the men who went back. He is the first to lay down his life at the front, his death from wounds being a striking refutation of the cowardly attacks that were made on the honour of the men who were members of the 93rd Band.

A TRIBUTE TO TOMMY.

A splendid appreciation of Tommy Atkins as a fighting man has recently been voiced by Major Geo. W. Crile, surgeon, of the Council of National Defence, of Cleveland O., who has been on duty in France. The description of the fighting qualities of the British soldier as given by this American officer, is one that will be appreciated as a genuine tribute from a representative of another nation, who has gained his facts at first hand. Mayor Crile says:

"A word about the British soldier. I have learned to know him better and have this to say for the Tommy. He really does not know what defeat is. You may leave him in Flanders, and you can go away and leave him there for a week and when you come back he will be there, living or dead, he will be there. Tommy is a good, clean fighter in a sportsmanlike way and reflects the great sense of fairness found everywhere among the British people. I have never seen any boasting among the British soldiers, I never saw expression of fear or hate. I saw onlyofficers of the high type English gentleman attacking this very bad business of war with all its grimness, attacking it as he would a good, clean sport, and the soldiers reflect what is in the souls of their officers.

"I can not tell you what will happen in this war, I believe, however, that the war will end only in victory for our countries; but I know this: That the British may die in Flanders; some may die there and be buried there; they may all die there, and be buried there, but I do know they will never go back to England, only and excepting after victory!"

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Ypres must be a sinister word in Germany. Since the autumn of 1914 the Huns have been endeavouring to wrest the Belgian town from the Allies, and thousands of Germans have fallen in the various attempts.

The wheat shipments to England are not meeting the needs of the people. You can help by refraining from eating wheat products.

Canada must not only produce more—she must save more.

The figures quoted by Hon. A. K. MacLean in presenting the budget yesterday, would have stunned the country in pre-war days. As it is they are accepted without a gasp.

In the United States they are asking their people to stop killing Allied soldiers with their teeth—in other words to increase food shipments by using substitutes for the wheat and meat that can most readily be sent overseas.

UNITED STATES TRIBUTES.

No exploit of the British navy has so stirred the people of the United States as the St. George's Day expedition against Zeebrugge and Ostend. Newspapers in all parts of America have lauded the bravery of the gallant officers and men who took part in the raid, the following extracts from representative United States papers being typical of the American press generally:

"SPECTACULAR."

Boston Globe: "However effectual it may prove, the Franco-British raid blockading the German submarine bases at Ostend and Zeebrugge by sinking old cruisers filled with concrete is the most spectacular naval action of the present year."

"A WELCOME NEW DEPARTURE"

New York Times:—"It is obvious that the raid of British naval forces to 'bottle up' the enemy submarines was a risky and dubious undertaking. But, whatever the measure of success was, it should be hailed as a welcome new departure to inaugurate a more aggressive naval policy."

"A DARING EXPLOIT"

Springfield Republican: "Whatever the measure of success attained, the British raid on Zeebrugge yesterday was a daring exploit worthy of the best traditions of the British navy. Hardly any adventure could be more hazardous than the landing of a small force for an attack on this strongly defended place, and the wonder is not that the party lost heavily but that any part of it got safely away."

"A FARRAGUT-LIKE DASH"

Pittsburg Dispatch: "There is no question that American sentiment, in our navy and among our people, has long favoured a Farragut-like dash on the U-boat bases, and the satisfaction with which the news of the naval raid on Ostend and Zeebrugge was received was heightened by the resort to the method made famous by Hobson and the crew of the Merrimac in the effort to bottle the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Santiago."

"DARING AND BRILLIANT"

Brooklyn Eagle: "Those naval strategists, mostly amateur, who have criticised the failure of the British navy to 'dig the German rats out of their holes,' have been answered by the stirring exploit of the British forces in attempting to 'bottle up' the submarine bases at Ostend and Zeebrugge. For sheer daring and brilliancy the simultaneous attacks upon these two Belgian coast ports have not been equalled in this war."

"RENEWS FIGHTING TRADITIONS."

Boston Transcript: "The British naval raid by night on Zeebrugge and Ostend was a valiant and brilliant feat of arms. It renews the best fighting traditions of the British navy. This departure attack on a fortified port, with the whole fleet eager to volunteer for a service which was more likely to mean death than survival, is in line with the death grip on the ships' rails at Trafalgar, with the feats of the 'hearts of oak' in the battle of the Baltic, with the moment at Quiberon 'when Hawke came swooping from he west.'"

"ANOTHER GREAT CHAPTER"

Philadelphia Telegraph: "It is enough to make those old salts, Drake and Frobisher and Hawkins and Blake and Nelson, gurgle in their graves when the news reaches the Elysian fields that a British fleet has bottled up the Huns U-boats If the report of the blockade of the Bruges Canal proves true, it means another great chapter added to the long story of British valor on the sea."

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

(New York Herald)

Knowledge of the points in the present ddispute is not necessary to an understanding of the German attitude. To the Kaiser, his war lords, and the German people, in whose eyes might makes right, Holland has committed the unforgivable sin of being a small country.

A NEW KIND OF RAID.

(Hamilton Herald)

That British naval raid on Zeebrugge and Ostend did not resemble the German raids on British ports—raids made by German warships which hurl shells upon undefended towns for a few minutes and then scurry away in the darkness to avoid the British patrol ships.

ULTIMATE DEFEAT.

(Ottawa Journal)

Doing their utmost, the Germans as things stand, have got thirty-five miles ahead on one small sector of the western battle front and twelve miles ahead on another in five weeks. In both cases, most of their progress was made in the first few days of attack. This is not victory—this, under the circumstances, means ultimate defeat.

GREAT-HEARTED MEN.

(Montreal Herald)

"There was great competition for the undertaking and we could only use a very small proportion of those who volunteered," said the First Lord of the Admiralty in his report of the Zeebrugge and Ostend raids. That's the stuff of which British sailors and soldiers are made. Not even the most forlorn hope holds them back; discipline alone does that.

INFORMATION WANTED.

(London Advertiser)

It's a mistake to omit publishing the names of the members of the re examining board which gave Col. R. P. Labatt a life pension. Private soldiers with heart affections as a result of service would be glad to appear before it.

NO PLACE FOR TITLES.

(Owen Sound Sun)

Owen Sound is not directly interested in the abolition of titles in Canada not having anyone whose foolishness takes that course. And Owen Sound does not want any titles here. We have the best town in Canada and some of the best citizens in Canada, and a few of the best soldiers of Canada in the firing line. That is sufficient honour for any town. A knight or a baron would be very much out of place here.

SIR DOUGLAS HAIG'S HEIR.

(Westminster Gazette)

The birth of a son and heir to Sir Douglas Haig fulfills for another generation the old prophecy concerning the duration of the famous family from which the field-marshal derives:

"Tide, tide, whate'er betide,
They'll ave be Haigs, in Bemersyde."

Sang Thomas the Rhymer, and sure enough the lands, and barony have been in the unbroken lineal possession of the family since hte days of Malcolm IV.

FOCH BIDING HIS TIME.

(Philadelphia Record)

An American officer who has just returned from France is surprised to find people here worrying about Foch's inactivity. He says he has had an army of 1,000,000, which has been indicated from other sources, and we presume is exclusive of the Italians. "When the neck of the German turkey is drawn tight, you watch General Foch," he says: "My opinion is that you're going to hear some good news within the next ten days."

FAVOURITE TARGETS.

(Hamilton Herald)

On the face of it, the German charge that American officers have crossed the Atlantic in hospital ships for the sake of greater security is a foolish charge. Why, is it not a well-established fact that hospital ships are favourite targets for the Germar U-boat commanders?

A REASONABLE REQUEST.

(Brantford Expositor)

A deputation of farmers which waited on the Dominion Government asking that the 20-22 regulation should not be applied to the industry which it represented received no encouragement, being told that farm work would have to be cared for in some other way. This is an attitude which the situation on the western front justifies, but the agriculturists have a right to expect that if their boys are conscripted for the army, men, and women, too, who cannot go overseas should be conscripted to take their places.

AMERICA'S THANKS.

(Boston Evening Transcript)

In this grim hour, when every American worthy of the name humbly thanks his God for Britain and for France, let us reenforce our faith with words and "send the word over there" that another million Americans have been called to the colours, and another fifty thousand ordered up for training to be officers.

A BRIEF SUMMARY.

(New York Sun Correspondent.)

Germany is the only country in the world that murders the wounded, bombs hospitals, sinks hospital ships and shoots eRd Cross workers.

It is the only country in the world that poisons wells and spreads disease germs.

It is the only country in the world that murders babes and strikes medals to commemorate the event.

It is the only country in the world that shells unfortified towns.

It is the only country in the world that deports and enslaves civilian populations.

It is the only country in the world that advocates the extermination of weak peoples.

It is the only country in the world that scoffs at international law.

It is the only country in the world that disregards the rules of civilized warfare.

At the meeting of the I.O.D.E. on Wednesdday afternoon Mrs. Alex. Kempt was presented with the following address before leaving for her new home in Sault Ste Marie.

Norwood April 24, 1918.

Dear Mrs. Kempt.—We, the officers and members of the 40th Northumberland Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, feel that we cannot let you leave our midst without in some little way expressing our appreciation of your most valued services and our sorrow that you and your husband have seen fit to remove to another scene of usefulness.

We regret very much your removal from our order for you have been one of its most energetic, faithful, most valued workers. You have by your untiring efforts in connection with the welfare or progress, endeared yourself to all, and the thanks of this Chapter is extended to you and your husband, for we cannot forget his interests in our behalf and his willingness to help us whenever opportunity afforded.

At a time like this when the strain of the Empire is so tense, we feel that we cannot do what we would wish, but our love and best wishes go with you to your new home.

Signed on behalf of the 40th Northumberland Chapter—Mary R. Squire, Regent, Mary C. Birdsall, Vice Regent; Edith B. Weir, Treasurer; Rena M. Puffer, Secretary.

Miss Kirkpatrick spent last Thursday in Peterborough.

Miss Waters was in Peterborough last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Laing of Havelock visited on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Laing.

A gloom was cast over the village on Friday when word was received from Toronto that Theodore Burgess, one of our most promising young men, had died in the General Hospital at 11 o'clock on Thursday night.

Several months ago, Theodore, who was ranked among the A1 men, enlisted with the R.F.C., but was not called to the colours until four weeks ago, when he went to Toronto for training. After a brief stay in the city he was sent to Long Branch. Two weeks ago Friday he became very ill. He was taken to the Base Hospital. The deceased had contracted pleurisy and double pneumoria, and was in such a serious condition that his friends were notified, and they immediately went to Toronto, and him removed to the General Hospital, but such serious complications had developed that he was beyond all human aid. Deceased, who was in his 22nd year, was the only son of Mr. Kenneth Burgess, and on account if his mother's death, when a few months old, had always lived with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Burgess. His father, his only sister, Stella, his aunt, Edith Burgess, and his uncle, Williamson Burgess, were in the city at the time of his death. The remains were brought to Norwood on the midnight train, on Friday. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon, the last sad rites being performed by Rev. Wolland, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church, of which deceased was a member. He was also an active member in the Guild and, for some time, Superintendent of the Sunday School. The grief-stricken friends have the heartfelt sympathy of everyone in their sore bereavement.

Three Frenchmen were rounded up by Constable Puffer on Saturday and lodged in the cell before taking them to Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Burgess of Keene were in town on Sunday.

Mr. and Miss Turner of Campbellford spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Duffield.

Miss Butler of Woodstock is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Elliott.

Mr. Allie Eaton of Peterborough attended the funeral of the late Cadet Theodore Burgess on Sunday.

The Baptist Church, Centre Dummer, held a very successful tea and concert on Friday evening.

Mrs. J. G. Keefer was in Peterborough last Thursday.

The I. O. D. E. held a miscellaneous shower and ten-cent tea on Wednesday afternoon at the Armouries. The donations were valued at over one hundred dollars and from the tea $11.75 were realized. Besides these a donation of ten dollars was received from Mr. John Sargent of Westwood, $5.00 from the Foresters, and $22.80 from the young men of the town. Col. Birdsall gave the Chapter $15.00 to be used for prizes at the Exhibition in the Fall.

The regular meeting of the W. M. S. of the Methodist Church will be held on Wednesdoy afternoon at three o'clock in the Sunday School. Election of officers for the ensuing year will take place.

The I. O. O. F. and Rebekah lodges of Havelock attended the funeral of the late Theodore Burgess on Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. Noble returned home last week from Jamaica, where they had spent the past few months on account of Mr. Noble's health.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Plante were in town on Sunday.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered on Sunday morning in the Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm of Healey Falls were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Lisle Mills.

Miss M. P. Williams leaves this week to spend several months with friends near Belleville. Before her departure she was presented with a life membership pin by the W. M. S. of the Methodist Church.

Mr. J. Thompson, M.P.P., and Mrs. Thompson were in town on Sunday.

"The Knights of Honour" were organized about three years ago. Seventeen of the members of this class have already donned the khaki and two others have twice been turned down on account of physical conditions. One has made the supreme sacrifice, three have been wounded, and five have spent several months in the hospital.

Miss Hess of Hastings was a guest on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Watson.

Mrs. J. Weir was in Hastings on Monday.

LITTLE SAINT PIERRE

THE TINY FRENCH COLONY IN NORTH AMERICA

Some People In Newfoundland Would Like to Annex the Island After the War, But the Frenchmen Are Loyal to Their Motherland — It Has Always Been Famous as a Centre of Smuggling.

SHALL Saint Pierre, the last relic in the Northern Atlantic of the once great empire in North America held by France, be annexed to Newfoundland, and again become British territory? That is the question which is troubling this small French colony.

Where is Saint Pierre colony? Haul down your old geography and look at the mouth of Fortune Bay, ten miles south of Newfoundland and equidistant from Capes Race and Ray, and you will see the tiny French islands of Saint Pierre, Miquelon and Langdale.

Miquelon and Langdale — more commonly called Langley — have an area of 45,542 acres, and are connected by a sandbar. Previous to 1783 they were separate islands, divided by a navigable channel. The island of Saint Pierre—the only one of importance—has an area of 6,420 acres. At its southern extremity is the city of St. Pierre, with a population of more than five thousand inhabitants. During the codfishing season this is increased by fully ten thousand. The islands were ceded to Britain, with Newfoundland, in 1713, but on the British conquest of Canada they were assigned to France as a fishery depot. Taken by the British in 1778; restored to France in 1783; depopulated by the British in 1793; recovered by France in 1802; lost again in 1803, they have remained an undisputed French possession since 1816. The codfishing industry has been prosecuted in these waters for more than four hundred years.

This French colony on this tiny archipelago is a bit of Brittany in America. It is made up of Frenchmen and their descendants from Brittany, from Normandy, and from the Basque country. Practically all of the inhabitants of the little town of St. Pierre are of French blood. They are proud that the French tricolor flies from the flagstaff of "the Government House" in that town, the capital of the colony.

Newfoundland newspapers have started a project to have this colony ceded to Britain after the war. Unofficial efforts have been made to sound American public opinion on the matter, but without visible result. Appeals were sent to France by the islanders not to cast off these loyal French colonists, and assurances were received that no such step would be sanctioned. All the Chambers of Commerce and all the deputies of the Maritime Provinces in France have declared they will stand by the little colony. Much uneasiness is felt. Economic considerations, it is feared, may cut a figure in official considerations after the war, for until the war brought renewed prosperity to the fisheries of these islands, the colony's chief industry has steadily declined since Newfoundland cut off its bait privileges, and he Home Government has been forced to grant bounties to keep the colony alive.

Two million dollars' worth of cod used to be the value of the annual catch handled at St. Pierre, and the war may bring the total up to that figure again. The good harbor is a convenient base for fishing fleets on the Grand Banks.

In this little French town one can find French wines, and liquors, French tobacco and cigars, French perfumery and other French articles. There are no hotels, but many boarding houses with French cooking and a friendly greeting. St. Pierre has had a French chapel since 1689, and now has a half dozen. This modest seaport is on a treeless rock four miles long and six hundred feet above the level of the Atlantic, and is marked by jagged cliffs and a ragged sealine.

In this French colony one can see men and women wearing the old costumes of the peasants back in Brittany. They wear wooden shoes. Oxen, with sheepskins drawn over their great carved yokes, draw their huge loaded waggons solemnly. There are carts drawn by dogs just as in Holland, except that the dogs are the glossy black breed from Newfoundland.

In August, 1914, when war was declared, St. Pierre sent nearly five hundred of her sturdiest men over to France to help defend the home country. This stripped the colony of her best manhood. France, not wanting to weaken this already weak colony, sent them back home. There was one who did not come back—Lieut. E. Benatre, a lawyer, but a veteran who wore the ribbon of the Legion of Honor. Although he was fifty years old and the father of ten children, he said his country needed officers for the army, and he remained to fight in the trenches.

St. Pierre is the greatest smuggling centre on the earth. It has a well organized system of illicit trading. Opium is smuggled to New York and Boston, cognac is smuggled to the Maine sea board, and whisky is smuggled to Cape Breton and up the St. Lawrence river. The Governments of the United States, Canada and Newfoundland have tried for years to stamp it out, but it still thrives. Smuggling is passively acquiesced in by St. Pierre authorities. A British consul is not permitted there, because his presence would be a deterrent to the traffic. An American consul some years ago was so active a participant in it that he had to be removed. A Newfoundland agent sent to St. Pierre was mobbed and had to flee for his life. A few years ago a French customs commissioner was burned in effigy and was forced to embark under an escort of gendarmes, because it was thought he had given nformation to Canada of the smugglers' doings.

THE LEVEL-HEADED business man economizes in many ways, but he never reduces his newspaper advertising when he needs new business.

TO-DAY'S WAR SUMMARY

Canadian Press:

NEW YORK, May 1.—The Associated Press war summary says to-day:

Stunned by severe punishment inflicted by the British and French, the Germans in Flanders have given up for the moment their attempts to gain further hill positions west of Mount Kemmel. It is presumed that General Von Arnim is reforming his battered forces and bringing up new reserves to hurl against the granite Allied defense.

BANK CLEARINGS FOR THE WEEK

The bank clearings for April, 1918, indicate a great increase in business activities in the city, being over a million dollars higher than the same month last year:

Clearings month of April, 1918 — $3,193,265.
April, 1917—$2,622,597.
April, 1916—$1,918,514.

Customs Receipts.

Customs receipts for April 1918 are $124,469.42 more than the same month last year.

April, 1918—$202,976.88.
April, 1917—$78,507.46.

APPEALS WERE PARTIALLY ARGUED.

In the Appellate Division of Osgoode Halls, Toronto, the following case was heard yesterday:

Clarke v Stratton (three appeals).—R. R. Hall (Peterboro) for executors; D. O'Connell for residuary legacees; W. C. McKay for plaintiff. Three appeals (1) by exutors, (2) by residuary legatees, and (3) by plaintiff from judgment of Falconbridge, C. J., of 14th February, 1918. Action to recover $7,297.40 by way of damages for alleged misrepresentations, breaches of contract and neglect of duty against defendants, executors of Hon. J. R. Stratton. At trial judgment was given plaintiff for $3,934.30 and costs. Appeal partially argued, but not concluded.

ANNUAL MEETING AT THE Y. W. C. A.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association will be held in the Green Room, to-morrow evening. Mrs. Franklin Johnston, from Toronto, will give an address on "Opportunities," and all members and friends of the Association are cordially invited to be present. Reports of the past year's work in the various departments of the Y. W.C.A. work will be given, and the programme will be interspersed with music.

C.G.E. Team Win Two From De Laval

In the ten pin league last night at the Water street alleys, the C.G.E. team won two of the three games from the DeLaval.

The C.G.E. team hit the pins for an 895 total for their first game; while the DeLavals' best game was an 858 total.

Fielder for the C.G.E., was the chief pin getter with 557 for a total, and Jackson and Early were next with 540 and 536 for three game collections. Jackson had high single of 206.

For the De Laval, W. Fitzgeraid was the only 500 marker, having 502 for a total.

The scores were as follows:

KING EDWARD SCHOOL DEFEATED BY THE QUEEN MARY AGGREGATION.

The first game in the senior series of the public schools baseball league was played yesterday afternoon at the King Edward School grounds between Queen Mary and King Edward schools. The result was a victory for Queen Mary by the score of 13-5.

The batteries were: for Queen Mary English and Lacheur; for King Edward, Manly and Trussler.

Mr. B. Taylor made a very efficient referee.

"HINDY'S" STIMULUS.

(Buffalo News.)

The Hindenburg drive is the finest thing that has happened to the United States and the Allies.

It has acted like a galvanic battery; it has caused us to shed our envelope of lethargy and awakened us as we never were awakened before.

Our associates in this struggle for right and decency have been revealed to us as the heroes that they are; and in turn they have been made cognizant of the reality and earnestness of our friendship and helpfulness.

Hastings News

Hastings, May 1. — The many friends of Mrs. Nelson (nee Nellie Cook) of Wooler, but formerly of Hastings, will regret to hear of her death and extend deepest sympathy to the sorrowing family. Deceased was a sister of Mr. David Cook, town.

Rev. Mr. McCulloch of Port Hope, a representative of the Children's Aid Society, preached in the Presbyterian church on Sunday morning and in Methodist church in evening in inodist church in the evening in the interest of the society. The reverend gentleman is a very forcible speaker, and was listened to with rapt attention throughout. Envelope subscriptions were received in behalf of the work.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church met in their monthly meeting on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. W. Barrigan, when a number of business problems were discussed and disposed of. At the close of the meeting a delicious lunch was served and much enjoyed.

Mr. C. Jones of Kitchener was renewing acquaintances here during the week, and removed his household effects to that town where he and his family purpose to reside. We are sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Jones and their many friends will follow them with best wishes for future happiness and prosperity.

The reception which was held last week in the town hall for Corporal S. Hawkins was well attended, the hall being completely filled. Reeve Hess occupied the chair, and called on several gentlemen to address the meeting. Mr. A. Wilson, Mr. W. P. Plant, Dr. W. Wilson, Mr. C. Plant, and Rev. Messrs. Snell and Thompson, after which Corporal Hawkins was presented with an address and a gold watch to which he made a suitable reply. Music was furnished by Miss G. Stevenson and Messrs. E. Tate and W. Knight (instrumental), and Messrs. E. Pettigrew (vocal). The audience dispersed after singing God Save the King.

Mr. Sinclair of Belleville gave an address to the business men during the week in the interest of the Y.M. C.A. at the front.

A number of our citizens attended the funeral of the late Theodore Burgess of Norwood on Sunday afternoon An unusually large number of people were present showing the high esteem in which deceased was held. The young man died of pneumonia in a Toronto hospital where he had been training as a member of the flying corps for service overseas. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved relatives.

Mr. J. Joynt left during the week for his new position in Midland, where he has been transferred by the G.T.R. Company.

Mr. Miller has disposed of his property on Albert street to Mr. Taylor of town.

A memorial service for the late Pte. B. Hicks was held on Sunday evening in the town hall, the chief speaker being the Rev. Mr. McCulloch of Port Hope. A large crowd was in attendance.

Mrs. C. McKelvie and little daughter of Campbellford, spent Thursday in town.

Rev. and Mrs. Butler of Warkworth visited at the parsonage on Friday last.

Mrs. Stewart of Fraserville, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. Cruickshanks, town.

Discipline On Troop Trains

Mr. R. B. Pearson, Formerly of Peterborough, Tells of the Work Performed by the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. R. B. Pearson, son of Mr. John Pearson, of Haliburton, was in Lindsay yesterday. He is Military Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and has just returned from Halifax, having accompanied a troop train bearing British Columbia soldiers, from Vancouver to that port.

Mr. Pearson gave some very interesting information concerning the work performed by the Y.M.C.A. on these troop trains in providing comforts for the boys. The Y. M. C. A. makes no money out of this work as everything is furnished the boys at cost, apart from what is furnished gratis. For instance, Gilette razor blades are sold to the boys at wholesale price (70 cents per dozen) three packages of Players cigarettes, 25c.; tooth paste 17 1-2c.; and chocolate bars 3 for 10c. News agents are not allowed to travel on these trains owing to the excessive charges levied for certain lines.

Mr. Pearson left Vancouver with the troop train on April 19th and had the honour of being in charge of the first military train canteen to cross Canada. Everything was sold at wholesale prices, or less, and men temporarily out of funds were supplied with money and without price writing material was distributed twice daily and over $90 worth of stamps were sold. Mail was collected and posted at different intervals and a good telegraph service was provided.

In the evening there was a service of song which was thoroughly enjoyed by the men. Mr. Pearson gave short crisp, pointed talks on pertinent subjects. Concerts were also arranged, and the programmes were good ones.

Perfect discipline was maintained, and no liquor of any kind was carried by the men. Prizes were given daily for the cleanest car, and so well was this work performed that often as many as three cars would be tied for first prize. What the Y.M.C.A. stands for—service to men, as some of them put it—was explained. In addition to supplying magazines, booklets, playing cards, etc., daily papers were bought when possible and distributed free. Mr. Pearson was also used as an information medium.

Mr. Pearson has three brothers in the service of the King, Capt. H. A., Frank and John, the two latter being in France.

CONNAUGHT AT 68.

London, May 1st. — Loyal greetings are extended to the Duke of Connaught, who to-day (Wednesday) celebrates his 68th birthday. His Royal Highness is often seen about London, looking well and sprightly. At the time of the Duchess' death he had the hearing of one "weary and old with service" but his recent journey abroad undoubtedly benefitted him considerably.

Grateful Letter From The Front

Work of Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club is Appreciated

The following letter which is self-explanatory, has been received by the Soldiers' Wives and Mothers' Club:

Mrs. Cripps,
525 Romaine Street,
Peterboro, Ont.:

Dear Madam—I was requested by Pte. Bill Bowman, to write to you and thank you for your kind thoughtfulness for the boys in France. Pte. Bowman received the parcel which you ladies sent him and distributed the socks and gloves as far as they would go, and we were certainly very pleased to get them. The women in Canada never forget the boys over here as they are always sending us some comfort or another; and we are continually thinking of them. We all wish that this war was over so we could get back among you again. That will be the happiest moment of our lives—or at least mine anyway. This place is no suitable place for a white man. I have been over here for seven months now, and it is seven months too long for me. I guess I will close now. Here is my address, and I wish that you would answer if it is not too much trouble:

Pte. Walter Gardiner,

C.F.C.B.E.F.,
France.

I close now, thanking you again for your gift.

"HUNKER'S CORNERS" WAS REPEATED

Crowded House Witnessed Return Engagement—Bouquets Presented

The return engagement of "Hunker's Corners" by Knox Young People's Society last night was as brilliant a success as the previous presentation, and if possible the young people did better, being surer of their parts. Once again a crowded house enjoyed a good hearty laugh at the funny pranks of the several well-known characters peculiar to the village store. The financial receipts are most encouraging.

Bouquets Presented.

Miss M. Laurie, Miss K. Hall and Miss A. Crocker, were presented with beautiful bouquets of roses from staunch admirers in the audience.

Banquet and Social.

After the play the ladies of the guild entertained the cast at a charming social evening with dainty refreshments in the Sunday School room, and the evening closed with speeches by Rev. Mr. MacKenzie, Mr. Peters, Mr. Morphet and Mr. Roy.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mr. Arthur Hainge, Ashton Farm, Perley, Sask., writes: "Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country; our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr.Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble, as the cough passed off in two or three

This is the first time "Cleopatra" has been shown outside the larger cities.

MARKED INCREASE IN ATTENDANCE AT THE BIBLE CONFERENCE

"The Jews' Great Opportunity" Formed the Subject of Dr. Chafer's Address Last Evening —Spiritual Themes.

ADDRESS THIS EVENING

A marked increase in the attendance last evening at the third evening address in the Bible conference being this week in St. Paul's Presbyterian church, together with the fact that many of those present have not missed an evening session so far, indicates the deep interest the themes discussed are arousing. The speaker, Rev. Dr. L. S. Chafer having in earlier addresses shown that the Old Testament prophets had all foretold a great future kingdom for the children of Israel and that John the Baptist came announcing that this kingdom was at hand, proceeded last evening to show that the first ten chapters of the gospel of Matthew revealed the King offering His kingdom to His nation. Many people who have wondered at the admonition of Christ to His disciples not to go unto the way of the Gentiles nor to enter any city of the Samaritans, but to go rather to the lost sheep of the House of Israel, have not understood that the kingdom had first to be offered to the children of Israel and to be rejected by them before the command was to go forth to preach the gospel of the new dispensation that was yet to come, to the Gentiles. It was for this reason that Christ's ministry, as outlined in the first ten chapters of the gospel of Matthew was to the Jews.

The First Indication.

The first indication of rejection of the King is seen in the imprisonment of John, who was the fore-runner of the King. When the rejection was fully evident, the King began to speak of His death and resurrection, of His coming to the earth again to set up the kingdom they had then rejected and of the unforseen age that was to intervene between His first coming and His coming the second time to the earth. He announced the character of this age and said that He was revealing secrets hid from the foundation of the world. The beginning, course and end of this age is declared in the seven parables of Matthew thirteen. It might have been difficult to have believed all that is prophesied at the time it was spoken, but it is now verified by over nineteen hundred years of history.

Most of those present last evening must have been impressed by the speaker's interpretation of the meaning of the parables in the 13th chapter of Matthew. It is generally understood that the Bible teaches that the world is growing better and that in some future time when the world has been converted the Lord may be expected to come. The speaker last evening challenged this interpretation

Seed Sowing.

"The age," he said, "would be characterized by seed sowing and but one part in four would come to be wheat. It would be characterized by wheat and tares growing together to the end of the age. At the end of this age there will be evil to be separated from the good. The age is characterized by the mustard seed growing out of all proportion, which is the development of the great sphere of religious profession. This form of the Kingdom is likened to leaven permeating the pure meal. Leaven is always evil in the Bible. If it is not evil here, it contradicts the other parables; it disagrees with all the other teachings of the Bible on this point; and it disagrees with history. There is one village on this continent that has had more Christian teaching and preaching than any one place in the world. The greatest preachers and evangelists have given their best efforts in that place for half a century, and yet it is no nearer being a saved people than any other place. It is rather harder and more Godless than most places. If the strongest so called "leavening influence of the Gospel" has only hardened the most favoured place of 1,500 people, when will London, New York, Hong Kong, Berlin, Chicago and Toronto be converted?

Will Return.

One parable teaches that Israel will be hid in the world during this age. Another teaches that a heavenly people will be purchased at great cost, and the last teaches that, at the end of the age, there will be good fish and bad fish in the very net and be divided. This is not a picture of a converted world. The present purpose of God in this age is not understood as it should be, though it is clearly taught in the Bible. He is gathering out a heavenly people and on the principle that "whosoever will may come." Not all have come, or do come; but all who do come are perfectly saved and will be gathered into His heavenly glory. When this work is done, he will return and transform the world. Jesus then spoke of His church which was to "build." This it is clear, is that heavenly people now being gathered out. This first use of the word "church" refers to the saved ones of this age, rather than to any human organization.

Objections Answered.

In the course of his remarks during the past couple of evenings, Dr. Chafer has made reference to some of the objections that are raised to this system of interpreting the Scriptures. The objection that those who hold this view are fadists and are prone to lose sight of the importance of the atonement and other great Scripture truths was answered by showing that the greatest soul-winners the world has ever known and who have always emphasized the teaching of the cross including such men as Dwight L. Moody, Dr. R. A. Torrey, Wilbur Chapman, C. I. Schofield, Dr. Campbell Morgan, Dean Gray, of the Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago, and many other noted soul-winners are all believers in the second coming of Christ. These men all teach a whole Bible and do not emphasize any one point at the expense of others. Such, he claimed, was true of all who hold this system of interpretation.

It is frequently claimed that the words of Christ that, "This generation shall not pass away till these things are fulfilled" proves that these things were fulfilled during the life of those living at the time of Christ. Dr. Chafer pointed out in reply to this, that the root Greek word for generation means race, people or stock. Christ when he used the words was speaking to the children of Israel, and this meaning was that the children of Israel would not pass away as a people or a nation but would be preserved until all these things should be fulfilled. This prophesy has been marvellously fulfilled in the Jews. Although they have been scattered about the earth they have been miraculously preserved by God and are now about to be restored to their land according to propheey.

The claim that belief in the second coming of Christ discourages mission ary effort was answered by a reference to a church in Philadelphia which has been teaching this view for twenty-five years and which last year, with its Bible classes, contributed $70,000 for missionary purposes. Another church in Ontario has prepared within the past four years fifty young people who have volunteered for missionary service.

As it became apparent that the Jews would refuse to accept their King, Christ began to foretell the new purpose of God which had been kept secret until that time and to refer to the calling out of his heavenly people. The speaker will refer to the characters of this heavenly people in his address this evening and to-morrow evening. Friday evening's address will be, "The Twofold Promise and Signs of the Times."

Spiritual Themes.

Deep interest was taken in the address yesterday afternoon on the work of the Holy Spirit. While the Spirit indwells every saved person not all such," the speaker said, "are filled with the Spirit." Every Christian may be filled with the Spirit, but this necessitates his complying with the necessary conditions. What these conditions are were discussed at this afternoons meeting and will be continued in the remaining afternoon services.

When the Spirit fills a Christian it means the Spirit is doing seven great things in, and through him. These are the Spirit producing Christian character, (Gal. V. 22, 23) and service, (1 Co. xii:4-11); the Spirit teaching; producing praise and thanksgiving; reading; interceding in us; and actualizing or witnessing. Nothing short of all this can be called a spiritual life. People too often think they are spiritual because they do not do certain worldly things. Spiritually is not what we do not do; it is what we do. It is the output of the Christian's life when that life is lived in the grace and power of the Spirit of God.

CHEQUE FOR THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

Matthews-Blackwell Send a Cheque for Fifty Dollars.

Chief Grange yesterday received a cheque for $50 from the Matthews-Blackwell Co. in recognition of the services of the Chief and men at the fire on January 26th.

Mr. G. Grange, Chief Fire Dept.

Dear Sir,—We have much pleasure in enclosing our cheque for $50.00 as a donation to the Brigade for their splendid service in connection with the disastrous fire of last winter which destroyed among other buildings, our George street Retail store.

We certainly appreciated your work very much and must congratulate you on holding the conflagation within comparatively small bounds.

Yours truly,
Matthews-Blackwell.

To which the Chief replied:

May 1, 1918.

Dear Sirs,—I am in receipt of your cheque for fifty ($50.00) dollars' donation to the department for services rendered at the fire on George street on January 26th. Please accept the sincere thanks of both myself and the members of the department. I can assure you that the appreciation of the services of the department gives us great encouragement.

Yours truly,
George Grange.

LINDSAY DEPUTATION VISITED BELLEVILLE

On Monday His Worship Mayor Kylie, T. H. Stinson and H. A. Middleton visited Belleville and interviewed Trainmaster J. D. MacMillan of the G. T. R., with a view to having the 7.00 p.m. Lindsay-Belleville train restore

The deput[illegible] was given a most cordial reception by Mr. MacMillan, who assured them that the train, as well as other trains cancelled, would be restored just as soon as conditions readjusted themselves. The railways of the country were face to face with serious conditions, which would be greatly aggravated should their man power be depleted in the future. If this situation confronted them, it would simply mean that other trains would have to be cancelled.—Lindsay Post.

DOCTOR SAYS VINOL IS THE BEST TONIC

Honest Opinion Doctor Gave His Patient

Bedford, Ohio.—"I was in a pitiful condition, weak, nervous and run down so I could not do my housework. I had doctored for years and tried everything under the sun. A friend told me about Vinol. I asked my doctor about it, and he replied, 'It certainly is the best medicine that can be had today. I couldn't give you any better.' I took it, and today I am as well and strong as any woman could wish to be, and it was Vinol that saved me."—Mrs. Frank A. Horkey, Ash St., Bedford, Ohio.

Many Claims For Exemption Were Heard This Morning

Many Farmers Become Decrepit When They Reach the Age of 65 Years—A Number Were Disallowed.

THE EVIDENCE

"A surprising number of fathers of 65 years of age or thereabouts, have seemed to have become incapable of working their farms lately," was Judge Huycke's comment at the Review tribunal this morning as case after case of eligible men with fathers of that age pleaded inability to leave the farm because of parental disability.

TO HELP PRODUCTION.

Percy McFadden was represented by Gordon Mann, his employer, who showed his farm to be yielding extensive production.

McFadden will probably be exempted for a certain time on account of the need of speeding production.

THE ONLY BLACKSMITH.

Henry Ayott, the only blacksmith in Douro, has four brothers. He returned from Rochester to help on his brothers' farm, after which he purchased his trade. Ayott owns under a mortgage a farm bought since the Military Act was enforced.

The judge thought it time that the family was represented at the front.

"It's a question of inconvenience to the farmers or German rule," said the judge in reply to Mr. Allen who appeared on Ayott's behalf, stating that the removal of the blacksmith will be inconvenient, and mean a loss of time to the farmers, who will have to drive to the city. Decision will be given later.

MAKING MONEY.

George Westlake, Chemong Lake, with his brother Charles, works a big farm. Production does not justify exemption. He works on the farm alone. Three fields of hay were left uncut last year on account of shortage of help. Had 7 days' threshing, making on alsike alone $970.

"That's the reason the hay was allowed to go," said Mr. Hatton.

Exemption was granted temporarily until the farm is examined and a decision given if production justifies exemption.

CHANGED EMPLOYERS.

George A. Spafford, aged 28, works for Urias Hill; changed employers as he thought the former one did not need him. Spafford had been exempted as long as he continued to be a farmer. He has three brothers; none at the front; two are pronounced medically unfit.

Exemptoin refused.

DECISIONS WITHHELD.

William A. Elmhirst, a farmer, age 26, employed with his brother on 240 acre farm; 75 acres in crop. His brother, Stewart Elmhirst also appeared. The department thinks that one should go. Judgment will be given later.

Josiah Hunter of Lakefield, age 26, lives on his farm of 100 acres; 80 acres are broken; he is the only son, and the only help on the farm. The father is 66 years old. Judgment reserved.

WORKS ALONE.

John H. Archer, age 24, 4th line of Smith, works alone on the farm owned by his father, aged 65.

Mr. Moore appeared for him, and showed he had not only worked his own farm but helped others. Archer was allowed until July 1 to show an increase in production.

JUDGMENTS RESERVED.

James A. Stewart was represented by his father; Stewart is 24 years of age. The father says that since securing his exemption papers the son had increased production of stock.

Judgment reserved.

Wm. A. Drummond, son of Peter Drummond, had rented his father's farm, and got married. The government considered that Drummond had assumed too much responsibility in making the changes he had on the farm.

Judgment reserved.

ANOTHER EXAMINATION.

Thomas Lancefield, 195 Charlotte street, had first been placed in Class A; re-examined and placed in B; is a tailor and presser. Is willing to go, if found physically fit; but fears to lose his business, and be ultimately turned down.

Another medical examination will probably be made.

TEMPORARY EXEMPTION.

Bruce Simpson, age 24, who wrks for T. H. Northey, has five brothers, two enlisted. Exemption will probably be given temporarily. Further exemption will be conditional only on the strength of increased production at the Northey farm.

"A GENEROUS GIFT"

James S. Sargent, Westwood, has a married brother working with him, aged 20. Father is 63 years of age. The father, who is, according to Sargent, a poor man, gave him his one hundred acre farm, recently.

"A generous gift from a poor man," said the Judge.

Sargent, supposing his exemption to be final, has since been married. The Judge thought with all the little boys of 20 who have gone, one of the Sargent boys must go.

Wm. Garvey was called, but is at present in the West.

SUITED HIM.

Bert Eason, Lakehurst, was allowed exemption until he ceased to be a farmer. Eason has changed hands recently. His employer, Mr. Coons, is only 45 years of age. Eason will be allowed until 15th of June to show the government if he is needed on the farm. "That'll suit me fine," said Eason.

WORKS A BIG FARM.

Smith Township, lives and works on Smith Township, lives and works no his father's farm: Has a brother "stone deaf," able only to do light chores. Sanderson, with a brother of 19, works a large farm, and intends to increase the production this season. In view of the fact the little brother will be taken probably, decision will be made on July 1.

GEORGE ST. EPWORTH LEAGUE HELD A SOCIAL EVENING

Reports of the Various Departments Were Presented--Address by the District President.

THE PROGRAMME

About seventy members of the George street Epworth League met in the Sunday school hall at 6.30 Monday evening to enjoy a supper and programme prepared by members of the League. This supper was the first affair of its kind held by the League, and last night's event proved so delightful it was felt by those present it was an appropriate way of closing the League emblem and were prettily together in a social way and reports from the different departments covering the year's work were read.

The tables were arranged in the form of a cross, carrying out the idea of the eague emblem and were prettily decorated in the League colours, red and white the decorations being fancy red candle shades and a centre of red and white carnations. The supper was provided by the members of the League and was served by the girls of Mrs. Frederick's Sunday school class.

Rev. A. J. Thomas was chairman of the evening.

The Programme.

The first item was toasts to "The King" and to "Our Boys Overseas." The latter toast was proposed by Miss G. Pentland.

Miss P. McKee sang "Up from Somerset." Those present much enjoyed hearing Miss McKee, Miss I. Wilson also rendered a solo, which as usual was much appreciated.

The reports were as follows:

The report of the President, Miss A. Elson, showed that the general work of the League was in a flourishing condition.

The Christian Endeavour Department was reported on by Miss M. Dorman, and showed that the work of this Department had been a spiritual blessing to many during the year.

The Missionary Department's report was read by Miss M. Elliott, and the financial report by Miss E. Miller. These reports showed that in spite of continued war conditions and the aim to increase the missionary givings this year by 14 p.c., although the objective had not quite been reached, this Department was confident that before the books closed for the year they would have the sum aimed at, namely, $215.00. Good work was done by the visiting and relief convenor, Miss Bedford, in taking flowers to the sick and making personal visits.

The Literary and Social Department's report was read by Miss E. Dix, which showed that the social side of the work was splendidly looked after under Miss E. Might, as Vice-President. Their programmes during the year were also of a splendid order.

The Christian Citizenship Department during this year has been a mixed committee, composed of young ladies and young men, and has worked very successfully. Meetings conducted by this Department were exceedingly good.

Miss E. Ostram reported for the Junior League. This report showed a membership of 120 juniors who meet each Sunday morning. Much credit is due the superintendents for their efficient work in this department.

Lookout Department.

The Lookout Department was reported on by Miss S. Bennett, and showed that the better attendance contest conducted in November and December had been productive of much good to the society.

Miss E. Clysdale, as secretary, reported the business and executive meetings which had been held during the year. This report showed a membership of 84, and an average attendance of 44 members and 19 visitors.

Miss Florence Johnston's report, as treasurers showed total proceeds for the year of $171.00, with a balance on the right side.

The reports given were very encouraging and showed that every Department in the League had been very faithful to their duties.

Rev. C. W. Barrett, President District Epworth League, was present and gave a short address which was an inspiration to everyone present, and Rev. J. G. McKee, Secretary District Epworth League, also spoke a few words along the line of the District League.

Everyone thoroughly enjoyed the evening and the members are looking forward to making this an annual affair.

ANOTHER PEACE MOVE IN PROSPECT

(Canadian Press.)

The Hague, May 1.—Pope Benedict intends to issue a new peace offer on Whitsunday (May 19) the Cologne newspapers announce. The document, it is said, will be of a more pressing nature than formerly, and will contain concrete offers of mediation by the Pope, with the possible cooperation of neutral sovereigns.

A similar notice of the Pope's intention, it is said, has reached Berlin where it has been received sympathetically.

CHILD RUN OVER BY CAR.

Marion Hall, the little daughter of Deputy Sheriff F. J. A. Hall, 236 Burnham Street, was badly bruised when she ran out in front of a car driven by Harvey Wheeler while on her way home from school at noon Monday at the corner of Hunter and Roger Streets. Dr. W. A. Baker was called.

Mr. Geo. Leader Is Author Of New Song

Mr. George Leader is the author of a new song entitled "You'll Always be the Same to Me," which has just been published by the North American Music Publishing Company of Chicago. The music is by Leo Freidman, composer of "Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland" and other musical successes of recent years. The first copies were received by Mr. Leader to-day and are on sale at the Greene Music store. Mr. Leader is well known in Peterborough, partly through his connection with the J. M. Greene Company, and it is not surprising that he has found his way into the attractive branch of composition.

MR. CHAS. McMAHON HOME ON A VISIT.

Mr. Chas. McMahon, of Kinlay, Saskatchewan, is in the city visiting friends. Mr. McMahon left Galway about eleven years ago for the west, where he has been a successful farmer on a large scale. He was for several years a member of the county council here. During the past week he has been visiting old friends and neighbours at Kinmount.

Mr. A. T. Stenson, who conducted the livery on Chambers street, is running the farm in Mr. McMahon's absence.

Food And Health

Food supplies us with the power to do our work. We must not only have it, but we must have it in such a form that the body can make use of it to the best advantage. One fact that eighty to ninety per cent. of the diseases of the world to-day are nutritional, proves to us that the physical, mental and moral life of our nation is largely dependent on proper food. If that is not provided, not only this generation, but those generations to come, will be inefficient.

TWO PURPOSES.

Food is necessary to the body for two purposes. The first purpose is to build up the body tissues. The second purpose is to produce the heat which gives us the power to do work.

Foods differ greatly in appearance and composition. It has been proven that an animal fed on only one kind of food will starve to death almost as quickly as one receiving no food at all. From this we see that each different kind of food has a different work to do, and, therefore, each is necessary.

FIVE KINDS.

It has been found that there are five different kinds of foods—fat, sugars and starches (carbohydrates), a substance called protein, water, and, lastly, mineral matter.

To build and repair the tissues, protein, mineral matter and water, and these alone, are necessary.

To produce heat for energy, the proteins, starches and sugars and fat are used.

It is evident from this that protein is doubly important. Without it, life is impossible. But in planning a meal no food constituent should be left out.

It is not enough, however, to know the importance of these. It is also necessary to know in what foods they are found.

ESSENTIAL FOODS.

The following foods are largely important for their fat—lard, butter, olive oil, bacon, cream, fat from meat or nuts.

Examples of carbohydrate foods are these: Sugar, starch, flour, tapioca, potatoes, bananas, honey, syrups, molasses.

Protein is present chiefly in such foods as lean meats cheese, eggs, fish, etc.

Such foods as milk, fruits, egg yolk green vegetables, dried peas and beans are important for their mineral matter.

The water is found in all foods to a greater or lesser extent.

GERMANY OPENS PAY QUESTION

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Negotiations looking to an agreement with the United States as to the rate of pay to be allowed prisoners of war have been reopened by Germany. The approach was made through the Spanish Embassy in Berlin soon after the War Department declared that no further allowances would be made to German prisoners until the German Government agreed to reciprocate.

TEACHERS FOR REGISTRATION

Government Appealing to Boards of Education and Teachers for Their Co-operation.

The Ontario Government has been asked by the Canada Registration Board to co-operate in securing the help of the educational interests of the Province when the proposed registration of the people for the purpose of national service takes place.

As a result of the request the Government is sending Out an Appeal to the School Boards, teachers, and inspectors in the Province asking them to place themselves at the disposal of the Federal authorities in any arrangements required for making the registration.

The registration will be taken at the end of June when the schools are closing. It is expected that teachers will be generally engaged for the work.

DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE MAY OPEN THE WAR VETERANS' NEW ROOMS

Warden Anderson and Reeve Matheson of Havelock assured the City Council's Reception Committee, last night, that the County would be represented in the reception to the Governor-General next Monday. Ald. Dobbin occupied the chair with the following in attendance—Mayor Duncan, Aldermen Jones, Longford, Taylor and Weir, Mr. Sidney Whatley, Lt.-Col. Mills, Mr. H. J. Staunton, J. Hartley, Warden Anderson, Reeve Matheson, V. Eastwood, G. A. Gillespie and A. L. Killaly.

The programme for Monday has not been definitely arranged yet, and another meeting of the committee will be held to-night. His Excellency has expressed a wish to visit the hospitals, several of the schools and the Red Cross rooms.

Ald. Weir reported that the Band stand at the Central Park would be suitable for the staging of the City's official welcome.

It is expected that the Governor-General will formally open the War Veterans' club rooms.

Butter And Eggs Holding Firm On Peterboro' Market

On Saturday butter sold on the Peterborough market from 48c to 53c a pound. In other places in Ontario the following prices prevailed: Belleville and Kitchener, 45c to 48c; Brantford, 52c to 54c; Cobourg, 48c; Guelph, 49c to 52c; Hamilton, 50c to 55c; Kingston, 47c to 52c; London, 48c to 55c; Owen Sound and Stratford, 46c to 47c; Port Hope, 45c; and St. Thomas, 40c to 45c per lb.

Butter at Montreal.

A sudden drop in the butter prices at Montreal has turned all eyes toward this section of the market, and events are being watched with interest. Receipts at Montreal seem to be almost twice as heavy as for the previous week, and some 1,575 packages heavier than for the some week last year, with a total of 6,575.

Best creamery butter at Montreal is quoted at 46½c to 47c per lb., this week, with seconds at 45c to 45½c.

It is understood that the export price for butter will be arranged by the Dairy Product Commission as soon as there is a surplus available for export, and that it will be on the basis of 23c cheese.

Eggs Are Firm.

While butter has been on the downward trend, eggs have firmed up this week with a range of 37c to 44c per dozen.

Dealers are still holding off from storage buying, and more than one firm reports that it has not put a single case of eggs into storage, except for a small surplus that could not be disposed of through the local trade. It is argued that the present price of eggs is too high for profitable storing under the present conditions. A year ago eggs were nearly as high as they are to-day, but there was the opportunity of exporting the surplus at any price the British market would bring. With export and trading conditions as they are to-day, dealers declare that until prices approach the 30c mark in the country they will not be justified in buying heavily for storage purposes.

C. P. R. DIRECTORS WERE RE-ELECTED

Canadian Press:

MONTREAL, May 1.—Lord Shaughnessy, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, in addressing the shareholders at the annual meeting today, emphasized the strong financial position of this company, brought about, he said, by conservative management and guidance. The meeting of shareholders lasted just eighteen minutes. All the directors were re-elected, and later Lord Shaughnessy was elected president and chairman, and Sir George Bury and E. W. Beattie, vice-presidents.

MARRIED.

GRAHAM-FANNING—At George Street Methodist Church, on Tuesday evening, April 30th, 1918, by Rev. J. Thomas, M.A., B.D., Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fanning, 124 Dublin St., to Charles E. Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Graham, of this city.

SAYS PETERBORO' COUNTY HAS DONE MORE THAN ITS SHARE

Yesterday's Appeal Fell on Deaf Ears—The Peterborough Campaign

At the special session of the Peterboro County Council held yesterday day afternoon, consideration was given to the request of Mr. F. S. Hopper and Capt. Carrie, representing the National Council of the Y.M.C.A., for a grant of ten thousand dollars for the Y.M.C.A. Overseas fund. It was suggested that an assessment of one mill on the dollar be levied on the county, but this was not enthusiastically received by the members of the council, who contended that Peterboro County had done more than its share in the way of men and money in comparison with other counties. No definite action was taken.

Mr. F. S. Hopper of the National Council, pointed out, that Middlesex county had granted $30,000, Kent, $15,000; Elgin, $17,000; Welland, $10,000, and Prince Edward County, $6,000. The deputation which waited on the council was composed of Messrs. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., J. J. Turner, Joseph Wearing, Thomas Barrie, Captain Carrie and Mr. F. S. Hopper.

The Dominion campaign will be launched next Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday for $2,500,000, and Peterboro city will be asked for $10,000. Canvassing teams have been arranged under the direction of Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, and everything is ready for the campaign here. Captain Tom Best, who was one of the first Canadian Y.M.C.A. men to reach France, and who is one of the ablest speakers in the Dominion, will speak in two of the city churches on Sunday and will also speak at the big mass meeting at the Opera House on Sunday night after church.

VITAL STATISTICS FOR THE MONTH

The vital statistics for April show a slight increase in mortality in the city over the same month last year and a slowing up on the part of cup.

Music & Drama

"THE BRAT".

Miss Rea Martin, in the tile role of "The Brat," which played a return engagement before a crowded house, at the Grand consolidated herself more strongly than ever in the hearts of her Peterborough audience. Her natural delineation of the little New York waif was charming in itself, added to which she was supported by a splendid cast.

Thousands Of Bags Of Potatoes Are Held By Farmers

Farmers in this district are reported to have a big surplus of potatoes which, rather than sell at a low price, they will feed to hogs. There are thousands of bags in cellars not more than five miles from Peterborough, and while some of them may reach the local market, the bulk of the excess will become pig feed. In fact some farmers are considering the purchase of more hogs to consume the potatoes that are becoming a problem on their hands. They estimate, and doubtless correctly, that the potatoes are more valuable when changed into pork, than as mere food for city dwellers who are in many cases too lazy to work the land around them. The price has recently been $1.90 a bag and the farmers are said to be determined to hold them, if they can.

Spring Wheat Coming Up.

The spring seeding is well advanced; some farmers have actually completed their work. Several fields in North Monaghan are gradually becoming verdant under the growing crop of spring wheat that is beginning to cover them.

The clover crop is coming through quite satisfactorily and it is now believed that the first fears of almost total loss will not materialize. The fall wheat, however, has been destroyed except for narrow fringes here and there.

MUSICAL PROGRAMME WAS WELL RECEIVED

The musical programme put on by Adjutant Urquhart at Byersville last evening was enjoyed very much by a good audience, and the adjutant said he enjoyed the meeting very much himself.

His solos on the violin, guitar, banjo, zolophone, mandolin, chimes and sleigh bells being encored and applauded heartily. A hearty invitation is standing for the Adjutant's return at an early date.

Estimate the Number of Beans in the Jar For the Red Cross Car

There are still a few tickets left, less than one hundred, to be sold in connection with the competition for the Overland car presented to the Red Cross, and which is to be handed over to the person who estimates correctly the number of beans in the jar on exhibition in the window of Richard Hall and Son.

Just as soon as these tickets can be disposed of, the beans will be counted and the car awarded.

Tickets may be had at the store of Richard Hall & Son, Mr. Cotton, at the C.G.E., Mr. Cranfield at Wilson's Machine Shop, and Mr. Vanstone at the Bank of Toronto. When you have your tickets filled in leave them at Hall's store.

The jar was filled at random in Roland Denne's store, and sealed in the Union Bank, under the supervision of Mr. Pennefather.

The number of beans is unknown to any one, and everybody has an equal chance. Only a limited number of tickets sold.

Politicians Manoeuvre For Positions

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, May 1.—On the matter of free agricultural implements, the Opposition members on the Budget debate are manoeuvring for a position. No definite decision has yet been reached by them as to whether an amendment calling for the abolition of the duties on these necessaries of production will be moved or not. A section of the party is undoubtedly in favour of such a move. Saner political heads are said to be opposed to it. As a matter of fact, the Opposition generally is averse to doing anything which will unnecessarily antagonize the Western Unionists. They would much rather see any more in the direction of lower tariffs come from the Government side, realizing that the moving of an amendment which might place the Western men in a position of having to vote against their party or their principles at the present time would create the impression among the latter that the aim of the Opposition was to split the Government ranks.

To-Day's Speakers.

There is no doubt, however, that the Opposition speakers will keep the question before the House. Both Messrs. McMaster and Turgeon yesterday devoted considerable attention to it, and elicited a warning from Sir Herbert Ames against any attempt to drive a wedge in the Government ranks. To-day from the Government side a Western Ontario member representing an urban seat, in the person of Hume Cronyn, of London, will resume the debate. Dr. Blake, of North Winnipeg, and Dr. Manion, of Fort William, are also on the Government's batteries for the day. All three are coming men in the Commons. On the Opposition batteries are MacKenzie, of North Cape Breton; McCoig, of Kent, and Capt. Read, of Prince, P.E.I.

PICTURE TAX WILL KILL THE TEN CENT SHOWS

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, May 1.—Moving picture theatre owners and agencies state that the five cent tax on moving picture films means the death of the ten cent movie shows. Minimum prices hereafter will be 15 cents. The tax means the payment of $50 a reel as compared with $26 heretofore. The Canadian tax they claim will be five times higher than in the United States.

RESIDENCE WAS SLIGHTLY DAMAGED

The residence of Mr. R. Miller, 244 Carlisle street, was damaged to the extent of $75.00 in a fire resulting from a collection of soot in the chimney. The soot had bridged across the chimney, caught fire, and retained heat to such an extent the wood work and sawdust near the bricks had been ignited, setting fire to the roof and gables. The prompt arrival of the Fire Department saved the house.

Apsley Soldier Welcomed Home

Sergeant Coones Was Presented With a Well Filled Purse

APSLEY, May 1.—A reception in honour of Sergt. R. L. Coones, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion was held in the Parish Hall. Sergt. Coones has just returned in poor health. A large crowd was in attendance. As he entered the hall all joined in singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." During the evening an address of welcome, which was handsomely decorated with a hand painting of a Union Jack and a Canadian flag, was read by Mrs. W. Staples, and at the proper time the returned hero was presented with a well-filled purse by Miss Ella Brown. The following was the programme of the evening:

Chairman's address—Rev. S. Carr.
Chorus, by the Choir.
Address of Iwelcome, by Mrs. W. Staples.

Apsley, April 22, 1918.

To Sergt. R. L. Coones.

Dear Friend,—It is with feelings of pleasure, admiration and respect that we, your many friends, have assembled here this evening to welcome you home as our second returned hero from the great conflict now raging in Europe.

When our local platoon was being organized you were at labour in Northern Ontario. Your manhood would not allow you to see your comrades go alone. You came home, donned a uniform, willing to give up your life in defence of the interests of humanity, of right, of Canada and the Empire. You allowed no feeling of selfishness to dominate your thoughts and actions, and we honour you tonight for your brave and noble service.

For distinguished conduct on the field you have recived a much-coveted medal. We most heartily congratulate you on receiving such a high and worthy mark of distinction, and as it was honorably won so may you proudly wear it for many happy and prosperous ears.

We are glad to see you return, and although it has not been granted to some of our boys, yet we realize that a noble life, crowned with heroic death, rises above and outlives the pride and pomp and glory of the mightiest empire of the world.

As a slight token of esteem we ask you to accept this gift and trust that you will soon be restored again to health and strength.

To you will came, we hope, for years, the proud privilege of telling the thrilling tales of Canadian valour in this great struggle for human freedom and Christian civilization.

"Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of Truth with falsehood, for the good or evil side;
Then it is the great man chooses and the coward stands aside."

EVERY MAN HIS OWN TAXER; HOW TO RECKON INCOME TAX

With the Aid of These Tables Any Citizen Can Figure Out What He Will Pay in 1919 on 1918 Income

THE RULES TO FOLLOW

Ottawa, May 2.—There is no reason why every citizen should not calculate his own new income tax if he knows how much money he is going to make in 1918. The new tax will of course not be payable until 1919, and will be reckoned on 1918 incomes. In calculating income tax the following rules must be borne in mind:

1. Remember, that under $6,000 there is only the normal tax to pay, this being on a 2 and 4 per cent. basis.

2. Over $6,000 there are three additional taxes; Normal, which is always 4 per cent., and supertax and war surtax, which are on a rising scale.

3. The war surtax is a "tax on taxes." It is reckoned on the sum of normal and supertaxes on that portion of an income which exceeds $6,000.

4. In calculating a married man's taxes, the simple way is to calculate as though there were no children, and deduct $4 tax for each child under 16 up to 5 children, and then $8 for each additional child under 16.

5. In calculating a single man's tax, the method to be followed for small incomes is given below. Over $3,000 the simple way is to add $50 to what the man would have to pay if married.

Single Men's Taxes.

Bearing these rules in mind, the following simple calculations may be made, the first compilation here given being that for unmarried men.

Income (Single) $1,000 to $1,500.
Exempt $1,000 and tax remainder 2 per cent.

Income (Single) $1,500 to $3,000.
Exempt $1,000; tax $500 at 2 per cent. ($10) and the rest at 4 per cent.

Income (Single) Over $3,000.
A single man will in every case pay exactly $50 more than a married man. Thus, to get income tax for married men and deduct $50.

Taxes on Married Men.

The taxes on married men may be calculated as follows, with a further deduction of $4 taxes per child under 16, and $8 for each such child over the number of five.

Income up to $2,000.
All exempt.

Income up to $3,000.
Exempt $2,000. On the remainder a tax of 2 per cent.

Income $3,000 to $6,000.
Exempt $2,000. On the first thousand dollars of the remainder a tax of 2 per cent. ($20), and on the remainder a tax of 4 per cent.

Example: A married man with no children has an income of $6,000. He pays as follows:

On $2,000	nil.
On $1,000 at 2 per cent	$ 20
On $3,000 at 4 per cent.	120
Total tax	$140

The above incomes are subject to only one tax, called the normal tax. Incomes over $6,000 are subject to two other taxes, known as the supertax and the war surtax, the last named to end at the conclusion of the year in which the war ends. They are calculated as follows:

Income $6,000 to $10,000.

The normal tax is paid on the first $6,000 as reckoned above. It is $140 for a married man with no children. To this $140 there are the following additions: 4 per cent. normal tax on income over $6,000; 2 per cent. supertax on income over $6,000; 5 per cent. war surtax on the above two taxes (not on the income). Example: A married man with no children and an income of $10,000 pays $140 on the first $6,000, and then the following additional taxes:

Normal tax, 4 per cent. on $4,000	$160
Supertax, 2 per cent. on $4,000	80
	$240
War surtax, 5 per cent. on $240	12
	$252

Thus his total payment is $140 under $6,000, and $252 over that, or in all $382.

A Millbrook Welcome For Capt. C. R. Spencer

MILLBROOK, May 1.—The citizens of Millbrook and Cavan filled the town hall Friday evening for the purpose of welcoming home Captain C. R. Spencer.

Reeve G. E. Burnham occupied the chair and made his maiden address to the public, as Reeve of Millbrook. His words were well chosen and to the point.

Besides the eloquent addresses by the Clergy, several patriotic selections were sung in splendid voice by Corp. George Lightheart of Peterboro, Miss Stella Hetherington playing his accompaniments in true musician's style. Miss M. Collins gave a piano solo and she and Miss E. McBean gave a piano duet, all of whom deserve highest praise for their efficiency, and for the delightful programme provided.

GRAIN MARKET

There was a general downward trend in grain prices yesterday, both cash and options, but in particular the latter. Several crop reports out yesterday were of a decidedly bearish character, notably the report issued by Snow, the well known crop expert. His report from the southern sections shows that there is a large increase in acreage, that the winter killing was slight and that other conditions a the present time are almost ideal. Reports from Alberta say that he season is two weeks ahead of last year. Besides the decline in the coarse grain prices the flour situation has become decidedly easier. Manitoba flour is quoted 15c lower; Ontario flour for the present is steady.

Manitoba wheat. — No. 1, northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, 2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-4, including 2 1-2c tax, in store, Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2, C. W., 86 3-8c, No. 3, 83 1-8; extra No. 1 feed, 83 1-8c; No. 1 feed, 80 1-8c; in store Fort William.

American corn—No. 3, kiln dried, $1.90 track Toronto; No. 4 kiln dried $1.85.

Ontario oats—No 2 white, 89 to 90c, nominal; No. 3 white, 88 to 89c.

Barley, malting—$1.54 to $1.55.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, $2.22, basis in store Montreal.

Peas—No. 2, $3.60 to $3.70, according to freights outside.

Buckwheat—$1.84 to $1.86.

Rye—No. 2, $2.50.

Ontario Flour — War quality, $10.80; Toronto-Montreal, $10.80 new bags.

Manitoba Flour — War quality, $10.95, Toronto.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts $40.40; bran, $35.40; feed flour, not quoted; middlings, not quoted.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1, $17 to $18; No. 2, $14 to $16; mixed, $13 to $16; straw, car lots, $8.50 to $9.

Germany Wants Her Prisoners in Russia Back on Her Own Terms

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 2.—The Daily News concludes a hopeful editorial on the whole position thus: "The new British advance in Mesopotamia threatens the most vulnerable heel of the German military system. Things are not going too well in Russia. The fact that Germany wants her prisoners in Russia back on her own terms throws some light on the state of her man power problem, nor is it clear that Germany's effort to brow beat Holland is working to her advantage. Added to her economic anxieties, Germany has her hands pretty full.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards: Receipts, 82 cars, wih 1127 cattle, 243 calves, 2294 hogs and 16 sheep and lambs.

Cattle trade yesterday eclipsed all former efforts to reach the sky in the matter of prices for all classes of butcher and feeding cattle. Just how much higher than Tuesday or the day before no one would venture to say. The market was very strong, price apparently being no consideration, and that is all there was to it. George Ferguson for H. P. Kennedy, topped the market by selling a load of 20 steers at the high record for a full load at $15.75. Good to choice butcher cattle in loads sold from $13 to $14.25, and medium butcher $12 to $12.50, fat cows and bulls from $8.50 to $12.

Calves were a little stronger, and 25c higher.

MR. GORTON SAYS

NUJOL LABORATORIES,
STANDARD OIL COMPANY (New Jersey)
BAYONNE, NEW JERSEY.

Dear Sirs:—

I am 74 years of age, and had chronic constipation for years. Have suffered much at times trying to get relief by using physics. Now I use Nujol every morning just an hour before eating, and find it sure to give relief without griping pains of any kind. It leaves no bad results.

I cannot say too much in favor of Nujol as the best remedy for constipation, sour or burning stomach; it gets away with those troubles right away. My friends use it with the same results, never fails, no griping, no physicing, no inconvenience. I surely recommend it to all sufferers from constipation, old or young.

Hurley, South Dakota, Yours truly,
January 3, 1917. J. B. GORTON.

Mr. Gorton's letter is a valuable endorsement of Nujol to every sufferer from constipation. In all cases Nujol is a gentle, natural aid to normal bowel-action.

Don't merely tell your druggist, "Give me something for constipation." Insist on Nujol. You then protect your health against harmful pills and salts—you run no risk of making the bowels dependent on laxatives and cathartics. There is not a single drug in Nujol! It is a safe remedy for young and old that makes you "regular as clockwork."

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

BACK TO HIS OLD WAYS

CHAPTER LVI.

George seemed to think he had done all that was necessary to pleasure me, when he had allowed me to give my dinner party. For a long time afterward, he made no plans which included me. I was much alone, and very lonely.

Merton Gray called occasionally. Those were red letter days for me. We laughed and chatted as two young things will. I played for him, and he told me of his work. I became intensely interested in art, and he brought me books to read. I soon became familiar with many of the old masters' work in this way, and also studied, under Merton's direction, some of the modern painters.

Evelyn scolded me for taking up so many studies.

"You'll soon have no time for me," she grumbled one day.

"Oh, I'll always have time for you!" I exclaimed.

"Yes, unless it happens to be your music lesson, your French, your art studies, or Mrs. Sexton. A swell chance I stand of having much of your society, Mrs. Busy-body."

"You told me I must make myself over, so George would be proud of me."

"I know, Helen, and you must, even though you don't have so much time to waste on me. But look out for Merton Gray. He's awfully fascinating. You'll get to liking him too well for your peace of mind, I am afraid."

A Self-Evident Fact.

"Nonsense!" I laughed." But I felt myself blushing. I DID like Merton Gray, I liked him immensely. And why shouldn't I? He had been kind and patient with me when I was practically snubbed by all of my husband's society friends. He had not treated me as if I were so lacking in all that constituted a lady, that I needed to be made over before I was worth noticing.

"By the way, have you decided what you are going to do this summer?" It was March, and Evelyn was already making plans to go away to some quiet place up in Maine, where Kurts could fish and sail, and where they would be quite away from the fashionable crowd.

"No, I haven't asked George, and he hasn't mentioned it."

"Wouldn't it be lovely if you and he were to go where Kurts and I have decided to go? I have never been up there, but Kurts says it is just the place to rest and loaf."

"I'll ask George at dinner tonight."

"Do and coax him to go with us. For a part of the summer, anyway."

"I'm afraid coaxing wouldn't do any good, if he doesn't want to go. But Evelyn, I should LOVE to go with you. It would be so nice to get away from all this—the servants, the formality — and be just a girl again. We could wear old clothes and build houses in the sand," I said laughingly, but someway the tears were very near. My childhood seemed a long way off.

George Vetoes The Plan.

I waited until George was drinking his coffee, before I mentioned the subject of his plans for the summer. I even waited until he had lighted his cigar and was contentedly blowing smoke rings, watching them as they dissolved into the air.

"Are we going away this summer?" I asked, trying to keep the anxiety out of my voice.

"Certainly."

"Have you decided upon any particular place?" Then, fearing he would say he had, and would not change, I rushed on, not waiting for an answer: "Evelyn was over, today and she and Kurts are going up to a little place on the Maine coast to fish and sail and have a nice lazy time. She wanted to know if we wouldnt go, too."

I waited, while he finished his coffee. Then he said:

"I surely shall NOT go to some little fishing village and bury myself all summer. I have not quite matured my plans; when I do, I will tell you where we are to go."

I well knew there was no appeal, yet I could not resist saying:

"I think it would do you good to go to some quiet place like that, and I should love it."

"We won't discuss it further. It is impracticable."

That was his way. He never discussed anything with me. It was yea and nay with him, always. The tears were very near, but I would not let them fall. If he would only tell me the WHY of things, occasionally. It would be easier for me to be contented with the arbitrary way he had with me. But he never did.

To-morrow—George Refers to His Plans for the Summer.

THE KHAKI COLLEGE.

Alliance of Institution With London University Is Appropriate.

The relationship which has been created between the Canadian Khaki College and the University College of London appears to be peculiarly appropriate, judging from a speech made by Dr. Walter W. Seton, secretary of the latter college, at the inaugural meeting of the Khaki University. The speech showed that the Maison d'etre of University College was to offer facilities for higher education at a time when England was still fettered by religious tests and other shibboleths. For this reason it seems natural that this educational institution founded by Canadians in England without any precedent to go upon, should be welcomed and housed by University College.

"We are, comparatively speaking, a young institution, young as universities go," said Dr. Seton. "We cannot look back to the hoary antiquity of the centuries like Oxford and Cambridge can; we can only go back about 100 years. Yet this college was, in a sense, a pioneer, for it was founded at a time when Oxford and Cambridge were not open at all, but when their membership was limited to those who were prepared to subscribe to certain religious tests. The fundamental principle upon which this college was founded was that it should be open to all new ideas and to all new movements. Those are the principles for which it has stood during the years that have intervened since its foundation in 1826. At a later date the question arose as to whether women should be admitted to university education, and again in that respect this college acted as a pioneer. Gradually it has come about that practically every department and faculty of this college has been thrown open to women students.

"Then again in the movement in receiving students from overseas, we may claim to a large extent to have been pioneers. For many years now the college has thrown open its doors to students from all over the world. In the years before the war we have gladly welcomed both undergraduate and post graduate students from the great overseas dominions, and among these were a very considerable number from Canada. Many of those who have so come, have by their intellectual work and by their contributions to the social life of the college adorned and enriched this institution. I should particularly like to point out that we have been undertaking post-graduate work in all departments of the college. We hold as a cardinal principle that every department of the college must be prepared to undertake such work, and a great impulse to that has been given by the institution in recent years by the conferring of higher degrees such as Master of Arts, Master of Science and Doctor of Science, which can be taken by students from foreign universities and from dominions' universities after a period of two years of study. We feel there is a great opportunity, which will be yet greater after the war, and possibly during demobilization — for post-graduate work by many who have left their university studies to respond to urgent duty. We feel that there is perhaps a special opportunity for a university such as this to become in a special way, but not by any means exclusively, a clearing house for Imperial intellectual ideas, a place to which all can come from overseas to gain, perhaps, a somewhat different conception of us from that which they have gained in their homeland. It is our hope that this movement which is now being inaugurated may be a step in that direction, and that many of you here may be ultimately yet more closely associated with us."

The meeting at which this address was delivered was attended by Dr. H. M. Tory and Lt.-Col. J. Obed Smith, Dominion Commissioner of Emigration, and several hundred soldiers from London and camp areas.

PROFIT IN FLAX CROP

Demand for Aeroplane Wings Stimulates Production.

BOYS WILL AID THE FARMERS

Seasonable Hints for the Fruit-grower and Agriculturalist—Information About the Work That Has Been Done to Secure Lads to Aid Production.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

FLAX fibre is absolutely necessary for the construction of aeroplane wings. Yet because of Russia's defection, Great Britain has not now more fibre on hand than is sufficient to keep the mills running one and a half days a week. To further complicate matters the flax seed crop in Ireland was perilously near a failure last year.

These vital facts were disclosed recently at a meeting in Toronto, of the Agricultural Section of the Organization of Resources Committee of Ontario, called to discuss the flax situation. Evidence was also given regarding what Ontario already had done to relieve the shortage. In 1917 thirty-three flax mills were operated, 6,000 acres were planted and 2,600,000 pounds of fibre and 45,000 bushels of seed were produced. Our flax business last year had a total value of $2,000,000. Moreover, the seed produced will accomplish a vital mission abroad, as a large part of it has been shipped to Ireland to meet the great seed deficiency there.

8,000 Acres at Least This Year.

Already flax growers are planning an 8,000-acre production, at least, for this year. Each of the mills are in the market for all the straw and seed that can be secured and good prices are assured the grower. The arrangements made in the past have, for the most part, provided for the leasing of flax land by the mills at a rental of from $10 to $15 an acre. The grower ploughed the land, prepared the seed bed and hauled the crop to the mill—except where the crop was carried on the railroad. The mill operator supplied the seed, often did the seeding, and harvested the crop. The flax was pulled by hand and the workers were housed in the fields in tents. Their transportation was paid by the mill company and they received $15 an acre for pulling. It took a first-class puller three days to finish an acre. As the workers prepared their own meals, the growers were in no way inconvenienced by having them on their farms.

Flax a Highly Profitable Crop.

While this system is still followed almost entirely, farmers may very profitably grow flax, doing all the work and selling the crop outright to the mills. An acre of good flax will produce some nine bushels of seed and two tons of straw. The seed sells now for from $7 to $9 a bushel, while the price of straw will be dependent upon quality. In case labor conditions prevent the pulling of flax the crop may be harvested with a binder, the seed sold at a remunerative price, and the straw at about $15 a ton.

Old sod land is preferred for flax and any soil which will produce a good crop of oats will be suitable. Wireworms and white grubs, so destructive to other crops, will not attack flax. The seed should be planted not later than May 10th and the crop is harvested during the middle of July; thus the soil is left in excellent condition for winter wheat. A thorough discing, without ploughing, is sufficient preparation for the wheat crop. The fear that flax is particularly hard on the land is unfounded, as it does not take more from it than any ordinary hand crop.

The Completed Zeppelin.

According to notes furnished to a London journal by a French officer in the construction of the framework of a Zeppelin from ten to twelve tons of aluminum are employed. The covering of the eighteen balloons enclosed inside the big outer envelope is made of cotton substance, lined with goldbeater's skin, instead of with rubber, and the quantity used is so large that the intestines of 30,000 cattle go to the making of the material for one Zeppelin. Each of the eighteen balloons is fitted with a valve, and separated from those on each side of it by a funnel to carry off the explosive mixture of the hydrogen of the balloons, the oxygen of the balloons, the oxygen of the air, and the gases given off by the engines. When all five motors are working together—one contained in the forward car, one in each of the two side cars, and two in the rear car—the speed attained is sixty-eight miles per hour, but, as a rule, all the engines are not used at one time and the normal rate of flight is fifty to fifty-six miles per hour. The ordinary crew consists of twenty-two men, but during raids only eighteen are carried.

Two Splendid Things

One is plenty of open-air exercise.

If you can't get all of that you should, it's all the more important that you should have the other tried-and-true remedy for a torpid liver and bowels that don't act freely and naturally.

LIVER TROUBLE and HEARTBURN

CURED BY

MILLBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

When the liver is torpid and inflamed it cannot furnish bile to the bowels, causing them to become bound and costive. The symptoms are a feeling of fullness or weight in the right side, and shooting pains in the same region, pains between the shoulders, yellowness of the skin and eyes, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, bad taste in the morning, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretions, clear away all effete and waste matter from the system, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal track, and are by far the safest and quickest remedy for all diseases or disorders of the liver.

Mrs. A. Cummings, Manchester, Ont., writes: "I have used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills some time, and can faithfully recommend them to anyone suffering from heartburn and liver trouble. I tried a great many other remedies but they only relieved me for a time. I believe Laxa-Liver Pills to be a valuable remedy for all sufferers from liver troubles."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Fifteen Thousand Boys for Ontario Farms.

In 1916 and 1917 the Department of Education made regulations which permitted students to leave school in April, provided that their term's work was satisfactory, for the purpose of engaging in farm work. If they spent three months or more on a farm, they were given their school standing without passing the customary promotion examinations.

When the students had responded to the Government's appeal and had volunteered in thousands for the work which they realized to be of such importance, there remained the problem of putting each individual applicant for work in touch with a farmer who desired assistance. This was accomplished through the Ontario Government System of Public Employment Bureau in cases where the students were unable to make their own arrangements. A minimum wage of $15 per month was set, but the farmers soon realized the value of the students' labor, and offered as high as $35 per month. The average wage paid was $18.

It is expected that 15,000 boys between the ages of 14 and 19 will be available this spring for farm work in the province. The minimum wage this year will be $15 per month, with board. It is hoped that every farmer who can make use of the services of a High School boy will make early application through the District Representative in order that he may not be disappointed. There are over 150,000 farmers in Ontario, and only 15,000 boys to go round, so the wise farmer will be the one who speaks quickly.—Dr. W. A. Riddell, Ontario Labor Bureau.

Get a Spray Calendar.

This is the time of year when spraying must command the attention of the fruit grower. Everyone should procure from the Department of Agriculture, a spray calendar in which directions are given for the spraying of all kinds of fruit trees and the preparation of the various insecticides and fungicides.—Ontario Agricultural College Notes.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

IT PAID AFTER ALL

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

Bob Sanford on his way from New York to Chicago arrived Saturday night at Buffalo and discovered to his dismay that he could go no farther till the next evening. Not only was he disappointed at having to wait in a strange town over Sunday, but horror stricken at remembering that he was short of cash, having provided just enough to take him to his journey's end. His hotel bill for one day would use up all he had, with none left for his sleeping berth to Chicago. His tickets were to that city.

Bob put up at a hotel and went to bed. In the morning he bethought himself as to how he should get away with the day and provide means for a sleeping berth for the balance of the trip, for he had no mind to sit up all night. Then suddenly he remembered that his chum, Tom Atkinson, was a Buffalo boy and his parents lived there. Tom's father had visited his son in Chicago, and Bob had been introduced to him. He might call on Mr. Atkinson, state his necessities and secure the loan of the few dollars needed.

Bob spent the morning reading the newspapers and the afternoon walking the streets. His train did not leave till 11 o'clock. After dark he plucked up courage to go to the Atkinsons for his loan. So after getting the address from a directory he turned his steps to the house. On his arrival he found the premises dimly lighted. He hesitated. He was tempted to give it up and sit up all night in a day car. But the prospect of a sleepless night urged him on, and he went up the steps and rang the bell. After waiting some time he saw the light in the hall turned higher; then a feminine voice asked who was there.

Bob was staggered. How could he explain who he was? He could not very well say that he was Tom Atkinson's friend and he had called to borrow a few dollars on the strength of that friendship. He said nothing, standing in the vestibule irresolute.

"Who's there?" asked the voice again in a more resolute tone.

Still Bob, not knowing what to say, said nothing. Then he thought he heard a light step within retreating, then returning. Suddenly the door was opened a few inches, and the muzzle of a pistol was poked through. Beyond he could distinguish the figure of a girl.

"If you think that I am alone," said a quavering voice, "you are mistaken. There are three men upstairs."

"I—I—have come to make a call on Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson. Do they live here?"

"Yes, they live here. They're out at church. They haven't got back yet. You can't come in."

"Certainly not if you don't wish it. May I leave a card?"

The girl made no reply to this. Bob held out a card and, poking it at the girl just below the pistol, said:

"I'm a friend of Tom Atkinson, in Chicago. Happening to be in Buffalo, I concluded to pay my respects to his parents."

"Oh, merciful goodness!" exclaimed the girl, withdrawing the weapon. "What have I done!"

"It doesn't matter," said Bob apologetically. "It's my fault anyway. I shouldn't have called so late."

"Are you Robert Sanford?"

"Yes."

"Oh, dear! Papa and mamma left me all alone, and I'm 'fraid of burglars. I've made a ninny of myself. Come in."

Bob entered, asking if the girl was Tom's sister, and she assured him that she was and had often heard Tom speak of his friend Mr. Sanford.

"Papa and mamma will be so complimented that you have called on them," said Miss Atkinson, "and will be delighted to see one of Tom's intimate friends. They will be home in a few minutes. The services are over at 9, and it takes them about fifteen minutes to come from the church. Here they are now."

Bob wished it had taken them longer to come, for Tom's sister was very pretty and he would have liked a longer sitting with her alone. The front door opened, and Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson, after leaving their wraps in the hall, entered.

"This is Tom's friend Mr. Sanford of Chicago," said Miss Atkinson.

"Well, upon my word!" exclaimed Mr. Atkinson. "Delighted to see you. I remember very well meeting you in Tom's rooms in Chicago."

"How nice of you to come and see us!" said Mrs. Atkinson. "I assure you we appreciate the attention."

Bob remained for an hour, during which the fond parents talked incessantly about their son, and Bob praised him to the skies. All the while he was trying to muster up courage to speak of the loan of $2 for a sleeping berth. But to tell Tom's parents in the presence of Tom's sister that he had called for that purpose was too much for him. So, saying that he must go for his train, he bade them all good by, and, followed by a shower of thanks for the attention he had shown them in calling, he took his departure.

The next evening he appeared at Tom Atkinson's and told the story.

"Well, I'll be jinged!" said Tom. "After facing death at the muzzle of a pistol you were obliged to sit up all night!"

"Yes," replied Bob, "but it was worth a night like that."

"What do you mean?"

Bob never explained till he became engaged to Miss Atkinson.

THE POSSUM PARTY

By M. QUAD

[Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

Last month the following colored gentlemen and politicians met at Paradise hall in response to a circular letter from Brother Gardner:

Judge Persimmon Longbody of Tennessee, who held the office of constable once for thirty days and knows how good it is.

Colonel Cabiff Rocky of Kentucky, who sweeps out the postoffice in Louisville, but had far rather be postmaster.

Brassbound Johnson of Maryland, who has led his cohorts against many a melon patch and will again, by thunder!

Major Bloker of Ohio, who says that taking a chicken off the roost without a squawk is an art.

Several other delegates were to be on hand, but the constable rallied in force and drove them back.

Brother Gardner stated that the meeting was for the purpose of putting a presidential ticket in the field at an early date and the party would be called "the Possum party." The matter was thoroughly discussed and settled, and there was an adjournment to a later date.

There was a mighty gathering at Paradise hall Saturday evening, and, acting on the suggestion of Brother Gardner, about fifty members had brought their wives with them. It had been announced on the bulletin board that the Hon. Crabtree Jones of Alabama would deliver a political speech, and the audience was ready to give him an enthusiastic greeting. He appeared promptly at the hour named and was introduced by the president amid vociferous applause.

"Respectable fellow citizens," began the orator as he got his feet planted on the proper spot, "two weeks ago dar was a-bornin' in dis famous hall which has made talk fur 10,000,000 people. It was de bornin' of a new political party.

"My fr'en's, I had bin waitin' thirty y'ars fur de dawn of freedom. I hev bin waitin' thirty y'ars fur de birth of de Possum party.

"Freemen of free land, patriots who ar' takin' yo'r fust breath of liberty, I'm lookin' at dat stuff possum which we have adopted as our sacred emblem an' arter which we hev taken our name. [Typhoonic yells.] Dar has eber bin a bond of sympathy between de gull'l man an' de possum. Dey haven't had a show with de bes' game. Dey has had to keep still till folks looked upon 'em as dead. [Signs of groans and repressed agitation.] However, it's gwine to astonish a hull continent de way dat possum will let go an' drap down into de row an' demand an' fight for his sheer of de spiles. [Whirlwinds of applause, during which the stove fell over unheeded.]

"Yo' jest git out yo'r pencils an' figger a minit. Dere's ober 3,000,000 black men in dis kentry who am entitled to walk to de polls on 'leckshun day an' cast a vote. If dey but hang together yo' can't count 'em out nor keep 'em back. Dem 3,000,000 votes am gwine to be cast for principle, but doan' make no mistake 'bout principle. We used to think dat it meant votin' on sartin' lines an' dat George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, de constitushun of de United States an' seberal odder things was mixed up wid it, an' we walked up an' put in our votes as if each an' ebery one was gwine to save de kentry. But we l'arned it from de white man. [Cries of 'Yo' bet we hev!'] We hev l'arned dat he sots out on a political campaign wid a cartload of principles to gib away free gratis an' punctuate his speeches, but when de ballots am counted up he lays down his principles to pick up his office.

"We am gwine to take a flyleaf from de white man's book. We'll stick to principles, but we'll look out fur de spiles as well.

"My fr'en's, daylight has cum at last fur us. We's got our bundles packed an' hev started on de road. We's got headed right, an' we's only to keep on to find de bee tree an' be on hand when de honey am divided up. [Yells for honey.] Keep yo'r eye on de possum an' yo'r brains in yo'r heads an' yo'll win a victory dat Bunker Hill couldn't hold a candle to. [General hoarseness, but prodigious applause.] I want a word mo' befo' I close. Dis am to be a plain, airnest campaign on our part. We ain't gwine to say much, but what we do say will hit de barn doah like a load of buckshot. Doan' git de idea dat big words am gwine to help yo' win what belongs to yo'. Befo' dis meetin' opened tonight I heard Waydown Bebee observe dat de malignant innuendo of de torrid affinshun would enhance de ginerality of de pompposity. He probably meant well, an' mebbe his observation has helped us to git started, but I hope he won't do it ag'in. Doan' nobody do it. Dis am no dictionary campaign. [No, no!] It will be plain puddin' an' milk at home an' plain English when yo' am walkin' up and down wid a possum badge on yo'r breast an' a flag of liberty in yo'r hand. Nuffin' counts quicker nor harder dan to call a man a liar, an' de languidge am so simple dat a child kin understand it. I will now return yo' my thanks an' bow my gratitude fur de welcome handed out to me."

The orator sat down amid applause that broke windows and put out lights, and it was continued until the police came up the alley stairs and dropped three women and four men down upon the sand pile below. The Possum party may be said to have got hold of its nursing bottle with a good grip.

GAVE HER DELICATE CHILD VINOL

It Built Him Up and Made Him Strong

Newaygo, Mich.—"My little boy was in a delicate, weak, emaciated condition and had a cough so we had to keep him out of school for a year. Nothing seemed to help him until Vinol was recommended, and the change it made in him was remarkable. It has built him up and made him strong so his cough is almost entirely gone. We can not recommend Vinol too highly."—Mrs. E. N. Hanlon.

Slight Stroke Of Paralysis

Down Left Side—Stomach and Heart Affected—Case Baffled Doctors For Three Years

TRENTON, Ont., March 11.—A very interesting report has been received from Mrs. Pringle in regard to her recovery from partial paralysis. This was a most extreme case, for doctors had been trying for three years to find something which would restore the depleted nerve force.

One can scarcely imagine stronger evidence of the restorative influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. C. Pringle, Queen street, Trenton, Ont., writes:

"About five years ago I was troubled with my stomach, there was a sort of paralyzed feeling across it and up my left side, and my heart seemed almost to stop beating. I called in the Doctor, and he thought it was symptoms of a stroke. My stomach kept getting worse. At times the pounding would be intense, almost unbearable, and I thought I would go wild. Sleep was out of the question. I tried different Doctors, giving each one a fair trial, and doctoring nearly three years. My case seemed to baffle them. It was a nervous breakdown caused by overwork and worry. During all this time I could not do any work, and my friends thought it was a matter of time, how long I would live. Some one advised me to try something to build up my system, and I tried different medicines. Finally I thought I would try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and see if they would do me any good. A famous Doctor sanctioned my using these pills, and told me they would be good for me. They seemed to be just what I required, as I soon saw an improvement. I took about fifteen boxes, and the results have been very gratifying. I am now enjoying splendid health, and able to do all my work, eating anything I wish, and can go to bed and get a good night's rest. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, who have also secured good results from this treatment."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Great Railroader Passed Away

ONE of the greatest figures in the Canadian railway world passed away on March 28th, at the age of eighty-seven, in the person of Sir Collingwood Schreiber. The death took place at his home, "Elmsleigh," in the city of Ottawa, where he had been ailing for some months.

For sixty years the late Sir Collingwood had been actively associated in the building and development of both publicly and privately owned railways in Canada. He had a tremendous share in the laying of transportation systems both east and west, and in the latter part of his career as Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals he helped to wisely administer lines directly under the Government, and subsequently superintended the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific. For his splendid work in connection with the building of Government lines he was knighted in 1915.

Deceased was the son of Rev. Thomas and Mrs. Sarah Schreiber of Bradwell Lodge, Essex, England, where he was born Dec. 14, 1831, and was educated in England, where he was apprenticed to a surveyor, and learned the rudiments of the science of which he later became so leading an exponent in Canada. He married Caroline, daughter of the late Lt.-Col. A. H. MacLean of his Majesty's Forty-First Regiment, and his second wife was Julia Maude, daughter of the Hon. Mr. Justice Gwynne of the Supreme Court of Canada, whom he married in 1898.

When comparatively a young man, the late Sir Collingwood Schreiber came to Canada in the year 1852. At that time the railroads of the country were yet in their chrysalis, and there was only 2095 miles in operation. He first secured a position on the engineering staff of the Toronto and Hamilton Railway. As a builder of railroads he made good in this comparative small undertaking, and it proved a worthy start for the great railroad career that was his in later years. He stayed with this road until 1856. By that time he had become known as an efficient and capable engineer. He was taken into partnership in the engineering firm of Fleming, Ridout & Schreiber of Toronto, becoming associated with Sir Sandford Fleming, another great name to conjure with by his history of railroad development in Canada. He remained in practice until 1860, when he superintended the construction of the Northern Railway—now a part of the northern division of the Grand Trunk—until 1863. Then he was invited by the Nova Scotia Government to assist in the development of railways in the beautiful province of the east, where steam transportation was yet in its infancy. For four years he was engaged in the construction of the Pictou Railway, which was taken over by the Dominion Government after Confederation. He remained there until the work was completed in 1867, and then assisted in laying out the Temiscouata section of the Intercolonial Railway.

He built and became superintending engineer of the Eastern Extension Line, now part of the Intercolonial, and having played such a great part in the development of Government railways, he was appointed chief engineer and general manager of all Government railways in operation in 1873. His wonderful ability attracted the attention of those in charge of building the C.P.R., and seven years later Sir Collingwood Schreiber succeeded his old partner, Sir Sandford Fleming, as chief engineer of the great transcontinental line. He retained his position on the Government railways and on the C.P.R. up until 1892, when he was appointed chief engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, and later he became Deputy Minister of this Department, and for thirteen years administered the railway and canal policy of the country as permanent head of the service.

In 1905 he became general consulting engineer to the Dominion Government and chief engineer of the western division of the National Transcontinental Railway. Since that time his chief work has been the inspection of the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific on behalf of the people of the Dominion. Year by year since the road was begun he has made his annual trips of inspection; even when he had attained the age of 79 years he covered 500 miles on horseback in connection with the survey of the line. He was a big man physically and possessed a magnificent constitution. His faculties remained bright until the end, and he still retained an active interest in the great railroad policy of the Dominion.

Sir Collingwood was a deeply religious man and an earnest member of the Anglican Church.

FIGHTING THE U-BOATS.

British Hear Plain Facts About Shipbuilding.

The sensation of the hour in Great Britain has been the blunt statement by Mr. Barnes, Minister of Labor, as to the falling off in shipbuilding during the first two months of the present year. It came as a shock both to Parliament and the public after the encouragement they have had to believe we had got a real spring forward in boat construction to learn that the output in January and February was 50 per cent. below expectation. Not to leave any room for cheerfulness, Mr. Barnes carefully added the extraneous information that "America was also failing." Truth has many facets, and after the revulsion of this gloomy picture had been properly felt, Mr. Bonar Law offered a moderate corrective—on the following day. It seems that up to the end of 1917 the British were doing well, and Sir Eric Geddes was justified in his remark about the upward curve, though that general phrase got an exaggerated importance from our optimism. It has to be remembered also that the British have made a big diversion of workers for repairing services, and this increased restoration of craft to the mercantile marine has real benefit. Further, even on Mr. Barnes' own showing, the men are now pulling reasonably well. Indeed, he reckons that labor conditions at present are fairly satisfactory. The figures he gave referred to the ships being turned out, not to the operations now taking place. The British are apparently suffering from disturbance in the past rather than in the present. But the deficiency is matter of fact, and the call to fresh energy is real. Mr. Barnes did not speak solely on his own initiative. The Government had come to the conclusion it was best to tell the public that the situation was serious, and make direct appeal in these circumstances to the shipbuilders. Since then glowing cables from the United States convey that America's inability to work up to anticipations is fully appreciated there. The error of estimates appears to have been from too sanguine a view having been taken of the business of gearing up preparations. You cannot make multitudes of shipbuilders to move like regiments in a week or a month. Moreover, the economic manipulation of the mercantile marine by the Shipping Controller (Sir Joseph Maclay) has been so adroitly performed that, although the British are 20 per cent. down in shipping, decline in imports is only 2 per cent.

More Men Needed.

Premier Lloyd George, in an exceedingly outspoken speech to a deputation of the Miners' Federation the other day concerning the result of the miners' ballot on the combing-out of men for military service, declared that to avoid defeat in the field it is absolutely essential to have more men.

"I am utterly at a loss," he said, "to know where the men are to be found if first the engineers and then the miners say we will not find the men. Other trades will quickly take the same course. That would mean anarchy, not government.

"I have just had news that the Germans have attacked us on a front of nearly sixty miles with overwhelming forces. I am amazed that it should be considered debatable whether the miners and engineers are going to make their contribution to the defence of the country."

Premier Lloyd George declared it would be far better that the Government should go out of office than to have its decisions disobeyed, adding:

"If the sanction of the community is going to decide whether a law should be obeyed, then, believe me, you will have a condition of things where the people who will suffer most will not be the people at the top, who are generally able to take care of themselves, but the poor devils at the bottom. It has always been so in the history of the world.

"It is better to talk plainly, and I am speaking with a great deal of feeling, because I have just heard of this overwhelming attack brought about by the failure of the Russian democracy to have its orders obeyed.

"If the attack succeeds, the Germans might be at Calais, and the only answer we can give is a vote of the Miners' Confederation saying they are not prepared to fight. You cannot give that answer."

The executive of the Federation later passed a resolution advising the men not to resist the combing-out of fifty thousand men from the mines."

MORE V. C. HEROES.

Reasons For Several of the Recent Awards.

A supplement to the London Gazette contains the names of eight officers, one non-commissioned officer, and three men who have been awarded the Victoria Cross. Included in the list is the name of Second Lieut. Stanley Henry Parry Boughey, late Royal Scots Fusiliers, who receives the award for most conspicuous bravery displayed under the following circumstances: When the enemy in large number had managed to crawl up within 30 yards of our firing line, and with bombs and automatic rifles were keeping down the fire of our machine guns, he rushed forward alone with bombs right up to the enemy, doing great execution and causing the surrender of a party of 30. As he turned to go back for more bombs he was mortally wounded at the moment when the enemy were surrendering.

A second Scottish recipient is Lieut. (Acting Captain) George Henry Tatham Paton M.C. late Grenadier Guards. When a unit on his left was driven back, thus leaving his flank in the air and his company practically surrounded, he fearlessly exposed himself to readjust the line. He personally removed several wounded men, and was the last to leave the village. Later, when the enemy four times counter-attacked he sprang each time upon the parapet, deliberately risking his life, and being eventually mortally wounded, in order to stimulate his command.

Lieut. Paton was killed in the fighting near Cambrai in December last. He was the only son of Mr. George William Paton, formerly of Messrs. Koss, Corbett & Co., Greenock, and now managing director of Messrs. Bryant & May, Ltd., and chairman of the Match Control Board. The gallant officer was born at Innellan, Argyllshire, where his father was for some years the representative on the Argyllshire County Council for Innellan and Toward. In common with his father, Lieut. Paton took a very keen interest in Scottish charities. He is the first officer in the Grenadier Guards who has received the V.C. since the Crimean War, and only five V.C.'s have passed through the regiment since the honor was instituted.

The third Scottish V. C. is Lieut. Hugh Mackenzie, D.C.M., late Canadian M. G. Corps.

Seeing that all the officers and most of the non-commissioned officers of an infantry company had become casualties, and that the men were hesitating before a nest of enemy machine guns, which were causing them severe casualties, he handed over command of his guns to an N.C.O., rallied the infantry, organized an attack, and captured the strong point. Finding that the position was swept by machine gun fire from a "pill-box," Lieut. Mackenzie made a reconnaissance and detailed flanking and frontal attacking parties which captured the "pill-box," he himself being killed while leading the frontal attack.

Lieut. Hugh Mackenzie was a native of Inverness, but subsequently removed to Dundee, where his mother resides. He was a great athlete, and, devoting himself principally to wrestling, he won the North of Scotland championship. He emigrated to Canada some years ago, enlisted in the Princess Patricia Light Infantry in 1914, gained the D.C.M., and was given a commission last April. He paid a visit to Dundee in October last, and was killed the same month. He was 30 years of age.

Both Were Satisfied.

A Missouri livery stable keeper put his hand in a mule's mouth to see how many teeth the mule had. The mule closed his mouth to see how many fingers the man had, and the curiosity of both man and mule was satisfied.

"PAID IN BLOOD OF SONS."

(Montreal Herald.

Mr. James M. Beck, formerly Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, who is well known in Canada, caused a remarkable demonstration in Philadelphia a few days ago when he said that he believed the United States would cancel the $7,000,000,000 debt incurred by the Allies in connection with the war. "I believe our Government," he said, "will write across the paper on which the money was lent 'Receipted in full'. And, when they ask, 'Receipted in full—how?' our Government will answer, 'By the blood of your sons.'" The Philadelphia Ledger, in reporting this statement, delivered, by the way, on the floor of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange, in an address on behalf of the Liberty Loan, says:

"Cheers taking on the proportions of a mighty roar greeted the speaker's last exclamation. Many of the listeners were moved to the point of tears; strangers in the audience shook hands with each other; cries of 'Right! Right!' were heard. The applause lasted a minute.

"I would be ashamed of my country of the sums now advanced," Mr. Beck of the sums now advanced," Mr. Beck continued. "And, as I have said, my profound belief in the innate chivalry of the American character is such that I know this debt never will be mentioned in the way of repayment.

"And if it be a chivalrous thing for us to expunge this debt, the victory, when it is won, will bring us greater benefit, and, I must say in candor, a less deserved benefit than to any of the other Allies."

OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

Troubles of Periscopes.

It is related that the captain of a British trawler in the North Sea recently attacked the periscope of a U-boat with a shovel and did so much damage that the German had to submerge and travel off. The story recalls the exciting cruise of a British submarine up the Dardanelles at the time of the Gallipoli operations. In commencing its perilous journey, the vessel had to dive beneath nets and sea mines of all descriptions for a great distance before clear water was reached, and finally on venturing to rise to the surface, the commander found himself surrounded by a great number of small vessels, which fairly covered the water. He related at the time how some person in one of these boats leaned over the side and actually seized the periscope in his hands; but fortunately those hands did not hold a shovel, and the British boat was able to submerge and proceed unharmed on its daring mission, with results extremely disastrous to Turkish shipping.

Lavender and Mint.

The great secret of Surrey's lavender and mint lies in the soil—a light, friable, chalky soil, not often found in a climate congenial to both plants, yet essential to a perfect result. Each, in fact, may be grown with a certain measure of success on hill, in marshland, or meadow, for both are hardy, and, when well rooted, are nearly impervious to drought and frost.

A Japanese prefers hot water to cold for drinking.

A Costly Palace.

The people of Ontario are proud of the palatial Government House that they own in Toronto, but they are beginning to find it an expensive luxury. Government House cost the taxpayers of Ontario over $28,000 last year. This amount included, among other things, the wages of an engineer and three firemen, and the cost of 967 tons of coal for the furnaces it included the cost of bulbs, seeds and shrubs, and the wages of the head gardener and five assistants, and a few odds and ends, such as ink bottles, candlesticks, etc., which cost $84, and a pine cupboard and cloak-rack which cost $280. It did not, of course, include the Lieutenant-Governor's salary of $10,000, which is paid by the Dominion Government, nor did it include the cost of food or the wages of domestic servants, which are paid out of the Governor's private purse.

The 967 tons of coal required to feed what has been described as "the Ontario Government's white elephant," was considered an excessive amount by some persons who could not get any coal at all. The coal cost over $6,000. The sum of $2,000 odd was paid for a porter and charwomen, while nearly $700 was expended for gardeners' tools, bulbs, seeds, fertilizers, etc.

In addition to the $28,000 for running Government House, the sum of $2,050 was paid to the Lieutenant-Governor "for running his office in the Parliament Buildings," and that an additional $1,400 was paid in salary to his aide, Hon. Col. Alex Fraser, who also receives the salary of $2,500 as Provincial Archivist.

Had Bronchitis FOR THREE YEARS COULD GET NO RELIEF

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather. It begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty in breathing, and a wheezing sound comes from the lungs. There is also a raising of phlegm from the lungs, especially in the morning. This is at first white, but later becomes of a greenish or yellowish color, and is occasionally streaked with blood.

On the first sign of bronchitis you should check it immediately by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and thereby prevent it becoming chronic and perhaps turning into some more serious lung trouble.

Mr. Theodore P. Beers, Upper Main River, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with bronchitis for three years, and could get no relief. I was always worse when I got wet. I tried lots of different medicines, but none did me any good until a friend told me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I got three bottles and before I had them half used I was better.

"My mother is now using it for asthma. It is a great medicine and we never want to be without it."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c.; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

A very dignified style which is sure to please the matron is shown in No. 8762. It is what we call a composé dress, because it is made up of a combination of materials. The vest effect and the front panel, as well as the sleeves and collar, are made of taffeta silk, and the rest of the dress is made of either French serge or gabardine. The waist has two plaits over each shoulder, and the one next to the vest is carried down into the skirt. A very new idea is the standing, rolled collar which is attached to the vest. The skirt is a four piece model and it is gathered to the slightly raised waistline.

The lady's dress pattern No. 8762 is cut in five sizes—34 to 42 inches bust measure. Width at lower edge of skirt is 2 yards. As on the figure, the 36 inch size requires 3¾ yards 36 inch, 2⅞ yards 44 inch or 2¼ yards 54 inch material, with 1⅞ yards 36 inch silk and a leather belt.

Germans Order the Cultivation of Large Estates Belonging to the Big Interests in Ukraine

KERENSKY HEARD FROM

Canadian Press:

ZURICH, May 2.— Gen. Von Eichhorn, commander of the German forces in Ukraine, according to a telegram from Kiev, has ordered the peasantry to return all property and effects taken from land holders and to begin as quickly as possible the cultivation of great estates. The order, which protects the interests of the land holders, who are mostly Poles and Russians, is opposed vigorously by the Ukrainian Rada, which has instructed the Minister of Agriculture to direct the peasanty to disregard the order.

PREMIER CAPTURED.

Special to The Examiner:

COPENHAGEN, May 2.— The Germans took eleven thousand prisoners in Helsingfors, according to despatches from the Finnish capital, and five thousand more in Viborg, including the Red Guard premier.

Viborg was bombarded for eleven hours and partially destroyed.

Vegetable Growers Hold Meeting in May's School House

Fifteen New Members Join the New Peterboro' Branch of Association — To Purchase Coal

The inaugural meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Vegetable Growers' Association of Ontario was held last evening in May's schoolhouse. Reeve F. Wilson, president of the Association, presided. During the evening Mr. Bruce Johnston of North Monaghan, was elected First Vice-President, and Mr. Arthur Holden, Second Vice President. Fifteen new members were also received into the newly-formed branch. The Association is open to all vegetable growers in the district, and is not confined to North Mongahan.

COAL SUPPLY.

The question of securing a supply of coal for the use of the members was discussed and President Wilson, who is Fuel Controller for the Township of North Monghan, assured the meeting that the prospects of securing several carloads of coal were very good. The Association is in a position to take at least three carloads, as soon as they can be secured.

It is not the object of the Association to fix the selling prices of the commodities which they produce, but the members plan to co-operate for buying purposes.

The members appointed a committee to meet the directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, with a view of having a special prize donated to the Association for the best exhibit of products.

BANDSMEN, ATTENTION

It has been decided to increase the present strength of the 57th Regt. Band from 30 men to 50, and with this object in view all bandsmen in the City are cordially invited to become members. Instruments provided and all the privileges of first-class quarters at the Armouries accorded new men as well as every assistance in securing positions. Rehearsals every Tuesday and Friday. German Artillery Became Active This Morning On The Flanders Front

French Troops Made Several Successful Raids — Germans Are Eating Horseflesh.

A PRISONERS' LETTER

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 2.—The German artillery became active this morning in the Villers-Bretonneux sector on the Amiens front and in the neighbourhood of Merris, on the Flanders front, it is announced officially.

THE STATEMENT READS:

The enemy's artillery developed considerable activity early this morning in the Villers-Bretonneux sector, and in the neighbourhood of Merris. Some activity was shown also during the night in the Arras, Lens and St. Venant sectors. No infantry action is reported.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, May 2.—A German attack last night on the Thennes sector failed, the French War Office announced this afternoon. French troops made raids on Lemonchel and west of Coucy Lechateau.

THE STATEMENT FOLLOWS:

North of the Avre a German attack on the French positions in the region of Thennes was broken up by French fire. Other German efforts north of Chavignon and north-west of Rheims, gained no greater success. The French carried out a number of raids, especially near Le Monchel, west of Coucy Lechateau and north of Ponta Mousson and brought back twenty prisoners. On the remainder of the front the night passed in quiet.

A SIGNIFICANT FACT.

LONDON, May 2.—(Via Reuter's).—The Daily Mail says the fact that Amiens and Ypres are still untaken after six weeks of unprecedented enemy effort, proves the ability of the Allies to hold the Germans until the American army, whose advent the enemy dread, can play its part.

EATING HORSES.

Special to The Examiner.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 2.—Hundreds of horses killed by the French artillery are eaten by German soldiers, according to letters found on prisoners.

The Germans, unable to obtain other food because of the terrific, incessant bombardment, cut up dead horses on the battle field during the night for the day's meals. Here is a sample of one of these letters:

"We think we will capture Amiens soon. We have been outdoors fifteen days and are dead tired, starving. Neither food or ammunition is arriving, but they are always promised "to-morrow." I have only four cartridges left.

"There are more than 500 dead horses in our vicinity. During the night we carve off quarters for steaks. Our hunger hurts, but we cannot go to the village, where there is something to eat because it is bombarded too heavily."

Labour Protests That McIntyre Brothers Have City Contract

The Trades and Labour Council decided last night to ask the City Council to appoint a representative of unionized labour to the Public Library Board. It was stated that the representative who is at present accredited to labour interests is not a union man and for that reason is unsatisfactory to the Trades Council.

Mr. E. J. Quinn of the Carpenters was appointed Treasurer, succeeding Mr. Paul Walker, who has moved from Peterborough.

Following a report that McIntyre Brothers, both aldermen, have been given the contract for the stores in the Market Arcade, a resolution was passed protesting to the City Council that it is illegal for members of the Council to accept a contract from the city.

It was stated that the painters of the city are considering the formation of the union and that a definite move may be made in a short time.

WHAT MARRIED MEN MUST PAY ON THEIR INCOMES

Here's what married men with moderate incomes will be called upon to pay under the new law:

Salary	Tax
$1,500	Nil
1,800	Nil
2,000	Nil
2,100	$2.00
2,500	10.00
3,000	20.00
3,500	40.00
4,000	70.00

This is paid on present salaries. Supposing a man gets an increase next week, he would not be called upon to pay on this increase.

Women Will Run Street Cars

Toronto Will Witness Another Innovation Within the Next Two Months

MEN ARE SCARCE

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, May 2.— Women motormen and conductors will make their appearance on the cars of the Toronto Railway Company within two months, General Manager R. J. Fleming stated to-day.

"Personally I am against it, but we must be governed by circumstances," he said. "It is difficult to secure men and more of our employees are likely to be taken for military service. We cannot have our cars stand idle in the barns, for our first duty is to serve the dear public and we must look to the future."

"How many women will you use?" asked the reporter.

"We will train a few first, and gradually increase the number if it is found necessary." The women, he said, would be secured by advertising for them as has been the case for male employees. They will be put through the customary course of training and then take their places on the cars. The women will be paid the same wages now paid to the men. "Already we have had many applications for the positions," said Mr. Fleming.

NURSING SISTER BEATRICE BLEWETT.

Nursing Sister Beatrice Blewett, daughter of Mrs. Coleman Blewett, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, arrived in the city at noon to-day. She is accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Blewett, and sister, Mrs. "Bud" Fisher and son, of Montreal. Nursing Sister Blewett came over on a hospital ship, coming through on a hospital train to Toronto last Saturday. She has to report for duty on a hospital ship returning May 15th. She has been over since the summer of 1914, having served in England, France, Salonika, Isle of Lemnos and Alexandria.

Miss Blewett will visit her grandmother, Mrs. Blewett, and Miss McKibbon in Lakefield until Monday.

AMERICANS ATTACKED

Germans Were Repulsed With Heavy Losses—Americans Made a Valiant Defense

GERMAN RESERVES

(United Press.)

(By Henry Wood.)

WITH FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 2.— An American regiment, amalgamated with the French on the Amiens battle front, after being violently bombarded for two hours Tuesday night, was attacked by approximately three battalions of British infantry. The Americans, after a violent combat, repulsed the Germans, who left the field covered with dead. The Americans took five prisoners. The battle occurred south of Grivesnes between Cantigny and Fontaine-Sour-Montdidier. Despite serious losses the Americans made a valiant defence.

Capable of Duplicting.

Although Germany has engaged two and a half million men in the present offensive to date conservative calculations show that she is still capable of duplicating this offensive effort.

The Allies, however, with their new unity of command and superiority in fresh reserves, coupled with the inability of the Germans again to effect a surprise, hold the trump card.

Divisions Identified.

The fatal consumption of German effectives is indicated by the fact that while the enemy began on March 21 with half a million men at the front line, they have been obliged since to engage five times that number. The Allies have identified on the west front 206 divisions (2,472,000 men) out of the German's entire total of 242, including those on other fronts. To date the Germans have engaged 149 separate divisions in the present battles—many two or three times—making a total value of 186 divisions engaged. This leaves sixty unengaged, of which ten are Landstrum and Landweher, incapable of offensive work.

This prodigal use of effectives, together with Gen. Foch's conservative use of the Allied reserves, gives later more unengaged fresh divisions than the Germans.

German Losses.

The most conservative estimates of the German losses are 350,000. It is known, however, there are still 650,000 men in depots with which to replace these losses without even calling on the class of 1920 which ordinarily will not be mobilized until October.

Consequently Germany can still duplicate her offensive effort to date. But once her losses exceed the reserves she is without resource, while the daily arrival of British, American and Italian divisions is assuring the Allies an incontestable superiority and final victory.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, May 2.—The boys of the A.Y.P.A. provided a pleasant little treat for the lady members on Tuesday evening, when they served ice cream and biscuits. Another feature of the evening was the presentation of two more pictures to add to the honour gallery of the society. Mr. Gordon Fairbairn presented a picture of himself and Mr. W. Hampton presented a portrait of himself and brother, Mr. Harry Hampton.

Funeral Wednesday.

The funeral took place at Lakefield on Wednesday afternoon of a former resident of the village, viz., Mrs. Gilroy. Mrs. Gilroy removed to Bobcaygeon some years ago, where she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Gilbert Gordon. The funeral service was held in the Baptist church, of which the deceased lady was a faithful member.

THE IRISH QUESTION

Andrew Bonar Law Intimates That the Introduction of the Home Rule Bill Has Been Deferred

BREAKERS AHEAD

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 2.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer and Government spokesman declared in the House of Commons Wednesday that he could not say when an Irish Home Rule Bill would be introduced. This, according to some lobby correspondents of the morning newspapers, covers the fact that the introduction of the Bill has been deferred and the hope of its presentation next week has now been abandoned. The Daily News says the Government has met with serious difficulties in the Irish policy, and cannot find a successor to Baron Wilborne who has resigned the Lord Lieutenantship. The committee appointed to draft the Bill up to this time has settled virtually nothing except the preamble. Its deliberations, it is added, are held up on the issue of giving the veto to Ulster, and also in considering the past ministerial promises to Ulster.

The only way out of the difficulty is in the opinion of responsible labour members of the House of Commons, that the Government temporarily abandon both conscription and Home Rule. It is now improbable, adds the Daily News, that this course will be adopted in the near future.

Organized Opposition.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

DUBLIN, May 2.—The Southern Unionist Committee to which Sir Edward Carson has written a letter saying the question of Home Rule should not be reopened in the present condition of Ireland, has organized a large body of Unionists outside Ulster in opposition to the compromise accepted by Unionists at their convention. Their adherents include land-owners, professional men and several ex-judges, but few business men. They number about 11,000 and may present a serious obstacle to the settlement of the Home Rule question.

Appointment Approved.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 2.—(via Reuters)—The Daily Chronicle's Dublin correspondfent says there is an almost increditable improvement in the feeling in Ireland in consequence of the appointment of Edward Shortt, M.P. for Newcastle on Tyne, as Chief Secretary for Ireland. He is not merely a Home-Ruler, but voted with the Nationalists against conscription for Ireland.

FIRST TRAINS OVER NEW CAMPBELLFORD BRIDGE THIS WEEK

The first trains passed over the new high-level bridge, over the Trent, at Campbellford, on Monday, and the work of removign the old bridge and its obstruction to navigation is well under way. This announcement means that vessels may now sail from Peterborough to the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario, and that the entire eastern section of the Canal is now open to navigation.

GRAIN FOR QUAKER OATS.

Five or six grain vessels have arrived at Midland with cargoes that are being rapidly transhipped and sent east. One boat carried five hundred thousand tons of wheat that is being hurried east for transportation to Europe. There are also four hundred cars of oats and barley at Port McNicholl for the Quaker Oats Company. Part of this supply has already reached Peterborough. The result of the new sailings on the upper lakes has created heavy traffic through Peterborough on both the G. T. R. and C. P. R., and this briskness will be indefinitely maintained.

WILL NOT PROHIBIT EXPORTS TO ENEMY COUNTRIES AFTER WAR.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 2.—The interim report of the committee on trade after the war, of which Baron Balfour of Burleigh is chair, says: "Any general prohibition of exports to present enemy countries after the war would be impracticable and inexpedient."

Huns' Peace Offensive Opens

Germany Opens "Whispering" Campaign With Rumours Involving Likelihood of Peace Proffers From Pope and Others

AN OLD GAME

Special to The Examiner:

(By Robt. J. Bender.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Germany's expected "peace offensive" against the Allied morale seems to have begun.

The sudden and widespread launching of rumours, printed reports and whispered confidences reaching Washington and involving the likelihood of peace proffers from the Pope, Emperor Charles of Austria, King Alfonso of Spain, and even the Kaiser, is merely Germany's same old game to slacken the fighting spirit of her enemies.

PETERBORO' BICYCLE MERCHANTS WILL TAKE PART IN BIG EVENT

National Bicycle Week Will Be Observed From May 4th to 11th

The greatest national bicycle convocation since the days when the wheel was king of the road, will take place during the week of May 4th to 11th.

It will be a national re-union of all the wheeling interests of the country, and every town and city will join in paying homage once more to the virtues of the little "iron horse."

All the bicycle dealers in Peterborough will participate, including Mr. C. R. Banks, Mr. H. T. Millard and Mr. T. H. Ashby.

The forthcoming is the Second National Bicycle Week. Last year it was celebrated in hundreds of towns in the United States by street parades, country runs, races and other contests. There was keen inter-city rivalry for the U. C. T. D.'s national prize for the finest and most enthusiastic demonstration, Toledo, Ohio, won the honours. This year a number of cities are out to get Toledo's scalp.

Bicycle merchants in every centre where wheels are sold have since last year formed local organizations and each one of these is co-operating with the Cycle Directorate to put the Annual National Bicycle Week, No. 2, over with brass band and red fire.

The Trade Directorate estimates that more than a million out of the four million bicycle riders in the United States and Canada will take part in tthe week's festivities.

The Directorate has set aside an appropriation of $80,000 to be spent in conjunction with special appropriations by bicycle merchants in making tthe loudest noise in the interest of wheeling heard since the bicycle was introduced to the public half a century ago.

LAVAL STUDENTS CHEER FOR THE KING.

Rush Off to Barracks When Told Their Exams Are Considered Over.

MONTREAL, May 1.—In the course of an address to-day before the law students of Laval University, who have passed their third year written examinations, Sir Horace Archambault, Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals, told the young men that, as they were anxious to get away to the front, and that a goodly number had gone already, the faculty would regard the oral examinations as having been passed. Sir Horace reminded the boys that the eyes of the world were on French Canada, and he was sure that no one would have reason to blush for any of the men he saw before him.

Cheers for the King and for Sir Horace were given with a will as the students marched off to the barracks.

ARMY TO BE INCREASED

House Military Committee of the United States Now Dealing With the Matter

APPROPRIATION BILL

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Accompanied by the Provost Marshal, General Crowder and General March, Acting Chief of the Staff, Secretary of War Baker appeared before the House Military Committee to-day, and presented the administration's plans for a greatly increased army.

The Army Appropriation Bill has been held by committee for months, awaiting the return of Secretary Baker from France, that appropriations might be made to accord with whatever recommendations he wished to make. The existing recommendations contemplate an army of 1,700,000 men, and whether this should be raised to three million or four million rests with the administration.

TO-DAY'S WAR SUMMARY

Canadian Press:

NEW YORK, May 2.—The Associated Press war summary to-day says:

The Germans are displaying increased activity on the Somme battle front and around the Montdidier salient to Noyan, probably in preparation for a renewal of their offensive in this area. Checked last week by the stiff British and Franco-American resistance to their attempt to push further towards Amiens, the enemy forces are now engaged in trying out various portions of the southern front in the apparent endeavour to find a weak spot. One such effort, directed against positions held by the American troops has already been chronicled in news despatches. The enemy found an unyielding barrier here and retired.

Last night there was a similar thrust at the French in the Thennes region, southwest of Hangard. The artillery promptly broke up this drive.

Sufficient Sugar For Canning

Householders Need Not Be Alarmed At New Order.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, May 2.—Housewives need not be alarmed as to the effect of the Food Board's new order regarding sugar upon the preserving and canning of fruit during the coming season. While the order states that no householder shall have on hand at one time more than fifteen days' normal supply, that normal supply varies and is much larger in the canning season than in winter months. "It was for this purpose among other things," declared a member of the Board to-day, "of conserving sugar for the preserving season that the order was promulgated. Fifteen days' supply in winter months is quite a different thing from fifteen days' supply in summer during the canning season."

HOUSE EXPECTS TO PROROGUE ABOUT THE MIDDLE OF MAY

Canadian Press.

OTTAWA, May 2.—It was intimated in the Committee of Elections this morning that the Opposition had arranged to facilitate the business so that the Commons will likely prorogue about May 15th.

PRICE OF MATCHES WILL INCREASE.

The new taxation means that the price of matches will increase at least 100 per cent. The box of five hundred now selling for 6 cents will cost the consumer at least 11 cents, on the basis of present price and new tax. To this there must be added the cost of the extra work involved in affixing the stamps, etc., which means more handling than at present.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, MAY 2ND, 1918.

A SPLENDID WORK.

Peterborough is to have an opportunity next week to assist the great work overseas of the Y.M.C.A. Military Department. It is scarcely necessary at this late stage in the war to dwell upon the nature of the work done by the Red Triangle among our soldiers at the front—every Canadian knows just what is being accomplished. It should only require a mention of the need of financial assistance to cause the people of Peterborough to contribute the $10,000 which has been estimated as their share of the $2,225,000 which it is hoped to raise in the Dominion. The scope of the work is constantly increasing, and the outlay has been enormously increased by the fact that during the recent German advance the Y.M.C.A. lost goods valued at $500,000. No fewer than 80 huts placed close behind the British lines were engulfed in the offensive of the enemy. As a result the annual appeal for assistance is this year more urgent than even, and the response from Peterborough should be ready and adequate.

COMMITTEE PROTESTS.

The Agricultural Committee of the House of Commons has practically resolved itself, according to despatches from Ottawa, into a committee of protest against the new manpower regulations insofar as they fail to continue the granting of exemptions to farmers and farmers' sons between the ages of 20 and 22 inclusive. The members take the view that before submitting measures directly affecting the agricultural interests, the Cabinet should consult the Agricultural Committee.

Incidentally the latter committee has collected some interesting statistics in regard to the amount of labour needed on the farms, and also in regard to the employment of labour in non-essential industries. According to figures received by the committee Nova Scotia will require for farm operations about 4,000 men, Manitoba 10,000, Alberta 6,000 to 7,000, Saskatchewan from 15,000 to 35,000, British Columbia 12,000, and Ontario 12,500, while Quebec, New Brunswick and Prince Edward reported conditions to be serious.

The committee showed their appreciation of the need of the hour by passing a resolution to urge the Minister of Militia not to call out any farmers until all other men of the class affected had been put into uniform.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

For some time there has been an agitation on the part of the Great War Veterans to have the Canadian Patriotic Fund taken over and administered by the government. Their opinion in this regard has been shared by many other people, and from the remarks of Sir Herbert Ames, M.P., Secretary of the Fund, in the House on Tuesday, there is an indication that before long this step will be carried out.

"In all probability," Sir Herbert remarked in the course of the Budget debate, "when Parliament meets again next year, we shall have to ask the government to come to our aid and take over the care of the soldiers' dependents."

The secretary of the Patriotic Fund pointed out that this would almost necessarily follow because the government had encroached very largely on the revenue sources of the fund. The imposition of heavy business and income taxes made it impossible for people to give as largely as formerly to Patriotic and Red Cross Funds.

FREE IMPLEMENTS.

Although it had been strongly urged by Hon. C. A. Dunning, director of food production as a most desirable step in the campign for greater food results from Canada, the abolition of duties on farm implements has been side-stepped by the government. It is hard to understand why this simple means of encouraging the farmers of Canada should be ignored. As Mr. A. R. MacMaster, M.P., pointed out in the Budget debate, the government has already admitted the principle of free farm implements by removing the duty from farm tractors selling at $1,400. Farmers should be given every aid that will tend to increase the crops of the Dominion. There is no question of the seriousness of the food situation, the man power on the farms is to be further depleted by the drastic changes in the Military Service Act, and there does not seem any logical reason in view of these conditions, why the farmers of Canada should have to continue to pay heavy custom duties upon impleme ts which they require. The Opposition in the House has done well to strongly press this question.

CROTHERS RAPPED.

The report from Ottawa that Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour, is to be one of the Ministers to drop out of the cabinet in view of the expected shift in the personnel of the Ministry, will not cause any general regret in Canada. The Hon. Thomas has always been regarded as deadwood, and the recent developments in connection with the resignation of Mr. W. F. O'Connor, Cost of Living Commissioner, have not raised the St. Thomas man any higher in the estimation of the people.

Incidentally Mr. O'Connor in an address to the Toronto Press Club, has thrown some further light on the differences between himself and the Labour Minister. The ex-Commissioner frankly stated that he had come to the conclusion that he could no longer successfully carry on the work.

"On several occasions the Minister of Labour did directly require of me," said Mr. O'Connor "that I "should not publish this thing or that thing, and the answer I made to him was that I proposed to go right on publishing things that I should discover. Indeed, I gave him my answer in terms less formal than that."

The ex-Commissioner explained that "the machine which he had builded was absolutely impossible to operate with any interference from anybody outside whatever."

The public will be able to draw its own conclusions from Mr. O'Connor's references.

THE NEW BUDGET.

It is evident from an examination of the Dominion Budget that the Government has been anxious, as far as possible, to keep away from controversial subjects, and, as a result, the tariff changes are not extensive. The expected embargo on the importation of luxuries did not materialize, and a 10 per cent. tax on the selling price of automobiles, phonographs, phonograph records, jewellery and similar articles has been substituted.

The duties that will be most severely felt are those on tea and coffee, which have come to be regarded as necessities by most people. Almost every householder in Canada will feel the effect of these taxes, which comprise ten cents a pound on tea and five cents per pound on coffee and chicory, British preferential, and seven cents per pound, intermediate, and which will naturally fall heavily on the poorer people. It is expected that as a result of these increased taxes the consumers in Canada will contribute additional revenue of $4,000,000.

There is a heavy increase in the excise on tobacco, cigars and cigarettes manufactured from foreign leaf, and as a result the tobacco-user will find that the worship of my lady nicotine will prove a rather expensive luxury. The duties have been doubled in the case of tobacco and the total revenue from this source is expected to yield about $8,500,000. Every consumer will be affected by the new tax of one cent per hundred on matches which will realize revenue of $3,000,000.

The budget continues the business profits' tax of the past three years, with the alteration that it will now be applied to companies having an invested capital of $25,000 and upwards. The previous minimum was $50,000. It is proposed, in the case of the new companies, who will be affected by the change, to take 25 per cent. of the profits over ten per cent. of the invested capital.

Temperance drinks, which require malt, corn or rice in their manufacture will be taxed a custom duty of 40 per cent. instead of 25 per cent. Those who travel will find they have to pay more for sleeping car berths and for parlour car seats.

Many men, too, who were not affected by the income tax hitherto will find a difference since only single persons whose income is under $1,000, and married persons whose income is under $2000 will be exempt from the payment of the tax.

Canada is face to face with an expenditure of $980,000,000 in the current year. Of this gigantic amount $230,000,000 is required for ordinary purposes, $425,000,000 for war expenditures and $325,000,000, an advance to the British Government to finance Britain's purchases in Canada. The new taxes proposed will realize about $50,000,000, it is expected, while the total revenue is estimated at $270,000,000. To this may be added the unexpended portion of the Victory Loan—about $130,000,000—and advances from the Imperial Government of $300,000,000, leaving a deficit of $280,000,000, which must be raised by loans, in all probability, as intimated by Hon. A. K. MacLean, from the people of Canada. In touching upon this point the Acting Minister of Finance said: "If we are to continue our part in the war and maintain our overseas trade at its present dimensions the people of Canada must loan to the Government the money to accomplish that loan.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is said that the Kaiser was opposed to the present German drive on the west front. If the report is true, Wilhelm has more military genius than Hindenburg and Ludendorff, who are responsible for the offensive.

Paying attention to the business in hand the British forces in Mesopotamia are steadily cleaning up the Turks.

"If totally disabled—why the salary? If fit to hold the position—why the disability allowance?" That is the pertinent question a correspondent of the Toronto Star asks in referring to the case of Col. Labatt of the Board of Pension Commissioners.

Argentine's Most Interesting City.

Mendoza, which is some six hundred miles from Buenos Ayres, is one of the oldest cities in the Argentine, and certainly one of the most interesting. No situation could be more delightful. The city, which is built on a flat plain, lies directly at the foot of the Andes, and enjoys a superb view of its beautiful snow-covered heights. One Captain Castillo, says a writer in the March Wide World Magazine, founded the city as far back as 1559, but it was entirely destroyed by an earthquake in 1861. Ruins of some of its ancient churches still exist, and very pathetic to look at are these relics. Unfortunately for Mendoza, it is always subject to earthquakes, and these visitations, which generally come three or four times in the year, never fail to cause the inhabitants the greatest terror. Owing to its predisposition to the natural phenomena, the new city is built with houses of one story only. The earthquake which occurred on the Ash Wednesday of 1904 was particularly severe. The disaster happened after sunset, when the churches were filled with worshippers. Thirteen thousand persons perished, and out of the whole population only sixteen hundred escaped. The most horrible phase of the disaster was that whilst people were burning or suffocating under the ruins, a set of brigands plundered the place and robbed even the dying.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

THE FATAL BRUTALITY.

(Chicago News.)

Germany might have got away with the swag if it had not awakened civilization when it stepped on Belgium.

MORE ARISTOCRACY.

(Kansas City Star.)

The Kaiser isn't so many. The National Ancient Free and Accepted Councillors and Princesses of Joshua of the World, was lately incorporated at Little Rock, Ark.

ANOTHER ASSAULT ON GERMANY.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

Holland had better get her alibi ready, for it looks as though she were about to be accused of having started this war.

STILL RELYING ON FRIGHTFULNESS.

(Buffalo Express.)

It may well turn out that the next great German drive is to be directed against the neutral Dutch, for no other purpose than the hope of horrifying the world into surrendering to the authors of these crimes.

OBSERVE THESE NAMES.

(New York Sun.)

One John Dowling has been arrested on complaint of Miss Anna Zelick Miss Elizabeth Schmaltz and Joseph Volmut, charged with tearing a British flag from the Shakespeare statue in Central Park. It was Mr. Shakespeare who asked, "What's in a name?"

LOYAL IRISHMEN.

(Hamilton Herald.)

At a recent meeting of the Irish Fellowship Club in Chicago, two of the speakers said things which one would like to see printed in Irish newspapers at this time. Quin O'Brien said: "I am the son of a Fenian, a man who left Ireland because of persecution and famine; but if it were necessary to win this war that Ireland should be sunk in the sea alongside the Lusitania, then I would say, 'Sink Ireland.'" And James G. Condon said: "This message should go to the people of Ireland. 'Remember that America, your friend, is fighting for her liberty, and if you harass one of her allies you are not answering the true call of democracy, but are fighting to encumber the liberty and progress of the world.'"

THE KAISER'S CRIMES.

New York "Herald".

"What have I not done to preserve the world from these horrors" — The Kaiser.

The sum of what the Kaiser "has not done to preserve the world from these horrors" is exceeded only by what he has done to bring these horrors upon the world. The measure of his offending is beyond human reckoning. Upon him, and him alone rests the responsibility—first, for the war he willed; second, for the savage barabarism with which those who do his biding have waged it.

CONSIDER THE FACTS.

(London Advertiser.)

There is a natural hesitancy to criticize the government in an hour of crisis, when the demand for fighting men becomes stronger than ever before. At the same time the prospect of world famine, a famine in food twenty times more serious than the famine in coal last winter, is just around the corner. It is well to consider the facts rather than to be stampeded.

THE HOEANDSHOVEL LINE.

(Rochester Post-Express)

Join the Hoeandshovel line and help make it hot for the Hohenzollerns.

FEEDING OUR ALLIES.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

Millions of whitefish, herring and trout fry have been placed in Lake Erie this year by the beneficent Ontario government. United States border cities should feel duly grateful for mighty little of the product is likely to reach Canadian consumers.

SOUNDS FISHY.

(Montreal Herald.)

We do like the naivete of that Berlin despatch which describes a captured English captain of marines as having the Kaiser tell that the British navy did, and all it had hoped to do at Zeebrugge, and telling him how our times previously surprise attacks had failed because of the vigilance of the German out-post boats. How this story appeals to anybody who ever knew a British captain of marines!

GROW YOUR OWN.

(Kingston Whig.)

Every pound of potatoes, beans, peas, cabbage, parsnip and other vegetables grown in a home garden this year, will release exportable foods needed for the people of Europe. Help win the war by growing your own vegetables.

SENSELESS LAVISHNESS.

(Belleville Ontario)

There has been a great deal of senseless lavishness in Canadian life and people have been taking expensive ways because they were too thoughtless or perhaps too lay to order their lives systematically. War is likely to pinch sense into us along a good many lines. There is plenty of room for it in our attitude toward retail purchasing and toward public utilities.

JUST LIKE ADAM.

(Kingston Standard.)

Always put the blame on the woman. Adam did. Now the Austrian Emperor has ordered his mother-in-law out of the house for writing letters which he wrote!

A SAD TRAGEDY.

It often happens—your sore corn is stepped on. Why not use "Putnam's Corn Extractor." It cures in one day. Absolutely no pain with "Putnam's." Use no other. 25c at all dealers.

LAKEFIELD PERSONALS

LAKEFIELD, May 2.—Mr. Victor Shewen of Mt. Julian was in the Village to-day.

Mr. W. Thompson and Miss Bessie Thompson of Mt. Julian motored to Lakefield to-day with their new Chevrolet car.

Mr. Theodore Crawford is spending a few days in Toronto, where he was again called by the illness of his mother.

Miss Lottie Taylor left this morning for Toronto.

Mr. W. Sherin and Miss Dorothy Sherin have returned home after a pleasant visit in Toronto.

Miss McCauley of Peterborough was in the village to-day.

Miss Coughlin of Peterborough spent Wednesday in the Village.

Master Kenneth and Rackham Hamilton of the "Grove" school left for Peterborough on Wednesday to visit their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Graham motored to Mr. Julian on Tuesday, and spent a couple of hours at Viamede. They report everything looking well.

Mr. Geo. Chilcote is visiting at Mr. R. H. Alford's home.

Mr. Fred Moon has returned from Toronto, where he has been spending the past three weeks.

Miss Smith has returned from Peterborough, where she spent the winter months.

The many friends of Miss E. Hunter regret her serious illness. Miss Hunter is at present at the home of her brother, Mr. Sidney Hunter.

Sunday School Lesson Questions

May 5, 1918.

Jesus sets new standards of living. (May be used with temperance application.) Mark 10:1-31.

Golden Text: Seek ye first his kingdom and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. Matt. 6:33.

1. Verses 1-12. Under modern conditions, why would you say or not, that Jesus would be in favor of a divorce if it could be shown that the parties were not married in heaven, i.e., were not one flesh, but the contrary?

2. Verses 13-16. Why did the disciples rebuke those who brought their children to Jesus?

3. What is the gravity of the offence not to bring the children to Jesus?

4. Verses 13-16. Why are children just as able to love Jesus as adults?

5. What can we do more than we are doing to bring the children to Jesus?

6. Verse 17. What is Jesus' answer to-day to those who want to be saved?

7. Verse 18. How do you explain Jesus' answer to this question; did he mean that he was not good?

8. Verse 18. Would you say or not and why that Jesus as a man was as good as God; and did he claim to be?

9. Verse 19. What reason is there to believe that Jesus meant that a man can be saved by good works?

10. Verse 20. If it were possible for a man to keep all of God's commandments, and he did so, why should he need a Saviour?

11. Verses 21, 22. Why should we believe or not that God loves all those who are morally good, with the love of approbation, whether or not they have been born again?

12. Why did Jesus require this young man to sell all his possessions?

13. Why is it that so many rich men who are such good judges of value, barter their eternal happiness for earthly riches? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing my members of the club.)

14. Verse 23. Why is it any harder for a rich man to be saved than a poor man?

15. Verse 24. Where do you draw the line between a "rich man," and an unrighteous dependence upon money?

16. Verses 25-27. Why is it impossible for a rich man to be saved as a rich man?

17. What is the general effect of rich church members upon the spirituality of the church?

18. Verse 28. What is implied to-day in saying we have left all to follow Jesus?

19. Verse 28. Why is it impossible for any person to be saved without giving up everything to God?

20. Verses 29, 30. What, according to Jesus, are the earthly rewards of consecrating all we have to God?

21. Take a hundred names alphabetically from the directory of true Christian men, and a hundred names of worldly men, and say which lot are the better off in this world's goods?

22. Verse 31. What class of men will be the first in heaven?

Lesson for Sunday, May 12. Jesus faces the Cross. Mark 10:32-52.

Economy Of Electric Ranges Indicated By Mr. H. O. Fisk In Address To Trades Council

Initial Cost An Obstacle But Advantages for Household Purposes Are Sounded By Citizens Who Have Installed Them.

DISCUSSED ELECTRIC TOPICS

The advantages of cooking by electricity, was one of the topics discussed by Mr. H. O. Fisk, manager of the Utilities Commission, in an address on "Electric Heating" at last night's meeting of the Trades and Labour Council. There are several dozen electric stoves now in use in Peterborough, and apart from their initial cost they are proving decidedly economical and altogether satisfactory. An electric "cooker" costs $75, and this sum is increased to $125 or $150 by the time the stove is completely installed. After this initial expenditure it begins to save money. It is cheaper to operate than a gas range, Mr. Fisk said; is odorless, and is absolutely safe. It costs the same as gas at 60c a thousand feet, and the price of gas to local consumers is $1.40. Hence the cost of operating an electric range is more than twice as cheap as a gas range. A further economy is obtained in the retention of heat in the oven, after the current has been turned off. The oven is enclosed in non-conducting material which prevents the heat from escaping. Mr. Fisk said that heat remains in the oven of an electric range for more than an hour after the power has been cut off. For example, the temperature in the oven may be raised to 400 or 350 degrees, leaving the current on for about twenty minutes. It is then shut off, but the cooking continues for another hour or an hour and one-half, by reason of the fact that practically none of the heat generated had escaped. By this means, one woman had first cooked a roast of pork, then baked a pie, and finally heated a pan of water for dish washing.

SLOWER FOR BOILING.

Mr. Fisk stated that while a gas flame would more quickly boil water, for general cooking purposes electricity is proving the more economical. There are 2,000 of these ranges in use in London, Ont., but no effort has been made to push their sale here on account of unsettled conditions. The Commission is content to meet the present demand. There is more than sufficient power available, and the Government has in view a direct transmission line to Peterboro from Healey's Falls. The city's substation has not been built, the cost of materials is extremely high, and the general conditions do not encourage the activity in electric heating that would otherwise be under way.

LIGHTING CHARGES.

Replying to a question from a member of the Council, Mr. Fisk explained that the floor space rates in the charge for electric lighting was practically a flat rate. It was fixed by the Hydro-Electric Commission. To erect or purchase generating plants the Government had to issue bonds, likewise the municipality, and the interest on them had to be met. Hence, a fixed charge was necessary. Meters, transformers and other installation equipment all swelled the cost. Mr. Fisk pointed out that a householder might close up his house for the summer, or any part of the year, and no revenue would be forthcoming during that time were it not for the floor charge. This was comparatively cheap. The minimum was 30 cents a month and the maximum 90 cents.

ELECTRIC HEATERS.

Another question dealt with electric heaters, which are comparatively common in homes. A member had heard of a home-made heater, made of iron wire, that cost only seventy-five cents. Mr. Fisk doubted both its cost and value. The best resistance wire is an alloy of nickel and chromium and costs two dollars a pound. The smaller sizes would be dearer. This was the material used in the best heaters.

The major part of Mr. Fisk's address dealt with the commercial possibilities of heating by electricity. This question was discussed at a meeting of the Engineers' Club a short time ago, when it was stated, as Mr. Fisk pointed out last night, that electric heating is impracticable at the present time, except in sections where there may be a big surplus of power. On the basis of an experiment in Seattle, it would require 3,600,000 horse power to heat Toronto, and that is twenty-five times the total contracted for by the Commission at Niagara. In Peterboro last winter electric heaters were used as an auxiliary to furnaces. The temperature of a house, for example, would be allowed to drop to about 50 degrees, and an electric heater would be used in one room to make it comfortable. Mr. Fisk conclusively showed that coal is the cheapest fuel for the present, but he essayed the prediction that the water powers of Ontario and Quebec would some day be more valuable than gold mines. These provinces were not supplied with natural fuels, except wood, which is fast disappearing, but they seem to have been providentially supplied with tremendous water power.

"It is estimated that there are 18,000,000 horse power in this country," Mr. Fisk stated, "and there are not more than 2,000,000 h.p. now developed."

THE COUNTY COUNCIL WILL GRANT ONE MILL TO RED TRIANGLE FUND

Will Meet in June to Decide How Money is to be Raised Business Transacted by the Council.

Following are the minutes of the meeting of the County Council called on Tuesay of this week by Warden Anderson, for various reasons:

The Warden, Mr. Anderson, in the chair.

On motion of Messrs. Clark and Squire, the minutes of the previous meeting were read.

On motion of Messrs. Walsh and Webster, the minutes just read were approved.

On motion of Messrs. Squire and Nichols, the account of R. Hicks was passed.

On motion the matter of Doust account be left in the hands of Messrs. Brown, Clerk and Solicitor.

The Warden extended a cordial welcome to Mr. Moore, the new Reeve from Lakefield.

The Mayor, Mr. Duncan, drew the attention of the County Council to the visit of the Governor-General, next Monday, May 9th, and asked consideration of participating, particularly in defraying the expense.

He extended an invitation to the Warden and members of the County Cuncil, with their wives, to the dinner to be given in honour of the Governor-General.

REGARDING A Y.M.C.A. GRANT

Capt. Carey addressed the Council regarding a grant to the Y.M.C.A., to assist in their work at the front, soliciting not from a standpoint of Y. M. C. A., but for the boys at the front.

Other gentlemen addressed the Council briefly.

Mved by Mr. Eason, seconded by Mr. Matheson, that the matter be referred to the June session with regard to whether the amount be raised by levy or by issue of debentures and that the amount does not exceed one mill on the dollar.—Carried.

MILITARY SERVICE.

On motion of Messrs. Squire and Walsh this Council authorized the Clerk to appeal to the Premier, the Minister of Militia, and the Minister of Agriculture to reconsider cancellation of exemptions where agricultural production would be materially affected.

On motion of Messrs. Nichols and Walsh the by-law to authorize the brrowing of $15,000.00 by debenture issue was read a first time.

On motion of Messrs. Brown and Webster the Council went into Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the by-law, with Mr. Eason in the chair.

Committee rose, Chairman reported by-law read in Committee of the Whole without amendment.

On motion of Messrs. Bell and Middleton the by-law was read a third time and was finally passed, duly signed and stamped, and numbered 1114.

On motion of Messrs. Ingram and Matheson, the Clerk was authrized to have the by-law registered and the registration published the statutory number of times in the Havelock Standard.

Moved by Mr. Webster, seconded by Mr. Eason, that the Clerk advertize for tenders for debentures in the local papers.—Carried.

On motion of Messrs. Squire and McIntosh the matter of defraying the expense of entertaining the Governor-General was left in the hands of Messrs. Warden, Eason and Nichols.

On motion of Messrs. Walsh and Brown, the matter of Pigeon Creek Bridge was left in the hands of Messrs. Holland and Nichls.

On motion, the Council adjourned.

E. M. ELLIOTT,
County Clerk.

TEAS AND COFFEES WILL BE RAISED RIGHT AWAY

Teas and coffees will take another jump. In the case of teas, the consumer may expect to have to pay 10 cents per pound more than at present. That grade of Salada which is now selling at 55 cents is expected to be advanced the amount of the tax, and in future sell at 65 cents, with corresponding increases in other grades and brands.

The increase in the cost of coffees will amount to 6 3-4 cents. This means that one grade of Seal brand, now retailing at 45 cents, will likely be raised to 51 3-4c, or more.

Wholesalers dealing in teas and coffees have had little to say regarding the new taxation. "It simply means that the consumer will have to pay more," said one, "We certainly can't assume the increase. Our margin now is small. Consequently, we will have to pass it along the line, and the consumer will ultimately have to pay the piper."

MUSIC AS RECREATION

Recreation is essential for the health and well-being of the family, and music is essential for a recreation that is totally relaxing and instructive.

Are you doing without music in the home because no one plays? In these days of marvelous inventions, that is no excuse for the lack of music.

There are people who have been wise enough to purchase player-pianos, organs and phonographs, slightly used, therefore cheaper, by securing them through Heintzman Hall, Peterborough, Royal Bank Buildings, Hunter Street.—B. H. Britton, Manager. 'Phone 256.

JUDGE HUYCKE DOES NOT EXCUSE MEN WHO MARRIED SINCE THE CONSCRIPTION ACT

A Number of Men Were Refused Exemption This Morning—List of Cases Heard.

"B" MEN CALLED

The appeal tribunal for the first detachment of B category men opened this morning before His Honour Judge Huycke and Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, public representative. The men unfit for active service are on the list for labour battalions, stretcher bearers and trench diggers.

The recent order cancelling exemption to to men of 20-21 and 22 does not cover the B men.

Opposed to Recent Marriages.

The Judge expressed himself strongly opposed to consideration in the case of a wife secured after the men had been exempted, and sending little boys of 20 years in their places.

Melville McWilliams, Bridgenorth, aged 24, applied for exemption on the grounds of medical unfitness and his occupation (farmer.) He works his farm of 120 acres alone with his father, and rents an adjoining farm, which they work together. Judgment reserved to be considered.

Victor J. Scobell, aged 21, who drives a delivery waggon for Douros & Gettas, asked for exemption on the grounds of being his mothers main support. He has a brother of 19 years of age who also works. Has slight heart trouble. Judgment reserved, with probability he will have to go.

Garfield Anderson, aged 24, works for Matthews-Blackwell Company. He has chronic rheumatism and a delicate family. Anderson will probably have to go.

Wallace G Harris aged 20, who works at the C.G.E., sought exemption on domestic grounds. He is practically the sole support of his mother. Harris complained that his medical examination had been prejudiced and he was not given a fair show. He will probably be sent, but will get another medical examination.

Four Soldier Brothers.

Burke R. Eyres, aged 26, applied for exemption on account of throat trouble. Eyres has four brothers in khaki. He works for Joe Fontaine as a motor mechanic. Burke will receive special consideration on account of the record his family has made.

Willing to Go.

James Woodcock, Peterborough, aged 22, appealed on account of a fractured ankle. He had previously enlisted with the 247th Battalion and was cheerfully willing to go if the doctors will let him.

Business as Usual

Wm. F Moule, a photographer, sought exemption on business grounds. "You evidently believe in business as usual," said the Judge. He will have a special re-examination on account of his ankle.

Another Willing.

Albert H. Mander, aged 27, works on munitions. He had no grounds for exemption and was willing to go.

To Be Examined.

George Gordon, not the lawyer, as Mr. Hatton explained, may have another examination, which will decide whether or not he is fit to do a B man's work.

Herbert Hill, aged 22, applied on domestic grounds fo exemption. He has a brother with the 80th Battalion and is partial support of his mother. Has a weak lung and nerves. He will be considered.

Appeal Refused.

Wm. Downer, aged 20, who works for Matthews-Blackwell, sought exemption to continue his present work. Exemption refused.

John Munro has three brothers enlisted, one of whom went voluntarily. He has a father of 65 years, who, unlike the farmers' fathers of a previous sitting of the court is able to work. He sought exemption on the grounds of being the only son left. The case will be considered, the chief reason of consideration being the three brothers in khaki.

"Not Kicking."

Donald Post, Campbellford, a munition worker of 30 years of age, while not seeking exemption, had domestic obligations. "I'm not kicking about going if my family is comfortable," he said. He has lost an eye. Post had previously volunteered.

Sent in Default.

Seven who failed to report will probably be called and their claims disallowed by default.

MILLBROOK ODDFELLOWS ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

MILLBROOK, May 1.—Rev. W. H. Higgs preached a very special and helpful sermon to the Oddfellows on Sunday evening in Millbrook Methodist Church. There was a large number of the brethren present. The music by the choir was appropriate and well rendered.

On the return of the Oddfellows to their hall a hearty and unanimous vote of thanks was given Rev. Bro. Higgs for his excellent discourse, and to the Choir for their special music.

Building Bigger Business

Building up a Business and watching it grow and develop is an absorbing occupation. The Milk, Cream Butter and Ice Cream Business, of the late Peterboro Creamery Co., is a notable example.

Like many other businesses, some departments grow faster than others. For instance:—The Retail Milk Distribution grew so rapidly that old methods have been replaced by new. And still it grew, and is still growing. It has now become an established business—and it is up to us to see that "what we have we'll hold."

Safe Milk Distribution For Peterboro

has been the result of years of strenuous watchfulness and labour.

Safeguarding the milk bottle has been and will continue to be our mission. To produce Milk and Cream and supply it to the customer as pure and sanitary as modern scientific experience has made it possible, has been, and will continue to be our hobby.

Our Milk is Clarified and Pasteurized before bottling

Clarified—Means Clean

Pasteurized—Means Pure

Bottled by modern and sanitary fillers, so that at no time is the milk touched by the human hands from the time of the milking of the cows until the bottle is delivered to the customer

Remember—Clarified First—then Pasteurized clean to the last drop, and costs no more than others. Insure your milk supply by placing your order for our Milk To-Day.

NOTHING LIKE PHOSPHATE TO INCREASE STRENGTH, VIGOR AND NERVE FORCE

ORDINARY BITRO-PHOSPHATE WILL DOUBLE THE STRENGTH OF WEAK DELICATE, NERVOUS PEOPLE IN TWO WEEKS' TIME IN MANY INSTANCES.

Weak nerves quickly reduce the strong and robust to an extremely pitiable condition and rob men and women of all the joys of life. Slowly and stealthily the health is destroyed, the poor sufferer only realizing the magnitude of his ailment when faulty memory, sleepleseness, indecision, lack of energy or other unmistakable symptoms indicate weak nerves. Then it is a serious and dangerous mistake to resort to the use of so called tonics, alcoholic or drug stimulants.

Weak and exhausted nerves need food and nourishment—not stimulants that lash them into temporary activity. The food and nourishment advised by present day physicians is just one 5-grain tablet of pure bitro-phosphate taken during or immediately after each meal. Simple advice, but its soundness has been proven over and over again.

Moreover the genuine standard bitro-phosphate is inexpensive and is sold by McDermid & Jury and most all good druggists under a binding guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

WANTED FOR NON-SUPPORT.

Frank Sullivan, of Toronto, Arrested Here Last Night.

Wanted in Toronto for non-support, Frank Sullivan was arrested by Sergt. Kidd and P. C. Deannard last night about 7.30 o'clock. Chief Thompson received a telephone message at 10.30 a.m., asking him to watch for Sullivan, who was driving an automobile. He was leisurely motoring around town when the police apprehended him.

PETERBOROUGH'S MOTOR DRIVEN CHEMICAL ENGINE.

According to all reports, the purchase of the motor driven combination chemical engine and hose wagon, at a cost of eight thousand dollars, has been more than justified. The new truck, which has been in use for over a month now, has responded to many calls and has rendered valuable service in a number of cases. The speed with which it is possible to reach the scene of the fire places the truck in a class by itself, and it is only a matter of time until the old grey "dobbins" at the Fire Hall will be relegated to the boneyard.

PETERBORO' COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE CADETS INSPECTED YESTERDAY

Lieut.-Col. Gillespie Was the Inspecting Officer — Corps Has Been Depleted — Number One Platoon Won the Silver Cup.

INSPECTOR'S REMARKS

The Collegiate Cadets, numbering about ninety-five, were inspected yesterday at 3 o'clock by Lieut. Col. Gillespie. The Battalion has been reduced to one Company, owing to the absence of a number of boys who are doing their "bit" on the farms. The different platoons, signallers and band went through the drill surprisingly well, considering that inspection was fifteen days earlier than last year. First, the Company drill was carried out under Captain Amess Conway, then each individual platoon was put through the drill by its lieutenant. Last came the extended order drill, which was also carried out very well.

Colonel Gillespie, in his remarks, said that the drill was very fair considering the stress of conditions. He thought that the officers might be more efficient, although they had the making of splendid officers in them.

COMPULSORY.

"The Militia Council is seriously considering making Cadet inspections compulsory throughout the Dominion. It may not come for six months, but it certainly will come sooner or later. I have been asked to present a Cup to the smartest and best drilled platoon, and I think on the whole that No. 1 Platoon has earned it," said Colonel Gillespie.

Colonel Gillespie then presented the Cup to Captain Amess Conway.

LIEUT. COL. J. MILLS.

Colonel Mills sincerely hoped that the Militia Council would make Cadet drill compulsory in Canada.

"You will be able to walk perfectly straight, look up and feel much better. In your later days you will be thankful that you took the course."

Colonel Mills expects uniforms will be given to the Corps, which will smarten them up considerably. He congratulated Captain Jamieson, the instructor, on the showing of the Corps.

THE OFFICERS.

The officers, who have also been much reduced in number by the "Soldiers of the Soil" movement, are as follows:

Colonel Douglas Canniff, O.C.

Captain Amess Conway, Company Commander.

Lieutenant A. Catchpole, Quartermaster.

Lieutenant S. Braund—Bandmaster.

Lieutenant V. Fiske—Musketry Instructor.

Sergeant-Major A. Stevenson—Acting Adjutant.

Sergeant G. Yeaman—Quarter-master-Sergeant.

Sergeant C. Elliott, Commander of Signallers.

Lieutenant Leon Webb—First Platoon.

Lieutenant M. Cottingham, Second Platoon.

Lieutenant E. Meredith, Third Platoon.

Lieutenant D. Fitzgerald, Fourth Platoon.

INSPECTED PUBLIC SCHOOL CADETS.

Colonel Gillespie inspected the South Central Cadet Corps at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and Central School Corps at 10.30 a.m. He commented on the splendid showing of these corps, even in the face of opposition they have in some quarters.

GAINS MANY HONOURS.

The Collegiate Corps has an honour roll of 295 names, many of them having made the supreme sacrifice. Many Distinguished Service Orders, Military Crosses, Military Medals and Distinguished Conduct Medals have been won by members of this honour roll. And some have even been mentioned in despatches by the Commander-in-Chief, so valuable were their services.

A REPORT ON FARM CONDITIONS

Spring Seeding is Well Under Way —Heavy Horses in Good Demand

The following is a summary of reports made by district representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

About half the acreage of fall wheat is reported to be more or less injured since the crop entered the winter chiefly by unfavourable fall and late winter weather. A portion of the damaged fields will be cultivated to other grains, chiefly spring wheat or barley.

Clover has come through much better than the wheat, and although patchy in spots is recovering wonderfully. Grasses generally are now getting a favourable start.

Spring seeding is being actively prosecuted, the land being in unusually good tilth, and a first-class seed bed being assured in most cases. In some districts nearly all the cereals are in; in others about one-third of the spring seeding has been done. Growth has been a little slow as the wheather has not been very warm but the general prospects for spring crops are most encouraging. There will be an increase in the acreages of spring wheat and also of oats, barley and sugar beets. A marked revival in the growth of flax is also taking place.

Heavy horses are in good demand with prices advancing.

Fat Cattle Coming In.

Fat cattle are now coming on the market in good numbers, but many are being held for May sales. Prices rule around 12c. and 13c. a lb., but one Brant farmer with a choice lot of steers last week refused 15c. a lb.

Sheep are being sold for breeding purposes at $36 and $37 each.

Hogs are increasing in numbers, although the scarcity of corn, grain and mill feeds is interfering with their proper turning off, or, as the Northumberland representative tersely puts it, "The scarcity of feed is a limiting factor in hog production." Young pigs are in great demand. Bacon hogs are selling at from $19 to $21.50 per cwt.

The flow of milk is about normal. Raising the set price of cheese from 21 3-4c. to 23c. a lb. has given much encouragement to patrons and managers, and some factories that had to close last season owing to being outbid in the price of milk by condenseries will re-open.

While grain is scarce, and all kinds of mill feed very dear and hard to procure, there is plenty of the more bulky fodders such as hay, straw and roots, although ensilage was never lower in the silo and never better appreciated. In most cases live stock will be carried nicely over to the grass.

Farm labour conditions threaten to be more acute owing to the new draft regulations of the Military Service Act. Some claim that this is affecting the extent of spring seeding and general cultivation. The demand for experienced men is very strong. The Norfolk representative reports: "Heavy demand for help of all kinds—men, High school boys and women. Several girls' camps are being established in the County of Waterford, St. Williams, Victoria and Simcoe. During the week five or six young women have been individually placed on mixed farms and fruit farms."

"WORTH IT'S WEIGHT IN GOLD," SHE SAYS

"I Never Saw Such a Change as Tanlac Has Made in My Daughter" Says Mrs. Smithson

"I believe every bottle of Tanlac is worth its weight in gold," said Mrs. Ellen Smithson, "but, during the past seven months her condition became so serious that I almost lost hopes of her ever getting well. She suffered terribly from indigestion, complained of a dull, heavy feeling in the pit of the stomach and sometimes she would almost double over with pain. She was too weak to do her housework and I would have to go in and help her out every day. The least little exertion or work of any kind would completely exhaust her and she hardly had any colour at all. Her nerves were in such a shattered condition that she was very irritable and easily upset, and would get up in the mornings complaining of feeling all tired out. She also suffered terribly with headaches, which at times were so bad I was actually afraid she would go out of her mind.

"Now, this is just the condition she was in before she began taking Tanlac and I had worried over her until I was almost sick myself. She was in such bad health that my neighbours were constantly asking me about her and I always had to give them a discouraging answer. But now when they ask me how she's getting on I tell them fine, for I have never in all my life seen such a wonderful change in anybody. She now has the colour of health in her cheeks, she looks better and says she feels better than she has in years. She hasn't had a touch of indigestion or pain in her stomach since she began taking Tanlac. All nervousness and headaches have left her and she gets up in the mornings feeling fine, and her strength has increased until she can do all her housework, never complains of feeling tired and is always bright and cheerful. We are all simply overjoyed to see her at last enjoying life and health, and as there are so many people needing just such a medicine as Tanlac I feel it my duty to tell everybody about it. I certainly do believe Tanlac is the best medicine in the world, and will take pleasure in telling anybody who cares to call on me just what I think of it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gilert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.

Mrs. (Dr.) Holcroft is also an attendant at the annual W. A. meeting which is being held in Toronto this week. While there she will be the guest of Mrs. R. A. William.

Pte. Bruce Copp, of the Kingston Convalescent Hospital, is in town the guest of his mother, Mrs. A. Copp. He expects to receive his discharge this week.

A number of young men from town have been notified to report at Kingston next Saturday to go into military training. Mr. E. J. Laing, of the Bank of Toronto staff here, is one of the number to have passed in Class A. Mrs. Laing and baby, Dorothea, will go to Colborne to her home to remain. Their many friends here regret very much their departure, and hope that Mr. Laing will come back safely from overseas.

Mr. R. F. Covert motored to Warkworth on Sunday last.

Lieut. B. Quinn, of Ottawa, spent the week-end in town with Mrs. Quinn and baby, Dorothy.

Mrs. Robt. Duke and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Cecil Duke and Children, of Banff, Manitoba, are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Waller.

Pte. Quinn, of Kingston, spent the week-end in town the guest of Mr. and S. M. McGill.

Mrs. Rodgers, of Madoc, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Masters.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Cross, of Trenton, were the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Barlow, last week.

POSTMASTER AT ENNISMORE WILL ASK FOR INCREASE

Work of the Rural Postmaster Has Increased Since the War.

Mr. Richard Killen, postmaster at Ennismore, together with a number of Ontario rural postmasters, are co-operating in a united effort to secure more adequate compensation for their services to the Government. A 30 per cent. increase is being asked for. At present Mr. Killen, who operates a store at Ennismore, receives an annual rental of fifteen dollars for the use of his store as a post office, and a quarterly remuneration of from thirty to forty dollars. Mail is received from 7.30 in the morning until 10 o'clock at night. The work of conducting the post office at Ennismore has increased since the war, also the departmental reports which have to be made each month. So far Mr. Killen has received no extra remuneration for the extra work imposed on his office. The movement for increased remuneration for rural postmasters is being fostered by the Canadian Postmasters' Association.

DR. LOUIS S. CHAFER WAS BANQUETTED

About Forty Business Men of the City Met Together at Noon To-day.

About forty of the business and professional men of the city met to-day at an informal luncheon at noon to meet Dr. Louis S. Chafer, who is addressing at a series of meetings in St. Paul's Church.

Dr. Chafer, who was introduced by Mr. Wm. Madill after luncheon, gave a straight, simple talk on the one essential quality every man should settle — salvation. Reference was made to the conditions brought about by the world war and the feeling existing of apprehension that is among many about what is coming and what the future may have in store.

A Delusion.

One point emphasized by Mr. Chafer was that many men are trusting in their good moral life or in their religious activities to win favor from God. A hope based on such a foundation will prove a delusion as a man's standing is determined first by his belief. We are told to believe in Christ first before our works have any value.

Dr. Chafer's address was very much appreciated by all who were fortunate enough to hear.

LONDON, May 2.—Claiming that the Ukranian Government cannot maintain law and order throughout that Province, the Germans have arrested and imprisoned several members, including the Minister of War.

BRITISH WHEAT IMPORTS MUST BE INCREASED.

Ottawa, April 29. — Wheat imports are not arriving in the United Kingdom in quantities sufficient to meet the weekly requirements. Such is the grave report from the British Ministry of Food in its latest cable to the Canadian Food Board, dealing with the food situation.

Lord Rhondda adds: "Every effort that can be exerted in Canada to increase shipments of wheat and meat will be invaluable."

The message reads: "Bacon is coming forward well, but all will be needed to make up the deficiency of meat supplies which are scarcely likely to meet the requirements, even on the restricted basis of existing compulsory meat rations.

"Cheese would also be welcomed, and it is hoped that arrangements will shortly be concluded whereby purchases of cheese can be effected.

"Wheat imports are not arriving in sufficient quantities to meet our weekly requirements. Every effort that can be exerted in Canada to increase shipments of wheat and meat will be invaluable.

"Arrangements have now been completed to extend compulsory rationing of butter, lard and margarine to the United Kingdom on the same uniform system as is now in force for all kinds of meat, bacon and ham, poultry and sugar, with provision for the rationing of bread, tea, cheese or other commodities, if necessity compels."

SPECIAL NOTICE
TO MY CUSTOMERS.

(1) By Dominion Government Act, all merchants in Canada handling food stuffs must BUY a license from the Food Controller of Canada.

(2) Both Merchant and Customer are warned against waste of any kind, especially of food, which makes them liable to a heavy fine and imprisonment if proven against them.

(3) In an endeavour to assist in greater economy, commencing May 1st—the grocers of Peterborough, with the Food Board's approval, are discontinuing the Credit System. In future our terms are cash when purchased, or C.O.D.

(4) This regulation is made in order to force the public to economize in the buying and using of food, and insofar as that will do it, help to win this war for the good of the whole world.

(5) Any merchant's license may be cancelled at any time if they do not meet the Food Board's requirements, which would at once put that store out of business.

(6) I would ask all my customers who run an account at my store to see me personally, and allow me to explain the benefits to them of cash buying, and how we propose to assist them in making the change from credit to the cash system.

NOTICE

We wish to advise our customers, that owing to the increased cost of handling ice, we are compelled to advance our rates, to meet this unavoidable expense.

As the Cash System has become the popular method of doing business, we intend to operate more closely along those lines, and wish to advise all those who have not settled their accounts, to do so at once, otherwise we will feel justified in taking the necessary steps to collect.

Naval Service Department Calls For Tenders on Champagne, Claret and Liquor Glasses

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, May 2.—The fact that the Naval Service Department is calling for tenders for a variety of crockery and glassware, including champagne, claret and liquor glasses, etc., is declared here not to portend the shifting of the wet areas from land to the high seas. Not only is Canada to all intents and purposes try, but the Canadian navy is dry also. Questioned this morning concerning certain comments which have been made in connection with the tenders, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne declared that it was the first that he had hear ' about the matter. He would, however, he said, make it his business to inquire into the matter.

"We have no control over the Imperial navy," said Mr. Ballantyne, "and liquor is not banned in the Imperial navy, but no intoxicating beverages are served on Canadian ships. You will understand that our requisitions of glassware, etc. is not only for our own, but for British ships which put into our harbours. The annual demand covers a large fleet.

Bell Telephone Conference Opened This Morning

A Number of District Officials Are in the City

The conference of the managers of Bell Telephone offices in the Eastern district, with headquarters in Peterborough, opened this morning in Mr. W. Doan's office. Officials in attendance from the head office are W. H. Black, secretary, P. A. MacFarlane, company engineer, R. W. Logan, general contract agent, A. T. Smith, division superintendent, and T. H. Ashley special representative of the company.

The Discussion.

This morning's session of the conference was spent in a discussion of commercial routine. In the afternoon an address was given and discussion held on the pension and benefit scheme which was put into effect on July 1 last.

KING EDWARD SCHOOL ENTERED.

The Offenders Will Be Prosecuted If Caught.

Some three weeks ago the Police Department was notified that the King Edward School was being repeatedly entered by some unknown person or persons, and the police undertook to look into the matter. Since that report was made to the police the school has been entered on five different occasions. This is not intended to be a reflection on the efficiency of the police force, but it is intended to serve as a warming to the guilty parties who, if caught, will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. A night or two ago some one drove an automobile around the school grounds.

NERVE OF BOBBIES

Police Display Thoroughness That Astonishes Colonials.

London of Today a Marvel, Forming One of the Most Important War Centers of Entire World.

A Rhodesian who has arrived in England to "join up," after service in the three campaigns undertaken by the South Africans, assures me of his astonishment at the tact and thoroughness exhibited in the daily work of military police, says a writer in Westminster Gazette. The London of today is, indeed, a never-ending marvel to the colonial soldier. It forms one of the most important military centers of the world. It is inhabited by a floating population drawn from one of the most cosmopolitan armies in history—an army, too, that is in no way remarkable for the gentleness of its fighting methods when the game's afoot. Yet, as my South African friend phrased it, "the whole mob goes about on its business and its pleasures like a small flock of contented sheep with a couple of well-trained dogs behind them."

Things were not always managed that way in the early days of the forces raised by the dominions in the first year of war. My informant illustrates the contrast with an incident that came under his notice while his regiment lay intrenched at Swakopmund during the "German Southwest" campaign. One morning the men of the Union advanced posts saw approaching them from the desert three living skeletons, who staggered like drunken men as they groped their way blindly through the furnace of sand. A comrade lay helpless a mile or so behind, too far gone to walk. He was brought in later, unconscious, but still alive. The four heroes—captives in the hands of the Hun—had preferred the chances of death to the grim certainty of a cruel and galling captivity, and had managed to escape from their jailers under cover of darkness. Practically without food and, for the most part, without water, they had traveled some hundreds of miles—from one end of the vast territory to the other. Almost naked, the ice-cold winds of night had crippled them, hunger had robbed them of their strength, and thirst had all but driven them to madness. They had escaped "by the skin of their teeth" from both vengeful Hun and prowling lion. And an officious military policeman greeted them on their arrival in the British lines with the order that they were not to loiter in the streets of the town!

"Up Again!"

When we were little shavers, toddling about the house and went down on the floor or the ground because our feet could not keep up with our ambition to run and "get there" right off; grandmother, a lovely old down East lady, would sing out to us: "Up again! Never mind! That didn't hurt you! Up again!" So up again we would jump, all the hurt gone, just because grandmother cheered us to try it over again, writes Vincent in Farm Life.

Sam Jones has had the luck of bad crops two or three years. Things have seemed against him. But he has been as brave as a lion. No frost can ever come that froze the smile from his face or withered the hope in his heart! And he is right at it this year, just as if he had had the best of luck all through the years.

But I wonder who of his neighbors has been down to sing out to Sam: "Up again, old man! This is all right! You'll come out all right—can't help it!"

I don't know of anybody that has had time to look up from his own hoeing and plowing and digging long enough to do that; it's a shame, too! Come on! Let's go down right now and cheer Sam up a bit! Maybe we can give him a lift at the work, too. All the world will be the brighter for it after that—to Sam and to you and to me, writes Vincent in Farm Life.

HEART IS IN THE RIGHT PLACE

Shah of Persia Purchases $100,000 Worth of Liberty Bonds.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—To show his heart is in the right place though his country is a hot-bed of German intrigue, His Majesty the Shah of Persia to-day cabled the State Department for $100,000 worth of Liberty Bonds. The order will be promptly filled.

GROOMING THE LIFT LOCK.

Will Open the Canal for Navigation In Two Weeks.

The Lift Lock is undergoing its annual grooming in preparation for the season's navigation, and will be opened about the middle of May when the other locks along the canal, including the lift at Kirkfield, are also expected to be operating. It was found impossible to get the Lift Lock here ready for next Monday to provide a feature in the Governor-General's visit, but the notice was too short.

TRINITY METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

A meeting of the officers and teachers will be held this (Thursday) evening, at 7 o'clock sharp, in the basement of the church. As matters of importance are to be considered, a full attendance is urgently requested.

A Birds-Eye View of the Work of the Y.M.C.A. in France

A Stupendous Proposition—is not Conducted from a Monetary Standpoint. Captain Ernie T. Best, formerly of Peterboro, is Now in Charge

The National Council of the Y.M.C.A. of Canada will raise this year $2,250,000.

There are 79 branches of the Canadian Y.M.C.A. in England. Last year there were 9 branches.

96 branches of the Canadian Y.M.C.A. in France. Last year there were 58.

Y.M.C.A. established branches in 20 Canadian Forestry Camps last season.

Dozens of Y.M.C.A. dugouts in forward trenches under fire.

Y.M.C.A. huts also at many points are nightly under fire.

Over 150 Military Secretaries represent Canadian Y.M.C.A. overseas.

Three hundred thousand letters a day are written in Y.M.C.A. overseas buildings.

Troops are furnished with athletic requirements. One single order for baseball equipment totalled $25,000. Estimates this year for athletic equipment, $133,000.

Y.M.C.A. saved hundreds of lives at Vimy Ridge by caring for "walking wounded."

Over 100 pianos in England and France—also 300 gramaphones and 27 moving picture machines.

Splendid service to boys in Canadian camp hospitals. Regular sing-songs and inspirational addresses with distributions of magazines, fruit, chocolates, gum, books and smokes.

Attention to special personal messages.

Circulating libraries in many branches.

Y.M.C.A. spends its money in actual service for soldiers.

Sixty to seventy thousand cups of hot tea and coffee distributed free daily in France. Estimated cost of material only for this service for eight months $48,000.

One hundred and forty thousand magazines purchased and distributed free overseas every month. Cost to Y.M.C.A. for eight months $15,000.

Entertainments, Bible classes, sing-songs, good-night services and personal interviews energetically conducted. At one meeting 100 men definitely announced their decision to go into ministry or Y.M.C.A. work after the war. Estimated expenditure for concerts, lectures, etc., per month $5,000.

Y.M.C.A. conducts a Red Triangle Club in Toronto, St. John, Montreal and other cities, for returned soldiers and enlisted men. A large Y.M.C.A. branch has been opened in Paris, France, for Canadians on leave, and a large building, known as the Beaver Hut, on the Strand, London, England.

Y.M.C.A. service for soldiers extends from Vancouver to the firing line and then back to the patients in hospitals until the men are discharged. After this point the local Y.M.C.A. interests itself in the soldier.

Y.M.C.A. Secretaries accompany troop trains.

Between 400 and 500 millions of letters and cards have been written and posted in Y.M.C.A. tents, huts and dugouts since the beginning of the war.

Special attention is given hospital ships and trains.

Lighting and heating account in English "huts" is very high, so as to provide comfort and encouragement for letter writing.

The Y.M.C.A. sells many needful things to soldiers; it does not carry on trading for the sake of trading, but to meet the needs of the men. We give the soldier the best value possible, but the whole of the profits are spent for his direct benefit.

$125,000 were absorbed in the building of huts in the Corps Area in France in 1917.

The estimated nightly attendance of men at concerts, lectures, etc., is 30,000, and from 35,000 to 60,000 men are served daily in the "Y" canteens.

Peterboro Citizens will be Asked to Contribute $10,000 Next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday to Support this Splendid Work.

MOHER—JENKINSON.

A quiet wedding took place on Tuesday evening at All Saints' church, the Rev. Mr. Grobb officiating, when Ella May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jenkinson, of Union street, became the bride of Mr. Edward Joseph Moher of this city. The bride was the recipient of many useful presents, including a white and gold dinner service, the gift of the bride's mother, also a beautiful clock, the gift of her late employer, Mr. and Mrs. Golleen a dining room suite, and many useful articles of silverware.

Mr. and Mrs. Moher will reside at 719 Bethune street city.

THREE BROTHERS IN ARMY, BUT WAIVES EXEMPTION

BRANTFORD, May 1.—At the Tribunal, before Judge Hardy, this morning, Ym. Percy Smith, 46 Strathcona avenue, told the presiding Judge that, though he had three brothers in the Imperial Army, he did not desire that he should receive any exemption, but thought that things had arrived at such a stage that the boys over there needed all the help they could get. Judge Hardy congratulated Smith on his spirit and entered his wishes on the record.

EXEMPTION HEARINGS COST OVER $250,000

OTTAWA, Ont., May 1.—According to a return tabled in Parliament at the request of Mr. White of Victoria, the number of local tribunals appointed throughout Canada under the Military Service Act, was 1,395. The total cost of the tribunals to date has been $268,749. This sum is not inclusive of a number of outstanding claims.

KINGSTON NEEDS FEWER POLICE NOW.

KINGSTON, May 2.—The Police Commissioners decided to appoint only two new men to the police force to take the places of four constables who have resigned. The Commissioners stated that law and order is so much improved since the Ontario Temperance Act has been in force that there is not enough work to keep a full police force busy. The local force has now been reduced by about one-third in two years.

TWO YEARS' HARD LABOUR.

Sentence on Pte. Snider for Deserting From Draft Warned.

BRANTFORD, May 1. —The C.O.R. Depot was lined up, while the Adjutant read the sentence of a court martial, confirmed by the General Officer Commanding this district, on Pte. C. C. Snider, a member of the local depot, who deserted from a draft which was warned for overseas. The draft left, and Snider was nowhere to be found. He was sentenced to two years' hard labour in the penitentiary. The prisoner was not a Brantford man, but was called up from an outside place, and reported here at the local depot.

BIG BUDGET WAS APPROVED

New Sugar Duty in England Was Endorsed by Big Majority.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 2.—The Budget for nearly fifteen billion dollars, introduced in the House of Commons recently, was the largest in history, and passed easily through the House. The total taxation involved in the Budget is four and a quarter billion dollars, but the House has passed all the necessary resolutions after brief discussions. The new sugar duty was approved by 141 to 56, and the majority of other increases in taxation were agreed to with little debate.

WAS PRESENTED WITH WRIST WATCH

Wilbert Bertrand Is Leaving for Overseas.

Wilbert Bertrand, 631 Union street, an employee of Mr. J. T. Braund, corner of George and Smith streets, who is leaving for oveseas, was presented with an address accompanied by a wrist watch on the eve of his departure from Peterborough. He is the only remaining son. A brother, who went to France was wounded twice and gassed once.

The Address.

The address follows:

Peterborough, Ont., April 29, 1918.

Dear Wilbert,—Once again we are called to part with another of our boys, which we regret very much. Our consolation will be wherever you are placed in this struggle in which so many are engaged that you will just as loyally fill your place in military service as you have done here with us.

We trust you will be long spared to wear and enjoy this wrist watch which we ask you to accept as a slight token of our esteem and fellowship, and that you will return to us in the very near future, claiming victory for the Allies.

(Signed)

WILLIAM McADOO VISITS ST. THOMAS

William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the United States' Treasury, and son-in-law of President Wilson, stopped off a few minutes at St. Thomas on his way to Buffalo. Mr. McAdoo was extremely confident that the third Liberty loan would be heavily oversubscribed. He displayed a keen interest in everything Canadian, about the workings of the Military Service Act, government ownership of railways and the attitude of the rest of the Dominion to Bourassa's propaganda in Quebec.

Mr. McAdoo was well guarded by a number of determined-looking plain-clothesmen, one of whom escorted Viscount Northcliffe through this country and the United States.

A Trifling Mistake.

We came out of the trenches one bitterly cold night, and were billeted in a barn, where we were packed like sardines in a tin.

Though numb with cold we were soon asleep. I was wakened in the night by one of our chaps trying to put his boots on.

After he had been trying for a minute or two, I heard the fellow next him say:

"What the dickens are you doing?"

"Putting on my boots," was the reply.

"Well, that's my foot, you idiot!"

HOW A YOUNG GIRL SUFFERED

And Was Restored to Health By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Told By Her Mother.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for my daughter. She was 15 years of age, very sickly and pale and she had to stay home from school most of the time. She suffered agonies from backache and dizziness and was without appetite. For three months she was under the doctor's care and got no better, always complaining about her back and side aching so I didn't know what to do. I read in the papers about your wonderful medicine so I made up my mind to try it. She has taken five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and doesn't complain any more with her back and side aching. She has gained in weight and feels much better. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers and daughters."—Mrs. M. Finore, 516 Marcy Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Surprise Tactics Won For Germans At Outset Of Great Offensive

Experiment Tried Successfully by Von Hutier at Riga Repeated on a Larger Scale—Forced Night Marches Made to Mask Huge Troop Movements From Allied Airmen

With the French Armies. — When the story of the great 1918 battle comes to be written, it is more than probable that the historians will agree that the principal reason for the German success at the outset was the factor of surprise. In military science surprise—that is an unexpected display of force at a selected point—has always been the key to victory. It is already established beyond doubt that the Germans surprised the Allies on March 21, not in the locality chosen for the attack, which Premier Lloyd George has admitted was indicated two months beforehand by the Versailles staff, but in the numbers with which the attack was launched.

It is now known that the Germans attacked the left and right wings of the British armies, approximately 150,000 strong, on a front of about 46 miles, with fully half a million men—at least one-third more than the Allies had believed possibly could be concentrated without their knowledge.

To appreciate what this means it is necessary to review previous events in this war. After the front established in the Autumn of 1914, there had been only three instances of a "surprise" on the western front. The first was in May, 1915, when Petain's army startled the Germans on the Artois front by breaking through trench lines which their experience had led them to believe were impregnable.

Another occurred when the British innovation of tanks threw the enemy into panic at the battle of the Somme; but here too the profit was wasted owing to the number of tanks employed being insufficient to produce confusion on a wide enough area.

In both these cases, however—as in the third instance, which was the German utilization of poison gas in Flanders—the true element of surprise according to military canons was lacking; namely, superiority of numbers unforeseen by the adversary. In fact, it had come to be an axiom that owing to the development of aviation it was impossible for either side to effect concentration of troops on a large scale without its opponent being able to make corresponding arrangements to meet the threatening shock. Yet in the present battle the Germans managed to do so with effects that only the superhuman heroism of the French army saved from being disastrous.

VON HUTIER'S TRYOUT.

The question as to how they managed it is answered in one phrase — von Hutier's offensive at Riga. The Riga battle was the prototype on a small scale of the gigantic drive against the British on March 21. In theatrical parlance, it was a "tryout" just as New York managers used to try out new pieces on suburban audiences. The cost involved in case of success was comparatively small, and the experience gained might well be invaluable for use in a wider field.

Von Hutier's plan was simple — accumulation of artillery in unexpected quantity and short but terrible "preparation," followed by an assault of overwhelming numbers whose presence in the sphere of action was unforseen for the simple reason that they were only brought up at the last minute, in some cases even during the preparation itself. At Riga his "trying out" succeeded to perfection. It was only natural that he should be entrusted with a far more important operation on the western front.

IDENTICAL TACTICS FOLLOWED.

His tactics were identical. Batteries were placed in position during the night and thoroughly camouflaged to escape observation by the allied air men. To "register" on positions opposite, they fired a minimum of shots at carefully lengthened intervals, so that they were able to know the exact range without awakening Entente suspicion.

Even greater precautions were taken regarding the infantry. For months before the battle German shock divisions received a course of long march training. Five days before the offensive broke their principal mass was concentrated far behind the front in the Hirson-Mezieres region. Then at a given signal they were moved up by forced night marches—mechanical transport would have been observed—resting during the daytime to escape the notice of airmen.

The French army authorities know that some units marched fully sixty miles in three nights preceding the battle, and one division actually covered twenty on the night of March 20, arrived in the trenches at 4 o'clock the next morning and attacked some five hours later. For von Hutier followed the Riga proceedings exactly.

A preliminary bombardment of the British lines began at 4.30 a.m. and terminated at 9.40, when the infantry advanced to the assault. Both in the weight of guns—Colonel Repington has stated that von Hutier had 3,500—and in the number of troops the surprise had been complete.

The Germans exploited it to the utmost but had reckoned without two factors, the unconquerable tenacity of the British, who even in defeat fought to the death rather than yield, and the superb courage of the French infantry who flung headlong into battle as they left their auto-camions without artillery or even horses to draw heavy mitrailleuses on strange ground, often in darkness, and without an adequate supply of munitions.

They nevertheless succeeded in delaying the advance until the arrival of reserves and guns enabled the Allies once more to present a solid front to the enemy.

How to Get Rich.

"The methods of practicing economy are very simple," wrote Dr. Samuel Smiles, an authority on the subject. "Spend less than you earn. That is the first rule. A portion should always be set aside for the future."

To Fill Nail Holes.

Nail-holes in wood may be filled up by mixing sawdust with glue till it is of the consistency of stiff paste. Press this compound into the holes, and it will become as hard as the wood itself.

WANT FARMERS GIVEN LEAVE OF ABSENCE

AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE OF COMMONS MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS TO MINISTER.

OTTAWA, May 2.—The Committee on Agriculture as a result of a lengthy discussion yesterday drafted the following resolution and forwarded it to the Minister of Militia, Gen. Mewburn, for his consideration:

"That it is the opinion of the Committee on Agriculture that the Minister of Militia should be requested to order:

"A—That actual farmers who have been called up shall be given leave of absence; and

"B—That no actual farmers be required to report until all others in the class affected by the order-in-Council of April 20, 1918, have been put in service, such leave of absence and delay in reporting to be conditioned upon their actual employment in farming."

The intent of the resolution was to provide that in the case of the first peremptory draft of men between the ages of 20 and 22 the urban districts should be exhausted before the rural districts were required to get into service.

H. R. Hendrs of Macdonald, and Major Andrews of Centre Winnipeg, have both conferred with the Minister on the matter. General Mewburn, it is stated, has pointed out that he has no power under the order-in-Council to do other than "advise" that the urban centres be drained first or that men already taken be granted leave. He has not power to "order" such a course of action.

It is stated, however, that farmers already called out were called out before the desire of the Minister was known to them. Men so called out are advised to comply with the order and to apply to the commanding officer for leave of absence on the grounds stated.

George Refers To His Plans For The Summer

CHAPTER LVII.

Nothing more was said anent our plans for the summer until nearly a week had passed. I had told Evelyn that George wouldn't consider a quiet place such as they had selected. She really felt badly.

"We could have had such a nice time," she said.

"I know, and you aren't half as disappointed as I am."

"What can't be cured must be endured, I suppose," she said making a wry face.

That very night at dinner, George remarked:

"You'd better go to your dressmaker and give the order for your summer outfit. Tell her you will go to Newport, Bar Harbour and perhaps other resorts. Get everything you need. I called her up to-day and gave her carte blanche as to expense."

"Those are such fashionable places, George. I wish we might go where there wasn't quite so much style," I ventured.

"Well, we can't. So say no more. My plans are all made—that is, as nearly as I care to make them." Then, "You will need several bathing suits. I am fond of swimming."

Fortunately I was, also, and was rather expert. My brothers had taught me when I was a tiny girl.

A Request.

As I thought of being able to swim, the longing to see the boys, to be with mother and father, came over me so strongly I couldn't resist saying, (neither could I keep the longing from my voice):

"George may I go home for a little while before we go?"

He frowned, then seemed to be figuring out something.

"Yes, I don't see any objection to your going home for a week or two. Give the order for your summer outfit, first, then they can be working on it."

"Oh, thank you George! When can I go?"

"Let me see. This is Tuesday. I see no reason why you shouldn't go Saturday. I have an engagement Saturday night, so you will plan to take an early train."

Always I must do as he said. But I was so happy over the thought of going home, that nothing else mattered. The next morning, early, I ran over to tell Evelyn.

"I shall miss you but I am glad you are going. You'll be back before we leave, won't you?"

"My, yes. I can only stay two weeks at the longest. But I am so happy, even for that little time—, I have to order my summer outfit before I go," I added, just remembering.

"Where are you going to spend the summer? Has Howard decided?"

"Yes. We are going to Newport and Bar Harbour."

"What a tone! One would think you were going to the morgue." And she laughed merrily. "It is lovely at both places. You'll enjoy it, I am sure."

A Real Lark.

"Will you go with me to order my clothes? I am to have everything I want."

"You are in luck! Of course I will go. It will be a real lark. You see, I am not going to get a single thing but some wash dresses and a couple of bathing suits. Just plain ones so I won't shock the natives, up where we are going. They are mostly fishermen, you know. Kurts has hired a sailboat for the summer, and we will take all the new books and order the magazines and papers sent to us."

"Oh, how lovely!"

"Yes, isn't it?"

"I envy you, Evelyn; I hate to go to those fashionable places. I don't care for that sort of life, anyway, although I don't mind it as much as I did."

"I told you that you would get used to it."

"I am trying very hard. Evelyn I do want to please George, to make him proud of me—which I am beginning to think is the only way to please him. I have tried so hard these last few months. I know I have learned many things. I can handle my servants now, handle them almost as well as Mrs. Sexton did. She says so, herself. I have learned many other things, too, but still I am sadly lacking in the savoir faire of George's friends. I get awfully discouraged at times."

"You mustn't! That's what I say to myself when, no matter what I do, Kurts' family seem to think I might do better. I just say to myself: "You mustn't, you mustn't mind!" and go on trying. If I didn't love Kurts so much, I don't suppose I'd be so meek. But he loves his people, and he loves me. So I do all I can to keep things pleasant."

"I try to, also, but I haven't your sweet, unselfish disposition. I fight like the dickens, inside, even when I say nothing."

Etiquette of Fish Feast.

In the Samoan islands, when a fish feast is held, the piece de resistance must be divided up in accordance with a rigid and unvarying etiquette. The heads are assigned to the tribal orators, who are of the high nobility. The flesh just behind the gills is set apart for guests whom the host of the occasion desires to honor. The pectoral fins (a particular delicacy) go to the king. The cuts across the spine just abaft the pectorals (the very parts we should think most desirable) are distributed among the common people. For the chiefs the tail and belly parts are reserved.

Jellies Make Good Drink.

With la grippe and feverish colds, cooling drinks are in demand. Chilled fruit juices are always acceptable, whether it is the juice of raw fruits, such as lemons, limes, oranges or grape fruit or the cooled liquids around cooked dried fruit or preserves. Mix with water, sweeten slightly, and put in a teaspoonful of shaved ice. Tart jellies make a refreshing drink, especially currant jelly. A nourishing drink is made by mixing the water of boiled rice with orange juice or currant jelly and water. Lemonade is made tasty with a dash of nutmeg.

SUFFERED TERRIBLY WITH HER HEART
Would Wake Up Smothering
The terrible smothering and choking up sensations and sinking spells, the feelings of dizziness and faintness that come over those whose heart and nerves are deranged causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.
Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.
Mrs. A. M. Powell, Norval Station, Ont.; writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I suffered five years with my heart and nerves, but the last two years I have suffered terribly. If I went to bed I would wake up as if I were smothering. I did not get one night's sleep out of seven. I got so very weak that the doctor was called in, and he said it was my heart, and that I must take great care of myself. I saw your advertisement in your almanac for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and said I would try them. I have only taken two boxes of them and I feel a new woman. I will recommend them to anyone afflicted with heart trouble."
Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Interior of Labrador.

Chains of lakes hitherto unmapped and rivers equally unknown were traversed in the interior of Labrador by the exploring parties of representatives of the National Geographic Society and the Carnegie Museum, Pittsburg, which arrived at St. John's, Nfld., recently.

The journey covered about 750 miles over a route never before travelled by white men and was made more difficult by the fact that the five Indians who were taken along as guides proved to be unfamiliar with the country.

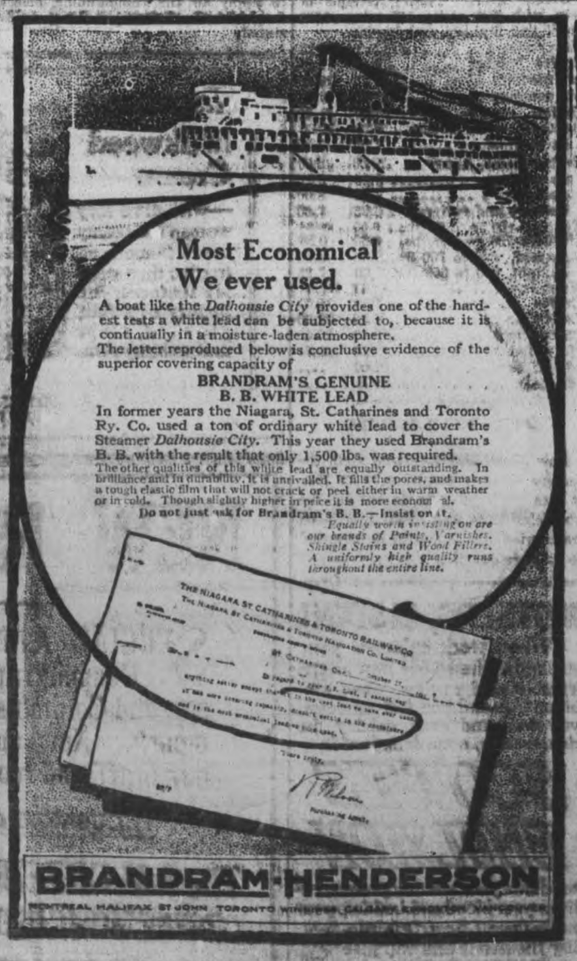
The party included E. B. C. Todd, curator of ornithology in the Carnegie Museum; O. J. Murie, orator of mammals in the same institution, and Alfred Marshall, of Chicago.

They left Seven Islands Bay on the north side of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about the end of May and travelled north by canoe and portages, reaching Fort Chimo, near Ungava Bay, August 22nd. In addition to mapping the country, they studied the natural history.

Mr. Todd said the existing maps of a large district were found to be very inaccurate and altogether misleading, having been made by guesswork, from information supplied by Indians.

A New Telephone.

Successful experiments with a telephone apparatus installed on a railroad car were carried out recently by a representative of the signal department of the Canadian Government railways and the inventor of the device, the former in the car itself and the latter in the despatcher's office in the Moncton yard. The transmission in this system of communication is made through wheel and axle without the assistance of any contributing medium. Reports of the tests declare that the communication established was in every way satisfactory, although the train was in motion. It is said there was no difficulty in hearing distinctly every word of the messages exchanged.



Canadian Shipbuilding.

Details of the Canadian Government's plan for assisting in meeting the need of the allies for merchant ships were given by Sir Robert Borden in the course of a speech in the House of Commons. Already much has been done in the Dominion by the Imperial Munitions Board. Orders have been placed by the Imperial Munitions Board for 43 steel ships, with an aggregate tonnage of 211,300 tons, and 46 wooden vessels, with a total tonnage of 128,400 tons. The total value of these vessels is $64,500,000; twelve shipyards are now working on orders from the Imperial Munitions Board and their capacity is being brought up to approximately 250,000 tons a year.

Berths vacated by the completion of ships ordered by the Munitions Board will be utilized at once by the Dominion Government. Four cargo steamers with a total tonnage of 23,500 tons are to be completed and placed in commission this year. Next year, however, 50 steel ships are to be constructed. For the present year the Government has authorized by order-in-Council an expenditure of $25,000,000 for shipbuilding. During his speech the Prime Minister expressed his thanks to the United States Government for its action in providing that the Canadian Government might obtain in that country 80,000 tons of ship plates and angles to meet shipbuilding requirements for this year. These materials are to be supplied at the same prices at which they are supplied to the United States Government. The Prime Minister also told of the efforts being made by the Government to bring about the establishment of a mill for the rolling of steel ship plates and angles in Canada in order to supply requirements in 1919 and in succeeding years.

Dandruff Soon Ruins the Hair
Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.
It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.
You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

ANOTHER INTERESTING DISCOURSE AT THE BIBLE CONFERENCE

The Events of This Age Were Dealt With Wednesday Evening by Dr. Chafer—Attendance and Interest Are Increasing.

MEETINGS TO-DAY

That the prophecies concerning the character of this age in which we are now living, and which many believe is drawing to a close, have been fulfilled during the past 1900 years was claimed by Dr. Chafer, the speaker at the Bible Conference being held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, in his address on Wednesday. That the interest is increasing was shown by the enlarged attendance which is becoming greater night by night.

Dr. Chafer having shown that Old Testament prophecies foretold the coming of a Messiah and that the introductory chapters of Matthew showed Christ as their Messiah and King offered a kingdom to them only to have it rejected, proceeded Wednesday night to show that the age in which we are now living was foretold in the Old Testament, but was first revealed by Christ and later by the apostles. Prophecy showed that this age was to be characterized by three great facts. "The present unforseen age," said Dr. Chafer, "was pre-viewed by Christ, as we saw last night. It was clearly to be characterized by three great facts: First, Israel is to be "hid" and "blinded" throughout the age; but not forever. It is said that this condition will go on "until the fullness of the Gentiles be come in." Second, iniquity will continue to the end. It was already working in Paul's day and he said it would only be ended by the glorious return of Christ (2nd Thes. ii:1-19). Third, the "wheat," the "children of the Kingdom," which is the "church," the body of Christ must be gathered out. It is revealed in the Scriptures that each of these great facts of this age run their course to the end. Israel's blindness ends with the "Deliverer coming out of "Zion" (Rom. xi:25-27); iniquity is ended by His return, as has been seen; and it is said that after the church is gathered out, He will "return and build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down" (Acts xv:13-18). The coming of the Lord terminates this age, then, and is the ending of each of the great elements that characterize the age throughout.

Two Meanings.

The word "church" is used with two meanings in the New Testament. There is a general meaning which refers to any assembly of people in one place. Such was any local church mentioned in the Bible. Such was Israel in the wilderness (Acts vii:38), which has nothing to do with the "church which is his body." The other, and deeper meaning of the word has to do with all the saved people of this age from the death of Christ until He comes again. It is the whole company of the redeemed who will form the bride of Christ in glory. It is this deeper use of the word that we find when it is used the first time in the Bible. Jesus said, "On this rock I will build my church" (Mt. xvi:18.) This Scripture teaches that the church was then a future thing and that it was to be "built" by divine power. The next time it is referred to its existence has begun. "And the Lord was adding to the church daily such as should be saved." (Acts ii:47). It began with Pentecost by the baptism of the Spirit. There could be no church until the death of Christ; for it must be saved by His blood. There could be no church until He arose from the grave; for it must have His resurrection life. There could be no church until He ascended to heaven; for it would have no Head. There could be no church until the Spirit came at Pentecost; for it must be by the Spirit united into body. The church was not in the Old Testament. It is never seen in the Old Testament. In Acts xv:13-18, it is said that "God is now visiting Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name." To this agree the words of the prophets. "After this I will return and build the tabernacle of David that is fallen down and set up the ruins thereof." So, again, the church is seen to be the object of the mighty working of God in this age and when this undertaking is done, according to His promise that can never fail, He will return again and restore the blessings of Israel."

Spiritual Themes.

At the afternoon session Wednesday, Dr. Chafer continued his discussion of the possibility of Christians having a supernatural power in their lives through being filled by the Spirit. "We have already," he said "considered the seven great manifestations of the Spirit which, taken together, describe what the Spirit does when He fills the believer. It remains to be seen upon what conditions this may all be realized in the life. These conditions are clearly given in the New Testament and are three in all. The subject to-day is the first condition. The passage describing this will be found in Eph. iv:30, "And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption." We grieve the Spirit when we cling to any known sin.

"It is not my duty to point out sins, but rather to tell you the divine cure for the Christian's sin. When an unsaved person wishes to have his sins forgiven it must be taken as a part of the whole work of salvation. It is one of thirty-three miracles that altogether make a Christian. A forgiven sinner would not be a Christian. Salvation is not subtraction alone; it is addition. "I give unto them eternal life." It will not do therefore, to direct an unsaved person to ask that his sins be forgiven. He will be saved, which includes the forgiveness of sin, when he believes on the Lord Jesus Christ. If he should sin after he is saved and the great and eternal work of God is done, it will then be the sin question alone. To such an one the way back to blessing is revealed in one word, "Confess." "If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." This is addressed to Christians only and could never be of meaning to the unsaved. The whole doctrine of God's way of dealing with the sin of the Christian is stated in seven major passages in the Bible. These are: John xiii:1-10, 1 John I, 1-10, 2-2, 1st Cor. xi, 27-32; Heb. xiii, 3-25, 2nd Cor. VII, 8-11, Psa. LI, and Luke XV."

Prominent Advocates.

Rev. Mr. Pogue pointed out to the congregation that many who are unfamiliar with the teachings about the return of Christ look upon it as something that is not usually taught in the orthodox churches and claimed that such can hardly be considered to be the case. He said that in addition to the noted Bible scholars and students who had been mentioned by Dr. Chafer in his remarks the evening before who believed in the second coming the three last moderators of the Presbyterian General Assembly of the United States, including the present moderator, Dr. Wilbur Chapman, were all earnest believers in the second coming of Christ. The American Presbyterian church is the strongest numerically in the world. When the United States Government recently selected two outstanding men to come to Canada to create a closer bond of fellowship between the two people during the war it selected two of these men, Dr. Chapman and Dr. Carson.

No Detriment.

Yeast—I see that blond typewriter of yours chews gum.

Crimsonbeak—Yes, I've noticed that.

"And don't you think it interferes with her work?"

"By no means. I had one before her who didn't chew gum, and her spelling was quite as bad."

Last Words of Rulers.

The ancients had an ear for last words, and among the reputed farewells of Roman emperors there have been handed down Nero's cynical, "What an artist the world is losing in me!" Julian's cry of surrender, "Thou has conquered, O Galilean!" and Vespasian's ironic, "I feel myself becoming a god."

Had Not Changed Much.

A negro, who was so singularly lazy as to be quite a problem, got converted in a revival. His associates in the church were extremely anxious to know whether he would not bestir himself and go to work. The negro attended a meeting and offered a prayer, in which occurred the petition: "Use me, Lord, use me—in an advisory capacity."

When to Abandon Hope.

We quite agree with you that it is time for a lover to give up hope when the lady "cuts him dead" in the streets and her father threatens to kick him off the door-mat. These are discouragements which ought to check the ardor of the most sanguine man.—London Tit-Bits.

Best Persian Camels.

The best Persian camels are the powerful one-humped kind, which are bred in the province of Khorassan. This animal can carry a burden of 600 pounds at the rate of 20 miles a day. The ordinary Persian camel, however, will carry 400 pounds at the rate of 15 miles a day.

Blood Poison Developed

As a Result of Accident—Nerves Break Down After Three Weeks of Suffering—A Glowing Tribute to Treatment Used

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 12.—Blood poisoning seems to become more common from year to year, and the dread of it is ever on the increase. In the case reported here the doctor did not seem able to get rid of it, and after three weeks of suffering the patient was almost a nervous wreck.

Mrs. Susie Thompson, Smith street, Kingston, Ont., writes:

"Early in the fall of 1916 I had a painful accident. I ran a sliver under my thumb nail, and neglected having it extracted. My thumb festered very badly, in fact my arm was fearfully swollen up to the elbow. It developed into blood poison, and I had the doctor lance it several times, but it failed to get better. With the intense pain and loss of sleep I became a nervous wreck. After following the doctor's orders for three weeks and not getting any benefit I wrote my mother about it. By return mail she sent me a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. The very first application eased the pain, and I slept that night quite easily. I kept using the Ointment regularly, and by the fifth day all the swelling was gone, and also the inflammation.

"During this time I had become so weakened and run down that my whole nervous system seemed affected. I was very nervous and restless, appetite became poor, and I had frequent headaches. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and had the same splendid results from this as from the Ointment. Using the Nerve Food internally built up my system and made me strong, while using the Ointment externally healed my sore thumb. I am now quite well, thanks to your wonderful remedies—the only regret I have is that I did not begin using them earlier, and saved myself months of suffering, to say nothing of Doctor's bills."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

MARCH TO VICTORY

Courage is a matter of the blood. Without good red blood a man has a weak heart and poor nerves.

In the spring is the best time to take stock of one's condition. If the blood is thin and watery, face pale or pimply, generally weak, tired and listless, one should take a spring tonic. One that will do the spring house-cleaning, an old-fashioned herbal remedy that was used by everybody nearly 50 years ago is still safe and sane because it contains no alcohol or narcotic. It is made up of Blood root, Golden Seal root, Oregon Grape root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark—extracted with glycerine and made into liquid or tablets. This blood tonic was first put out by Dr. Pierce in ready-to-use form and since then has been sold by million bottles as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If druggists do not keep this in tablet form, send 50 cents for a vial to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., or branch in Bridgeburg, Ont.

CENTRAL BUTTE, SASK.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for a number of years and am pleased to recommend it as a blood purifier. I know it has no equal, as I used it for my boy. My neighbors and friends were surprised with the results; in fact, I do not think he would be alive to-day had it not been for the 'Medical Discovery.' I also keep it on hand for coughs as it differs so from other medicines, instead of upsetting the stomach as cough syrups do it is good for the stomach. I only wish I had known about Dr. Pierce's medicines sooner."—MRS. PERCY WOOD.

BE READY FOR EMERGENCIES.

The best way is to always keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, ready for emergencies. Then when croup or colds come suddenly they can be promptly cured before they have time to reach an acute and dangerous stage. To meet this requirement we have put the syrup up in family size bottles which contain nearly three times as much as the 25-cent bottle and sell at 60 cents.

Experts Discuss New Hun Gun

WHEN the first news came that Paris was under gun-fire, it was feared that the Germans had advanced their lines to within what was considered shelling range, perhaps 22 or 25 miles. Then it was explained that the shells must have been dropped from airplanes. Now it seems evident that Germany has constructed a gun capable of hurling a shell more than 70 miles, or three times as far as ever a shell was hurled before. It is one of the miracles of the war, but is likely to have as much influence upon the result of the war as that other well-known miracle, liquid air. Its effect, according to a French writer, was hoped to be psychological, to bring about a panic, coincident with the inevitable earlier successes of the great offensive. No doubt if one of these guns can be made others can be made, and it is thought that more than one is bombarding Paris. The London Times believes that the guns may yet be set up along the Belgian coast and drop shells into England.

As far as the life of the present gun or guns is concerned, it is likely to be short. Once spotted by an allied aviator, a bomb or two will shatter it just as the gun was shattered that bombarded Dunkirk from an emplacement 22 miles away. In any event, according to experts in the United States, a gun capable of sending a shell 70 miles would be worn out after about 50 shots, and would have to be relined. This would be a long process with such a weapon. Experts say that theoretically there is no limit to the range of guns, provided they are long enough and heavy enough and the explosive powerful enough. Similarly there is no limit to the size of battleships, but experience has shown that there is a practical limit, after which mere size can be attained only at the expense of other important qualities. One expert who doubts the existence of such a gun says that if it were possible to build one, the time and material and labor required would put in the field 1,000 more useful smaller guns. In any event the damage that this super-gun could do would not begin to pay for the expense and difficulty in building it. Nevertheless, here is the gun.

Hudson Maxim says that with a nine-inch gun from 40 to 50 feet long and with a maximum elevation of 45 degrees, a projectile can be thrown for more than 20 miles, and that if the calibre of the gun is doubled, the area at the base is quadrupled. Thus if the Germans have built a gun 100 feet long, and if its calibre is, say, 18 or 20 inches, it is perfectly feasible for it to hurl a nine-inch shell 60 or 70 miles. There is nothing new in what is called "sub-calibre projection," for it was used in the old Zalinski dynamite gun. As a rule, when accuracy is the great end to be achieved, the projectile is made only slightly smaller than the calibre of the gun. This is to give a spin to the missile, and overcome what a pacific person might call wabbling. The Zalinski gun sought to secure this result by attaching two rings to the projectile, one near the forward end and one near the rear. The rear ring carries a driving band for giving the projectile rotation, and back of that is a gas check, independent in the case of the driving band. When the projectile escapes from the gun these two rings part company with the projectile and drop off, permitting it to proceed by itself.

The greatest cause of lost motion in a bullet or a shell is friction, and on its course a projectile encounters two sorts of friction. In the first place there is the friction of the sides of the rifle or cannon; in the second place there is the friction or resistance offered by the air. As regards the latter, the greater the range of the gun, the less this is to be feared. The shells that have fallen on Paris, for instance, if fired from a gun at an angle of 45 degrees, which is the theoretical position for the longest range, though some experts say that in practice 32 degrees is best, would be about 35 miles over the earth when they had finished half their journey. At this height the shells would be above most of the atmospheres of the earth, and the air resistance would be comparatively small compared with that encountered lower down. They would be moving through a partial vacuum. The other source of friction, according to an unnamed expert quoted in the New York Times, may have been eliminated by a device which would surround the gun barrel by a magnetic field which would keep the projectile from touching the sides of the barrel.

In any event no accuracy is to be counted on from a shell travelling this distance. It would be due to drift nearly a mile from the point at which it was aimed, but as Paris is a large city a mile is neither here nor there. There is general agreement that the construction of such a gun would be a matter of months of labor. Maxim thinks it must be a "knock down" gun, made in sections and shipped to the front, there to be assembled. Others maintain that the necessary length of the barrel would make it impossible to build it anywhere except upon the spot. One remarks that it must have supports like a bridge, and that its construction is a problem that must have been solved by a committee of mathematicians and watch-makers. In any event it is a freak gun, and like the big guns which were Germany's first surprise of the war, the guns that battered down the Belgian fortresses, this last big gun, which is probably Germany's last surprise, was made in Austria. This is a typical triumph of German mechanical genius.

The Game of Love

By JAMES BRAINARD

Two young men were drawing on the gloves in the robing room. There was no one else there at the time.

"Jimmie," said Edgar Partington, "which is it to be tonight between you and Alice Turnlee? Is she going to coddle you or to snub you?"

James Williamson was madly in love with the girl mentioned. She would neither accept nor reject him.

To Partington's remark, Williamson's only reply was a sigh.

"Jimmie," continued the former, "no matter how bright one is, in the brain of everyone of us there is a stupid spot. In your brain this spot is a want of perception of a girl's whims. If you understood Alice she wouldn't trouble you very long; you'd soon bring her to her senses."

"What would you do if you were in my place?"

"The first time the girl gave me any of her nonsense I would drop her as I would a hot potato."

"I'm not up to that. If I should bring about an irreparable breach between Alice and myself it would ruin me."

Someone came into the room and the dialogue ended. Partington and his friend went down into the dancing hall. Alice Turnlee during the evening treated Jimmie more disdainfully than ever. She did not save a dance for him. Moreover she danced four times with another man. Jimmie was in agony. After the ball he and Partington walked away together.

"Jim," he said, "you are in danger of losing Alice."

Jim groaned.

"Only a quick coup will save you. You are incapable of making it yourself; but if you will do what I tell you I think we can bring her round."

"She's lost to me," was the despondent reply.

"We'll try a desperate remedy."

After a long argument Partington succeeded in securing a promise from his friend to do exactly what he told him to do, and not to do what he forbade him doing. The first thing Jim was told to do was to keep away from Alice till Partington permitted him to resume his attentions. At the end of a week Jim received a note from Alice stating that she had two tickets for the theater and would like him to be her escort. Jim rushed at great glee to his mentor and showed him the note.

"Tell her you have an engagement for that evening," said Partington.

Jimmie was horrified but he had promised to do what he was bidden, so he reluctantly wrote the note as directed.

Jim was in agony about the matter and when his friend having asked him to go for a walk with him on the very evening he had been invited to escort Alice to the play, steered him into the very theater to which she had the tickets. Alice was there with her brother for an escort. Jimmie did not dare look at her for sometime and when he did she stared at him without nodding to him.

"The game is working fine," said Partington.

"What game?"

"The game of love; don't you see how troubled she looks?"

"No, I don't. You've blighted my life."

"Not if you trust to me and keep up your courage."

Then came a period of entanglement between Jimmie and Alice, during which Partington found it difficult to keep his pupil from going to the girl he loved and begging for her forgiveness. But Jim kept on the track and destined for greater sufferings. In due time he met Alice at another dance. Partington ordered him to keep away from Alice and not ask her for a single dance. Jim obeyed. Indeed he did not believe that she would give him a dance. When he and Partington went away together the latter said to his friend:

"The game's nearly played out, old man. I danced with her and I saw at once that she was suffering. She seldom heard what I said to her as I kept looking for you whenever you were near her."

"You don't mean it?" said Jimmie. "I'll go to see her tomorrow and we'll make it up."

"No you won't. If you should do that she would begin to tease you again at the first opportunity. She must come to you."

"She'll never do that."

"Yes, she will."

"Why do you think so?"

"Because I'm going to tell her that you have got another girl."

"She won't believe you."

"Yes she will. She knows that you and I are chums and will naturally suppose that I know the secrets of your heart. Besides I shall say to her that she is more worthy of you than the girl you have taken up with, and that she was very foolish to throw you overboard."

"Well, you engineered the matter so far; you may as well finish it."

Partington did as he said he would do, and the result was that Jimmie received a very penitent note from Alice asking his forgiveness and promising not to do so any more. Before he went to see her Partington said to him:

"If you don't want to undo all I have done for you, don't give away the scheme. It's time now for you to take the matter up for yourself."

A Sporting Chance.

"In Bombook Land the natives are addicted to trading wives."

"I suppose that leads to much chaffering and dickering?"

"Oh, no. I heard plenty of natives offering to trade sight unseen."

ALL IS NOT LOST.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Angela's Indecision

By ETHEL HOLMES

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

Evan Cartright was an unsuccessful wooer of Angela Drew. But Angela instead of turning Evan down in such a way as to take away all hope, dealt with him gently. She was very sorry for him; hoped he would find one who would be more worthy of him than herself, and above all, that they might still be friends.

Evan drew a deep sigh within his manly chest—he was a big fellow—and accepted the situation. He had not thought of entering the great world war, but now that he had been refused by the girl he loved, he decided to do so. He was about finishing his college course, and as the greater part of his class were volunteering, he enlisted and the government commenced the work of making a soldier of him.

Angela wrote him, commending his patriotism, and predicted that he would be one of his country's honored servants.

How Evan was to become one of his country's honored servants, permitting his comrades to move onward, while he lagged behind, only kept up to his work by incessant urging, did not appear. He wrote in reply that he hoped he would have the grit to be among the first to go "over the top," and among the last to give up any gain that might have been made by himself and his comrades.

Angela wrote in reply to this that she didn't mean that she advocated his being a laggard, but in trying to explain what she did mean let out the main part of what she felt, which was that she was very much afraid that Evan would get hurt. A lover is not prone to see a weakening on the part of the girl who has refused him, but all this seemed to Evan to denote an interest in him on the part of his fair correspondent. He was emboldened to offer himself again, doing so by letter, for he was now in the service of the government, which was preparing troops as rapidly as possible to send abroad, and would not stop while the men they were training endeavored to capture ladies' hearts.

Angela wrote back that an engagement between a girl and a man who was going to a war that might last many years seemed to her very unwise, especially this war, which was strewing Europe with dead. However, she would think about it.

Angela thought about it for several months without arriving at a decision. Finally Evan wrote her that the force to which he belonged had been ordered to the Atlantic coast, which meant that it would probably be prepared to send abroad.

When a woman is called upon to decide such questions upon which she has grave doubts, she is apt to give some queer reasons for what she does. Angela demurred, for the reason that she had always expected when she married to have a very large and imposing wedding. Her mother was ill, and this would now be impossible. If Evan did not sail for France till after her mother got well, she would make a final decision.

A month passed, and Evan's regiment did not leave the United States. Angela's mother got well. There seemed to be no reason why Angela should not marry Evan if he could get leave for the purpose. She decided that she would do so, and wrote him to that effect. He applied for a furlough and was refused.

This put a stopper on a ge and imposing wedding. Indeed, there could be no wedding at all, unless the bride should go to the groom. Angela took the matter under consideration. Evan admonished her that he was liable to sail at an hour's notice, and that she had better make up her mind at once. She did make up her mind, and wrote him that she would go to him "the day after tomorrow."

On the evening of the day of her decision Angela received a telegram that her fiance would sail the next morning. The journey before her could not be made in less than 35 hours. Evan was called up by telephone and an interview between him and Angela followed. Evan saw no way for them to be married until he returned from the war. Angela, who had been balking for many months, was now in great distress that she could not be wedded.

A family council was called, at which her father suggested a marriage by telephone. A lawyer was called in, who pronounced such a marriage legal. Evan was called up again; the plan was proposed to him, and he consented.

A clergyman was called in to the Drew residence; Angela stood by the receiver which she held so that both could hear the responses. Evan called a comrade to act as best man, and the clergyman read a service. A ring was put on Angela's finger by her brother, for the groom, and the final "man and wife" was pronounced.

The next morning Evan sailed for France and Angela was left behind to mourn her indecision, and to regret that it had kept her from bidding her husband good-by. Indeed, had she made a definite decision either way, it would doubtless have been better for her. Had she declined him absolutely at first, neither would have been thinking of the other very long. Had she accepted him when he proposed, they might have been much together before he embarked for France.

Luxurious Senators.

Senate reform, in the way of war-time economy, is suggested by Auditor-General Fraser in his annual report to Parliament, as tabled in the Commons recently.

Among the several score thousand items of Governmental expenditure printed in the report, there is one relating to stationery supplies for the Senate. These supplies included 100 ladies' bags at $8 each, and 40 ladies' purses at $5.50 each. Mr. Fraser wrote to the Clerk of the Senate, asking for what purposes these were ordered, and to whom they were supplied—"these articles appear to be out of the ordinary run of stationery supplied for Government purposes."

To this pertinent request from the "watchdog of the Treasury," the Deputy Clerk of the Senate replied that "the articles referred to were purchased and distributed on the authority of the Senate," and that "the matter of the distribution of supplies is purely within the economy of the Senate, and subject to its control only."

In other words, the Auditor-General was told politely but firmly not to butt in, and that the upper wing of Parliament ran its own show.

Just to what state use the Senators — especially the bachelor ones —put the $800 worth of ladies' bags and the $200 worth of ladies' purses must be left to the imagination of the war-time taxpayers.

Codfish for Trench Soldiers.

The codfish army is no dream. It arrives in the trenches somewhere in France at the rate of 5,000,000 pounds a week. On its strength of "two breakfasts and one fish dinner" Canadian and British "Tommies" are kept up to their working mark.

Canada herself is helping to solve the food problem by having two fish days a week—Tuesdays and Fridays, notes a correspondent. With this great demand for fish the Nova Scotia fisherman suffers neither fog, nor rain, nor ice, nor snow, nor darkness nor submarine to interfere with his task of supplying the dominion and the empire with fish in quantities never paralleled in history.

Time Will Tell.

Nora—Do you think marriage is always a failure?

Ada—Always a failure! Well, I should say not. Why, I know a case where a wife fairly idolizes her husband, and he—why, he can't keep away from her a minute.

Nora—Bless me, how long have they been married?

Ada—Nearly a week.

Clever.

"Clever, isn't he?"

"Very. He can even persuade his small boy who wakes at seven o'clock Sunday morning, ready for play, to go back to sleep for another hour or two."

CONSIDER THE FACTS.

(London Advertiser.)

There is a natural hesitancy to criticize the government in an hour of crisis, when the demand for fighting men became stronger than ever before. At the same time the prospect of world famine, a famine in food twenty times more serious than the famine in coal last winter, is just around the corner. It is well to consider the facts rather than to be stampeded.

A Birds-Eye View of the Work of the Y.M.C.A. in France

A Stupendous Proposition—is not Conducted from a Monetary Standpoint. Captain Ernie T. Best, formerly of Peterboro, is Now in Charge

The National Council of the Y.M.C.A. of Canada will raise this year $2,250,000.

There are 79 branches of the Canadian Y.M.C.A. in England. Last year there were 9 branches.

96 branches of the Canadian Y.M.C.A. in France. Last year there were 53.

Y.M.C.A. established branches in 20 Canadian Forestry Camps last season.

Dozens of Y.M.C.A. dugouts in forward trenches under fire.

Y.M.C.A. huts also at many points are nightly under fire.

Over 150 Military Secretaries represent Canadian Y.M.C.A. overseas.

Three hundred thousand letters a day are written in Y.M.C.A. overseas buildings.

Troops are furnished with athletic requirements. One single order for baseball equipment totalled $25,000. Estimates this year for athletic equipment, $183,000.

Y.M.C.A. saved hundreds of lives at Vimy Ridge by caring for "walking wounded."

Over 400 pianos in England and France—also 300 gramaphones and 27 moving picture machines.

Splendid service to boys in Canadian camp hospitals. Regular sing-songs and inspirational addresses with distributions of magazines, fruit, chocolates, gum, books and smokes.

Attention to special personal messages.

Circulating libraries in many branches.

Y.M.C.A. spends its money in actual service for soldiers.

Sixty to seventy thousand cups of hot tea and coffee distributed free daily in France. Estimated cost of material only for this service for eight months $48,000.

One hundred and forty thousand magazines purchased and distributed free overseas every month. Cost to Y.M.C.A. for eight months $15,000.

Entertainments, Bible classes, sing-songs, good-night services and personal interviews energetically conducted. At one meeting 100 men definitely announced their decision to go into ministry or Y.M.C.A. work after the war. Estimated expenditure for concerts, lectures, etc., per month $5,000.

Y.M.C.A. conducts a Red Triangle Club in Toronto, St. John, Montreal and other cities, for returned soldiers and enlisted men. A large Y.M.C.A. branch has been opened in Paris, France, for Canadians on leave, and a large building, known as the Beaver Hut, on the Strand, London, England.

Y.M.C.A. service for soldiers extends from Vancouver to the firing line and then back to the patients in hospitals until the men are discharged. After this point the local Y.M.C.A. interests itself in the soldier.

Y.M.C.A. Secretaries accompany troop trains.

Between 400 and 500 millions of letters and cards have been written and posted in Y.M.C.A. tents, huts and dugouts since the beginning of the war.

Special attention is given hospital ships and trains.

Lighting and heating account in English "huts" is very high, so as to provide comfort and encouragement for letter writing.

The Y.M.C.A. sells many needful things to soldiers; it does not carry on trading for the sake of trading, but to meet the needs of the men. We give the soldier the best value possible, but the whole of the profits are spent for his direct benefit.

$125,000 were absorbed in the building of huts in the Corps Area in France in 1917.

The estimated nightly attendance of men at concerts, lectures, etc., is 30,000, and from 55,000 to 60,000 men are served daily in the "Y" canteens.

Peterboro Citizens will be Asked to Contribute $10,000 Next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday to Support this Splendid Work.

FATHER THAMES.

Source of the River Is a Matter of Dispute.

The true source of the Thames has always been a matter of learned and unlearned dispute. Even the right name or names of the river have never been determined. At one part it is the Churn, at another the Isis, and at another the Thames; and because the stretch at Oxford is designated the Isis, there are those who insist upon the derivation of the word "Thames" from the combination of "Thame" and "Isis." But Caesar, in his Commentaries, speaks of the "Tamesis," while both Dion Cassius and Tacitus call it plain, or rather poetical, "Tamesa"; in fact, there is not a single early writer, excepting Spencer, in his "Faerie Queene," who makes any mention of the "Isis." The early Saxons, on the contrary, dubbed the river the Thamis.

As to the source, one can make a choice between the Tweedledum of so-called Thames Head, near Cirencester, and the Tweedledee of Seven Springs, near Cheltenham, in the Cotswold Hills, and be very little the wiser. Old maps plump for Thames Head, and so does the name itself, for that matter; but leaving aside the tradition of centuries or the dogmatical ideas of cartographers, there is the other side of the question at Seven Springs. Here a marble slab, inserted in a wall, bears a dedicatory inscription hailing the place as "Father Thames," in flowery Latin: "Hic Tutus O Tamesine Pater Septem geminis Fous." The stone is avowedly an antique, so that there is ample evidence for the belief that the merry squabble of the past was never satisfactorily settled among the wiseacres. But to-day Seven Springs is undoubtedly the favorite. It gives the Thames a greater length and elevation than the other "source," Thames Head, on Trewsbury Mead, which is often devoid of water, either dowing or in repose. The spring, in other words, is uncertain. But one can never say this of Seven Springs, where scarcely seen, through brilliant green The infant waters softly creep.

Seven Springs forms a hollow of a grassy bank in a shady country lane. At the bottom of the hollow is a tiny pool, which fills gently and imperceptibly from its hidden sources. An old ash bends over the spot; there are a few straggling briers, bits of silver weed, and some scattered roots of the cranesbill or sparse meadow-sweet. A little stream is formed, and sets up a faint murmur, so slight that the buzzing of a bee or the whir of a dragon-fly's wings may drown it. The current slips away under the dedicatory wall into an ornamental garden. There it forms a pool of clear water, as if the rudimentary river were gathering its strength before daring to take a peep at the world beyond. As it makes its exit from the garden, it begins to form its first channel within a miniature dell. The sloping ground is spongy, and the grassy banks are thick with a color carpet of wild flower, the Canterbury bell and mint, the wild sage and marjoram, making up an infinite variety of blues, violets, and pinks, while scarlet poppies blaze in the hedges. The little stream threads its way through this humble garland setting, growing stronger and more confident with each moment. Its career of usefulness has already begun. The long grasses creep down to its edge and almost overwhelm it, while the trees thrust their gnarled and bared roots into the river bed. The ragged line of channel grows wider and wider and at last disappears in the shade of a thicket of marshy copsewood. For some distance the stream runs shyly below the level of a neighboring road between a line of protecting willow, elm, and thorn. Pools and ooze give it a sense of aloofness, until a narrow rustic footbridge is reached. The game of hide-and-seek here comes to an end. The water broadens into wide shallows, rippling over cool, waving patches of green weed, or races through swaying tufts of rushes and forms, interknitted channels or backwaters out of thickets of sedge. River and road no longer hold aloof from one another. Round a bend a typical English village with its church and inn, its ivied rectory and cottages, comes into sight, and the young river sweeps across the h is to meet it

FACE NOTHING BUT RUNNING SORES FROM ECZEMA

No rest day or night for those afflicted with that terrible skin disease, eczema, or, as it is often called, salt rheum.

With its unbearable burning, itching, torturing day and night, relief is gladly welcomed.

There is no remedy like Burdock Blood Bitters for giving relief to such sufferers; no other remedy has done, or can do so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture. Apply it externally and it takes out the stinging, itching and burning, and promotes a healthy healing.

Take it internally and it gets at the source of the disease in the blood, and completely and permanently drives it out of the system.

Miss Mary V. Chambers, Anagance Ridge, N.B., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters for eczema. I had it when an infant, but it left me. Two years ago it came back. I used doctors' medicine, but it did good only while I used it. At last my face was nothing but a running sore. I saw in the paper what B.B.B. did for people. I took it, and to-day I am free from that terrible disease."

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

A charming little dress which not only introduces several new style features, but which is also easy to make is shown in No. 8748. It is cleverly designed so that the bolero effect is only at the front, for the loose pieces are joined to the shoulder and underarm seams. The dress fastens at centre back and the narrow collar is in two sections. The sleeves may be long or short. The under waist is gathered at the neck in front. Embroidery flouncing will make up well if used for this dress, for the sleeves, skirt and bolero may be carried out in this material, with the blouse of plain goods. The straight skirt may be either gathered or plaited.

The girl's dress pattern No. 8748 is cut in five sizes—6 to 14 years. As on the figure, the 8-year size requires 2⅝ yards of 27 inch or 1¾ yards of 36 inch plaid material, with 1¼ yards 36 inch white material and 3⅞ yards braid.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MAY 3, 1918

BRITISH HAVE IMPROVED POSITIONS ON THE AMIENS FRONT

The Home Rule Measure Will Be Proceeded With

VERY LITTLE FIGHTING ON THE WESTERN FRONT ACCORDING TO REPORTS

British Gained An Advantage in Local Fighting During the Night---Artillery is Active Near Givenchy and South of Ypres---Allies Carry Out Several Successful Raids.

WAR NEWS FROM ALL FRONTS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 3.—In the neighbourhood of Villers-Bretonneux, on the front before Amiens, the British gained an advantage in local fighting during the night, the War Office announces. On the northern front there was active artillery fighting, especially near the Givenchy forest of Denieppe and Locre, and south of Ypres.

TEXT OF STATEMENT.

Local fighting took place to our advantage last night in the neighbourhood of Villers-Bretonneux. We carried out successful raids south of Arras and east of St. Venant, in the course of which ten prisoners and five machine guns were captured by our troops. The artillery has been active on both sides during the night between Givenchy and Forest Denieppe, in the neighbourhood of Locre and south of Ypres.

FRENCH TOOK POSSESSION OF HILL 82.

PARIS, May 3.—The French made an attack late yesterday on a front between Hailles and Castel, southeast of Amiens, and captured Hill 82 and the Wood on the Avre River nearby, the War Office announces. French troops have also gained ground near Villers-Bretonneux, on the Amiens front. The statement follows:

"In the region south of Villers-Bretonneux there was violent artillery fighting by both combatants, as well as fairly spirited infantry engagements, near Monnment, in the course of which French troops gained some ground. South of Avre the French late yesterday carried out local operation which met with perfect success. Our troops attacked German positions between Hilles and Castel (a front of about one and a quarter miles.) We took possession of Hill 82 and Wood bordering on the Avre. The number of prisoners taken exceeds 100, including four officers. In the region of Aillette the French repulsed a German raiding party. French reconnoitering detachments were active, especially in Woevre and Lorraine, bringing back prisoners.

Canadian Press:

CHANGE IN TONE.

LONDON, May 3.—(Via Reuter's).—It is noteworthy that with the lull in the fighting since the German defeat at Ypres, all the German talk of the Kaiser's battle has vanished. German experts and newspapers have now been instructed to warn the people that no new Sedan is possible, that Ypres is very strong and the British fought most stubbornly and that after all Ypres is not of importance for the Germans. They declare that the German Command may decide not to take Ypres.

GRAVE UNEASINESS.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 3.— There is grave uneasiness in Germany over the news from the east where, apparently, the Germans shortly will be confronted with overwhelming difficulties that will shatter the whole fabric of the Brest-Litovsky peace, says an Amsterdam despatch to the Daily Express. From Finland to Ukraine there is an ever increasing opposition to German oppression. Vienna reports, it is added, says that most of the Ukrainian crops were ruined by the peasants.

THE IRISH SITUATION

Home Rule Measure is Assuming Definite Shape—Ulster Will Be Safeguarded by Committee

SINN FEIN QUARREL

(Canadian Press.)

London, (via Reuter's), May 3. — The lobby correspondent of the Times confirms the statement that the Home Rule measure is assuming definite shape. He says it lays down the federal principle of the united kingdom, and that the customs and excise will almost certainly be reserved to the Imperial Parliament until after the war. It is understood that an additional safeguard for Ulster will be provided in the form of an Ulster committee with a veto on legislation affecting Ulster. The latest proposal for vice-royalty is to place it in the hands of a commission, probably consisting of Viscount Middleton, Lord French and Justice Ross.

The Daily Express states that all parliamentary plans have been upset by the new situation, that instead of month's holiday at Whitsuntide there will probably be only a week, and it is expected that the Commons will sit all summer.

(Canadian Press.)

London, via Reuter's, May 3. — An alliance of Sinn Feiners and Nationalists promises not to be long lived. A quarrel has broken out on the subject of the bye-election in East Cavan which the Sinn Feiners persist in contesting, despite the Nationalist remonstrations. Thirty Nationalist commoners speak there on May 5 in opposition to Griffith's Sinn Fein candidate.

John Dillon, the leader of the Irish Nationalists, speaking at Bailie-Borough yesterday, said the Nationalists were in no way responsible for the unhappy situation that had now arisen. If the spirit exhibited by the Sinn Feiners were to prevail national unity would be impossible, and the imposition of conscription facilitated.

De Valera, the Sinn Fein leader, visited the Bishop of Kilmore yesterday in connection with the latter's suggestion for a compromise in East Cavan. A member of the American mission, now in London, in an article in the Irish Independent, appeals to the people of Ireland to help in the greatest crusade the American people have ever undertaken. He says Americans refuse to believe Irishmen wish to be regarded as partners of the Prussians and the Turks.

WELL KNOWN OFFICERS RETURN TO CANADA

OTTAWA, May 3.—Several well-known officers arrived home from overseas yesterday. In the party was Brigadier General W. St. St. Pierre Hughes, brother of Sir Sam Hughes. Brig. General Hughes went overseas in command of the 21st Battalion, and it is reported that he has come back to Canada to succeed Col. G. N. Ogilvie as Assistant Adjutant General of Military District No. 3. General Sir Eugene Fiset, Deputy Minister of Military, when asked regarding the matter, stated that while it was possible General Hughes was slated for the office, he was unable to verify it. He understood that he was coming home to take a position in the Department of Justice. It was possible, however, he was to have the office of Assistant Adjutant General at Kingston.

TERRIFIC NEW OUTBURST BATTLE AT ANY TIME

Hindenburg is Waiting Until His Armies Are Refreshed—A Midwinter Lull

CANADIAN RAID

(By William Philip Simms—United Press Service).

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, May 3.—There is still a big concentration of men and guns opposite the Franco-British lines, and a terrific new outburst is liable at any time.

Hindenburg is playing 'possum until his armies are refreshed—then he will be ready to strike again with all his power.

Under the bluest May time sky Mars has put the lid on the Armageddon throughout yesterday and last night, while the infantry rested, guns muttered only spasmodically.

POST DESTROYED.

The British destroyed a post in the Lys area and the Canadians conducted a raid near Lens, capturing seven Germans and three machine guns. The present inactivity reminds one of the midwinter lull during the days of static warfare. It is common talk among ordinary German soldiers, however, that conditions at home necessitate some sort of a decision.

THE CALL OF SPRING FLOWERS

These are days when we can stand planty of optimism, real and visionary. Lots of flowers are needed to grace a world grey with stress and sorrow. Our florists and gardeners are busy putting forth their prettiest pictures of blossom-bearing beauty Some of the loveliest of these blooms have found a place in the show window of the Peterborough floral Co.'s handsome new down-town branch show-rooms. These fragrant harbingers of summer have been greatly admired—the "Darwin" tulips, especially, that have pushed their fearless petals through the winter soil in alluring loveliness.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

Dr. F. L. Robinson has kindly consented to donate the proceeds of Monday afternoon's programme to the Patriotic Society of St. Andrew's church. Two excellent reels will be presented entitled "The Millionaire Vagrant," and the first episode of "A Rejected Wife." Miss Helen McLaren will render a vocal selection during the afternoon. The admission will be 15c. and tickets may be arranged for by 'phoning 1734 or 829, or at the Examine Office. 2d-10

FARMERS IN OTTAWA

Monster Deputation Wait on Government to Urge the Exemption of Farm Labour

CONSIDERATION PROMISED

Special to the Examiner.

OTTAWA, May 3.—The Parliament buildings and Government offices were invaded unexpectedly to-day, by hundreds of farmers, and farmers' representatives from eastern and western Ontario, who came to press their demand that the exemption of young farmers and farm hands from military service, be continued, in the interest of Canada's production of foodstuffs. At 3 o'clock the delegation waited on Hon. N. W. Rowell and other members of the Government in the Railway Committee room. The spokesmen were C. W. Gurney of Brant County, Ed. Sills of Lennox and Addington, C. J. Thornton, ex-M.P., H. St. Clair Fisher of Lincoln, and A. A. Powers of Durham. They argued that the business of production was as important as military service, at this time, and more so. The Government promised consideration.

This morning the gathering assembled in the big committee room for organization. C. J. Thornton, former member for Durham, was appointed chairman. Mr. Thornton briefly explained the purpose of the delegation namely, to urge the Government to use its utmost judgment in seeing to it that production would be interfered with as little as possible, and in the case of only sons, leniency be shown.

Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN WELL UNDER WAY

Peterborough City Will be Asked to Contribute $10,000.

The Y.M.C.A. campaign is now well under way. Almost every community has responded splendidly. The allotment of each county is fixed by the population and the assessment. The amount to be raised in Canada is $2,225,000. The city of Peterborough's share is $10,000. The County of Peterborough was asked for $9,000, but gave more than this amount.

Two and a quarter million dollars might seem a huge sum, but the United States was asked for thirty-five million, but has to date given over fifty-four millions, with many places yet to hear from.

The Americans were generous in subscribing to the comfort of the 'Sammies' overseas and at home. The city of Toronto is after one half a million of dollars and Ottawa is asked for $75,000.

The money that will be raised in Canada is to be spent on the Canadian army at home, in England and in the firing line in France and Flanders, in the camps, hospitals troop trains, transports and for drink for the soldiers. Millions of cups of tea and cocoa have been distributed. In the recent offensive the Y.M.C.A. lost over $500,000 in material so rapid was the advance of the Huns. The Y.M.C.A. cantonments are right up to the front firing line, as is testified by the wounding of some of the "Y" officers. Captain Irwin of the Y.M.C.A., although a non-combatant, "went over the top" with the Canadian Tommies and has not been heard of since. Captain Whitehouse, another Y.M.C.A. officer, died from over work, so strenuous were his duties.

City Machinery Is Exposed And Still Attracts The Boys

City Engineer Parsons was informed last night that city employees are neglecting to comply with the Council's demand that all machinery shall be covered or placed beyond the easy reach of children. The dump cart and scraper were left yesterday on the triangular lot at the corner of Park, Reid and Sherbrooke streets, and numerous "Penrods" imagined themselves engineers and other deckhands on the stranded scraper. Just such carelessness had cost the city $300 last year when a boy caught his finger in the machinery of a grader. Mr. Parsons was instructed to see that the machinery is carefully locked or withdrawn from such open and inviting places.

Internal Difficulties Cast Shadow Over Germany

Accumulation of Distress and Discord Are Causing Uneasiness to the Teutonic Leaders—Emperor Karl Boycotted.

FOOD SHORTAGE

(United Press Service.)

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, May 3.— Serious internal difficulties of the Central Powers are following the stoppage of Von Hindenburg's offensive along the west front. Food, political and dynastic problems have been accumulating in Germany and Austro-Hungary while the world has had its attention fixed upon military events in Picardy and Flanders. A sudden collapse of the Teutonic resistance because of new domestic crisis is not to be expected, but there can be no doubt of the undermining effect upon the morale of the Hohenzollern absolutist regime.

Disquieting Stage.

In both Austria-Hungary and Prussia demands in local parliaments for political reforms are reaching a disquieting stage of insistence. The vested interests have united against any extension of democracy and are resolved to continue the struggle for their own privileges regardless of the consequences.

Revolutions therefore are not probable. At the same time the reduction of food rations are being announced in Germany while the Austro-Hungarian government has been forced to seize the private food stores of the peasants to keep the cities from starvation. At Vienna the pro-Germans have begun a boycott of Emperor Karl because he is showing a small spirit of independence and does not confess to belief in the omnipotence of the Hohenzollerns. The young Emperor's position would be precarious if Germany were to win the war and could dictate terms of peace.

Policy of Reaction.

In that event Karl might be compelled to abdicate, so that a puppet more agreeable to Germany could be put on the throne at Vienna. That these accumulations of distress and discord are causing uneasiness to Teutonic leaders is apparent from the recent utterances of Chancellor Von Hertling desploring a too arrogant policy of reaction by Prussian junkers.

These sources of unrest may not by themselves cause a revolt, but they may well contribute to that purpose, once the Allies begin winning military victories against Von Hindenburg. In that possibility centres the chief interest of the present domestic troubles of the Central Empires.

Disastrous Fire At Three Rivers

Large Number of Stores and Residences Were Destroyed—Fire is Still Raging

HELP ON THE WAY

(Canadian Press.)

Three Rivers, Quebec., May 3. — A disastrous fire broke out this morning on Bonaventure street. A large number of stores and residences were very quickly destroyed. Help has been asked for from Quebec and Montreal.

Three Rivers was visited by a disastrous fire in 1906 when half the city was burned.

The fire was under control after a three hour fight. Forty buildings destroyed. Damage $150,000.

BUSINESS REMOVED

Mr. Fine Has Leased the Clegg Store and Will Shortly Move There.

The patrons of Mr. F. Fine's dry goods and ready-to-wear store at 309 George Street will be interested in learning that he has leased the large three-storey premises at present occupied by Clegg & Co., as a furniture store, at 427 George Street. Mr. Fine is making preparations to occupy these premises as quickly as possible; and, in the meantime, has announced an extensive removal sale, which starts to-morrow morning. This sale will be continued from day to day until the whole of his present stock is sold, as his intention is to open his new store with an entire new stock of goods. Those interested should read Mr. Fine's large announcement in another page of this paper, and learn the particulars of this sale; and the bona fide bargains offered.

Mr. Fine has been in business in Peterborough for nine years, and was the first merchant to occupy the Taylor block, where he has continued to do an increasing business ever since. His pushing business methods have brought him a large list of patrons from both town and country, and his store has been recognized as being one of the leading bargain houses in the city.

APPEALS HEARD.

The following judgment was given in Osgoode Hall yesterday:

Appellate Division.

Before Mulock, C. J.; Clute, J.; Riddell, J.; Sutherland, J.; Kelly, J.

Clarke v. Stratton (three appeals).—R. R. Hall and J. A. O'Brien (Peterborough) for executors. D. O'Connell for residuary legatees. W. C. McKay for plaintiffs. Appeals by executors, by residuary legatees and by plaintiff from judgment of Falconbridge, C.J., of 14th February, 1918. Argument of appeal resumed from yesterday and concluded. Appeals of defendants allowed with costs and cross-appeal dismissed with costs if asked in each case. If the plaintiff surrenders any interest in the certificates and the case stops here the defendants abandon their counterclaim; otherwise the counter-claim is allowed.

WEEKLY HALF HOLIDAY.

FENELON FALLS, May 3.—The merchants and other business men of this place have decided to close their places of business at 12 o'clock (noon) each Wednesday during May, June, July, August and September. This will afford a fine opportunity to help greater production.

PLEASE DECORATE

The members of the Retail Merchants Association are requested to decorate their places of business on the occasion of the visit to Peterboro of His Excellency, the Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General of Canada. Thos. Barrie, President; Jos. Maher Secretary. 2d

PETERBOROUGH SOLDIER RETURNED TO-DAY.

Pte. J. Smith arrived home this morning at 8.10. He was met at the train by Mayor Duncan, and was taken to his home opposite the Fire Hall.

BUTCHER'S NOTICE

The butchers of the city will close their stores on Thursday 12.30, Saturday nights 9.30. Other nights at 6. No 'phone orders taken after 7.30 on Saturday nights. 3d-101

FIRST EXCURSION OF THE SEASON

The first excursion of the season, on May 24th, under the auspices of the Salvation Army, will go to Hiawatha, and bids fair to be the biggest yet. The Stoney Lake and the Geneva have both been chartered for the occasion. Two bands will accompany the excursion and will give a united festival on the grounds at Hiawatha.

The boats will leave George street wharf at 8 o'clock sharp. Tickets will be for sale next week and as the boats only hold a limited number it would be well to get the tickets early.

Grocers

Started to close at 6 o'clock Wednesday night and will continue throughout the term of the daylight saving. They will also close at 9.30 Saturday evenings. This action was taken to conform with the Greater Production movement. 2d-103

WAR VETERANS.

Every member of the G.W.V.A. in Peterborough is requested to be at the Armouries Monday morning at 9 o'clock for the reception of the Duke of Devonshire. The Governor-General is to open the new Club-rooms in the morning, and a large attendance is requested. All returned men in the city are invited to turn out with the Veterans. As far as the Veterans' share in the reception is concerned, it will be over at noon, so that the men will not lose a whole day's work. 2d-101

Summary Of To-day's War News

NEW YORK, May 3.— The Associated Press war summary this afternoon says: While the new German stroke on either the northern or southern battle front is still delayed, the French have taken the initiatve in the latter field and delivered a telling blow south-east of Amiens. Attacking on a front of more than a mile between Hailles and Castel, General Petain's troops yesterday evening drove the Germans from Hill 82, an eminence of some 250 feet, overlooking the Avre river, and captured a wood to the east and south-east, immediately bordering on the Avre. The ground thus gained is probably more valuable than that of any other area which lies along the entire Somme line. It was at Hailers that the Germans effected their greatest westward penetration in their Amiens drive, and at Hill 82 they were within less than three miles of the important Paris-Amiens railway.

TRYING TO UNIONIZE RUSSIAN FORCES

Members of Kerensky Cabinet Have Been Released From Gaol

Special to the Examiner.

BERNE, May 3.—Members of the Kerensky Cabinet have been released from Mitikin prison and have accepted Government positions, according to a despatch from Petrograd received here to-day.

The Bolsheviki are trying to unionize the Russian Socialists with the object of effecting a coalition government capable of demanding a revision of the Brest-Listosk treaty.

TALENT TEA WAS A SUCCESS

The talent tea given yesterday at the home of Mrs. Stanley, 485 Stewart street, was a successful affair, and a considerable amount of money raised to buy comforts for the soldiers.

A feature of the evening was the drawing for the embroidered bag donated by Mrs. Earle Downie. Mrs. Malone was successful, her ticket number 1, being drawn for her by little Miss Kent. The affair continued with a little dance until 2 o'clock this morning.

DON'T WORRY over the bad business of yesterday. Use newspaper advertising and make it good to-morrow.

400 AUSTRALIANS IN N.Y.

Soldiers En Route to Europe March Through Streets to Help Liberty Loan.

NEW YORK, May 2.—New Yorkers were treated to a new spectacle to-day, when 400 Australian soldiers, en route to European battlefields, paraded in behalf of the Liberty Loan.

BELL TELEPHONE CONFERENCE CONCLUDES.

At yesterday evening's session of the Bell Telephone Conference, which has been held in the city for the past two days, Mr. W. H. Black, the secretary of the company, gave a splendid address explaining the Pension and Benefit system operated by the company, outlining the operations of the divided system and the source of benefit it is to the employees of the company.

MEETING OF THE PARENTS' CIRCLE.

Owing to the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire to the city on Monday, the Parents' Circle of Queen Mary School will hold their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. All members and teachers are urgently requested to be present, as arrangements have to be made at this meeting for an open night to be held at the school sometime during the month.

Anniversary Opening At Heintzman Hall

To-morrow Will Mark a Wonderful Year's Business

Just a year ago Heintzman Hall opened their handsome musical warerooms in the Royal Bank Building. To-morrow an anniversary will be observed, and the public is cordially invited to be present. There will be a six-piece orchestra, and the rooms will be handsomely decorated. There will be special floral souvenirs for the ladies—roses and carnations.

You are invited to-morrow afternoon and evening just to spend a pleasant hour on this occasion.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THREE DAYS' CAMPAIGN HAVE BEEN COMPLETED

Arrangements are now complete for the great Three Days' Campaign in the Salvation Army, May 24, 25, and 26. Colonel and Mrs. McMillan, Chief Secretary of the Salvation Army for Canada East; Brigadier and Mrs. Morehen of Montreal, Adj. and Mrs. Bunton of Toronto, together with the Dovercourt Silver Band of thirty-five pieces, will visit the city. Four Band Festivals will be given, one on Friday night in Victoria Park, after the return of the excursion; one on Saturday morning at 10 a.m., in the city maret, one on Saturday evening in the S. A. Temple at 8 o'clock, and still another on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Victoria Park. The week end meetings will be in charge of Brigadier and Mrs. Morehen and will no doubt be great times of blessing, to which all are invited.

"CLEOPATRA" PROVES A WONDERFUL PICTURE

The wonderful Fox film version of "Cleopatra," featuring Theda Bara, the modern film siren, as the famous Egyptian enchantress, was shown twice at the Grand yesterday and delighted two big crowds. The Fox version of the life of Cleopatra has been filmed at great expense and with a faithful adherence to accuracy in costumes and settings, with the result that the picture is a most impressive and thrilling one. Theda Bara, in the title role does some of the finest acting she has ever shown, and her costumes are marvellous, albeit sometimes rather scanty. In some of the scenes great masses of men are used in a manner suggesting several of the spectacles in "Intolerance." A notable feature is the realistic filming of the battle of Actium, when the vessels of Cleopatra and Anthony are crushed by the fleet of Octavius. The assassination of Julius Caesar, Mark Anthony's famous speech following that event, and other episodes in the history of the period are magnificently portrayed.

From an artistic and spectacular standpoint, the picture leaves nothing to be desired and should be seen by all local film patrons. It will be shown at the Grand again to-night and to-morrow afternoon and evening.

DETROIT, Mich., May 3.—Henry Ford to-day became the involuntary object of a movement to place him in one of the Michigan seats in the United States Senate, to succeed William Alden Smith, retiring.

Will Compel Mr. Wm. Snowden To Remove Fence From Street Line

City teamsters applied to the Board of Works last evening for an increase of wages from $3.50 to $6 the day. High cost of living and price of horse feed, etc., were given as a reason for the request.

While eighteen teamsters signed the petition, only four are at present in the city's employ to-day. Others are employed temporarily from time to time.

Ald. Edgar said that a short time ago the city raised their teamsters' wages voluntarily from $3 to $3.50, and he though that sufficient pay for a nine-hour day and steady employment.

These teamsters point out that teamsters employed by the Quaker Oats get $6.25 a day. But the latter work 10 hours a day, and their engagement is only temporary.

On motion of Ald. Edgar and Worth no action was taken on the request.

Right-of-Way.

W. G. Ferguson, for the Hydro-Electric Commission, and Thos. Laing, manager, Auburn Power House, were present on the question of a right-of-way for the new power feed wire from Auburn through property south of Hunter Street East to cross the river to the sub-station at Sherbrooke Street.

On motion of Ald. Edgar, Mr. Ferguson and the City Engineer will report on a plan for this power wire to run along Burnham Street and strike a line between the Dickson property and the brewery on its course to the river, and to report on what terms its crossing necessary private property can be secured.

This wire will carry 6,600 volts, and will feed a large portion of the city.

Conduits for wires in the new Hunter Street bridge are under consideration.

Dispute Over Fence.

G. W. Hall wrote that Wm. Snowden has removed his hedge on the south side of his lot on Dalhousie Street, and is replacing same with a fence which encroaches on the street line six feet more or less. On the east side of this lot he has built a board fence at least four feet high out to a point six feet more or less on the street line. Mr. Hall complained that if Mr. Snowden is permitted to complete this fence on the south side of his lot the former's property, which adjoins that of Mr. Snowden, will depreciate in value.

On motion of Ald. Taylor and Jones this matter went to the City Engineer to define the street line and compel Mr. Snowden to remove the offending fence.

Request Refused.

W. J. Byers, of Brownton, wanted permission to connect with the city's sewer, across the street, he to pay the cost of construction.

Mr. Byers' property is on the west side of Monaghan Road, outside the corporation, while the sewer he wishes to connect with is on the east side in the city's limits.

Br. Byers will be notified that it is contrary to the city's policy to allow people outside the corporation's limits to connect with the city's sewers.

Sewer Is Sinking.

On motion of Ald. A. A. McIntyre and Saunders the City Engineer was instruction to attend to that portion of the Romaine Street sewer which is sinking.

Henry Hope Co. Have Planted Maples And Improved Premises

The Henry Hope Company have levelled the lawn in front of their factory, have planted maple trees paralleling Monaghan road, and have otherwise improved the appearance of their premises They have also asked the city for permission to build a fence in line with the railing that extended, close to the sidewalk, from Romaine street almost to the Hope plant. The railing was erected as a protection to the public from the danger of falling into the gully to which the sidewalk is a tangent. The proposed fence would be outside the street line, and on that account, it has been opposed by City Engineer Parsons. This matter was again discussed last night, but no decision will be given until the aldermen look over the position on their annual spring inspection trip.

New Submarines Are Reported

U-BOATS ARE DRIVEN ON SURFACE BY STEAM — SEVERAL DESTROYED.

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, May 3.—A new submarine cruiser has been launched by the Germans, according to reports published here.

The new U-boats are driven on surface by steam engines with telescopic funnels, which are drawn in when submerged. They are armed with 5.9 inch guns which throw a shell weighing more than ninety pounds. Several of these super-submarines already have been sunk.

Kaiser Accepted His Own Invitation

INHABITANTS OF INVADED PROVINCES HAVE NO LONGING FOR 'ALL HIGHEST' AS KING

BERNE, May 3.—Kaiser Wilhelm invited himself to accept the crowns of Livonia, Estonia, Lithunia and Courland, according to a written statement published in 'La Voix Peuple'' at Chemnitz. This statement was made by one of the members of the delegation that went to the Kaiser to offer him the crowns. The delegate declared that the Kaiser invited himself to wear the crowns by a message transmitted through his sub-prefect at Dorput and that the inhabitants of the provinces involved were against the project and had no part in the "popular demand" for Wilhelm as king.

FORMER CLIENT GOT JUDGMENT FROM J. GUISE-BAGLEY TO-DAY

"It's all in the game," said Mr. J. Guise Bagley in Division Court this morning when he admitted that the earning power of a former client had not been impaired two cents a week by an injury for which $300 damages had been received from the city.

"You shouldn't' have taken all that money from the city," Judge Huycke remarked, to which Mr. Bagley offered the extenuation that it was all according to the Hoyle of law.

This morning's somewhat illuminating action found Mr. Bagley defendant with his one time client, Mortimer Shannon, the plaintiff. Shannon's young son lost the tip of a little finger while prying into the works of the city's road grader which had been left unguarded on the vacant lot at the corner of Lake and Park Streets one day last fall. The city's neglect was patent, and City Solicitor Gordon advised a settlement, which was formally confirmed by a High Court judgment.

The $300 damages was split three ways. Mr. Bagley got $100, Mr. Shannon was to get another hundred and the remaining hundred was paid into court for Clifford G. Shannon, who had suffered the injury. Mr. Bagley depreciated this morning. The Division Court case revolved around Mr. Shannon's $100. Of that sum he received from Mr. Bagley a cheque for $13 in full settlement of their accounts, and, according to the evidence, performed something of a war dance when he found that his share had shrunk to a paltry $13.

Mr. Bagley had paid Dr. King $33, of which $6 was for treatment of Mrs. Shannon. He also advanced $26 to the plaintiff for wood, which Shannon eventually could not, at any rate, did not deliver. This item complicated the case slightly, for Mr. Bagley stated that when he finally purchased his supply of wood, he had to pay about $20 a cord, for three cords, and when Shannon did the war dance in Mr. Bagley's office, the latter decided that his client would pay for the wood at the current price.

In short, Mr. Shannon's $100 was distributed as follows: Dr. King, $33; the money advanced for the wood, $26, and the $13 settlement cheque, a total of $72.50.

Apparently the balance of $27.50 was retained by Mr. Bagley to cover the excess of his wood account, and it was to recover that sum that this morning's Division Court suit was entered.

Judge Huycke awarded Shannon $27.50 and costs. Mr. O. A. Langley was solicitor for Mr. Shannon.

SOLD HOME TO PAY FINE.

LONDON, Ont., April 30.—Mrs. Jane McGuffin, a Thorndale Village woman, who was sentenced by Police Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon yesterday to the unusual penalty of one day in jail and a fine of $500, in default of which she should remain six months in the cells, paid her fine today. Mrs. McGuffin, under pressure of her sentence, sold her little home in Thorndale for $700. She had been convicted of the theft of $25 worth of baby trinkets from a local departmental store. She had no use for the articles and the defence was that she is a kleptomaniac.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

SPORTING COMMENT

Among the new players with the Athletics is Infielder Maurice Shannon, one of the "Shannon twins," whom the Braves gave a trial in 1915.

Outfielder Walter Rehg is not with the Braves, having refused to accept the salary offered. Stallings has enough outfielders, but probably could have had a place for the peppery kid.

Marty O'Toole, celebrated a few years ago as the most expensive purchase of a major league club from the minors, will be with the Omaha club this season.

Hollocher must outplay Chuck Wortman to land the shortstop job on the Cub team.

A Washington high school pitcher named Herpsberger, who recently hung up twenty-one strike-outs in a nine-inning game, will be given a trial by Clark Griffith. Herpsberger is only 17 years old.

Sam Crawford has made a fine start with the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League. His fielding, throwing and batting were features in the first game that he worked.

Polo Stick Brought $6,500.

The record price for a sporting souvenir was paid recently for a polo stick used in the international polo match between America and England in 1911 at Meadow Brook, L.I. The stick was auctioned at the Hippodrome, Brighton, England, for the benefit of the war hospital, and brought the fine sum of $6,500.

Crafty Bride.

After the wedding ceremony the newly-married pair sought their new cottage home. Then the bride held her wedding ring to her ear, as children hold shells when listening for the "waves."

"What are you doing?" asked her husband.

"Listening to the music," was the prompt reply of the lady, who had certain suspicions about her new ornament.

"Music?" who ever heard of music in a wedding ring?" scoffed the man

"That's as may be," retorted the bride; "but have you never heard a brass band play?"—Montreal News.

BIRD NOTES.

How Their Familiar Songs Are Translated Into English.

Sandy pastures are the favorite home of the quail, bobwhite as we more properly call them. "Bobwhite" is as cheery and common a note there as is the gentler, and more musical song of the bluebird. Sometimes the country folk say that the bird is a rain prophet and that he foretells changes by calling, "More wet, more wet." There are times, however, when the bird whistles three times instead of two, and thereon the soothsayers are divided, some saying he calls, "More, more wet," others "No more wet." In any case, one or the other of them is sure to be right, and the reputation of the bird as a proper prophet is sustained. Bobwhite winters well when the ground is bare, in spite of the cold, finding plenty of food in weed seeds and frozen insects. Winters in which the snow comes deep and crusts, however, destroy these gentle birds by the thousand. Families remain together throughout the winter, scattering if alarmed, but calling one to another and getting together again as soon as possible after the trouble is over. Ten or a dozen eggs are laid, and often there are two broods, sometimes three, so that after a good season the family flock is likely to be large. At night the birds bunch together on the ground, huddling with heads out in a close circle. Thus they may foresee danger from whatever direction it arrives, and thus the snow covers them and keeps them warm and safe under its blanket until at daybreak the birds with one united effort shake off their down coverlet and burst forth for the day's work. Sometimes, alas! the snow packs beyond their strength or rain crusts it, and they remain where they are. Many a searcher of the spring woods has found them thus, their soft feathers and white bones alone marking the burial place.

It is probable that there are other translations of the call of the quail than "bobwhite" and "more wet," but the Nomad does not know them. Nearly all our commonly known wild birds have had their songs or calls characterized by translation into words. Sometimes they seem very definitely to say one thing or two at the most, like the quail. The whippoorwill and the chickadee both announce their names which few could fail to recognize. The robin's songs is more varied. Commonly you will find the tradition that the robin sings his song in derision of the country doctor, saying "Kill him; cure him; give him physic." But the Nomad has also heard it rendered "Jonathan Gillett, scoured the skillet, scoured it bright and clean."

The bobolink's song, with its crowding eloquences of liquid, tinkling notes, might well be expected to defy musical notation in terms of ordinary syllables, and no doubt it does. Yet many attempts have been made to put the song into words, perhaps more with the bobolink than with that of any other bird. The bird's name itself is onomatopoetic, a term that itself suggests the crowded redundancy of the song. Most attempts to put the song into words begin with the name, suggesting usually a bookish source of the inspiration.

Bobolink, bobolink,
Spink spank, spank spink, etc.

is one of them. The Nomad heard one the other day, however, which did not seem to have any spark of bookish inspiration in it. Instead it was racy of the soil. He imagined it bubbling forth from the heart of some straw-hatted farmer who paused to wipe the sweat from his brow in the heat of the first hoeing, and whose heart was filled with June as was that of the bird that soared and sang in the nearby haying field. Say it quickly and you'll get the jumbled sequence of notes and the gurgling inconsistency of the song:

Waddle link, waddle link,
We five beans four corn pumpkin seeds,
Go to old England,
Speculate, speculate.

Advice to an Author.

The author who writes that he likes "the man or woman crammed with animal spirits, who isn't afraid to make motions, to laugh out loud, to run, to jump, to climb, to make a lot of noise," ought to trade flats with one who lives under a pair who are rehearsing for an imitation animal vaudeville stunt.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

GREATER PRODUCTIONS.

Dominion Will Give $2800,000 to Aid the Provinces.

The acreage in Western Canada this year will be the largest ever cultivated, and every province in the Dominion is planning to greatly increase the production of food, according to official reports to the Government. The Prime Minister recently gave Parliament an idea of what has already been accomplished with a view to providing foodstuffs for the allies. He said the services of Dr. J. W. Robertson had been secured to represent the Food Board in the five eastern provinces. He had been in consultation with the Provincial Departments of Agriculture. Hon. Charles Dunning had personally taken charge of the work in the western provinces. The work of these gentlemen might be summarized as follows:

Ontario aims to secure organization, down to county and municipal committees, particularly to assist in labor supplies and distribution, and to bring home directly to the individual farmer the need of the greatest possible effort. Quebec aims to secure similar organization, and produce enough wheat to feed herself, and to greatly increase meat animals. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have the same objective; also, in each of these provinces the effort will be to produce enough coarse grains to meet their own requirements for animal feed.

Alberta is divided into sixteen districts and efforts are being made to insure supplies of seed, to find out what help is necessary, to secure tenants for unoccupied land, to arrange definitely with farmers for the breaking of new areas of their holdings for the 1919 crop. A Provincial Labor Bureau had been established, and the work is being assisted generally by public meetings. In Saskatchewan more than two hundred meetings have been arranged, and steps have been taken to secure all available labor from towns and cities for the farms. Manitoba's plans are practically the same as those of Saskatchewan. British Columbia sends no report yet, except in a general way, but everyone is alive to the need, and putting forth as great an effort as possible.

The reports stated that the acreage in Western Canada this year would be the largest ever planted, and as much land as possible is to be broken during the present year.

Sir Robert announced that, with the approval of the Cabinet Council, financial assistance had been promised to the various provinces as follows: Ontario, $60,000; Quebec, $60,000; Nova Scotia, $30,000; New Brunswick, $25,000; Prince Edward Island, $5,000; Manitoba, $25,000; British Columbia, $15,000; Saskatchewan, $35,000, and Alberta, $25,000.

Keep Smiling.

Happiness of heart and soul can be willed. It is psychologically true that the laugh which is at first forced may later be made genuine. Try it. Try reading the joy column of the papers and magazines. Treasure the good ones and pass them on to friends. Don't destroy a play because it is for laughing purposes only. Hunt such comedies and tell others of them. Start every day in good humor, with a smile. It will help brighten the day for others.

Stropping Razor on the Hand.

It is claimed that the finest strop for a razor is the fleshy part of one's hand below the little finger. If it is a safety razor blade grasp it between the thumb and first finger of the right hand and strike finger nail and blade at the same time on the fleshy part of the left hand. If you will do it slowly at first the motion becomes automatic. A little vaseline on the cutting edge is said to keep the blades constantly in first-class condition.

Environment.

We are very much what others think us. The reception our observations meet with gives us courage to proceed or damps our efforts. A man is a wit and a philosopher in one place who dares not open his mouth and is considered a blockhead in another. In some companies nothing will go down but coarse, practical jests, while the finest remark or sarcasm would be disregarded.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over thirty years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. Something New In Store Fronts On George Street

Indiana Limestone Used for the Front Facilities For Customers

NEW GOODS

Something new in store fronts is to be seen at Elliot's new dry goods store on George street. The bases and massive pillars are made from Indiana lime stone, cut in the beautiful lines of ancient architecture.

The doorway is paved with tiling, showing the firm name at the entrance. The show front windows are very spacious and are floored with ornamental oak, and fitted with leaded glass at the back. The front door matches the general design.

The ample prism lights over the large plate glass windows diffuse the daylight with unusual brightness.

The new metallic ceiling shows the newer ideas. The old wooden counters have been sent to the scrap heap and have been replaced with the new low standing, illuminated glass counters. Customers can sit down before the new glass counters and find them a very convenient height on which to examine goods.

The lighting system is unusually good, all the electric wiring is encased in the latest conduit system with special cut-offs. Not only were the by-laws carefully followed, but the advice of the genial, courteous and capable wiring inspector was taken in every case, and in consequence thereof they have a large reserve power of light, and the system is as safe as human ingenuity can make it.

Lighting System.

The semi-indirect system is used in the interior of the store, giving a soft subdued light similar to daylight lighting up every corner of the store with great brilliancy.

The windows have very bright illumination, without glare to the eye. Even the front iron gratings on the sidewalk have been replaced with the latest heavy glass coverings, making it impossible to cause fire by careless throwing of matches.

The work was under the general superintendence of Ald. R. N. Jones, who particularly excells in store work. The plan was drawn by our clever local architect W. H. Barry.

The store is showing an entirely new stock of goods. The main floor is devoted to hosiery, underwear, gloves, corsets, collars, handkerchiefs, ribbons, towels, fancy needle-work, and needle-work materials, wools and knitting yarns, and pictorial patterns. On the second floor you will find millinery, ready-to-wear, white-wear and the infant's department. In the baby's department you will find everything a baby wears.

The third floor is devoted to toys and special sales.

The store has entered a steady, continuous growth by adhering to their well-known policy, "A wide choice of dependable goods at the most moderate prices compatible with genuine worth."

PRINCIPAL TAYLOR TO GIVE ADDRESS

Head of Queen's University to Speak Before the Canadian Club on Monday Night

The Canadian Club of Peterboro received word to-day that Principal R. Bruce Taylor of Queen's University, has consented to come to Peterboro on Monday night and address a meeting of the Club at the Public Library. The meeting will be an open one and a cordial invitation is issued to the public generally to hear Principal Taylor on his first visit to Peterboro since taking charge at Queen's University. His subject has not yet been announced but it is certain that the speaker will have a message that will be well worth hearing, and the attendance on Monday should be limited only by the capacity of the house.

FAIR DIRECTORS HELD A MEETING

A Celebration Will Be Held on July 1st—Field Crop Competition

At a meeting of the Industrial Exhibition Board, last night, at which Mr. J. W. Cox, Vice-President, occupied the chair, in place of Mr. Denne, the President, who was in Toronto, and did not arrive until later in the evening, several outstanding difficulties and left-over business affairs were wound up satisfactorily.

EXTEND CAR LINE.

The Association hope to improve the street car facilities to the Exhibition in the near future and to build a new entrance to the grounds.

FETE DAY ON JULY 1.

A celebration on July 1st, on a big scale, with every up-to-date attraction of a city fete day, will be organized by the Association, who hope, with this attraction to keep the money in the city and give the people something worth while going to see. Horse races and special attractions, including an aeroplane, will be included in the programme.

FIELD CROP COMPETITION.

The Secretary, Mr. F. J. A. Hall, spoke strongly on the need of cautioning the farmers eligible for the field crop competition to get their entries made soon. The entries close on May 21st. Last year a number of farmers decided to enter in the middle of June, after they had got some idea how the crops were going. These solicited entries were turned down and will be this year.

The competition is open to all farmers in the county with a five-acre field and the prizes well worth competing for. Spring wheat prizes are $25, $20, $16, $14, $11, $8, $6, for oats, $20, $15, $12, $10, $8, $6, $4

The New Prices For Cigarettes

THE INCREASE WILL TAKE EFFECT TO-DAY.

Owing to the new excise duty placed on all tobaccos the price of cigarettes has nearly doubled. With the export, import ad valorem, and now this excise duty added, consumers of the cigarette will have to pay a fancy price for their particular brand. The new prices take effect to-day and as a result—

Player's will now sell for 15c straight.
Sweet Caporal, for 15c straight.
Gold Crest for 25c.
Murad and Mogul, 25c.
Fatima, for 35c.
Pall Mall (small size) 30c; (large size) 40c.
Columbia, little cigars, 25c a package.
Empire, little cigars, 30c a package.

The local representative of the Imperial Tobacco Company says he has received no word about any advance in plug or cut tobacco, but it is expected to increase in price any day. He says the advance in the price of the tobacco leaf has been enormous and on top of this the United States Government has put a heavy war tax.

Peterborough Boy Killed In Action

Sad News Comes to East City Home —Father Invalided Home

Private Herbert Harran, twenty years of age, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, and was later transferred to the 38th Battalion, is officially reported killed in action on April 22nd, 1918.

The sad news was received by his mother. His father was invalided home several months ago and is now convalescent at Queen's Military Hospital at Kingston, Ont.

Mrs. John Harran, his mother, resides at 381 Burnham street, East City.

ALD. EDGAR APPOINTED FUEL COMMISSIONER TO SATISFY AN OBJECTION OF COAL DEALERS

Ald. Edgar was appointed Fuel Commissioner at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night, succeeding Ald. Dobbin. This action reluctantly complied with a request from the fuel dealers of the city who objected that the Fuel Commissioner should have no connection with the Municipal Fuel Yard.

THREE PROPOSITIONS.

Fuel Commissioner Dobbin was not present; but he had sent to the committee the three following propositions:

That he resign from the Council and retain the Commissionership.

That he resign from the Fire, Water and Light Committee, have no connection whatever with the City's fuel yard and

That the City apply for an order in council to take fuel yards out of the hands of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, with which he shall then have no connection whatever.

Ald. Edgar did not think the coal dealers would be content with Ald. Dobbin as Fuel Commissioner under any circumstances. He understands the dealers complain that Ald. Dobbin broke faith with them last year in the matter of not holding the city's coal for an emergency, but selling it in large lots.

Ald. A. A. McIntyre did not like the tone of the dealers' letter. He thought the city should run its own business without being dictated to.

ALD. WEIR EXPLAINS.

Ald. Weir said dealers had all their money invested in their business. He would not say that Ald. Dobbin, in his capacity as administrator of the city's fuel yard had last year deliberately knocked the dealers; but the fact remains that whereas it had been agreed that the city should store 3,000 tons of coal for an emergency, when coal reached the city's fuel yard Ald. Dobbin pushed it out in four ton lots.

Ald. A. A. McIntyre thought that would relieve the dealers, and neither he nor Ald. Saunders understood that the city was to keep its coal for an emergency.

Could Not Get Coal.

Ald. Worth—"The city's coal was handled by order of the whole council; it is not fair to saddle Ald. Dobbin with the responsibility. As to a Fuel Commissioner, there is no business to-day which is no liable to investigation as a war measure. City coal was sold when coal could not be secured anywhere. Hicks promised me coal five times and I never got a pound from him. In fact for six weeks I could get none from any dealer."

Ald. A. A. McIntyre—"Neither could I."

Ald. Edgar—"The city has no right to enter into competition with the dealers. Buy as much as possible and store it for an emergency, but do not compete so long as dealers have a pound to sell. Last year some people got enough coal to see them through the winter, while others had little or none. A more equitable distribution would have saved much suffering."

The Mayor—"The only excuse the Council has for supplying large orders when they did was that they thought coal would be fairly plentiful."

Ald. Saunders—"Why, two years when I asked my dealer for four tons of coal, he replied, 'We are not booking orders.'"

God Pity Peterborough.

Ald. Worth—"Last year, before coal reached the city's fuel yard, I heard Ald. Weir say in council, he had not a pound of coal in his yard and that his teams had been idle for three weeks. If the city had not done something and all the dealers were like Ald. Weir, it would have been pretty serious for many citizens. And if it had not been for one dealer (Mr. Hicks) from whom I could not get coal, God pity Peterborough! Whatever was done the dealers complain of was the work of the Council and not Ald. Dobbin. That should be distinctly understood."

Ald. Edgar Gets Job.

Ald. A. A. McIntyre and Worth moved that Ald. Dobbin be retained as Fuel Commissioner.

Ald. Jones—"I think we should work in harmony with the coal dealers. They have all signed that objection, and there must be something in it."

This had weight with the committee and Ald. McIntyre with his motion.

Ald. Taylor and A. A. McIntyre moved that Ald. Edgar be appointed Fuel Commissioner.

This carried.

No salary goes with the position but the Commissioner will be allowed clerical help.

Pay All Taxes.

The Metal Products having left the city one year within the expiration of their agreement with the city under which they enjoyed tax exemption, the company will be charged full taxes for this year.

Governor's General's Visit.

It was arranged that the whole City Council will be present in the procession and at the reception and luncheon of Monday to His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General of Canada.

His Grace will be accompanied by the Duchess of Devonshire, Lady Blanche Cavendish and Col. Henderson.

There were present Mayor Duncan, Chairman Ald. Weir, Aldermen Taylor, Langford, Malcolm McIntyre, Worth, Edgar, A. A. McIntyre, Saunders, and Jones.

EFFORT WILL BE MADE TO SECURE A VOCATIONAL TRAINING SCHOOL IN PETERBOROUGH

Board of Trade Held a Meeting Last Evening and Adopted Important Resolution Preliminary to Approaching the Government—Street Railway Extension Discussed.

WAR VETERANS' MEMORIAL

"The Peterborough Board of Trade respectfully submit to the Dominion Government that Peterborough is an important manufacturing centre and has no facilities for technical or vocational training and urges the establishment of a vocational training and technical school in Peterborough to be known as the Great War Veterans' Association Vocational Technical School, and directs that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Board of Education and the City Council."

The foregoing resolution was passed at a meeting of the Board of Trade held last evening in the City Council Chambers. Mr. J. J. Turner, President of the Board, presided. A representative gathering took part in the discussion, including the executive of the Industrial Exhibition Board, headed by Mr. R. Denne, President of the Board. The directors, as Mr. Denne explained, were interested in street railway extension along Lansdowne street, which forms the northern boundary of the exhibition grounds.

[illegible] with the suggestion that a debit balance of [illegible] dollars be eliminated from the books of the Board Mr. J. J. Turner and Mr. James Kendry agreed to assume the liability between them, so that money received in connection with the canvas for new members will be used for expenses incurred during the year.

A Memorial.

The resolution recommending the establishment in Peterborough of a vocational training and technical school was introduced by Mr. W. R. Breyfogle and seconded by Mr. J. J. Hartley. Mr. Breyfogle was of the opinion that such a school, if established here would form an appropriate memorial for the Great War Veterans and would be of a very practical and permanent nature.

Mr. F. D. Kerr said he was tremendously impressed with the need of such an institution in Peterborough and he reminiscently remarked that when he started out on his career he was attracted to Peterborough by reason of the city's logical situation as an important manufacturing and industrial centre. He believed that such a school was an absolute necessity.

Mr. J. W. Worth thought the Board should get statistics showing the number of men enlisted in this district with which to impress the Government with the need of a vocational training school here. Mr. Turner believed that the Government would have this information on hand.

Mr. J. J. Hartley expressed his approval of the scheme and was followed by Mr. R. Sheehy, who expressed a similar view.

Mr. James Kendry did not approve of long apprenticeship. A boy who spent seven years as an apprentice wasted six of them. With a technical school the student would become more efficient and of more service to the company with which he was employed. The technical training would be followed by a practical training in the factory.

The resolution was unanimously endorsed and a committee of five members of the Board of Trade will be appointed to wait on the City Council and the Board of Education and discuss the matter with the object of securing complete co-operation from as many sources as possible.

Street Railway Extension.

Three members of the Board will be appointed to co-operate with the Railway committee of the City Council in the matter of street railway extension and to report back to the Board.

The Board also decided to support the railway policy of the City Council and assist in the work.

The members of the Industrial Exhibition Board who were present were invited to ally themselves with the Board of Trade in the form of a section of the Board, with three members representing the Exhibition Board. Other members of the Exhibition Board have the privilege of becoming members of the Board of Trade. Mr. R. Denne, speaking for the Industrial Directors, said that the Board would take the matter up at a subsequent meeting.

PTE. J. MONKS IS WOUNDED

Mrs. Monks, Orpington Road, received a wire from Ottawa this morning informing her that her husband, Pte. John Monks, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, was admitted to the [illegible] Hospital at Eastbourne, on April 26th, suffering from a gunshot wound in the left foot. Pte Monks went overseas with Lieut.-Colonel Johnston's unit, and was transferred to the first Battalion in France.

Knife Pickwick Handled.

There is a first-rate anecdote in Mr J. J. Hissey's book, "Gossip of the Road," concerning the popularity of Dickens—or Pickwick. One of the two, but which one? Mr. Hissey was staying at the Angel, in Bury St. Edmunds, and was reflecting aloud on the fact that Mr. Pickwick was supposed to have stayed there, when his host indignantly exclaimed: 'Supposed! This, sir, is the very inn where he stopped! I've the very carving knife that Mr. Pickwick used when he was here."—Christian Science Monitor.

Phrenological.

An odd reminder, says the Independent, of the days when phrenology was popular as a means of "reading character," with a sly dig at the tendency of its professors to give complimentary explanations of the "bumps," is found in a letter from Elizabeth Barrett Browning advertised for sale in a London bookseller's catalogue. It reads in part: "Do you believe in phrenology? Did you ever [illegible]

Early-Day Buttons.

The ancients incited buttons—[illegible] wonders, indeed, how they got along without them, but evidently they possessed studs of modern pattern [illegible] as those with which we fasten our cuffs and collars. And, in truth, they did even have a kind of button (though not sewn on), which fastened garments with a pin and hook exactly in the way our brooches and clasp pins operate.

Some Shade in All Lives.

Persons who foolishly conclude that life is all sunshine and roses will when they least expect it, be rudely awakened from this pleasant dream. Each one of us has a certain work to do, certain cares and responsibilities to contend with, and if we think that the Fates are going to spare us from anything that savors of trial or anxiety a gigantic surprise is in store for us.

SWORN TO AND GUARANTEED

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, MAY 3RD, 1918.

MONDAY'S VISIT.

The citizens of Peterboro should loyally respond to Mayor Duncan's request to decorate their premises for the visit of His Excellency, the Governor General, on Monday. It is fitting that Peterboro should put on its brightest array in honour of the King's representative, and so, especially along the route of his drive through the city, citizens should see to it that all the flags and bunting possible are used. People are not much given to flag-waving in Peterboro, as was evidenced on the recent anniversary of the 2nd Battle of Ypres, but on the occasion of the Governor-General's visit, traditions should be upset. And use the longer hours of daylight in a clean-up campaign. Let Peterboro leave on the mind of the Duke of Devonshire an impression of bright city homes, clean yards and lawns, and a people whose loyalty, proven by the magnificent recruiting record her sons have established, will be reflected in street after street, lined with flags.

AN ORIGINAL FIRST.

In the praise bestowed on Peterboro's many gallant sons who have served overseas, we are sometimes inclined to forget that Peterboro's daughters have also played a noble part in war efforts. The return on furlough of Nursing Sister Beatrice Blewett, an "Original First," will serve to remind us of the self-sacrificing band of Peterboro nurses who have so splendidly looked after the boys from this country, and from Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand, who have fallen wounded in the Empire's battles. Nursing Sister Blewett went overseas with the 1st Canadian contingent, and her duties have called her to many parts of Britain's battle line, as she has carried on her mission as an angel of mercy in England, France, Saloniki, Isle of Lemnos and Alexandria. She has been on duty practically from the very beginning of the war, and has to return overseas within the next two weeks. Citizens of Peterboro in honouring Nursing Sister Blewett for her splendid work overseas will unite in hoping that her short furlough at home will be a happy one.

COMPULSORY TRAINING.

In his address to the Collegiate Institute Cadet Corps on Wednesday Lieut.-Col. Gillespie, Cadet Inspector announced that he had been informed from Ottawa that in the near future a system of compulsory drill and physical training would in all probability be introduced into Canadian schools. There was a time when the introduction of such things into the school curriculum would have been resented, but it is believed that the step would be welcomed now. A certain amount of military training anod physical exercises under qualified instructors, would have a most beneficial effect upon the physique of the young students. While the Canadian boy is a natural athlete and glories in baseball hockey, swimming and other pastimes, all of which are health giving and body building, there is nothing like intelligent, supervised physical training to straighten the shoulders and erase general defects in physique, teaching youngsters to walk erect and smartly. The need of such a system can be seen at any of our schools at the present time, and the benefits of the training is observable among the youngsters who have had the benefit of instruction in the Y.M.C.A gymnasium.

HELP THE Y.M.C.A.

In addition to the gratitude that should be felt for the assistance that it has given to the hundreds of Peterboro soldiers in France, Peterboro has a direct interest in the military work of the Y.M.C.A. overseas, in that Captain Ernie Best, a former well-known resident of this city, is in charge of the operations. Peterboro is asked to contribute $10,000 next week to help carry on the work for another year. There have been many calls on the generosity of the public. Some people have perhaps grown weary giving, but it should always be remembered that the boys out there in France, weary as they must be of war, with its perils, its slaughter, and its hardships, are fighting on, sticking to the end. As long as they show such a noble spirit, people at home must also stick to the end. Any sacrifices that the people of Canada are making are small in comparison with those of the soldiers at the front, and, therefore all that can be done to make their condition brighter should be cheerfully undertaken.

In this connection the work of the Y.M.C.A. is a big factor. In another column are some interesting facts that show the stupendous nature of the undertaking. Don't fail to read the synopsis of the work that is being done, and be ready to do your part in seeing that the campaign shall not fall down through lack of funds.

PATRIOTIC GIRLS.

A organization that has been effectively and unostentatiously carrying on war work in Peterborough, is the Business Girls' Club. Comprised, as its name suggests, of the girls employed in the various offices throughout the city, there are no idlers in its membership, and the Peterboro boys overseas have had many opportunities to be thankful for the activities of this band of young ladies.

Naturally, the call for greater food production has been heard by the Business Girls' Club, and with their usual enterprise and zeal, the members have decided to respond. Their effort is taking the form of a community war garden, and already the club's campaign is under way. A splendid lot of ground, east of the Court House, has been secured, and each evening sees a big squad of "gardenerettes" at work preparing the land for the crops that will reduce the cost of living, and save food for the Allies. The girls have undertaken their campaign in a business like way that promises well for the success of their effort. The work is under the direct control of a committee of two, while four supervisors direct the labour of as many squads of seven or eight girls each. The lot has been divided into four garden plots, identical in size, and the rivalry among the four squads will naturally tend to produce better results and bigger crops.

The members of the Business Girls' Club are to be congratulated upon the prompt and effective manner in which they have answered the great S.O.S. call to Canada to produce more food. They are pointing the way to a greater effort on the part of the sterner sex.

THE FIRE REGULATIONS.

There will be general agreement with the statement of Mr. J. G. Smith, of the Dominion Conservation Commission before the fire insurance commission, that local politics are a great factor in preventing the carrying out of proper fire protection by-laws. Mr. Smith's remedy, that legislation be made provincial wide so that the enforcement of fire regulations might be taken out of the hands of municipal council, is one that is worthy of consideration, although the alternative suggested by Mr. Justice Masten that a permanent fire commission be chosen in each municipality to replace the Fire committee of the Council might possibly meet with more general favour.

That there is necessity of some such step is evident. As Mr. Smith points out there is no continuity of policy in municipal fire committees because the personnel of such committees is constantly changing. In some cases, too, Mr. Smith states there is no doubt that the position of the fire chief may depend upon his ability in keeping in with the committee.

In regard to the carrying out of fire bylaws, too, the influence of local politics is felt. It is not necessary to go outside of Peterborough to find examples. By-laws are passed fixing the fire limits and establishing the nature of the building that is permitted within such limits. So far so good, but along comes a citizen who wants to build a garage or some other building that does not conform to the by-law. An alderman is very liable to arise in Council, remark that "Smith is a pretty good fellow and it seems a hardship that he should have to build with the material called for in the by-law," and introduce a resolution permitting Mr. Smith to violate the regulations. There is almost sure to be another friend of Mr. Smith's ready to second the motion and generally enough complacent aldermen, some of whom may want a similar favour of their own in the near future, to vote in favour of the measure.

Provincial enactment of the fire regulations would abolish this condition of affairs.

That something must be done to reduce Ontario's fire losses must be apparent from the figures recently quoted which show that the loss in this province from fire is greater than in any other province or in any state of the union, which practically means the heaviest in the world.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

EVERY MAN HIS OWN DISTILLER.

(Chicago Tribune)

Sweden's excise board reports a marked increase in home distillation. We shall likely have the same thing when this country goes dry. And the slogan will be: "Keep the home fires burning."

NOT NEARLY.

(Toronto Telegram)

War taxes will not take as many dollars out of Canadians as German conquerors would.

ELECTION PROMISES.

(London Advertiser)

F. F. Pardee, M.P., admits that "during the last election the promise was made that farm labour would not be conscripted," but points to the new circumstances overseas as the reason for the change. The truth is, the promise was made without any thought being given it except that it would catch votes.

SLAUGHTER.

(New York Herald)

Von Arnim, the reckless Hun who is in command of the drive at Ypres, appears to be as reckless of human life as his fellows who do the bidding of the All Highest. Slaughter and more slaughter appears to be the keynote of all the news from the British front—terrific slaughter and no results.

SHOULD NOT HESITATE.

Hamilton Herald)

Now that the German government has officially acknowledged that hospital ships are targets for German U-boats, there is no reason why the British admiralty should hesitate to take special precautions to protect such vessels. There ought to be a score or more of German officers (prisoners of war) in the hold of every British hospital ship, and the German government should be informed that they are there.

UNFAIRNESS.

(Ottawa Journal)

There would seem to be unfairness in regulations which prevent one woman from using enough sugar to make for her family or her soldier boys a few cents worth of candy in her own kitchen, but permit her wealthy sister to buy four or five dollars' worth of candy made from sugar by the manufacturer. Previous inaction on the part of the Food Board in the matter of sugar seems to have stampeded it now when the results of its inaction are beginning to be felt.

A DYING TRADITION.

(Life)

The war is drawing people together as nothing else could. There has been a tradition, more than a century old and very widespread in the United States, that the British are our rivals and natural enemies. The temporary facts in which it originated have long ce ceased to be. The facts of the last half century have argued quite the contrary. But among people who know more of ancient history than of modern, the tradition lingered. And history is apt to be ancient before it reaches the masses of the people. Before it is sifted, analyzed, corrected, and the lie has ceased to pass about it, and it has been put into books and distributed to the schools, it is usually pretty old. But the old traditional anti-British animosity in this counry has been dying, especially for the last three years, and by the time a million Americans are fighting in France alongside of the French and Biritish, it will be dead beyond even the power of Sinn Fein to resuscitate it.

FLAVELLE REPLIES TO D. D. McKENZIE

JOE SAYS THERE IS NOTHING IN IT.

Special to Examiner:

OTTAWA, May 3.—"There is nothing in it," declared Sir Joseph Flavelle, baronet, to-day in regard to the statement made in the Commons by D. D. MacKenzie, M.P., yesterday. Sir Joseph declared that the five per cent. mentioned by MacKenzie went to the Northern Electric Company of Montreal for expert supervision in the delicate business of manufacturing fuses.

(Special to Examiner.)

Ottawa, May 3. — In the course of a brief interview this morning Sir Joseph Wesley Flavelle replied in part to certain charges contained in the speech of D. D. MacKenzie, M.P. for North Cape Breton, delivered in the House yesterday.

His reply was in reference to that portion of the speech which dealt with the relations of the Imperial Muntions Board, the British Munitions Limited, and the Toronto General Electric.

Sir Joseph Flavelle declared that the British Munition Board was a national plant; all the stock of which was vested in the Imperial Munition Board, and through it in the Crown. No member of the Imperial Munitions Board was a shareholder. But in the difficult matter of making fuses, it was necessary to secure experts. A contract was made with the Northern Electric Company whereby the experts of that company should take charge of the work on a basis of five per cent. commission.

Figuring on the price paid by Great Britain in the United States for the same fuses and allowing for the commission paid the plant of the British munitions board, had been already paid for, and in addition $400,000 had been paid back to the imperial munitions board.

"The contract," declared Sir Joseph Flavelle, "was eminently satisfactory —but no member of the Imperial Munitions Board is a stockholder in the company."

There was an old woman who lived in a shack,
She had lots of children who were all good and fat,
She got all her groceries to fill every need
At A. W. Paskin's, the place for cheap feed.

The old woman's name was Mrs. Happy and she met her neighbour, Mrs. Sour, one day, crying, and saying, Lor' I don't know how we can live with prices so high, and now there's new taxes on the food of the poor. Oh dearie me! I wish I was in 'eaven I do."

And Mrs. Happy said, "My dear, what's the use of wishin' for a place you'll never git to if you go on like this. Take my advice and smile and go to my grocer for your things, and you'll be so pleased you'll never stop smilin'. Why that man is a public benefactor, an' he'll get the Victory Cross or the Iron Cross, or something, some day. You ask him about his "hard times" system, it's as good as a free "Sick Benefit." Just walk in his store an look around an see the prices all marked up. That is, I mean, marked down, on tickets. Gee it's fine. Talk about savin' money; why I saved three dollars last week, and I'm gettin' ready for the next Victory loan. Eh! Where is it? Why—

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE Y.W.C.A. HELD LAST NIGHT

Interesting Reports Presented—Good Progress Has Been Made During the Year—Departmental Activities—Address by Y. W. C. A. Worker

THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT

At the annual meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Board, the reports of the different officials showed a most gratifying advancement in every particular. Miss Dickson, the president, who occupied the chair, opened the meeting with a few words of appreciation to the ladies in charge of the "Y," of the good work of the organization and of the four-fold development—spiritual, mental, intellectual and social, which the "Y" is advancing in every way possible amongst the young womanhood of the city.

MRS. JOHNSON'S ADDRESS.

A splendid feature of the evening was an address on "Opportunities," by Mr. Franklyn Johnson, a well-kown leader of girls in Toronto. She spoke of the opportunities which are to-day being taken by girls and women under the leading of those which have been developed since the war, leading girls into wider spheres of activities, of the opportunities of the women to lead and direct the girls aright, of the opportunities in the mission field, and in the helping out in the camps of the soldiers on active service and in training.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. (Dr.) Harvey, seconded by Mrs. Adam Hall, for the wider vision Mrs. Johnson had given the audience in opportunities to be taken.

HOUSE SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

It pleases us to be able to state that our house has been well filled throughout the year, and oftentimes its capacity has been taxed. We have had on an average 55 regular boarders, with prices of room and board ranging from $4.25 to $5.25 a week, according to the location of the room. We have als had 225 transients during the year as well as a number dropping in for meals. Our official and domestic staff numbers 11, so that for the greater part of the year we have had 70 in the house.

During the holiday season of last year we had the walls, ceilings and floors of 12 rooms painted; and the furnishings generally brightened up From the petty cash was bought certain material and rugs for all the rooms on the first bedroom floor, also table linen, serviettes, sheeting and twels, and many odds and ends which are always being needed to keep a house in perfect running order.

Last summer and in the early autumn, we did 450 quarts of fruit, a quantity of rhubarb marmalade, 100 quarts of pickles, and 60 quarts of canned tomatoes.

During the winter the staff entertained our house girls by a party, which they all thoroughly enjoyed.

On account of so many fire alarms during the winter we organized fire drill in our home, thinking it wise that every emergency should be taken to be prepared in case of emergnty.

Throughout the different months of the year we had the pleasure and privilege of having as guests a number of distinguished visitors, some of whom took evening prayers and addressed the girls, among them, Lady Falconer, the President of the Dominion Council Y.W.C.A.

On the 7th of April, the Canada Food Board placed our home under Food Regulations. After we had recovered from the first shock matters adjusted themselves very nicely, each one being willing to comply with any necessity which would be of advantage to our country.

A kind Providence has watched over us throughout the year, and protected us from any accident or serious illness. Our home has been very comfortable, quiet and happy, and we might safely say equal to any other Association in the Province. The girls assist by doing their part in living up to the deals of the home as well as possible, thereby helping to make this home what a Young Women's Christian Association ought to be.

To the House Committee I would vice my appreciation of their hearty support and their kind encouragement.

Feeling that the past year has been a successful one, we look forward to the year ahead with pleasure and confidence.

Emma Morrison, Supt

SECRETARY'S REPORT FOR 1917—1918.

Perhaps in no previous year has your Directorate been able to report such splendid activity in all departments of the work as in the year that is now closing.

The season's curriculum, which was announced at the annual Educational Rally on September 28th last, has, with one exception (and that on account of the fuel shortage) been successfully worked, and even enlarged upon, as time has gone on. Eleven regular and six executive meetings have been held since the term opened.

This Board has lost one of its most valued members during the year, in the passing of Mrs. Hunter, who for many years, was a devoted worker in the Peterboro Association, having been President of the Board for many years.

Services arranged by Mrs. W. D. Scott and her Committee, were held in November in observance of the World's Week of Prayer. The expenditure of more than $500.00 in improvements to the heating apparatus resulted in comfort throughout the House during the winter.

Under the supervision of our President (Miss Dickson) and a strong committee from the Board, assisted by a Committee from the Advisory Board, a swimming pool, second to no other Y. W. C. A. pool in the Dominion, has been installed.

As a Board we are deeply grateful to those who, through their generous subscriptions, have made this swimming pool a possibility.

The pool, which, it is being arranged to open at an early rate, is bound to prove a great attraction, and will meet a long-felt need in this city. The launching of this prject was due in a great measure to the unceasing efforts of our past General Secretary, Mrs. J. M. Douglas, who felt it necessary to relinquish her position in December last.

Miss Winnifred Parker of Toronto followed as General Secretary, and is proving herself to be pre-eminently a leader of girl life, giving due attention to the religious, intellectual and social phases of life. A city may have many needs, but none so great as that of manhood and womanhood, men of integrity and moral force, women of strong character, whose informed and devoted intelligence shall make them a power for good in every high endeavour of the community. The Young Women's Christian Association is a means for the making of such women as hos no superior, and we consider ourselves fortunate in having as General Secretary one so consecrated to the development of these high ideals.

The name of our Physical Directress has come to be to us synonymous with the terms "enthusiasm" and "success." Miss Littlefield's buoyancy of spirit and general personality radiate a beneficial influence upon her pupils, which is inestimable.

The gynasium classes have practically doubled during the year.

The result of the year's work, as exhibited at the recent closing, speaks for itself.

Miss Littlefield is to have charge of the swimming classes for the summer.

Another feature which has added interest to the Association work, has been the classes in "expression," conducted by Mrs. Frank Jenne—a graduate of McGill University, and also for some time a member of the staff.

Mrs. Morrison, who took over the duties of House Superintendent in June, is a veritable mother to all in the House.

Mrs. Morrison's reports from month to month have been most satisfactory to the House Committee and to the Board.

The house has been filled to its capacity throughout the year, the young ladies in residence showing their loyalty and patriotism by standing by the Superintendent as she endeavours to faithfully carry out the regulations as issued by the Food Controller. As a testimony illustrative of the harmony existing in the local Association, we beg to quote from a letter written to Miss Dickson by Mrs. Becker of Toronto, of the "Woman's Century," the organ of the National Council of Women: "I must tell you how much I have enjoyed my stay in your splendidly-managed Association Home.

"Both Board of Management and Staff are to be congratulated upon their successful co-operation for the benefit of young women."

The Saint John's Ambulance Class have had a splendid attendance and your Board appreciates heartily the investment of time on the part of Drs. Cameron, Greer, Eastwood and Morgan, in making these classes so highly profitable, as it also does the services of the many others who have contributed by various means in making the year 1917—18 one of the most prosperous in the history of the institution.—F. D. Cruikshank, Secretary.

THE PROGRAMME.

A well-chosen musical programme was given during the evening. Miss Flemming, in a solo entitled "When You Come Home," delighted her audience and was accompanied by Miss Burgess, while Miss Rannie and Miss Caldwell gave a splendid piano duet.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

The Treasurer, Miss Morrow, produced a report which showed a balance on May 1st, 1918, of $409.28, an outstanding account for coal of $812.03, leaving a debit account of $402.75.

Owing to the lack of space, the Secretary's report has been withheld until to-morrow.

HOUSEHOLDERS ASKED TO CONSERVE.

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, May 3.—Henry B. Thompson, chairman of the Canada Food Board, has issued a statement urging that it is the duty of householders to refrain from making at home such delicacies as macaroons, French pastry, and other things of which the Board has prohibited all manufacture for sale.

Fewer Sea Eagles Seen.

That the monarch of the air, the sea eagle, has disappeared from Caithness, as well as from the Orkneys and Shetlands, is a well-authenticated fact. The sea eagle is not very uncommon in the East Highlands, and still builds its nest on various hills abutting on the cliffy coast. The sites of the nests are on the edge of some large and well-stocked sheep farms. The birds have always been accused of killing lambs, as well as hares and wild game, but the charge would be difficult to substantiate.

Eliminating Poison Ivy.

The cheapest and most effective method of eliminating poison ivy, according to experts of the United States department of agriculture, is the simple one of routing up the plants and destroying them. If the poison ivy is in large fields it may be necessary to plow and cultivate the land. Ivy on large trees, stone walls and buildings can be killed by spraying with soda at the rate of two pounds to ten gallons of water. Two or three applications are sufficient.

Will Not Amend Lord's Day Act.

It is authoritatively stated that there is no intention on the part of the Dominion Government either to amend the Lord's Day Act or to interfere with its operation.

Gold and Carbon.

Oh, wealth will not buy happiness,
Sometimes when front and man control
We find, with worldly distress,
It will not buy a ton of coal.

Composition of Mica.

Mica, so named from its being easily divided into glistening scales, consists of silica and alumina, associated with magnesia, soda and lime in varying proportions. Thus there are potash mica, consisting of silica, alumina and potash, and magnesia mica, in which the alumina is partially replaced by magnesia, passing—as the proportion of magnesia increases—into soft talc, which is chiefly composed of silica and magnesia.

Ancient "Breadfather."

Of what great importance the loaf, which before 1200 was the name of bread, was a daily food can be inferred from its relation with the word "lord." For lord, A. S. hlaford (hlaf, bread, loaf; weard, a keeper), is probably a contraction of hlaf-weard, literally "loaf-ward" and therefore, originally signified the keeper or dispenser of bread—in short, the breadfather, to whom the members of the family had to apply for their daily bread.

How to Conquer.

Infinite toil would not enable you to sweep away a mist, but by ascending a little you may often look over it altogether. So it is with our moral improvement; we wrestle fiercely with a vicious habit, which could have no hold upon us if we ascended into a higher moral atmosphere.

Produce Artificial Silk.

An original method of producing artificial silk is claimed by a Japanese inventor. The chief ingredients are vegetable essence and mulberry tree bark.

Enormous Increases Coming In SHOE PRICES

MY ADVICE TO NEW AND OLD CUSTOMERS IS TO COME HERE AS SOON AS POSSIBLE AND BUY ALL YOU REQUIRE FOR A YEAR TO COME.—D. ZACKS.

Millions of dollars' worth of finished leather bought by British and French commissions for shipment abroad. Millions of pairs of shoes ordered by our own Government and the United States Government for soldiers—these are the big factors that will make shoes cost $3.00 to $5.00 per pair more very soon—and probably during this season.

Unless you want to close your eyes to this condition and are willing to pay heavily later for your negligence—you will heed our advice and buy now. We have made the most tremendous purchases in our history. Thousands of pairs of these shoes have now arrived at this Store and we intend to show you what our purchasing power is through a

MUSIC IN THE HOME

MAKING MUSIC INTERESTING

The study of music from the very beginning should be made interesting and thorough, even the child can be made to play with expression in her own atmosphere and by degrees the study will become a source of real pleasure and inspiration to him or her. The really good teacher must have a positive technique to teach, it will not do any good to feed the pupil on old worn out doctrines. What we need is teachers all ovre the country who know foundational technique according to correct principles and can teach it. Then there is no need of "beginning over again," because the foundation was badly ladi, if such a student should enter the classes of an artist teacher.

If you want to choose an artist teacher for your girl or boy, be sure that he or she is thoroughly prepared and then choose one teacher who is an educator. In order to conquer the technical side of piano playing one has to learn a positive technique, and this positive technique consists of a thorough drill in trills, scales and chords, arpeggios and octaves. A painter would not begin to teeah a pupil landscae painting, without giving the pupil first a thorough drill in drawing, in the same manner a piano teacher should not begin to teach a pupnl compositions without first giving him a thorough drill in technique and touch, to strengthen the fingers and make them trustworthy and dependable. Practice at the piano should not be a mechanical rattling off of exercises by the huor or by the number of repitions. The student should bear in mind, that a mental supervision is absolutely necessary, in order to see that the hand is held correctly and that the fingers move in the right way.

ESTIMATING ABILITIES OF MUSIC STUDENTS.

Discrimination in music matters is a matter of culture, and very few ever reach keen and correct judgment in estimating music values. What one "likes" is usually as far in judgment as music matters reach; it is therefore seldom that a just estimate is made of singers' or players' abilities. It is impossible under ordinary circumstances to make a true estimate of a player or singer's real status as a pianist or vocalist, by the impression made with one or a few compositions. Aside from the average lack of correct judgment as to the quality of the performance, its correctness of musical and mechanical detail and even admitting the performance to be good, there are many questions to be answered before the most competent judge can fully know the general abilities of the pupil and the quality of his training. For instance, a pianist with natural ability, may play a few solos with fine spirit, yet have no real knowledge of pianoforte playing as an art, or music as a science; the piece or pieces may represent many months of practice to the exclusion of other important items of music study. This one-sided development makes it impossible for the student to make proper progress, and his artistic career will never be properly advanced until he has balanced his culture by proper fundamental study and a thorough process of technical development and culture in musicianship. Furthermore, even though the pupil be satisfied with an amateurish or incomplete result, the future years of music work are robbed of their possibilities of pleasure, if the early culture be deficient

COLLECTED RENTS, BUT GOES TO JAIL AS IDLER

Edward Longevin, Aged 51, Caught by New Law Against Non-Workers.

OTTAWA, May 3.—The first prosecution in the Ottawa police court for idleness, under the Order-in-Council passed on April 8, which makes idlers between the ages of 16 and 60 years liable to fine or imprisonment, was made Wednesday, when Edmond Langevin, 92 Murray street aged 51 years, was arraigned following a complaint by his nephew, Adieus Lafrique. He was found guilty, and in lieu of payment of a fine of $10 and costs, was sent down to serve six months in jail.

Langevin pleaded not guilty and declared that he collects the rents from five tenants for his mother every month.

"I also scrub the floor for my mother every Saturday, wash the dish for her, light the fire, chop wood and bring in coal," Langevin declared.

APPEAL TO TROOPS.

Cardinal Gibbons' Message to Appear in "Khaki Testament."

BALTIMORE, Md., May 2.—A stirring appeal to the soldiers and sailors of the United States to respect the military authorities, to keep themselves spiritually clean and to read the gospels whenever possible has been issued by Cardinal Gibbons. The message will reach near all the men in uniform, for it is printed in the army and navy edition of the New Testament, which is being issued under the patronage of the Catholic hierarchy of this country. These Bibles, stoutly bound in khaki covers, are being paid for from the fund of more than $15,000,000 which the archbishops and bishops of the United States raised recently for war activities.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of (Pte.) Sidney Frederick Legon, who was killed in action on May 3rd, 1917, aged 18 years.

One precious to our hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled;
The place made vacant in our home
Can never more be filled.

Our Father in His wisdom called
The boon His love had given;
And, though in earth the body lies,
The soul is safe in heaven.

Where Are the Germans, Mamma?

Mother's four-year-old is very much interested in the war. He often hears his father reading the war news.

"What is a fort?" he asked his mamma, recently.

"There is one near the city," the mother said. "I'll take you out there some day," and she kept her word.

When the four-year-old had seen the buildings and the soldiers drilling, and mother had explained to him the object of the training, the little lad asked:

"But where are the Germans, mamma?"—Indianapolis News.

TIRED AND DISCOURAGED

Mrs. Warren Randles, Rothesay, Kings County, N.B., "I have three small children and had to stay in the house all winter. So when spring came I was all run down doing all my work and looking after the children. I felt all tired out, and looked on the gloomy side all the time. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the results were most satisfactory. I feel fine now, and am recommending the Nerve Food to others."

Fifteen Billion Is Baker's Estimate For War Outing

Billion and a Half to Be Used to Speed Up Production of Airplanes

LIBERTY MOTOR A GREAT SUCCESS

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Secretary of War Baker's estimates for the immediate war programme, as submitted to the military committee, total approximately $15,000,000,000, he said yesterday. The principal increases are in the ordnance bureau.

The Secretary said the airplane programme had not met expectations, and blamed the situation on overconfidence of the Government and lack of ability of contractors to fulfill their contracts as speedily as they promised. He said the Liberty motor was beginning to be produced in quant' and that it was an unqualified success, so much so that foreign Governments wanted to use it.

He told of the needs of various bureaus, in the light of the knowledge he obtained in Europe, his trip, he said, opened his eyes to the magnitude of operations.

Of the gigantic $15,000,000,000 appropriation estimate compiled, $11,000,000,000 is set aside for the quartermaster's corps and ordinance. More than a billion will go for building railroads and greater training camp facilities in France. And while the exact figure has not yet been determined upon, proposed aircraft production will call for approximately $1,500,000,000, it is estimated.

GRAIN MARKET

Oats picke dup yesterday after a substantial decline in the past few days. Some of yesterday's strength in oats was due to the stronger tone of the corn market. July corn at Chicago scored a 2-cent advance over Thursday's close. The United States' Government was said to have been a large buyer. Corn cash and oats are quiet but there was considerable short covering in the options on the recent decline. C. W. Oats, cash, are quoted 7-8c to 1 1-8c higher at For William. The rest of the list is steady.

Manitoba wheat, — No. 1, northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, 2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-4, including 2 1-2c tax, in store, Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C. W., 86 3-4, No. 3, 83 1-4c; extra No. 1 feed, 83 1-4c; No. 1 feed, 80 1-4c, in store Fort William.

American corn—No. 3, kiln dried, $1.90 track Toronto; No. 4 kiln dried $1.85.

Ontario oats—No 2 white, 89 to 90c, nominal; No. 3 white, 88 to 89c.

Barley, malting—$1.54 to $1.55.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, $2.22, basis in store Montreal.

Peas, No. 2, nominal.

CATTLE MARKET

Cattle prices in the Toronto market have reached the highest average for all classes of cattle in the history of the trade in Canada. That the present high values are due almost entirely to war conditions may be inferred from a comparison of the total cattle receipts at the market this week as compared with the receipts for the corresponding week last year. The receipts this week were 6,168 head of cattle as against 4328 a year ago. According to statements made by buyers and drovers in from the principal cattle raising districts, there are, in fact, far larger herds of cattle in the country than there were last season. Yet though cattle are more plentiful prices have already advanced to sensational heights and there is every probability that they may go still higher, provided the war (as now appears a certainty) continues into another year. For the reason that the prices are at present so high is the almost unlimited demand for beef for the allied armies and the actual world shortage of cattle so far as the belligerent European countries are concerned. The longer the war lasts the greater will be this shortage, and the greater will be the demands upon those countries, such as Canada which are still in a position to produce cattle. As to the sudden and rapid advances this week in the local market, these have given rise to much speculation as to whether the top has yet been reached for the present season. The concensus of opinion seems to be that prices may yet go higher before the early grass cattle begin to come in, which will not be before the early part of June at the earliest.

With a good supply of grass fed cattle available prices may ease off for the summer months. Cattle feeders, however, are not figuring on a prolonged season of low prices, judging by the prices that they are now paying for stockers and feeders to be brought on the market again in the early and late fall. In the meantime such prices as $15.75 for straight loads of choice cattle, as have been paid this week, are calculated to make the trade sit up and take notice.

THE YOUNG IMPORTED SHORTHORN BULL

Escana Mascot Reg. No. 115263

For service to a limited number of approved registered shorthorn cows and heifers for the season of 1918.

He is one of the best bred and best individuals that ever stood for service in the County of Peterborough.

Here is a great chance for the small breeder who is trying to improve his herd of pure-bred Shorthorns to get some of the best blood of the breed right from Scotland at the small fee of $25.00, strictly cash before service.

"LADY LAURA," 41st, was the highest priced cow at the Mitchell Bros'. Great Sale, selling for $1,750.00.

Now read his Pedigree and start right when you have the chance. He will stand at PEAR LAWN FARM, LOT 19, Con. 5, OTONABEE.

CHANGE IS NECESSARY.

(Kingston Whig)

The fire loss in Ontario in 1917 reached the enormous total of $10,365,539, a higher rate of loss than any other province in the Dominion or of any state in the American union. Sad to relate, most of this loss can be attributed to carelessness. Some drastic preventative measures should be adopted.

A GOOD SIGN.

(Hamilton Herald)

It is a good sign that the names of Miliukoff, Guchkoff and Rodzianko are mentioned in connection with Russian affairs. It is to be hoped that they or men like them will soon rise to the top in Russia. No government of which they are members will become a vassal of Germany.

Men More Needed Than Foodstuffs Says Sir R. Borden

To the Farmers--Sir Robert Firmly Refused the Delegation's Request For Exemptions

Germans Are Assembling Troops For Another Drive on the Western Front

SATURDAY MORNING BULLETINS

London, May 4. — Three very large bombs were dropped on the locks at Zeebrugge.

On the battle front, fourteen hostile machines were brought down, and four driven out of control. Five of ours are missing.

MEN NEEDED.

Ottawa, May 4. — Men are more needed than foodstuffs, said Sir Robert Borden to the delegation of farmers. He firmly refused the requests for exemptions.

LIBERTY LOAN.

Washington, May 4.—The third Liberty Loan will be oversubscribed by a billion dollars.

INCREASE IN TONNAGE.

Washington, May 4.—Under the direction of the Shipping Board, 236 vessels have been launched during the past year. There are now one hundred and fifty seven yards working.

ASSEMBLING TROOPS.

London, May 4. — The Germans are now assembling troops for another stroke in the south—probably in the Lys region.

FRIDAY EVENING BULLETINS.

Washington, May 3.—The government has sent out its call for two hundred and fifty thousand men for May, to report at the camps on May 25th.

CHARGE DENIED.

Washington, May 3.—The government officially denies the charge made by Germany that American aviators have been transported to France under the guise of ambulance men and Y.M.C.A. attendants.

War has made Economy the National Buy-Word

TO-DAY each one must decide for himself what economy means. It doesn't mean to stop buying the things you need. It means getting full value for each expenditure so that your money will go as far as possible. It means saving that margin we used to spend thoughtlessly for the "highest-priced" things—imagining that they were necessarily the best. In fact, the Economy of to-day really means Thrift.

Take the matter of shoes. The money you spend on shoes is a very important item. You may be paying too much for your shoes.

You know, of course, that shoes, like everything else, have gone up in price. But there is a limit to the price which it is necessary to pay for good shoes.

For example: If you are paying a certain price for shoes and can get the same wear and appearance in a shoe for a dollar or two less, you want to know it.

It is not easy, even for a man in the shoe business, to judge the exact value of a shoe from its appearance. You may think, therefore, that it is necessary to pay the highest price always in order to get good shoes. That is not so.

For instance: Ames Holden McCready Men's fine Shoes are being made today to retail from $6 to $10. There are more expensive shoes on the market, but it is not necessary to pay over $10 for good shoes, and $6 will buy shoes that will give good service for the price.

There is quite a difference between $6 and $10, but shoes at both these prices are very similar in appearance. The difference is due to the grade of material used and to a certain extent extra trimmings and workmanship, which increases cost but adds very little to the wear or appearance.

For example: our men's shoes retailing at $8, $9, or $10 are made of genuine calf skin and first-class materials throughout, but you can buy shoes for $6 or $7 that are made of the skin of a large calf or a cow. This leather does not command such high prices because it is heavier in weight and not quite so fine in texture, but it will wear as well and only experienced shoe and leather men can appreciate any difference in its appearance.

Differences in price you will see do not necessarily affect the actual wear or stylish appearance of the shoe, but are mostly due to certain little luxuries and extravagancies which may be desirable in normal times but not justifiable now.

Therefore, if you want to economize in footwear, ask your dealer to show you Ames Holden McCready shoes that retail at the price you can afford to pay.

Ames Holden McCready make all kinds of footwear for men, women and children.

The next time you purchase shoes, look for the A. H. M. trade-mark. It is a guide to good values, because it is found only on shoes of good appearance which give excellent wear and satisfaction for the price. When you buy A. H. M. shoes you can always be sure that you have got full value. That's genuine economy.

HAS A MEANING

If there is one practice more dangerous than neglecting a headache altogether, it is taking drugs simply to numb the pain. Headaches are nature's warnings and serve a useful purpose. They tell of a function overtaxed or deranged and the wise man or woman takes steps accordingly.

When the Kidneys are not performing their natural function the blood stream becomes clogged with impurities—a fruitful cause of headaches, constant headaches, and more serious complaints if nature's warning is not heeded.

The sufferer feels sluggish, unwilling to work, the back aches and there is a dizzy sensation on stooping. If the cause of the trouble is unchecked, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Swollen Joints and Ankles follow, until Gin Pills are resorted to and the Kidney action restored to normal.

The beauty of the Gin Pill treatment is that first it will in all probability remove both headaches and cause; second, if there is no cure, the simple remedy can do absolutely no harm, and you have only to write the manufacturers and your money will be refunded.

Gin Pills are sold at 50c. a box or 6 boxes for $2.50 on the money-back guarantee. If you have any difficulty in securing Gin Pills write for a free sample to the National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto, or to the U. S address, Na-Dru-Co Inc., 202 Main St., Buffalo, N Y. 26

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

ORDERING THE SUMMER OUTFIT

Chapter LVIII.

Although I cared nothing as yet for fashionable society, and should have preferred to go with Evelyn and Kurts rather than to a fashionable resort; yet I was like all girls in my love for pretty things. So the morning that Evelyn and I visited the dressmaker to select the materials, and models, it was a perfect riot of pretty things.

"Your husband, Mrs. Howard, said your wardrobe was to be very complete," madame said, as she brought out one beautiful model after another. "He also said it must be simple. Plenty of sports gowns, tennis and bathing clothes." The boys called them "togs," but I guess the wonderful hand embroidered things she showed me, the satin bathing suits, were worthy a more dignified name.

"It's like buying a trousseau!" Evelyn declared.

"Only more so," I added. Neither of us had had one-tenth of the lovely things in our simple country-made trousseaux.

"Funny how quickly we can get used to pretty clothes. And won't you astonish the natives when you go back with the exquisite things you have now!"

A Secret Divulged.

"Promise never to tell, and I'll tell you a secret."

"I cross my heart."

"Well, I am going to take home my dresses that were made before I was married. I never have worn them after we came from our wedding tour. I shall take one or two of my plainer things, just to show that George isn't stingy with me, and—"

"To break it gently"—

"Stop interrupting. Why, Evelyn, that poor little country dressmaker's heart would be broken if I didn't wear the things she made. She has known me all her life. And mother, too. I know she would feel hurt if she knew that George hadn't thought the things she provided for me suitable. So I have been getting my trunk packed without Celeste knowing it. I'll let her put a few things on top, and no one will know that I have not taken my city clothes."

"I think it is a very thoughtful idea, Helen. Many girls would like to show off their lovely clothes and jewelry."

"That I shall take—my jewelry, I mean. No one will be hurt to know that I have that. In fact, even mother will be pleased with my rings and pearls. There is nothing to hurt her in my wearing those."

For three hours I tried on and took off. Evelyn sitting near, either criticizing or admiring. Then when we were left alone for a moment we would chat. Finally I had to ask for mercy.

"I absolutely cannot try on another thing. We'll go and have luncheon, then I'll come back and decide the evening gowns," I told madame.

"I will reserve the time for you," she replied.

The God of Mammon.

"Don't they kow-tow to anyone who has money!" Evelyn said, as we reached the street.

"I suppose they have to. Certainly, one with no money could not possibly afford their prices. And if they carry such expensive things, they have to sell them to someone."

"Where shall we lunch. This time it is on me," Evelyn said, just as some one came up behind us saying:

"Whither away, fair ladies?" and Merton Gray, hat in hand, joined us.

"Put on your hat, or you'll have a cold," practical Evelyn said. "These March winds are something frightful. And a red nose is not becoming, even to an artist."

"To pay for that insinuation, I am going to carry you off to my studio and show you my new picture; then give you some luncheon. I don't know what my man has, but he'll rustle something for you."

"Oh, that will be lovely!" I exclaimed. And Evelyn added:

"It was my blow, to-day. I see where I save money."

We laughed and chatted gaily all the way to the studio. When I was with Merton Gray I never could remember that he was the famous artist. I only thought of him as young and agreeable. Sometimes, though, when I would hear others praising him I would wonder how I dared joke and laugh as I do with so important a person.

We met several people we knew, among them Julia Collins. She made as if to stop, but Merton said in a hasty whisper:

"Don't stop! She'll want to come along, and I won't have her."

So we barely bowed and hurried along.

"She'd spoil everything with her sarcastic speeches," Merton said, then apologized for being so rude.

"We are both glad she isn't to be there, so you needn't apologize," I told him. "Neither of us likes her."

To-morrow—The Studio Luncheon.

CUTICURA HEALS ITCHING ECZEMA

So Bad Could Not Sleep. Red With Water Blisters and Burning.

"I had eczema so bad I could not sleep. It first started on my arm, then I had it on my body so that I could hardly wear my clothes, and I had to stay in bed. My flesh was dark red with water blisters, and burning and itching.

"Everything I tried seemed to make me worse, and I had the trouble for nearly two years. I read about Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I got them. They did me good right away, and now I am entirely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Peter McIntosh, French River, Ont., April 10, 1917.

How often such distressing, disfiguring skin troubles might be prevented by every-day use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment for all toilet purposes.

WAR PROPHECY COMES TRUE

Russian Banker's Prediction Seven Years Ago Provided for Famine and the Bankruptcy of Nations.

Only seven years ago M. Bloch, the great Russian banker, wrote: "That is the future of war—not fighting, but famine; not the slaying of men, but the bankruptcy of nations, and the breaking up of the whole social organization of the nations."

The future of war, as written about by M. Bloch seven years ago, is the present of war today, observes Vernon Kellogg in the Atlantic. Not that fighting and the slaying of men are lessened. Only the Napoleonic and the Thirty Years' wars approach today's war in the terrible losses of human life; and too great a drain on the human life of any one or several of the nations engaged may be the deciding factor in the war's conclusion. But on the whole, and as matters stand today, that part of M. Bloch's prophecy referring to the predominant influence of the food problem in modern war is thoroughly borne out by the facts. Despite the fearful and fatal struggling of an incredible number of men, consuming inconceivable quantities of munitions, and using such amazing methods of fighting as are beyond even the fantastic imaginings of the romancers of a decade ago, the national and international phases of the food and general economic problem are the predominant features of the war situation today.

Illiteracy Before the War.

It is difficult to make comparisons of illiteracy in France, England, Spain and Portugal, Austria-Hungary and Scotland before the war, because different methods of taking the count are used in the various countries. In giving the percentage of illiteracy in the countries below, there is indicated in the parenthesis the basis on which the computation was made, notes an investigator: Austria, 18..7 (population over eleven years, 1910); England and Wales, 1.8 (marriages, 1901-1910); France, 14.1 (population over ten years, 1906 or 4.1, marriages 1901-1910); Hungary, 33.3 (population over six years, based on number unable to read and write, 1910); Portugal, 68.9 (population over ten years, 1911, based on inability to read); Scotland, 1.6 (marriages 1901-1910); Spain, 58.7 (population over ten years). Except in the cases mentioned, the term illiteracy is used to mean all persons unable to write their own language.

How the "Goat" Got Even.

A Southerner recently approached the attendant of Y. M. C. A. No. 21.

"I should likes to borrow some di-es," he announced.

"Some what?"

"Some di-es."

"I don't understand."

"You know, di-es, things you shoot craps with."

"Oh, dice! Sorry, but we haven't any of those. Dice are one of the few things that we don't supply."

"The boys sent me up after them," protested the rookie.

"I guess that was a joke."

"Say, let me take some boxing-gloves for a few minutes. I'll bring them right back."

And thus armed, the "goat," with fire in his eye, walked off in the direction of his barracks.—Boston Globe.

Do We Despise the Novelist?

IT is, if not against all experience, at any rate against all theory that a novelist should be eligible. The bank clerk is eligible, the novelist is not. We are not "safe"; we are adventurers, we have theories, and sometimes the audacity to live up to them. We are often poor, which happens to other men, and this is always our own fault, while it is often their misfortune. Of late years we have grown still more respectable than our forefathers, who were painfully so: Dickens lived comfortably in Marylebone; Thackeray reigned in a luxurious house near Kensington Square and in several first-class clubs, Walter Scott reached a terrible extreme of respectability—he went bankrupt, but later on paid his debts in full. Yet we never seem quite respectable, perhaps because respectability is so thin a varnish. Even the unfortunate girls whom we "entice away from good homes" into the squalor of the arts do not think us respectable. For them half the thrill of marrying a novelist consists in the horror of the family which must receive him; it is like marrying a quicksand, and the idea is so bitter that a novelist who wears his hair long might do well to marry a girl who wears her's short. He will not find her in the bourgeoisie.

The novelist is despised because he produces a commodity not recognized as "useful." There is no definition of usefulness, yet everybody is clear that the butcher, the car conductor, the stock-jobber are useful; that they fulfil a function necessary to the maintenance of the state. The pugilist, the dancer, the vaudeville actor, the novelist, provide nothing material, while the butcher does. To live, one wants meat, but not novels. We need not pursue this too far and ask the solid classes to imagine a world without arts; presumably they could not. It is enough to point the difference and to suggest that we are deeply enthralled by the Puritan tradition which calls pleasure, if not noxious, at any rate unimportant; the maintenance of life is looked upon as more essential than the enjoyment thereof, so that many people picture an ideal world as a spreading cornfield dotted with cities that pay good rents, connected by railroads which pay good dividends. They resemble the revolutionary who on the steps of the guillotine said to Lavoisier, "La Republique n'a pas besoin de savants."

This is obvious when the average man (which includes many women) alludes to the personality of some well-known writer. One he has come to respect—Mr. Hall Caine, because popular report says that his latest novel brought him in about half a million dollars; but such men as Mr. Arnold Bennett and Mr. H. G. Wells leave strange shadows upon his memory. Of Mr. Arnold Bennett he says, "Oh, yes, he writes about the North Country, doesn't he? Or is it the West Country? Tried one of his books once. I forgot its name, and now I come to think of it, it may have been by somebody else. He must be a dreary sort of chap, anyhow; sort of Methodist."

Mr. H. G. Wells is more clearly pictured: "Wells? The fellow who writes about flying machines and men in the moon? Jules Verne sort of stuff, isn't it? He's a Socialist."

And so out with Mr. Bennett, one of our best modern stylists, who, in spite of an occasional crowding of the canvas, has somehow fixed for us the singular and ferocious tribe from which he springs; so out with Mr. Wells with his restless, impulsive, combative, infinitely audacious mind. The average man says, "Flying machines," and the passion of Mr. Wells for a beautiful, if somewhat over-hygienic, world is swept away. Those are leading instances. Others, such as Mr. Conrad, Mrs. Edith Wharton, O. Henry, Mr. Galsworthy, are not mentioned at all; if the name of Henry James is spoken, it leads up to a gibe at long sentences.

The attitude is simple; we are not taken seriously. Novelists have to take mankind seriously because they want to understand it; mankind is exempt from the obligation because it does not conceive the desire. We are people who take degrees, who can be scheduled and classified. We are not doctors of science, licentiates of music schools. We are just men and women of some slight independence, therefore criminals; men who want to observe and not men who want to do, therefore incredible. And, so, because we cannot fall into the classes made for those who can be classified, we are outside of class, below class. We are the mistletoe of the social oak.—W. L. George in Harper's Magazine.

The Conquerors

HAIL, The Conquerors of The Road. Hail the tires that triumphed in the bitterest struggle ever staged between roads and tires, a conflict of 4,178,744 tire miles. Hail Goodrich Tested Tires.

Hear the story of a good fight well won. One year ago Goodrich, challenging the roads to a test of strength, sent forth six Test Car Fleets to battle the roughest roads in six different regions.

GOODRICH TESTED TIRES

The roads did their worst, as the Test Car Fleets whirled from region to region, the teeth of the road gnawed at Goodrich Tires.

But the tires conquered with phenomenal mileage that doubled Goodrich's pride. From that test covering millions of miles, the Test Car Fleets came back with a new tire standard, the TESTED of Goodrich Tested Tires.

Tested Tires mean certainty of service, proved service, and that means a lot to a tire user. It means long life in a tire, and dependability on the road, for no hidden weakness could conceal itself in that year long test of Goodrich's Test Car Fleets.

SILVERTOWN CORDS, and BLACK SAFETY TREADS, proved themselves masters of the road. The spiral-wrapped, cable-cord tire body, and the tough, close-clutch, cross-barred black safety tread defied the rough going.

Under light and heavy cars they proved themselves not for one car or one driver, or one road, but all cars, all drivers, all roads.

Reap the benefits of this great victory of Goodrich Tires, the sure mileage and dependability of a proven tire service, by demanding tires that won the title, "Canada's Tested Tires."

PRICES DURING CIVIL WAR

Sugar $58 a Barrel, Rice $31.38 a Barrel, Tobacco, Tea and Coffee Much Higher Than Now.

High as prices are, it may be some consolation to know that they are still below the Civil war records: Sugar then sold for $58 a barrel, rice at $31.38 a barrel, tobacco at more than double the present price, and tea at over $100 for a 25 pound chest as compared with the present price of about $20. Coffee was then four times as high as it is at present, says Leslie's.

If the difficulty in getting hold of sugar makes the American people realize we are at war, and inspires in them a willingness to follow Mr. Hoover's suggestions as to economizing in the use of certain foods, it will have accomplished some good.

While complaining of food scarcity, it is well for our people to know how little food others have. The German ration contains .41 of a pound of body building protein as compared with 1.08 in the standard ration. The German ration is not sufficient to maintain bodily health and vigor, but the civil population in the occupied districts of France and Belgium have to exist on even less than this.

Funds for Liza Jane.

A long row of husbands sat in a mess hall and a sergeant was on the other side of the table with papers in front of him from which he from time to time read extracts, recites the New York Times.

"Are you married?"

"I was married, but I ain't now."

"Wife dead?"

"No, she ain't dead, but we had a mutual separation."

"Any divorce?"

"No, sir, I could not pay for a divorce, but it is all busted up 'tween us. Please don't put her name down."

Her name did go down, and Liza Jane will be astonished when the next month rolls around and Uncle Sam hands her out $15, with a little memorandum to the effect that this is an allotment from her husband, and a little extra thrown in to help her and the children, if she has any. That is not all. If he dies in battle, she gets $4,500, or possibly more.

Sufficient Unto the Day, Etc.

When a father decided that his son needed application of the gad, he informed the boy that punishment was not far off and went into the yard to cut a switch, says Indianapolis News. When he returned the boy was gone. He searched and did not find. Then he called his wife and both of them searched. They searched low but not high, for if they had cast their eyes aloft they would have seen that the boy had climbed a telephone pole and was safely out of harm's way for the time being. A neighbor spied him and gave away his whereabouts. The boy sought a compromise, saying he would come down at a declaration of peace and no sooner. The compromise was finally effected on the promise that the next time he needs a whipping he will get one twice as hard as is needed, to make up for the one he missed.

A Romping Heaven.

"Mamma," said Bobby, "does the Lord love little children?"

"Oh, yes, indeed," replied mamma.

"And does he like to romp with them?"

"Romp with them? What put that idea into your head, Bobby?"

"My Sunday-school teacher says that whomsoever the Lord loveth he chaseth."

That Funny Feeling.

Little Bobby had been visiting lately at a place where they have a big swing, which is highly popular with the rising generation. When he returned home his father asked him:

"Well, Bobby, did you swing in the big swing?"

"Yes, a little, papa. But it made my head ache in my stomach so that I had to stop."

All Gone Feeling.

"Some men," said Uncle Eben, "is so smart dat when dey gits through talkin' you don't feel helped none. You jes' feels kind o' lonesome an' ignorant."

HOW TO END CORNS

Which Way for You?

Above are pictured three ways to treat corns.

Blue-jay is the most certain. It is safe and gentle.

Yet the unknowing ones experiment with harsh, mussy liquids or the dangerous razor.

These two ways are temporary. But Blue-jay is scientific. The spot of medicated wax, discovered by a great chemist, soothes while it works.

Place a Blue-jay Plaster on your throbbing corn tonight.

Relief is instant. The soft felt pad stops the pain by relieving the pressure.

In 48 hours the medicated wax has saturated the corn—undermined it to its roots—and it comes off painlessly, completely. Nature responds quickly to such a gentle, corrective treatment.

Hardly a corn can resist. Of course once in a while there is an old stubborn corn which requires a second or third application. But such are rare.

Blue-jay Plasters are made by Bauer & Black, the great surgical dressing house.

Try a Blue-jay Plaster now. Join the pain-free thousands who rely on Blue-jay.

Once you know Blue-jay, you'll never consent to have a corn again, nor to coddle it with temporary ways.

The cost is slight, the application simple.

Remember, we promise immediate relief and a defenseless corn.

Blue-jay Plasters are sold by all druggists—25c per package. Also Blue-jay Bunion Plasters.

ELBA'S SUPPLY OF IRON ORE

Mines Have Attached a New Importance to the Island—Napoleon Was Held Prisoner There.

The Island of Elba, celebrated as the place where Napoleon was imprisoned in 1814, has since Italy's entrance into this war attracted much attention as the location of valuable iron mines, writes a correspondent.

In view of the scarcity of iron mines in Italy and the difficulty of transporting ore or pigs from the United States for use in the munition factories the mines of Elba have given a new importance to the island. Travelers on the Genoa-Rome Express, which skirts the seashore of the mainland, permitting a view on a clear day of the blue island rising out of the water six miles distant, think rather of the tall foundry stacks in the foreground at Piombino than of the great soldier of other wars.

In the days before the war this express stopped at Campiglia to put off tourists for Piombino and Elba. Today it stops to put off business men, skilled iron workers, Italian soldiers and their Austrian prisoners interned on the island. The side track at Campiglia has been enlarged since the war, too, for the purpose of handling the large quantity of iron freight brought over from Elba. Napoleon's name has almost been forgotten on the island, so busy are the inhabitants with war work. "How can I get to the Villa San Martino?" a visitor arriving on the stone wharf of the harbor inquired of a workman. The workman looked at the visitor blankly, when the visitor added: "You know, the place where Napoleon used to live." The man shook his head. "I'm a newcomer here. Never heard of the place."

Forewarned is Forearmed.

A man went to a nearby city on business, and while there called at a bank to get specie for son notes he had had on hand for a long time. They proved to be on a defunct concern, and the teller told him they were good for nothing.

"Wa'al, now, look a-here, mister," said Uncle Cy, "won't ye jist tell a feller how you can tell when money's a-goin' ter spile?"

TROUBLED WITH CONSTIPATION

From 16 to 20

Constipation is one of the commonest ills of mankind, and one too often allowed to go unlooked after until some serious complication sets in.

If the bowels are properly looked after there will be no constipation, jaundice, sick or bilious headaches, heartburn, coated tongue, sour stomach, floating specks before the eyes, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will keep your bowels so regulated that in no time the constipation will disappear entirely.

Miss Emma E. Melanson, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I am now 20 years of age, and since I was 16 I have been greatly troubled with constipation, so much so that at times I would be in bed 3 or 4 days a month. I tried all the old-fashioned remedies, castor oil, cascara, etc., with only temporary relief, until my sister-in-law gave me some of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. From the first they seemed beneficial, and I gave them a fair trial. This was two years ago, and with an occasional dose I have kept entirely free from constipation for the period mentioned."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Aerial Warriors

MASTERY of the air prevents the loss of thousands of allied troops. The more aeroplanes we can maintain at the front the greater becomes the security of our men in the trenches, and the more effective our artillery fire.

For our aerial warriors are the eyes of the army, guarding our troops from surprise tactics of the enemy, laying bare his deadly guns and directing our own guns with unfailing accuracy.

At the same time they clear the air of Hun machines—thus "putting out the eyes" of the enemy batteries.

Young men from 18 to 30, strong, keen and courageous, men of fair education, and eager for accomplishment, will find the opportunities in the Imperial Air Service very attractive. While training for their commissions cadets receive $1.10 per day.

Men who come within the provisions of the M.S.A. are eligible only after having joined their Depot Battalion, when they may, with the consent of their Commanding Officer, be discharged for re-enlistment in the R.F.C.

The Story of Moose Jaw

Every city of Western Canada has its own interesting history and genesis, but none more so than Moose Jaw.

No other centre of population got its name in such a queer way. The story came from the Indians that over half a century ago a pioneer traveller, Lord Dunsmore, with his wife and child, camped on the banks of the stream now known as Thunder Creek. They were halted on their march because their Red River cart had broken down, the queer old vehicle, with only two wheels that are minus iron rims. Home-made were the carts, and many a record has been left of other travellers over the plains, who wrote of the creaking, springless wagon that was a torture to ride in over uneven prairie trails.

Well, the Dunsmore cart fell by the wayside because the creaky old wheel broke and there were no wagon repair shops within a hundred leagues. What was to be done? Someone had ingenuity and wit enough to pick up the jaw bone of a moose, lying among the bones that in those days strewed the plains. With this the wheel was mended, and so the little settlement that thereafter sprang up on the spot was known as the place where the white man found the moose jaw, or at least that was the long title given to it by the red men.

Few cities have their origin so definitely suggested as Moose Jaw. It is interesting to make a comparison between the historic scene depicted in the illustration, when the little traveller fixed up the broken vehicle, and the Moose Jaw of to-day, and as the years go by the gulf between the two, perhaps, between the yesterday and to-day of Moose Jaw will become more and more marked.

Situated close to the heart of the Province of Saskatchewan Moose Jaw occupies a favorable commercial position. The city is built on one of the greatest wheat-growing belts in the world. It is developing rapidly, and has many fine buildings and twelve churches. The investment of the C. P. R. in terminals within the city is about $6,000,000, the yards there having 52 miles trackage.

Appropriate Last Words.

The Elizabethans are full of well-chosen last words. Marlowe makes Tamburlaine assume the sobriquet of Attila with his last breath: "For Tamburlaine, the Scourge of God, must die!" and the duke of Guise exclaim as the assassin does his work: "Vive la messe! Perish Huguenots!"

Military Service Paths.

Every man in the United States army takes the federal oath at the time of his enlistment. Members of the National Guard take what is known as the dual oath, which covers both state and federal service.

A Mystery.

An eastern woman is suing for divorce because she found another woman's picture in her husband's watch case. One of the mysteries of life is why men who lead double lives don't carry open-faced watches.

Showing Value of Fertilization.

The value of fertilization is shown by some results obtained by the Ohio experiment station. There was secured from the fertilized soil an average yield per acre of 61 bushels of corn, 23½ bushels of wheat and 3,928 pounds of clover hay. Unfertilized land adjoining has yielded 46½ bushels of corn, 11 bushels of wheat and 2,517 pounds of hay per acre.

GERMAN FIENDISHNESS

EXTRACTS FROM BOOK BY AN AMERICAN GUNNER.

He Saw a Teuton Patient In a French Hospital Deliberately Break the Wrist of a Red Cross Nurse—Horrible Story Told Him by Girl Who Had Been Prisoner In Hands of Enemy.

HERE is a story from "Gunner Depew," the book written by an American boy, Albert N. Depew, who has been a gunner in the American and French navies, and who was captured by the German commerce raider, Moewe while a member of the French Foreign Legion en route from Gallipoli. He spent months in a German prison camp.

His book is said to be the most vivid story of German brutality ever penned.

"One of the patients in a French hospital where I was," writes Depew, "was a German doctor, who had been picked up in No Man's Land, very seriously wounded. He was given the same treatment as any of us—that is, the very best—but finally the doctors gave him up. They thought he would die slowly, and that it might take several weeks.

"But there was a French nurse there who took special interest in his case, and she stayed up day and night for some time, and finally brought him through. The case was very well known, and everybody said she had performed a miracle. He got better slowly.

"Then a few weeks later, when he was out of danger and was able to walk, and it was only a question of time before he would be released from the hospital, this nurse was transferred to another hospital. Everybody knew her and liked her, and when she went around to say good-bye all the men were sorry and gave her little presents, and wanted her to write to them. She was going to get a nurse she knew in the other hospital to turn her letters into English, so that she could write to me. I gave her a ring I had made from a piece of shell case, but I guess she had hundreds of them at that.

"But this German doctor would not say good-bye to her. That would not have made me sore, but it made this French girl feel very bad, and she began to cry. One of the French officers saw her and found out about the doctor, and the officer went up and spoke to the German. Then the French officer left, and the German called to the nurse and she went over to him and stopped crying.

"They talked for a little while, and then she put out her hands as if she was going to leave. He put out his hands, too, and took hold of hers. And then he twisted her wrists and broke them. We heard the snap.

"There were men in that ward who had not been on foot since the day they came to the hospital, and one of them was supposed to be dying, but when we heard her scream it is an absolute fact that there was not a man left in bed.

"I need not tell you what we did to that German. They did not need to shoot him after we got through with him. They did shoot what was left of him to make sure, however.

"Now, I have heard people say that it is not the Germans that we are fighting, but the Kaiser and his system. But you take this doctor. He was not an ignorant peasant. He was not a dupe nor a misguided but well meaning soul. He was an educated man who had been trained all his life to help people out of pain, but not to cause it. And he was not where he would have to obey the Kaiser or any other German. Also it is a fact that this nurse had literally saved his life. He broke that girl's wrists simply because he wanted to.

"While visiting at Lyons I met a girl there who was staying with some people I knew, and she told me, a little bit at a time, what she had been through. I do not know whether she was a Belgian or not, but she was in Belgium at the outbreak of the war. When the Germans took the town she was in they put up signs on the doors notifying the inhabitants that all the girls must report in the square the following morning.

"This girl and her sister reported with the rest. They were divided into two classes, and the class in which the two sisters were was told to report at the station the next morning. They went home and broke the news to their mother, who was quite old and who took it very hard. They had no idea what they were being sent away for. The mother begged permission to keep one of the girls, and the Germans placed the other sister in the class that was to stay.

"Three girls who refused to go were dragged to the streets and killed in cold blood, and the mother of one girl, who refused to let her go, was shot. The girls were drilled in the courtyard of a big hotel, mustered with a roll call and loaded into cars. After a nine-hour journey they were taken from the trains to a large building partly in ruins, and there the German soldiers were waiting for them. The girls were not given food or fire.

"Late that night, after the Germans were through with them, they were made to go outside and dig potatoes from the hard ground, but they were not allowed to eat any of the potatoes. They also had to make beds, chop wood, haul timber and do all the dirty work that has to be done wherever German swine are penned.

"When the girls reached such a condition that they were no longer of use to the Germans they were sent back to Belgium. This girl had killed her child, as, indeed, all of the girls had. When she got home she found her mother had been killed, but she never saw her sister again or knew what had become of her."

GRAY-DORT

GRAY DORT — YOU WILL LIKE IT

Intention and Ability

You are sure of a good motor car only when you know that the manufacturer habitually means to make a good car and has the resources to do it.

The growth of the Gray institution is the best evidence of our intention to put the last cents worth of value into every car we make.

The volume of the Gray business is the best evidence of our capacity to do what we mean to do.

Sixty-five years ago Wm. Gray founded this business. From a small waggon-shop it grew to be the greatest in Canada. Only our intention to give more, and our ability to give more, can account for this amazing growth.

This same intention and ability now marks the manufacture of Gray-Dort motor cars. The same unswerving standards of surplus value to the customer, the same keen, well-knit organization of mechanics, proud of work well done.

The new Gray-Dort embodies all the good features that won instant success for former models. The 4-cylinder motor is a triumph of smooth, economical speed and power. The chassis is sturdy and quiet. The springs are long. The upholstery is deep. The equipment is absolutely complete from electric starting and lighting to the tools. New lines of beauty have been given this model. The five passenger touring car is $1,125; the three-passenger fleur-de-lys roadster is $995; the Gray-Dort special, beautifully finished and with extra details of equipment is $125 above the list. All prices are f.o.b. Chatham.

Duties of the Queen Bee.

It may be interesting to some people to learn that all the work in a beehive is done by female bees. The drones, or males, live on the labors of their more industrious female companions. Moreover, there is no such thing as a king bee. The ruler of the hive is the queen, but she is a ruler in name only, being guarded and protected by the bees simply because the colony would become extinct if she did not lay eggs at a prodigious rate. It is not unusual for a good queen to produce her own weight in eggs in a single day, and she keeps this up for weeks at a time.

Courtesies of the Match.

There were the usual courteries as to precedence in the use of the match. "It's very English," said the man in the corner. "In Scandinavia you can tell the nationality of a man by the way he lights his cigarette. A Swede strikes a match, uses it and throws it away. A Dane uses the match first and then offers it to you. The Norwegian strikes a match, offers it to his companion and uses the fag-end himself."

Brilliant Flashlight.

An excellent flash powder which produces a light of dazzling brilliancy, may be made by mixing equal quantities of magnesium dust and powdered chlorate of potash. Place the mixture on a piece of asbestos paper, and ignite it with a long wax taper. In a darkened room the suddenness and extreme brilliancy of the flash will dazzle everyone and produce a startling effect.

Severe Pains In The Back

Told of Kidney Trouble—Was Unable to Work, But Finally Found a Cure by Using This Well-known Medicine

Gananoque, Ont., March 13—There is plenty of enthusiasm in this town for Dr. Chase's Medicines, and many people ready with good reports of cures effected.

There seems to be no treatment for kidney derangements which proves effective in such a large proportion of cases as does Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is because the liver and bowels are usually involved as well as the kidneys, and this medicine overcomes the disease because it acts directly on these organs.

Mrs. W. Higgins, John St., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "My husband has made use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the last thirteen years. Previous to that he had several attacks of kidney trouble, accompanied by severe pains in his back. He became so bad that he was unable to work. Finally he started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the results were splendid. He quite recovered, and by using an occasional Kidney-Liver Pill he wards off recurrent attacks, and has never had any trouble since. We also use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home and find it an excellent salve."

Mrs. James Bishop, Stone St. N., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in our home for some time, and find them an excellent remedy for pains in the back. They seem to help the stomach and kidneys to do their work more effectively. We are pleased to recommend them to others."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Look for portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the box you buy.

Kaiser Is a Profiteer

AFTER having called the Kaiser a murderer for more than three years it may appear in the nature of an anti-climax to call him a grafter, or even a profiteer; but the interests of truth make the demand. Emperor William is probably the greatest profiteer that has been developed by the war. If he is alive when it ends he will have amassed one of the greatest private fortunes in the world as a result of the struggle. The fact that Germany will be ruined will not affect him, except that his own winnings will stand out in bolder relief. It is not now suggested that the Kaiser brought on the war in order that he might become the richest man in Germany; but if his private fortune is increasing at the rate, say, of a million dollars a week while the war lasts, it is plain that he has a strong personal interest for continuing the war, and that the sacrifice of the lives of a few hundred thousand of his subjects will not be allowed to interfere with his plans for securing a competence.

Wilhelm has several ways of making money out of the war, but it is his holdings of Krupp stock that have made him the richest man in Germany in the past three years. The profits of the great concern at Essen have been fabulous. They were prodigious before the war began; they have been record-breaking ever since. The names of the shareholders in the Krupp business have never been publicly announced, but it has been said on excellent authority that after Bertha Krupp, the Kaiser is the chief stockholder. All efforts made before the war on the part of German Socialists to probe into the Krupp affairs were blocked, either at the Kaiser's orders or with his sanction. Some sixteen years ago when Vorwaerts directed an attack against the owner of the plant, Freiderich A. Krupp, accusing him of the most frightful immorality, the Kaiser put the ban on the exposure and forbade the scandal being aired in court. Despot that he was, it is plain that he had to yield to Krupp, for the latter could, no doubt, have made disclosures concerning the real ownership of Krupp stock that would have been extremely embarrassing.

When Freiderich Krupp died, leaving his business to Bertha Krupp, he was by far the richest man in Germany. He had an income of $5,000,000 (disclosed), while the next wealthiest German admitted to an income of only about one-fourth of this amount. A year or two before the war the Krupp publicity department made a determined campaign in American newspapers to convey the impression that the Krupp fortune had been built up by honest industry alone. There were touching stories about the original Freiderich, who established his iron forge in Essen in 1810. The town then was smaller than Brantford. Now it is more like Pittsburg, and its increased prosperity and population are almost wholly due to the expansion of the Krupp works. From a simple blacksmith shop Krupp has grown until it is a propetry of vast mines, steamships, railroads, coke ovens, tremendous ore bodies, newspapers, and, it has been hinted, Governments as well. Five years ago about 80,000 people were working, openly, for the Krupps, and a good many more were its secret employes. Perhaps twice that number is now employed.

It all made a fine story, but the facts not mentioned were still more interesting, and some of them were brought to light as a result of charges made by Liebknecht, and the Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts. It was shown that the Krupps, in order to increase their tremendous annual sales to the German Government, bribed certain French newspapers to make attacks upon Germany, hinting at war in the near future. These fulminations, duly copied in the Krupp organs in Germany, were used to prove that France meant mischief and that the German Government must increase its purchases of cannon and munitions, in which the Krupps had practically a monopoly. But in order to kill off whatever competition there might be on the part of other German munition works, the Krupps bribed various German officials to give them advance information, so that they might undersell their rivals. It was a most sordid, if sensational story, and the full revelations would have shaken Germany, but again the German Government blocked a full enquiry, at the order of the Kaiser. A Commission of Enquiry was constituted, as was the right of the Reichstag, but it was given no power to send for persons or papers, as was the right of the Kaiser to determine.

In such a country as Germany it is easy to keep secret such matters as the fortune of the Kaiser. He inherited $12,500,000 from his grandfather. As King of Prussia he has a civil list of $4,250,000 a year. Besides that he is the greatest landowner in the kingdom. For many years past it is said that whenever he had an odd million marks to invest he tucked it away in Krupp shares. It may be that the Krupps did not like to share their tremendous profits with the Kaiser. It may be that they figured that they could well afford to make him an equal partner. In any event it would have amounted to the same thing. The Kaiser had the power to demand a share of the plunder, and he has been piling it up ever since at a great rate. If the war should end with the Kaiser on the throne, he will become, by virtue of his great wealth, more than ever the owner of the German empire. If it should end with his overthrow, he would still be in possession of one of the greatest private fortunes in the world.

Any maker may claim for his product all the qualities there are. That is his privilege. He may even think his claims are justified.

You read the advertisements, so you know that makers, as a rule, are not over modest in that regard.

If you believe them all, they all make super-cars.

In your experience, that theory doesn't hold.

Maxwell is different.

We never claim anything we cannot prove.

As a matter of fact we never have claimed anything for this Maxwell that has not already been proved in public test and under official observation.

Maxwell claims are not therefore claims in the ordinary sense—they are statements of fact—proven facts.

They are, in every case, matters of official record attested under oath.

For example: The famous 22,000-mile Non-Stop run was made with the Maxwell every minute under observation of the A. A. A. officials.

That still remains a world's record—the world's record of reliability.

That particular test proved about all that anyone could ask or desire of a motor car.

Among other things it still stands the world's long distance speed record.

Just consider—44 days and nights without a stop, at an average speed of 25 miles per hour!

And that, not by a $3,000 car, but by a stock model Maxwell listing at $1045.

You will recall perhaps that a famous high powered, high priced six in a trans-continental trip made 28 miles average over a period of five days and eleven hours.

Now compare those two feats—one of less than six days, the other of 44 days. You know automobiles—which was the greater test?

Is there any comparison on grounds either of speed or endurance?

Proves you don't need to pay more than $1045 to obtain all the qualities you can desire in a motor car—if you select a Maxwell.

For that Maxwell Non-Stop run was made, not on a track but over rough country roads and through city traffic—average of all kinds of going.

And—listen to this.

So certain were we of the condition of the Maxwell at the end of that great feat, we announced that at the stroke of eleven on a certain morning, the car would stop in front of the City Hall, for the Mayor to break the seal.

Five seconds after he had pulled the switch plug and stopped the motor after the 44 days and nights continuous running, she was started again and off on a thousand mile jaunt to visit various Maxwell dealers.

How is that for precision—certainty of action? That incident brought a storm of applause from the assembled thousands.

Hill climbing?—this Maxwell holds practically every record worth mentioning—especially in the West where the real hills are.

The Mount Wilson record—nine and one-half miles, 6,000 feet elevation!—was taken by a stock Maxwell.

Two months ago a 12-cylinder car beat that record by two minutes.

Then—three days later—a stock Maxwell went out and beat that 12-cylinder record by thirty seconds! Pretty close going for such a distance and such a climb—wasn't it?

So Maxwell still holds the Mount Wilson honors.

Ready to defend it against all comers too, at any time—a stock Maxwell against any stock or special chassis.

Economy—also a matter of official record.

Others may claim—Maxwell proves.

Thousands of Maxwell owners throughout the country on the same day averaged 35.2 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Not dealers or factory experts, mind you, but owners—thousands of them—driving their own Maxwells.

Nor were they new Maxwells—the contest was made by 1915, 16, and 17 models, many of which had seen tens of thousands miles of service—three years' use.

Nor could they choose their own road or weather conditions—all kinds were encountered in the various sections of the country.

Good roads and bad—level country and mountainous regions—heat and cold—sunshine and rain—asphalt and mud.

And the average was 35.2 miles per gallon!

There's economy for you. And under actual average driving conditions—not laboratory test.

But that isn't all.

The greatest achievement of this Maxwell was in its showing of speed and reliability and economy all in the same run.

In that 44 days-and-nights Non-Stop run, though no thought was given to either speed or economy, it still remains a fact of official record that the Maxwell averaged 26.4 miles per gallon and 25 miles per hour.

Now you know that speed costs—and that economy tests are usually made at slow-speed—closed-throttle, thin-mixture conditions.

You know too that you can obtain economy of fuel by building and adjusting for that one condition.

Speed you can get by building for speed. Any engineer can do that.

But to obtain that combination of speed and economy with the wonderful reliability shown in that 44-days Non-Stop run—that car must be a Maxwell.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

An Ambulance Driver

By F. A. MITCHELL

Jimmie Throckmorton, when the world's war broke out, was inspired by patriotism to be in it. The United States did not at first show any disposition to enter the fray, so Jimmie could not enlist in a fighting regiment. But he could drive an ambulance, and Americans who went over to assist the western allies usually joined an ambulance corps. This was the best Jimmie could do to make a soldier of himself without fighting under a foreign flag.

Well, Jimmie sailed for France and in due time found himself at the front. The only comfort he anticipated from driving an ambulance instead of fighting in the trenches was that he would be in less danger. But when he entered upon his duties he found that in war there is danger for every one.

One day while driving a load of wounded a shell burst near his ambulance and took away his right foot and ankle. When he recovered from his wound he was discharged and returned to his home in the United States.

Now Jimmie was entitled to the encomiums due heroism just as much as any other hero. He had a decoration, and he walked on a cork foot and ankle.

All heroes in war do not receive the same treatment, circumstances having a great deal to do with the matter. Time removes many of them from the public memory. Of the heroes of the war between the States only a few of the central figures are now household words. On the northern side, the names of Grant, Sherman and Sheridan are about all that are generally known. There never was a hero of that or any other war who died of disease. A man must be killed in battle to be a dead hero.

Jimmie Throckmorton was confident on returning to his home that he would be appreciated for the work he had done. He had gone to the war from a large city, and absence from a numerous throng is not noticeable. Jimmie was walking along a crowded street in citizen's dress after his return. He wore an overcoat that covered his decoration button and no one would have noticed that the leather over his right foot covered cork instead of flesh and blood. He met a friend and they stopped for a brief chat.

"Hello, Jim," said the friend. "Do you expect to be drafted?"

"They wouldn't take me; I've got a cork foot."

"What are you giving me?"

"True. I've been to the war and had my foot shot off."

Jimmie had much trouble in convincing his friend of the truth of his statement. The man didn't know that Jim had been out of the city. Jim was working up some interest in himself as a soldier when he mentioned the fact that he had been an ambulance driver.

"Oh!" said his friend. "I thought you were a soldier," and passed on with a "So long. Anyway, you've escaped the draft."

Jimmie moved away, cognisant for the first time of the fact that the man who does his duty to his country should not look for a reward in the plaudits of those he fights for.

He received other reminders of this fact. One person, admiring his decoration button, asked him if it was the badge of the Sons of the Revolution. Another asked if it was the badge of a Confederate Camp. Finally Jim told inquirers that his grandfather had been a pirate and the badge was given his progenitor for long service under the skull and bones flag.

But all this was a bagatelle to what happened to Jimmie when he fell in love. He had suffered so acutely for having driven wounded men from the battlefield, both in the loss of limb and from a want of appreciation, that he never mentioned his military service to his enamorita. She asked him why he didn't go to the war, and instead of telling her that he had been there, he said he had enlisted, but had been fired from the army because he was lame.

Jimmie got engaged in the spring and in the early summer followed his fiance to Lake ———. Of course, there was plenty of boating. Jimmie's girl was very fond of paddling. Nothing would do but they must go canoeing. The girl was a good swimmer, but Jim couldn't swim at all. In changing places they upset the canoe. The girl struck out beautifully, but on looking about for her lover saw only one foot floating on the surface. She swam for it and righted its owner. The cork was so much lighter than any part of his body that it stayed up while the rest of him went down. Holding his head above water, she supported him to the landing, which was close at hand.

This was the crown of ignominy for Jim's pride in his service to his country.

One evening Jim took his girl to a lecture on the war by one who was familiar with what was going on at the front. He had seen Jim at work there and dragged him up on the platform and told the audience what a hero he was. A speech was called for and Jim said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, if a man goes to war for any other than patriotic reasons, he is a fool."

It was a very short speech, but much to the point.

Barn and Silo Roofed with Brantford Asphalt Roofing.

Resists Fire, Sheds Water, Wears Long

Flying sparks and embers from a burning building often cause roofs near by to catch fire, especially in a dry, hot season. Under like conditions, roofs covered with

Brantford Asphalt Roofing

are in no danger from flying embers, because any that fall on Brantford Asphalt Roofing die out harmlessly. Build a bonfire on a roof of Brantford Asphalt Roofing and the fire will not spread and the boards underneath the roofing will be protected in a surprising manner.

If a fire starts in the interior of a building Brantford Asphalt Roofing acts as a retardant and keeps the fire from spreading. Fire chiefs and insurance companies endorse its use in the most congested cities.

Brantford Asphalt Roofing does not absorb water, but sheds the heaviest rain with ease. Acid proof and alkali proof. Reliable, durable, economical. Three weights—60 lb., 70 lb., 80 lb. per square.

Brantford Rubber Roofing
is the same quality as Brantford Asphalt, but has a smooth, rubbery surface instead of the sand. It is particularly suitable for verandah decks and floor coverings. Three weights—40 lb., 50 lb., and 60 lb. per square.

Standard Mohawk Roofing
is made of the same materials as Brantford Asphalt Roofing, but is lighter in weight. A thoroughly reliable roofing at a low price. Tested for years and has given entire satisfaction. Sanded on one side. One weight—40 lbs. per square.

Mohawk Rubber Roofing
The same quality as Standard Mohawk but with a smooth surface. Used for all classes of temporary work—sheds, bunk-houses, camp sites, even dugouts in the trenches. 35 lb., 45 lb., and 55 lb. weights.

Leatheroid Roofing
Slightly lower quality than Mohawk Rubber. Used for same purposes. 35 lb., 45 lb., and 55 lb. weights.

Samples of any of these roofings and prices will be furnished on request.

"HAASENSTEIN UND VOGLER."

German Plot to Control the Press of the World.

Of the many world-wide preparations made by Germany during the thirty or forty years preceding the outbreak of the present great struggle, in 1914, not the least significant was her effort to secure control of the world's press. This effort had not, of course, been carried on altogether in secret. Those who knew something of German history and German methods, especially Bismarckian history and Bismarckian methods, had no difficulty, for instance, in detecting the pen of the German armor baron in many articles that appeared, from time to time, in the French press. Like everything else, however, connected with the great German dream of world domination, the half was never told, and it is extremely doubtful if it has even yet been told. Be this as it may, an able French writer, who contributes to the columns of L'Homme Libre over the nom de guerre of Lysis, has let in a flood of light on the matter by exposing, with the most matter-of-fact completeness, the business methods of Haasenstein and Vogler.

Haasenstein and Volger was indeed no ordinary business firm. It was in the most profound agreement with Juliet that, after all, there was really nothing in a name. And so, whilst in Berlin it bravely spelt out its name Haasenstein and Vulger, in Paris it did business under the more acceptable title of the Societe Europeenne ode Publicite, and in Italy, after the war broke out, under the unimpeachable Italian title of Unione Publicita Italiana. The concern called Haasenstein and Volger was ostensibly an advertising agency. Its plan of action was simplicity itself. Aiming to secure the monopoly of the advertisements in the paper which it got into its toils, it first approached the proprietors with the offer of certain advertisements. This step was followed, later, by the offer of a very enticing contract to supply a full-page advertisement, and, later still, by one to save the newspaper all further trouble by taking over all its advertising.

Now the contract which settled this matter contained one significant and all-important clause. It provided that the firm of Haasenstein and Volger, or by what other name it might be called, should have the right of absolute veto over "all insertions which might be considered prejudicial or inopportune from the point of view of the character of the paper." From this to exercising an absolute veto over what should or should not appear in the news columns of the paper was only a short step, and one which, ultimately, was in every case taken. And so Lysis makes himself responsible for the statement, and supports it by proofs, that in Italy, before the war, Haasenstein and Volger controlled the advertising, and so to a large extent the news, of no fewer than ninety-six Italian newspapers. More remarkable still, so little difference does the war make in the activities of the firm, that at the present time the firm of Haasenstein and Volger controls eighty-one Italian newspapers. Similar work was successfully carried on in Switzerland and in France, and yet even that was by no means all, for, in the December of 1916, the Haasenstein and Volger agency is found to have been endeavoring to secure a footing in the press of the British Dominions, and maintaining, in circulars sent out, that it was already in correspondence with all the important London papers. Finally, in the late of last year, a circular was issued from Paris to all the great American houses, telling them that a member of the Societe Europeenne de Publicite would be in the United States in the following September, and would be glad of the opportunity of conferring with the firm to which the letter was addressed, as to the possibility of extending their sales in France and Continental Europe.

When it is recollected that the direction of the whole of this vast organism was from Berlin, and that so unsuspecting was everybody concerned in the matter that the outbreak of the war had no more effect upon the firm's activities than to cause a diplomatic change of name, and in some instances of premises, the success, up to a point, of the German method may be adequately understood. The German method, however, has one cardinal defect, a defect shared in common with all other forms of deception, namely, that it ceases to be effective as soon as it is adequately found out. And German methods are being found out every day. The world is littered with their wreckage, which is to be found everywhere from Shiraz to Buenos Ayres, and from Buenos Ayres back again to Shiraz. Haasenstein and Volger, if the change in metaphor may be forgiven, are spent rockets, and they must take their place in that great and growing collection of spent rocks, all the way from Bernstorff to Wassmuss.

The Ford Saves the Hay and Oats the Horses Eat

IT HAS been estimated that five acres of land are required to maintain one horse for a year, and that the same five acres would produce nearly enough food for two people. If 50,000 Canadian farmers each replaced one horse with a Ford, 250,000 acres would be added to the Nation's source of food supply and enough extra food made available to feed 100,000 people.

Just think what a great service this means to the country at the present time and the benefit to the farmers from the sale of food produced on this acreage.

A Ford car also saves the farmer a week or more of valuable time each year, which can be used for further productive work. The Ford travels three times as fast as a horse and rig—costs less to run and keep, and is far easier to take care of. With labor so scarce and high priced, time means money, so do not delay in getting your Ford.

THE BIBLE CONFERENCE CONCLUDED THURSDAY NIGHT

Wednesday's Address Dealt With the Relation of Christ to the Church Meetings Are Having Good Results.

FALSE IMPRESSION

One result of the Bible conference that has been in progress all week at St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and which closed Thursday night with an address on "The Two-fold Promise and the Signs of the Times," is that a number of those who have attended are now admitting that they never understood how to read their Bibles before and that they have received a flood of light on many difficult points. For the sake of those whose interest has been aroused and who desire further information, facilities have been provided by which those in attendance can obtain literature dealing with the subjects that have been discussed. After the meeting Thursday evening there was a strong demand for this literature. As literature of this character has not been available in Peterborough hitherto arrangements are to be made for one of the local stores to handle it.

The Purpose of This Age.

Having shown in his earlier addresses that the Children of Israel had rejected the Kingdom when it was offered to them, Dr. Chafer in his two last addresses, including that of Thursday evening, has dealt with the purpose of God during this age in which we live. Although most people seem to think that the Bible teaches that the world is to be converted before Christ comes there is not a passage in Scripture to support this view. Instead, during this age the gospel invitation goes forth on the basis, "Whosoever will may come." Many will refuse to accept this invitation. Many, but a smaller proportion of the total, will accept. These two classes constitute the tares and the wheat which will be separated at the end of the age. Those who accept the invitation become members of the body of Christ. Christ is the new Adam and those who believe in Him become partakers of the new divine nature through him in contrast with Adam and the old Adamic nature. He is the shepherd and they are the sheep. He is the vine and they are the branches. He is the bridegroom and they are the bride. He is the body and they are the members of the body. He is the corner stone and they are the living stones of the church. He is the high priest and His followers become a kingdom of priests.

For those who become identified with Christ in these new relationships the Scriptures foretell great blessings and glories that far exceed those that were ever offered to Israel as a people. During this age this new humanity formed by the regeneration of each individual constitutes the new church. Its members are no longer Jews or Gentiles. "There is neither Jew or Gentile, but Christ is all in all." "Ye were Gentiles." All this teaches that by regeneration there is formed a new humanity which is heavenly. It is the completing of this body that is said to be the purpose of God in this age. They are "the fulness of Him that filleth all in all."

A False Impression.

The impression that Israel as a nation is the same as, or a part of, the church, is held in spite of the strongest contrasts between the two in the Word of God. The only point at which they even approach similarity is in the fact that the same Person, the Son of God, is Messiah King to Israel and Bridegroom and Head to the Church. All the promises of Israel are earthly; all the promises of the Church are heavenly. Israel was under law as a rule of life; the Church is under Grace. The two people are separate in time and eternity; for in Heb. xii. the two are seen as different people even in the glory. Israel crucified their King; by that same death the Church is saved. If Israel is the Church then the body crucified its Head and the bride crucified the bridegroom, and the sheep crucified the Shepherd; but of them it is said that they will not even follow the voice of a stranger. Israel, as a Nation is not the Church to-day and has never been. When God has completed the out-gathering of the Church, He will return to Israel's convenants and will fulfill every promise He has made, else we cannot be sure that he will keep any promise made to the Church. The same Gospel is preached to-day to Jews and to Gentiles. "Whosoever will may come, and him that cometh He will in no wise cast out."

Dr. Chafer emphasized the point that the foregoing truths formed a most vital part of Scripture but one that has been strangely neglected. Theology is always concerning itself with the theme of salvation but has undertaken almost nothing concerning this second great fundamental truth. For this reason it is important that ministers shall not depend on their theological training but be prepared to devote time to fresh personal research in the word as otherwise they may be wholly unprepared to receive the plainest Bible teaching. A minister who is mistaken on this point is apt to take all these great eternal truths that should apply only to the holy body of the redeemed and try to fit them into the very imperfect human organization or to wholly neglect them.

The Great Necessity.

At the afternoon session in discussing how victory may be achieved in the Christian life, Dr. Chafer dealt with the second condition upon which the filling of the Spirit may be obtained. The first condition was that we must not grieve the Holy Spirit. The second also is a negative one and is stated in 1st Thess. 5-19.

"And quench not the Spirit." The word "quench" having the meaning of "resist," the passage teaches that we should not say "no" to the will of God for us. This has to do with His appointments in service and our yieldedness to His providence in our lives. It is a vital condition of true spirituality that the believer be willing to do, or be, whatever God would have him do or be. This was the "mind of Christ" which we are asked in Phil. ii 5 to "let" be in us. The word "let" is the key to the life of blessing. It does not say "try," or "resolve," or "imitate" the mind of Christ. The word is simply "let," and this implies that it will be realized by the power of another. This very truth is presented a few verses farther on: "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure."

Every Christian should have come into convenant with his God, that he will do the will of God when he knows what that will is. To be in the will of God is not to be doing some new thing, or anything necessarily; it is simply being willing to do His will. This is the attitude of mind that never says "no" to God, and that does not quench the Spirit.

SAFE HOME TREATMENT FOR THE CURE OF RHEUMATISM

CHANGEABLE SPRING WEATHER STARTS THE PAINS BUT THE TROUBLE IS ROOTED IN THE BLOOD.

Thousands Through Canada Who Are Suffering Can Be Cured Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The twinges and tortures of rheumatism are not due to cold, damp weather as so many people suppose. Bad weather may start the pains going, but the real cause is rooted in the blood. Liniments and rubbing may help deaden the pain but it always returns and usually in a worse form, simply because this treatment cannot cure. To cure rheumatism to stay cured you must root the poison out of the blood. This is the only sure way—the only sensible way to get rid of the trouble. And the one medicine for doing this which has been pre-eminently successful is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood that goes right to the root of the trouble, releasing the stiffened joints, clearing away the torturing pains and giving the sufferer renewed health and ease. If you are suffering from rheumatism, or any trouble due to poor, weak blood, you should, in your own interest, at once give this always reliable medicine a fair trial.

ACTUALLY CRIPPLED.

Mrs. F. M. Simpson, R. R. No. 1, Blenheim, Ont., says: "For a long time I was confined to bed and actually crippled with rheumatism. The trouble first located in my ankle, then spread to my knees, and then to my arms. The limbs were much swollen and if I moved caused me much pain. I seemed to get weak in other respects and fell off in weight from 166 to 110 pounds. One day while reading I came across the case of a rheumatic sufferer cured by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I decided to try them and sent for three boxes. By the time these were gone I had begun to improve, and with help was able to get up. Continuing the use of the pills I was first able to go about with the use of a crutch, which, later I discarded for a cane, and then through the use of the pills I was able to throw aside the cane as well, and go about as briskly as I had ever done. I feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a blessing to me.

FREE FROM PAIN.

Mr. Henry Smith, a well known and respected resident of St. Jerome, Que., says: "For upwards of a year I was a victim of rheumatism in a most painful form. The trouble was located in my legs and for a long time I was so bad that I could not walk. The suffering which I endured during that time can only be imagined by those who have been similarly afflicted. Doctors' treatment did not help me and then I began trying other remedies, but with no better results. Finally I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I had begun to lose faith in medicine, I decided to give the pills a trial. I am very grateful now that I did so, for after taking eight boxes of the pills the trouble completely disappeared. I was free from pain, the swelling in the joints disappeared and could walk as well as ever I did in my life. I have since taken the pills occasionally as a precautionary measure, and I cannot speak too highly in their favour and recommend them to all rheumatic sufferers."

COMPLETELY CURED.

Mr. A. E. Hinton, Western Ave., Toronto, says: "Up to about a year ago my wife had suffered for nearly three years from rheumatism, suffering greatly. She had been under the care of several doctors, besides spending dollars on advertised cures, but did not get any relief. One day talking to a fellow clerk, she said her sister had been cured of this trouble by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Although not feeling very hopeful, I took two boxes home that evening and urged my wife to try them. By the time they were used they had done her so much good that she required no pressing to continue the treatment, and after taking six or seven boxes she was completely cured. As a have said this was about a year ago, and she has had no return of the trouble since. I feel very grateful for the immense good Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done my wife, and I hope other sufferers will benefit by her experience."

There has been no increase in the price of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are still sold at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50. If your home dealer cannot supply you they will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Conscript Cats for Trenches

SAYS, a Curate in Punch to a rough-looking parishoner who is grooming a terrier: "In war time, my man, I think you might keep a useful animal, like a pig, for instance." "Yus," answered the other, "and a nice fool I'd look going rattin' with a pig." The curate did not see how pit dogs might come in useful in time of war. He would be even more greatly astonished to learn that the British Government has sent to the United States to buy up a cargo of murderous cats. It expects to buy about a thousand cats from the chief American seaports, New York, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Galveston and Baltimore, and ship them to France to experiment on the huge rats that infest the trenches. If they make good their reputation more will be bought, and it is estimated that the United States has a cat population of 50,000,000. It is a great chance for the cat, now almost universally condemned as a slacker at best, and a criminal at worst, to show that he can do his bit for his country.

The plague of rats in the trenches is by no means one of thes lightest discomforts that the soldiers have to endure. They are reported to be extra large and extra bold. They rob the soldier of his food and when he is sleeping they gnaw at his boots. They destroy property valued at millions of dollars every day, disturb the rest of the men, and to many are as loathsome as snakes are to the average person. It is true that occasionally soldiers will pet these brutes, and that many get quite accustomed to their obscene scamperings, but on the whole probably they constitute a nuisance quite as bad as mosquitoes in swampy regions. At any rate, the army authorities are anxious to get rid of them and have made several efforts in this direction. Cats have been imported from England to kill them, but, according to Cunliffe Owen, who writes in the New York Sun on this subject, the English cats will not stay in the trenches. Why it is expected that the American cats will remain is not explained, but the cats from the great seaports have made their living upon wharf rats, have grown themselves to be half wild, and tha they will remain where their favorite provisions are to be found.

As a matter of fact a good terrier will kill far more rats than a cat, for by no means every cat that is a mouser will tackle a rat. The objection to the dogs is that they do not eat the rats after they have killed them, while the wharf cats live on them. It is considered necessary in the interests of camp hygiene that the rats should be not only killed, but devoured, because they are notorious spreaders of disease. The frightful possibility of the cats being infected by the rats that they consume is evidently not contemplated by the authorities, nor do they figure on the consequences of these half-wild cats, having killed all the rats in the trenches, themselves becoming a far worse nuisance, not to say menace to the men. It is a matter of record that certain large Norway rats were brought into a community to kill off the black rats, and did so, but, being larger and more savage, the cure turned out to be worse than the disease.

The reason that cats have to be imported from the United States is because in the past few years they have become extremely scarce in Europe. This is primarily because there has been a great demand for their fur. Germany was the first of the belligerent nations to practically exterminate the cats. The German troops suffered from cold, and it occurred to the authorities that in every family, almost, there was a cat flaunting itself in furs that might be needed by a soldier. So a nation-wide campaign to separate the cat from its hide was begun, and was participated in by men too old and boys too young to go to the front. The result was that probably millions of cats were caught and killed, their skins removed and turned into comforts for the soldiers. As to what became of the carcases of the cats, it does not behoove us to enquire too curiously, since the scarcity of food in German cities might lead to one making unpleasant deductions. At any event the cat in Germany and in the neighboring neutral countries that could ship furs to Germany was considerably abated.

For kindred reasons the cat has become scarce in France and Italy, and the English cat, as reported, does not like to stay in the trenches. There is, however, a wealth of cats in Canada, and no good reason is apparent why the United States should be favored over this country when the British Government demands cat reinforcements. Canada has sacrificed much in this war, but as the recent elections showed she is still resolute, and is prepared to go to great lengths in supplying the allied armies with cats. Our population of slacker cats has been hardly drawn upon as yet. The American army will probably need all the American cats to attend to its own trenches; it ought to be a patriotic duty for Canada to see that our fighting men at least are properly equipped with Canadian cats, which, from the point of ferocity, uselessness and numbers do not fear comparison with any waterfront cats that Uncle Sam can produce. Our cats are dear to some of their owners, but if they will help win the war, the nation will steel its heart, bite on the bullets and make a final oblation of its cats while cherishing its rats.

Comfort in Rat's Companionship.

Once in a great prison a prisoner showed me a gray rat that he had made friends with and had trained to become comparatively fearless. As it nibbled at the piece of bread that he held in his hand he said with a whimsical smile: "It's pleasant to have a little creature for a friend that doesn't care or doesn't even know whether you're a prisoner or not and likes you just because you've had a chance to show a little kindness."

GOT WET FEET TOOK AWFUL COLD

COULD NOT SLEEP FOR COUGH

A bad cold accompanied by a distressing cough that keeps you awake at night is most aggravating, and unless it is attended to at once may develop into something very serious.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy you should take. It heals the mucous surfaces, relieves oppression and tightness of the chest, removes the accumulation of phlegm, quiets the most obstinate and distressing coughs, and secures rest and sleep at night, not only to the sufferer, but to others whose rest would be otherwise broken.

Mrs. Ezekiel Acker, Lake Pleasant, N.S., writes: "I got wet feet and took an awful cold; could not sleep at night, and would do nothing but cough. My husband got me a bottle of medicine, but it was not worth bringing home. I was going to call the doctor in when a friend asked me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I told her I had little faith in it, but she urged me to get a bottle. I did, and I must say that of all the medicine I ever took, it is the best, and relieved me the quickest of anything I ever saw."

"Dr. Wood's" is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c. manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Fighting the Seals.

In an effort to protect the salmon run and probably enhance the pack, the British Columbia authorities are reported, in advices from the Pacific coast, to be making war on the hair seals which are charged with eating immense quantities of salmon at the mouth of the Fraser river. A Vancouver report states that, after observing the haunts of the seals on the Fraser sandheads, one of these shoals was recently mined, high explosives and charges of metal being placed in cans below the surface of the sand, which the next high tide smoothed over. At low tide the seals returned to their place in the sun and were not disturbed. The next day nearly 200 seals gathered on the sands, and the explosive was touched off by a battery from which wires led to the seal ground. The explosive killed every seal, tearing the animals into small fragments. Other blasts will be set off, for this is the big sockeye salmon year and protection of the run is vital.

Chinese Peanuts.

One Chinese province annually exports more than 150,000 tons of peanuts, all because an American missionary several years ago gave a native convert a quart of California seed.

"THEY SHALL NOT WANT"

In a moment of inspiration an advertising man recently hit upon the above four words as epitomizing the desire and determination of the people of Canada that the Armies of the Allies and the suffering peoples of the Allied nations of Europe shall be supplied with all that Canada can possibly furnish of the food stuffs necessary for their support in the energetic and successful prosecution of their struggle for the defeat of tyrannical Prussian aspirations.

Compressed in this little sentence is more real throbbing meaning than most full pages of printed matter contain. In sixteen letters it expresses the determination of a people that a great cause must be sustained at no matter what personal sacrifice.

"They shall not want."

How aptly these words also express the attitude of the NORMAL, HEALTHY-MINDED MAN towards, those who under our social system, naturally look to him for support and protection. As he thinks of the wife who has entrusted her future to his care and of the children whom he has brought into the world, his thought and determination is "THEY SHALL NOT WANT."

This is always the attitude of the normal, healthy-minded man who is willing to sacrifice, if need be, to attain this noble end.

A policy in the Sun Life of Canada provides the safest and most economical means of fulfilling this noble desire and determination and incidentally, if fortunately in time this mode of protection is no longer necessary he may himself reap the benefits of his savings and thrift.

Thus virtue has its own reward.

Germans Still Hesitate To Renew The Attack

INTENSE ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE ON THE FLANDERS FRONT

INTENSE BOMBARDMENT OPENED THIS MORNING

British Improved Positions in a Minor Operation—Spirited Artillery Action Reported on the French Front.

SEVERAL RAIDS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 4. — An intense bombardment was opened by the Germans early this morning on the Flanders front from Locre to the south of Ypres. There is great activity also in the sector betwee nthe Forest of Denieppe and the Meteren, the War Office announces.

The British slightly improved their position in a minor operation near Hinges, southeast of Amiens, while on the northern front the French carried out a local enterprise in which prisoners were taken in the Locre sector.

THE STATEMENT READS.

We improved our positions slightly last night by a successful minor enterprise northeast of Hinges and captured machine guns. A successful local operation in which several prisoners were secured by the French troops was carried out in the Locre sector. Early this morning the enemy's artillery opened an intense bombardment of the French and British positions from the neighbourhood of Locre to the south of Ypres and has shown great activity in the forest of Deneippe-Meteren sector.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 4.—Spirite artillery fighting along the Avre River on the front southeast of Amiens is reported in to-day's official statement.

THE STATEMENT FOLLOWS.

There were rather heavy bombardments in the region of the Avre. The French carried out several raids near the Oise and Ailette rivers and west of Lapompelle, bringing back a number of prisoners. A German attack near Courcy and two others north and northeast of Rheims were without results. Everywhere else the night was calm.

BIG MEETING TO-MORROW NIGHT

In the Grand Opera House Under Auspices Red Triangle Club

To-morrow, Sunday evening, following the church services, Capt. T. F. Best of the overseas Y.M.C.A. organization will address a general meeting of the people of Peterborough. A hearty invitation is extended to all citizens to be present and hear Capt. Best's address. You will hear just what the Canadian Young Men's Christian Association is doing at home, in France and other battle fronts. You will hear the purpose of Red Triangle Fund, which is doing a most wonderful work overseas.

Capt. Best has many wonderful and thrilling stories and you will miss a treat if you do not hear him to-morrow night after church.

PLEASE DECORATE

The members of the Retail Merchants Association are requested to decorate their places of business on the occasion of the visit to Peterboro of His Excellency, the Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General of Canada. Thos. Barrie, President; Jos. Maher, Secretary. 2d

HUN SUBMARINES SHUT OFF BY A NEW MINE FIELD

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, May 4.—Archibald Hurd telegraphs that a naval official announcement of a prohibited area in the North Sea means that German submarines have been partially, if not completely, enclosed by the greatest mine field ever laid. The danger zone embraces 121,722 square miles.

GERMANS HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO CONTINUE ATTACK

Hindenburg's Badly Mauled Armies Are Still Laid Up For Repairs —Next Blow May Come Any Time

TIME IS A FACTOR

(By William Philip Simms.)
(United Press Service.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, May 4.—(10 a.m. Despatch)—The Allies are alertly awaiting Hindenburg's next mighty blow.

The first and second drives failed even if by narrow margins, just as the first dash toward Paris and the sea in 1914. The third already is delayed by the sound threshing administered by the Franco-British forces, necessitating a far more complete reorganization of Hindenburg's hosts than was at first supposed. The situation to-day is better than seemed possible during the early stages of the offensive. The Allies have stopped every attempt of Von Hutier to edge toward Amiens, fighting the Germans to a standstill on the Lys, butted their heads against a brick wall.

Ten big shells fell every second, not counting the smaller ones. The gas battery was forced to wear gas masks practically all the time. Whenever the Germans advanced the French simultaneously charged with levelled bayonets. Veterans of the Verdun campaign declare the fighting there was never so hot as it has been in the Flemish hills.

Serious Gains.

That the enemy has made serious gains on both battle fronts is not disputed, but the outstanding feature is that neither on the Somme nor the Lys has he been able to exploit his successes.

Badly mauled, Hindenburg's armies already have been forced to rest several weeks when time is a most precious element.

Realizing the colossal stakes the German high command to-day is perfecting its next stroke which may decide the German chances. This blow may come at any time.

I have heard many stories regarding the magnificent stand of the French in the Flemish hills. Despite one of the most terrific bombardments of the war followed by repeated assaults, Von Armin failed to gain an inch around Scherpenberg.

PRIZE WINNERS TO BE DRAWN FOR

At An "At Home" In St. Alphonsus Lyceum on Monday Evening Next

An "At Home" will be held in St. Alphonsus Lyceum on Monday evening, May 6th, after which a drawing will be held to determine the prize winners for the different prizes which were donated and offered at the Spring Fair. BRITISH CASUALTIES

British Losses in Men Killed, Wounded, Captured or Missing Since German Offensive Opened on March 21st, Estimated at 250,000

SERIOUS SITUATION

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, May 4.— British losses in men killed, wounded, captured and missing on the western front since the German offensive began March 21 are estimated by the British Military Mission here at nearly 250,000. In a statement to-day, giving this calculation the Mission said everything indicates the offensive will be continued almost immediately, and that if the brunt of the attack is borne again by the British, the losses will become serious unless their troops are supported by sufficient reserves.

Y.M.C.A. CANVASS WILL OPEN ON TUESDAY NEXT

Teams Who Will Handle the Campaign Met Last Evening

SPEAKING TO-MORROW

Capt. Tom Best, who is here for the big overseas Y.M.C.A. campaign next week, will speak at St. Paul's Presbyterian church to-morrow morning, Murray street Baptist church in the evening, and will lecture on "Under Shell Fire in Flanders" at the Opera House after church. Capt. Best is a local boy and one of the first speakers in Canada. He was at the front two years.

Teams Met.

The teams for the Y.M.C.A. overseas and Loan office last night to complete preparations for the canvass. It was decided to do all the canvassing here next Tuesday. The Prudential Life Office, at the corner of Hunter and George street, will be headquarters for the day, and the public are asked to be ready for the canvassers. Peterborough city is asked to contribute $10,000.

REPORT CONCERNS MILLING INDUSTRY

A New Arrangement Will Be Substituted for the Present Plan.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, May 4.—The report prepared by the cost of living branch of the Labour Department, and now in the hands of the Minister will, it is stated, show that very considerable profits have been made by the milling companies. It will further show that a profit of twenty-five cents per barrel fixed as the maximum by the Food Board averages higher than the millers have been making in the past. It is considered probable here that this profit fixing will have substituted for it an arrangement somewhat similar to that made in connection with packing houses, namely that there will be taken for the treasury all profits beyond a certain percentage.

SIX NEW COLLECTION PLATES FOR ST. ANDREW'S TO BE PRESENTED.

At the morning service to-morrow in St. Andrew's church, a new set of six colection plates made from the "William the Conqueror Oak," and given to the church by the Rev. Jas. Rollins, will be formally presented by the Rev. Mr. Rowand.

The tree from which these were made was planted about the year 900 and was a favorite of William the Conqueror, as it was quite an age even in his day.

HOSPITALS CROWDED WITH WOUNDED GERMAN SOLDIERS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, May 4.—Two hundred and sixty-five trains full of wounded soldiers returning to Germany (from the battle fronts in Picardy and Flanders, says the newspaper Les Nouvelles of the Hague, were counted in the day time on April 9, April 11 and April 12, on the Namur-Liege railway. Transports were so crowded that the Germans were even using open coal cars to carry the wounded. Hospitals, convents, schools and factories in Belgium, the paper adds, are all packed with wounded.

SUPREME WAR COUNCIL IS IN FULL AGREEMENT

"Gen. Foch Is Optimistic" Says Official Announcement —Premier Clemenceau Presided

TWO DAYS' SESSION

(United Press Service.)
(By Lowell Mallett.)

PARIS, May 4.—The Inter-Allied Supreme War Council, which has been in session at Versailles for two days, was in full agreement on all military questions, and results to date were considered entirely satisfactory, it was officially announced to-day.

"General Foch is optimistic that is all we can say," one of the members acting as spokesman declared. Premier Clemenceau presided, Premier Lloyd George, Premier Orlando, Generals Foch, Sackville-West, Robilau, Bliss, Belin, Wilson, Haig, Pershing and Petain, Admirals Wemyss and De Bon, and War Secretary Milner, were present. All military questions were thoroughly considered.

THE WEATHER

The weather still keeps cool, especially at night, when the temperature usually falls to near the freezing point, but it is well to look at [illegible] and remember that the weather, as well as other things, is never so bad that it could not be worse. This morning a lady asked despairingly "Will we ever have summer?" Certainly; but just eleven years ago this morning (May 4, 1907) we had good sleighing right here in Peterboro, the snow plough men had to make their usual roures, and the good citizens had to shovel six inches of snow from his front door to the sidewalk. This season at the present time is at least two weeks ahead of the average year.—W. P.

CAPTAIN BEST AT MURRAY STREET.

Every mother, father, brother, sister and lover of the soldier at the front will want to hear the story of Captain Tom Best, who has been right at the firing line, and has come in contact with thousands of our boys. Captain Best will speak in the Murray street Baptist church on Sunday evening at seven o'clock. One who heard Captain Best in Hamilton some days ago says that he has one of the most helpful addresses heard in Canada for the parents who are anxious about their absent dear ones.

All seats will be free and unappropriated for this occasion, when the trustees of the Murray street Baptist church most gladly accord the Y.M.C.A. their assistance in their great campaign. No subscriptions will be sought at this service but information will be given concerning this great humane work at the firing line.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

Dr. F. L. Robinson has kindly consented to donate the proceeds of Monday afternoon's programme to the Patriotic Society of St. Andrew's church. Two excellent reels will be presented entitled "The Millionaire Vagrant," and the first episode of "A Rejected Wife." Miss Helen McLaren will render a vocal selection during the afternoon. The admission will be 15c, and tickets may be arranged for by 'phoning 1734 or 829, or at the Examiner Office. 2d-104

FARMERS TO BE CALLED

Sir Robert Borden Declares Men Are More Needed Than Foodstuffs—May Finish Seeding

CANNOT GRANT RESPITE

OTTAWA May 4. — Frankly and firmly Sir Robert Borden told a deputation of Ontario farmers yesterday the considerations which had impelled the Government to sweep aside exemptions in order expeditiously to secure reinforcements for the army overseas, and which induced it to persist in the course of action decided upon.

The delegation proposed certain modifications of the order-in-council cancelling exemptions granted to young men of 20, 21 and 22 years of age. "I want you to understand there is a side of the situation which you do not seem fully to realize," the Prime Minister told them. "I have been twice in France and I cannot bring myself to stop short of any measure to give our soldiers all the support they deserve. We talk of hardships and sorrows. Here in Canada we have had hardships and, God knows, too much sorrow. But we have no conception of what is going on in France at the present time and what it means. Production is absolutely essential and the duty of the Government is to see that it is carried on. But if we wait for longer consideration of exemption, if we have long delays and our men are destroyed or decimated what answer can we make to them? To them who have suffered tortures in a German prison will it be any answer to say that we have increased production mightily? We must have production, but it is also for the Government to consider how important and how urgent is the need of men. I hope you will believe me when I tell you on my responsibility as a Minister of the Crown, that that need was never more terribly urgent. I want to tell you that if that British line, part of which our men are holding, breaks, I do not know [illegible] will get a market for your products.

"It is a question that might, indeed, make any man of proper feeling and real imagination almost sweat blood before he could reach a right conclusion, which duty seemed to impel, and I for one can never bring myself to any course which will not provide at the proper time and in proper measure reinforcements for our men compared with those sufferings and hardships and sacrifice all that is endured by us who remain in Canada is almost insignificant."

Registration Will Help.

Sir Robert voiced his belief that from the pending national registration of men and women in Canada some adjustment of labour, such as had been made in Britain and France, would be carried out in the Dominion and would serve to maintain production. "I hope you will realize the awful responsibility upon us if we stayed our hands in sending reinforcements to our men overseas.

DECORATION FOR WAR CORRESPONDENT

Work of Henry Wood Whose Despatches Appear in the Examiner is Recognized by General Petain.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, May 4. — Henry Wood, United Press Staff correspondent with the French armies in the field, whose despatches have been appearing in The Examiner, was decorated Thursday as a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour, in recognition of his work on the French front during the past twenty months. The cross was bestowed at the French General Headquarters with the traditional ceremony by a Major-General of the French Staff. The honour was conferred by the French Government at

Program Of Reception To Governor-General

Duke of Devonshire and Party Will Arrive at 9.45 a.m. --Address of Welcome at Central Park at 10.30--Citizens Are Requested to Decorate their Homes

VETERANS AND BAND WILL PARTICIPATE

The Governor-General and his party will arrive in Peterboro at the C. P. R. station, on Monday morning, at 9.45 o'clock, and will leave at 3.36 p.m. The reception committee of the Council has prepared an interesting programme, in which they confidently hope the citizens will cooperate to the fullest extent. Persons on the route of the auto drive are specially requested to decorate their houses, to hang out flags and bunting, and the merchants will doubtless fly the colours from their stores. Peterboro owes it not only to the Duke of Devonshire, as the Governor-General, and to his personality, but also to itself, to extend a cordial welcome on Monday in this the first of the cities in the vice-regal itinerary through this province.

The following are the principal events in the programme of the day:

The visiting party will consist of Their Excellencies, the Governor-General and the Duchess of Devonshire, Lady Blanche Cavendish, Lt.-Col. the Hon. H. G. Henderson, Secretary, and another member of the staff.

The 57th Regiment Band and War Veterans will leave the armouries at 9.15 a.m. sharp, and proceed to the C.P.R. station.

The church chimes will be rung at 9.45 o'clock.

The Band and Veterans will return to the Central Park where a patriotic concert will be given by the band until the arrival at the park of the Governor-General's party.

The drive in the southern and western parts of the city, according to the route published, will be taken, and the party will arrive at the Central Park at about 10.30 o'clock.

The address from the City and County will be presented at the park, and citizens will be presented to Their Excellencies.

The Collegiate Institute and Red Cross headquarters will be visited.

From there the published route will be followed to the Great War Veterans' Rooms.

From the Veterans' Rooms the route will be followed to the north, and back to the Empress Hotel for luncheon at 1 o'clock.

After luncheon the published route will be followed to the eastern part of the city, and from there to the C.P.R. station, and the Governor-General and party will leave at 3.36 p.m.

REMINDER TO CITIZENS.

Ald. Worth, the chairman of the Reception Committee, expects that the party will reach Central Park at 10.30, following which the official address of welcome from the city and county will be presented.

The committee's last exhortation to the public is to fly their flags along the procession's route.

Nineteen Year Old Men Called

Proclamation to That Effect Was Issued To-day in Ottawa—Must Register Before June 1st

TO BE CALLED LATER

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, May 4.— A proclamation was issued to-day calling upon nineteen year old men to register for military service before June first, but they will not be called to the colours before July the first. The previous minimum age was twenty.

Unmarried men and widowers of the age indicated are affected by the call. They will be required to register through the post offices, as was the case when men of 20 to 34 years were called up on March 13 last. Men will simply give names and addresses and such details as will permit a full registration to be effected. The actual call to the colours will be received by registered post from the district registrar.

Liberty Loan Is Oversubscribed

Figures Exceed the Three Billion Aimed At

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The third Liberty Loan has been over-subscribed by $6,888,900, the treasury reported to-day. Later figures are expected to raise the total far above three billion aimed at.

GEORGE STREET METHODIST CHURCH

In the George Street Methodist Church to-morrow evening, the pastor will preach on the subject, "Perils Among Robbers," or "Losing Our Spending Money." There will be a short song service also. The Quarterly Love Feast will be held at 10 a.m. in the church auditorium, and at 11 a.m. there will be a reception service, followed by the administration of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Jitney Service For Toronto

Winnipeg's Jitney System Will Be Transferred to Toronto—Jitney Men Approve Contract

WILL BE INCORPORATED

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, May 4.—Joe Lemarre and H. C. Griffith, of Winnipeg, of the Owner and Drivers' Association, will leave for Toronto Tuesday to complete arrangements in connection with the transfer of Winnipeg's Jitney System and one hundred and fifty jitney men to that city.

Contract for the transfer which was drawn up by the Toronto City Council reached the city to-day and was approved by the jitney men, at a meeting. According to Lemarre, the jitney bond and license fee will be lowered for jitney men and other special privileges will be granted them by the Toronto Council. The service will be incorporated by charter.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, MAY 4TH, 1918.

PRINCIPAL TAYLOR'S VISIT.

Peterboro is to be given the opportunity on Monday of welcoming two famous men. Early in the day the city is to be honoured by a visit from His Excellency, the Governor-General, while in the evening, the people of Peterboro will have the privilege of hearing the new Principal of Queen's University, Dr. R. Bruce Taylor. The occasion of his coming is the revival of the Canadian Club, and the committee of the latter organization are to be congratulated upon securing the services of Principal Taylor for their opening meeting. The double opportunity of assisting in the re-organization of a Club that has an important mission to carry out in Peterboro, and, at the same time, to have the pleasure of an address from such a talented orator as Dr. Taylor, should not be missed.

A NEW POLICY.

The announcement from Ottawa that all men who have escaped from the operation of the Military Service Act, because, when examined, they were found to be suffering from venereal disease, are to be called out at once and placed in a special unit stationed at the Toronto Exhibition Camp, will be approved of by many people who have commented on the injustice of a system that allowed young men to get out of serving because their own folly and indulgence had rendered them, temporarily at least, physically unfit. Some of these men were placed in D category by the medical board, and others in E category. The new order only refers to the men in the former class, but it should also be extended to those of the latter class as well, the medical history sheets in the possession of the authorities making it an easy matter to locate such cases.

Under the new system, men suffering from diseases of the nature mentioned are to be compelled to take treatment, and, if cured, their category will be raised, and they will be used in general army work. It is explained that this step is being taken because many men who would otherwise have been in A category have been evading the Act, making no effort to improve their condition, and hiding behind their disability. They will be kept in a segregated unit in Toronto, and on that account will lose sixty cents pay a day until they are fit to join the ranks.

UNFORTUNATE CASES.

The theory advanced by a neurological expert before the Special Committee on Pensions that shell shock can be overcome by exercising self control and entertaining a determination to recover completely will be an interesting one to returned soldiers generally. The suggestion that no pension should be granted, on the ground that this action only lessens the patient's desire to get well, will, however, meet with opposition from the war veterans unless, of course, the Government proposes to take care of all cases until a complete cure has been accomplished.

There is a pretty general opinion among returned soldiers that the medical boards which decide upon the extent of disability a man has sustained during his service are not sufficiently acquainted with the peculiarities of shell shock or gas cases to intelligently deal with them. Men still suffering from the effects of concussion are discharged with a few dollars a month pension, who are far from being in a fit condition to carry on the duties of civilian life. Any sudden noise, the sound of a punctured automobile tire, the explosion of a fire cracker, the snap of a cap pistol in the hands of a youngster, even the unexpected banging of a door, leaves these unfortunate men unnerved and trembling to such an extent that cases are not rare where soldiers have collapsed on the streets, after an experience of this kind. How any medical board can expect such men to stand the noise and rattle of machinery in the factories where most of them have to look for employment is more than the average citizen will be able to comprehend.

The same thing is true of soldiers who have been gassed. The condition of a patient who has been affected by this horrible invention of the Hun varies from time to time, and if he happens to appear to be in fairly good condition when he is boarded, his disability is liable to be set at an absurdly low figure, in spite of the fact that a few days after he will altogether likely have another bad turn, and be almost completely incapacitated. Cases of this are by no means rare, and just now the Great War Veterans in Toronto are endeavouring to secure a pension for a widow with nine children, whose husband, a returned soldier, died recently as a result, according to the Veterans' contention, of being gassed in France. The particulars of the case are most distressing. Pte. James Tarrington, the soldier in question, enlisted with the 21st Battalion at Kingston, and went overseas with that unit in May, 1915, reaching France in September of the same year. He served with the 21st until February, 1916, when he was gassed. Sent back to the trenches again, he contracted bronchitis and pneumonia, was invalided to England in March, 1916, and to Canada in May of that year. After undergoing treatment at the Kingston Convalescent Home he was finally discharged, being given to understand that he had been recommended for a pension, based on one-third disability. No pension was received, and an inquiry from the Pension Board brought only the reply that the doctors considered Pte. Tarrington's working ability had not been effected by his service as a soldier. According to his wife, he showed daily evidence of gas poisoning, but pluckily tried to work. Finally, however, he became so ill that he was unable to continue, and death ended his suffering last month. Now his widow, with nine children, eight of them under 13 years of age, is anxiously looking for some action on the part of the Pension Board to help her solve the problem of keeping herself and family.

THE CHATHAM COBBLERS.

Hon. T. W. Crothers has been vindicated. The Minister of Labour, accused of being, to say the least, not unfriendly to combines, has shown that he is determined to crush such things out of existence. He has not made much progress yet—the Minister is a slow-moving official — but show him a combine, a small one of course, for he has not yet worked up to the stage of tackling the big fellows, and the Hon. Thomas will demonstrate the proper method of dealing with the matter.

The story of his first victory has just been given to the world. The Minister, a modest man as becomes a citizen of St. Thomas, has not said very much about the triumph he has achieved. It remained for Mr. A. B. McCoig, M.P. for Kent, to tell the astonished people of Canada that in Hon. Thos. Crothers they have a real live trust-buster.

To quote Mr. McCoig:

"But I would commend the investigation of combines to the Minister of Labour. He is strong for them. Why when three or four cobblers got together in the city of Chatham they were threatened with prosecution because they decide to raise the price of patches five cents and half sole ten cents. I will read you the letter."

This he proceeded to do amidst an uproar of laughter from both sides of the House. It was as follows:

"Dear Sir, — I am advised that a few days ago yourself and several others entered into an agreement to raise the price of shoe repairing in the city of Chatham from the eighth inst.

"I am enclosing you a copy of an order-in-Council recently passed, whereby you will see that if any such agreement was made you have laid yourself liable to prosecution under that order. It prohibits the entry into such agreement. Yours truly T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"There's nothing in it," remarked Sir Joseph Flavelle, in regard to the McKenzie charge. That would seem to settle the matter. If there's nothing in it, Sir Joseph wouldn't, of course, be interested.

At the risk of being once more called "the party press" let us point out that if the Minister of Labour is really looking for combines to investigate some of the other members in the House might be able to steer him in the right direction.

"The Chatham Cobblers" will form a title for one of the most amusing chapters in the biography of Hon. T. W. Crothers.

HEINTZMAN HALL SUPPER

Salesmen to Dine Together To-nigh With Their Manager

Mr. B. H. Britton, manager of Heintzman Hall, this city, will give a complimentary supper to his ten salesmen this evening between 5.30 and 6.30. This thoughtful action has to do with the auspicious anniversary of the opening of the Hall, which is being publicly celebrated this afternoon and evening.

Voice of The People

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly publish information in your paper regarding the following?

Does a fellow who will be 20 years old on the 5th of May, have to report for service with this 20 to 23 draft, or is he exempt till the 19 year draft is called?

Thanking you for an early reply, I am, yours truly, Inquirer.

General Mewburn announces that the present call is only to those who reported themselves in October as being 20, 21 or 22 years of age. Men who were not 20 years old at that time are not subject to the new order but will be called upon to report in the ordinary way under the Military Service Act, under the proclamation issued to-day.—Editor.

INTERESTING REPORT PRESENTED BY SECRETARY OF Y. W. C. A. AT THE ANNUAL MEETING

"Review of the Past Year's Work is Very Encouraging" Says Miss Winnifred Parker—New Departments Opened

At the annual meeting of the Y.W.C.A., held Thursday evening, the following report was presented by Miss Winnifred Parker, secretary of the institution. It was left out of yesterday's issue owing to lack of space. The report follows:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Membership: Our membership has reached the 400 mark, and although this is an increase over last year there should really be more members in the various classes is as follows:

in the various classes is as follow:

Gymnasium, 264 and 30	294
St. John's Ambulance	51
Bible Study	16
House Members	36
Expression Classes	13
Club Girls	50
Sustaining members	23
Associate members	35
Total	517

The total of enrolment in classes is greater than the membership because some members are associated with more than one group.

Gymnasium.—Undoubtedly our physical work is the chief department of our association, outside of the house. There are one hundred and forty-two members in the three junior member classes, and one hundred and one in the Saturday afternoon classes.

Three junior classes meet once a week, with an enrolment of one hundred and forty-two members, and one special class of eight this is exclusive of the Saturday afternoon juniors.

Two intermediate classes a week with an enrolment of 36; two club girls classes, with an enrolment of 30; four senior classes, with an enrolment of 78; one special ladies' class, enrolment of 8. Making a total of fourteen gymnasium classes weekly, 294.

One feature of the physical department work has been the out-of-doors activities through the winter. Several snow shoe parties were enjoyed by members of the senior classes, on one occasion the boys of the Y.M.C.A. joining. There have been several basketball games between classes, and exhibition games in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

The closing of the gymnasium season was marked by a most successful exhibition held in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium. This was successful both financially and as an exhibition of excellent work, the result of splendid training. The amount realized already from the exhibition is $215 clear of expenses, and all returns are not in yet, as the affair was just last week.

Our junior department is growing steadily. This refers to the Saturday afternoon juniors, not included in the regular gymnasium members. There have been one hundred and one children enrolled in this class, thirty-seven of whom have paid their fifty cents membership, the others, who do not always attend regularly, pay their pennies as they come. This large enrolment is in spite of the fact that a large number of those who were in the Saturday afternoon class last year have joined the regular junior classes.

Social.—There have been three big parties during the year, with an aggregate attendance of five hundred.

Our membership rally in the fall was a big success when about two hundred people were present.

The junior classes, too, have each had a party during the year, which they have enjoyed immensely, coming out in full numbers.

Educational.— In this department there have been two courses under the auspices of the St. John Ambulance Association, one in First Aid during the fall, and one in Home Nursing, just completed. These classes were conducted by Dr. Cameron, and the examiners were Drs. Greer Eastwood and Morgan. A nursing division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade has been formed of those who hold certificates in both Home Nursing and First Aid. This is under the direction of Miss E. K. Read, with the kindly co-operation of Dr. Cameron and Nurse Jory.

During the year a new department has been opened, and Mrs. Jenne of McGill University is conducting classes in expression, with an enrolment of thirteen students.

Religious.— It is our ambition to have a strong religious work department, as this is one of the fundamentals of the Y.W.C.A. work. The extent of the work at present is not very great. In our home, every evening we have prayers after supper, and on Sunday in the morning. During the fall Rev. Mr. Thomas conducted a series of twelve evenings in Bible study which were of great interest and benefit to the girls who attended. There was an enrolment in this class of sixteen, the average attendance being twelve. Since Christmas time, we have had a small Bible Study class on Monday evenings, immediately after prayers. During the world's week of prayer, special attention was called by special meetings, to the world-wide work of the Y.W.C.A.

Clubs.—We feel that our club work in the Association has a good beginning, but we can call it only a beginning. There are four organized clubs in the Association, one in connection with the senior school girls, and one class of Saturday morning juniors. In these clubs the girls are learning club discipline, and we hope to see each gymnasium class a club organization.

Our outside clubs are, two. The "Athena" Club, composed of business girls with a membership of 35, an an average attendance of twenty. These girls come in on Tuesday evenings from their business, and after a club supper, spend one hour in gymnasium work under the leadership of Miss Edith Price, a member of the Advanced class. Much has been accomplished during this year by the "Athena" Club. It is a decided asset to our Association.

At our bazaar, their tab'e brought in $36.00. During the Japan campaign, $20.00. At our gymnasium exhibition, in which they took part $10.00. Paid membership into the Association, $35.00. Total, $101.

The "Silver Link Club" from the Auburn Woolen Mills, though not so strong, is also very promising. They too, spend an hour in the gymnasium weekly, under the direction of Mrs Rogers, an Advanced gymnasium member. They also took part in our closing and are enthusiastic members of the Y.W.C.A.

Library.—Our Library is greatly enjoyed by our members, both within our home and in our clubs and classes. We have a total of three hundred and fifty-nine volumes, twenty-eight of which have been added during the past year. Eight were bought from our office funds and twenty were very kindly donated to us by Mrs. Morris.

There are now twelve current periodicals on our reading room table, some of which we subscribe for from our office funds and for others we are indebted to the kindness of friends of the Association.

Special Activities.—In December the Association held a bazaar in the gymnasium, with six different booths each in charge of a class or club. The Girls' Auxiliary took charge of the tea room and musical programme. The result of the bazaar was two hundred dollars, which was very gratifying.

Late in the winter a series of Saturday evening programmes were held in the Green Room. These created considerable interest, and incidentally brought about twenty dollars into our funds.

To meet with the desire of the Dominion Council that the Peterborough Association should assume its share in the expenses of a Y.W.C.A. secretary in Japan, a campaign was held to raise $75.00. Contributions to the amount of $60 were received from various sources, chiefly through the organized clubs, and this amount has been supplemented by the proceeds of the Saturday programmes. The culmination of the campaign was an evening with Japan, an entertainment of an interesting and inspiring character.

A very pleasant event during the year was the meeting of the National Council of Women Executive, which held its sessions in our Green Room. It was a privilege to our Association to have these ladies here.

Our ambition is that the Y.W.C.A. should be looked upon as a centre for the young womanhood of Peterborough, and a big step in that direction was accomplished in connection with the Leadership and Girls' Work Conference, which was recently held in this city, and which was such a success. The Sunday schools of the various denominations and the Y.W.C.A. co-operating. Our office was the centre for registration and billetting and the committees planning for the work of the Conference met in our rooms, so we feel that our Association had a distinct share in the success of the Conference, and will have its place in the activities that will follow.

Another step towards the accomplishment of our ambition is the fact that several women's organizations

THE CRISIS!

JUST an ordinary cup of coffee! Surely nothing could be more commonplace to you. But—

To wounded, broken and exhausted Canadian men staggering out of a furnace of shells, at Vimy Ridge, with nerves torn to pieces, that little refreshment in the moment of crisis—who can measure its significance? For it may mean life itself!

Canada-Wide Appeal

Here is an officer's picture of the need: "I wish you and the people supplying free hot drinks could see the men coming in after a big action. They would look like grotesque scarecrows if you couldn't see the pathos of it. Their shoulders and heads sag forward and they slouch slowly along with never a glance to left or right. The strangest thing about them is their faces. If the tension is not broken the brain may snap. I certainly believe that in thousands of cases it was that first hot coffee that dragged the man back to life and sanity."

Is there a man, woman or boy in all Canada to whom these heroes would appeal in vain? Will you help the Y.M.C.A. supply the coffee and the thousand and one other needs of body, mind and spirit "over there?"

Can proud Canadians send a more heartening, more practical message to Canadian heroes now amid the perils of the greatest battle in history than this: "that the Canadian people responded to the Call of the Y.M.C.A. with magnificent, abundant wholehearted Generosity!" Will YOU Help?
